ARRESTED IN BROOKLINE.

Leo Campbell Under Arrest for Larceny at Quincy.

Leo Campbell of Hartford, Conn., the young man alleged to have committed the larceny of watche s and jewelry valued at $100 from the residence of Mrs. Katherine Sennott of Bromfield street Wollaston last Wednesday was arrested in Brookline Saturday and was brought to Quincy Sunday.

Campbell called at the Sennott residence Wednesday evening and engaged board for two weeks, giving a check in payment for the first week. He went to his room and fifteen minutes later had gone. Soon after it was discovered that the room of a lodger had been ransacted and that two ladies gold watches and an amethyst pin were missing. The affair was reported to the police and Officer Goodhue assigned to the case.

Officer Goodhue found that the fellow had been sent to Mrs. Sennott's by a room agency in Boston. Inquiry at this place brought out the fact that Campbell had returned there after visiting Wollaston and reported that he did not like the place. He was then given the addresses of two places in Brookline. The Brookline police were communicated with and the man wanted was found at one of them.

It was also found that the check given Mrs. Sennott by Campbell was worthless and in addition to the crime of larceny a second complaint has been issued against him for passing and issuing a worthless check. He will be arraigned in court Tuesday morning.

THE SATURDAY BALL GAMES

Result of Old Colony League and Other Local Games

Eighteen hits for a total of twenty bases and 12 runs tells the story of the Taunton's defeat at the hands of the local "speed boys" Saturday at the Water street grounds. It was a great batting fest that the Quincy fans were treated to, the local boys knocking the ball to all corners of the field. Every man on the team got two or more hits, with exception of Burke, Lonergan, Donaher, Dean and Duggan connecting for three each.. The Taunton team played good ball, but the hitting of the Quincy team was too great a handicap to overcome.

"Hi Hen" LaBelle the former New England league star, was in the box for the local team and pitched good ball. He did not have to extend himself after the first few innings, for the team behind took such a commanding lead, that it was unnecesary. He let up towards the end and Taunton scored three runs in the last two innings. His support was grand, only two errors being recorded against the team, and both of these were harmless. Walter Lonergan, the star left fielder for the Quincy team played another of his sensational games, catching five flies and making a double play unassisted. Several of the flies were on hard chances and stopped scoring. He also connected for three hits. Donaher at second played a good game in the field and showed some of his old time form at the bat getting in three pretty hits out of five times at the bat.

Two new faces were seen on the Quincy line up outside of LaBelle and both made good with a vengeance. One was Dean, a former Hyde Park man, who played third in place of Hoye. Dean is what is commonly called an all round player. He can hit field, and run bases and he did all three Saturday. He got three hits, including a slashing double and scored three runs. Briggs was on first and if he keeps up the pace that he set Saturday, he will certainly be a fixture on the local team. He accepted 12 chances without the least semblance of an error, some of the plays being of a sensational order. He formerly played with the strong Salem team and there he was considered one of the best ever. He is a hitter too and poled out two clean hits. He looks good and made a big hit with the local fans.

"Shimmer" O'Brien, the crack twirler of the Taunton team and hero of the eighteen inning game against Stoughton, was in the box for the visitors, and got hit hard and often. He was batted all over the lot, never getting such a bad beating since he has been pitching. He got good support from his team, too, but was simply unable to stop the hard hitting of the Quincy boys. Hetherington was the star for the Taunton team, getting three out of three times at bat. Wiggin also hit the ball hard getting there hits for a total of four.

For a few innings the game was close, but not for long. To go through each inning and tell how all the runs were scored, would take a long time. Suffice it to say that the Quincy team scored in every inning but the first and seventh, getting four big juicy tallies in the eighth. It was the hit run game all through for the locals the hits coming just when they were most needed. Taunton did not score until the fourth when she got one run as the result of two hits in succession. She also scored one in the fifth on Hafford's pass, his third of the game, Martin's sacrifice, and Delback's two-bagger. Her other three runs came in the last two innings on clean hits.

This win puts Quincy and Taunton on even terms for the leadership of the league, Dewey, by losing to Stoughton, dropping back into second place. Quincy, with the team that played on Saturday, has an excellent chance of keeping in the lead and forcing Taunton from first place.

SUNDAY NIGHT'S FIRE.

The alarm from Box 41 at 11.58 Sunday night called the fire department to a fire in a hen house at the foot of Fort street, in the rear of a large barn. The building was a small one but made a bright blaze which lit up the sky so that it could be seen for miles. Owing to its nearness to the large barn the firemen lost no time in getting the fire under control and drowning it out. The loss will not exceed $15. Chief Williams is of the opinion that the fire was caused by an incendiary.

LaBelle, the new pitcher, looked Pretty good.

Every day the big cities are coming nearer together. Boston to Chicago by rail in twenty hours is going some.

It is hoped for the sake of all concerned that everything in connection with the city plumbing award is exactly plumb.

If it hadn't been for the lights from the various stores, the business centre would have looked like a silhouette Saturday night.

The weather is also inclined to slice the country up into wet and dry belts, and it is not according to prohibition districts either.

A thief in Boston apparently does not have much fear of the police for the other day a patrolman's locker at Station 5 was robbed of over $500.

Arresting and fining heavily eleven young men at Cambridge this week for loitering on street corners was a move in the right direction. Loafing no matter where should not be tolerated.

With orders for two immense molasses barges and a sulphur steamer, the Fore River company has got a pretty big dose of spring medicine to take.

Quincy seems to be right to the front in the educational line. Our superintendent of schools is promoted to a like position in Cambridge and a former Quincy pastor gets an appointment as superintendent of schools in another state.

The long-continued dry weather is creating havoc with the garden crops in Quincy and vicinity. If a copious supply of rain is not soon forthcoming, everything planted will be nearly a total loss.

The Globe quotes Corey of the steel trust as saying "There will be business enough for all." Surest thing you know but what is surer still is that all won't get a show at the business. The big fellows like Corey will be like the boy with the apple who said. "There ain't goin' to be no core."

It is Acting-Mayor Curtis now and the representative of one of Quincy's oldest and best-known families comes to the head of the city government. As city treasurer, Mr. Curtis "has made good," as the saying of the street goes. There is no reason why the Democrats should not find in him some good mayoralty timber at some future date.

A BYGONE INDUSTRY.

The neighboring town of Braintree has just heard good news to the effect that the boot and shoe firm of Rice & Hutchins is to erect a factory in that town which will be 300 by 50 feet. An office building, 50 feet square, will also be erected. The firm already has a large factory in the town and the building of the new shoe factory means that many more families will soon be looking for homes in Braintree. It has been a question, more or less discussed, why it is that this firm does not erect a factory in Quincy where members of the firm live. In all the string of factories which this firm operates, not one located here. It has always been a matter of considerable comment why the boot and shoe factories that were formerly located in Quincy moved away to other places which, from the Quincy viewpoint, did not seem any better equipped to maintain such factories than this city. For many years Quincy was a noted boot and shoe centre, especially in the days when those articles were made by hand and brought correspondingly good prices.

The names of the Curtises, the Basses the Grahams, the Drakes, the Newcombs, the Whitchers and others were for years inseparably linked with this industry which, at one time, was as important a factory in the industrial life of the town as was the granite business. So important was it that Hon. Charles Francis Adams, in his "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," devotes considerable space to the subject of the work of the sons of St. Crispin. The boot and shoe industry in Quincy dates back almose as far as the history of the town itself and it is known that the father of President John Adams was a cordwainer, the old-fashioned name for a shoemaker. The making of boots and shoes in those days and in recent days as well, as far as Quincy was concerned, was a far different busines proposition than the present day methods. In the old days, and up to a period not exceeding 35 years ago, the workmen were accustomed to call at the shop each day and get their allotment of work which was carried to their homes and performed there. A few years later these men moved their benches to the main shop and all worked under one roof.

Aside from the big factories of J. D. Whitcher and John E. Drake on Main and Baxter streets, there were no factories in Quincy to correspond with the modern-day boot and shoe factories and even those factories above alluded to, were behind the present system of doing business but they were the nearest representation to what is known as the boot and shoe manufactory today where the boots and shoes are made by machinery instead of by human hands and men and women simply direct the machinery. The last of the big factories to disappear from the city was the John R. Graham concern which dealt exclusively in hand-made boots and shoes and was known the world over for the excellence of its products. Another concern of the same nature is still maintained in Quincy and is probably the last of its kind here; the shop of Edwin W. Newcomb, which is now on Newcomb place but was formerly a prominent manufactory of Quincy Neck.

Why it is that all the big shoe shops of the town should fade away is a hard thing to understand as it is hard to conceive why some of the new manufactories being erected are not located in Quincy. The modern boot and shoe factory is a valuable asset to the business worth of any city. As a general thing good wages are paid, the help are of the more intelligent class and are good spenders. They make a neat appearance and generally give an air of prosperity to the places where their business is located. It would certainly seem that Quincy has as many advantages to offer a concern like the Rice & Hutchins company as Braintree or some of the smaller towns in the Old Colony district which are further removed from Boston. It would seem as if there was a good field of exploration here for the Board of Trade or Citizens' Association or any public-spirited gathering of business men.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

ADJOURNMENT NEAR AT HAND

LONG SESSIONS THIS WEEK

Prediction That Vote on Tariff Conference Report Will Be Reached In Senate by Thursday—Anti-Free Hides Men and "Insurgents" May Make Speeches—Minority Will Debate, but Won't Filibuster

Washington, Aug. 2.—Unless something happens to provoke heated discussions of a political character, the new tariff bill should be enacted into law and the extraordinary session of congress adjourned before the end of the present week.

Inquiry among senators opposed to the adoption of the conference committee report of the Payne-Aldrich bill indicates that the debate will not be as extended as it threatened to be before the conferees' report.

The senate met at 10 o'clock today. The session probably will begin at that hour each day and will continue until 6 or 7 o'clock daily until the report is adopted. If it is found that more senators desire to speak than have already given notice, it is possible that evening sessions may be held.

Senator Aldrich is determined that the conference report shall not be carried over into next week. He does not expect to occupy very much time himself. He says that he will not speak longer than an hour or two and that other members of the committee will occupy comparatively little time.

It is probable that senators who were opposed to the placing of hides on the free list will have something to say on that subject and that all of the Republicans who voted against the bill when it was on its passage in the senate will take occasion to explain their action. Some of these senators will vote for the adoption of the conference report and some of them are expected to vote in the negative.

Senator Culberson, leader of the minority, is authority for the statement that the Democrats will debate the conference report thoroughly, but will not filibuster against its adoption. Senators Daniel and Bailey, members of the committee on finance, will speak at length against the adoption of the conference report and take the lead in voicing Democratic opposition to the new tariff bill.

Some of the senate leaders predict that a vote will be had on the conference report as early as Thursday and that the special session of congress can be brought to a close on Friday.

OFF FOR ENGLAND

Czar's Visit to France Was Objected to by the Socialists

Cherbourg, Aug. 2.—The final day of the visit of Emperor Nicholas to France was attended with beautiful weather. The emperor left early this morning for England to visit King Edward.

The whole tenor of the official utterances of President Fallieres and Emperor Nicholas during the visit has indicated that the Franco-Russian alliance remains the keystone of the policy of the powers in the interest of peace.

The sensation of the day was the distribution by Socialists at the barracks of the Cherbourg regiment of 2500 copies of a manifesto against the visit of Emperor Nicholas.

PRESIDENT'S VACATION

It Will Not Begin Until the Tariff Bill Becomes a Law

Washington, Aug. 2.—President Taft does not expect to attend the open air pageants at Gloucester, Mass., next Wednesday, it is stated at the White House. He had accepted an invitation to be present at the celebration, contingent upon the adjournment of congress.

Mr. Taft will not leave Washington until the tariff bill becomes a law, and no one predicts the passage of the bill through the senate prior to Thursday night at the earliest. The president hopes to get away either Friday or Saturday afternoon.

Long-Standing Record Broken

New York, Aug. 2.—The Clan-Na-Gael track and field games at Celtic Park, L. I., were productive of a new world's record in the two-hops and jump, in which Daniel F. Ahearn covered 50 feet, 6½ inches, which is 6 inches more than the recognized world's record made nearly twenty years ago.

Havana, Aug. 2.—Postmaster General Nodarse shot Senor Torriente, editor of the illustrated weekly, Policia Comica, and is a fugitive from justice, all attempts made to capture him having failed.

Died at Prayer In Church

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Edwin Coney, aged 74, dropped dead while attending Sunday school in the South Chili Methodist church. He died just as he knelt to lead the school in prayer.

DEATH OF WILLIAM G. MARKHAM.

William G. Markham of Houghs Neck died early Sunday morning at the Quincy city hospital, from the effects of a shock, aged 54 years. Mr. Markham came to this city a few years ago from Boston and opened a small store at Houghs Neck near the fire station on Sea street. A few months ago he was afflicted with a slight shock and last week another shock caused him to go to the city hospital for treatment. He is survived by his wife.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the chapel of John Hall, 1485 Hancock street.

SAILED FOR PODBURY CUP.

The yachts of the Wolaston yacht club held another race Sunday morning for the Podbury cup. It is impossible to tell who the winner is as the official of the club who has the time allowance figures is on his vacation and the actual figures were sent to him last night. It is expected he will send back the corrected figures by Tuesday. The order of the boats at the finish was as follows: first, Aspinquid; second, Whisper; third, Tyrant; fourth, Dolphin; fifth Vandyl; sixth, Kiten; seventh, Leisure; eighth, Sally.

WONG HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Slayer of Chinese Vice Consul a Man With a Bad Reputation

New York, Aug. 2.—Wong Bow Cheung, the undersized Americanized Chinese cook who shot and killed the Chinese vice consul, Dr. Luk Wing, Saturday, was arraigned before the coroner Sunday and committed to the Tombs without bail to await the result of an inquest.

What scanty information the police can gather about him is wholly to his discredit. Wong had the reputation in Chinatown of being a hard drinker, an unsteady worker and chronically in want of cash.

Wingshu S. Ho, the Chinese consul here, cannot believe that Luk Wing, whom he knew as the most gentle and painstaking of aides, ever treated the prisoner harshly or did anything to excuse the assault.

Dr. Luk Wing's funeral will be held under the auspices of Hope lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, of which the late vice consul was a member. He was the only Chinese in the state of New York holding membership in a regular Masonic lodge.

JACKIES HAVE DAY ASHORE

Battleship Fleet's Business Off Provincetown Is Almost Completed

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 2.—Provincetown's few streets—all narrow, winding, sandy thoroughfares—were literally choked Sunday by the influx of nearly 4500 sailors from the Atlantic fleet and a horde of Sunday excursionists. It was the last Sunday of Provincetown freedom for the jackies, as the fleet leaves for Hampton Roads on Wednesday.

The naval militiamen of Massachusetts and Maine who have been receiving instruction aboard the battleships during the past week had scarcely vacated the ships when the members of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey state naval brigades and those from the District of Columbia arrived.

This morning the fleet left the harbor and went out to the practice grounds. The battleships will come into the harbor again tomorrow night or Wednesday morning to prepare for the trip to Hampton Roads.

OLEOMARGARINE LAW IS BEING ENFORCED

Signs Displayed In Eating Places Where Served

New York, Aug. 2.—"Oleomargarine used here" must be printed plainly and conspicuously hereafter on all bills of fare in those restaurants throughout the state which serve substitutes for butter.

Lunch carts, boarding houses and other eating places which do not rise to the dignity of a menu card must post signs "in places where they can be easily seen and read, which shall bear the words 'oleomargarine used here' in letters at least two inches in length and so printed as to be easily read by guests and boarders."

This is by order of the state commissioner of agriculture, who is enforcing a new law. Violation of the order is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

KILLED CHILDREN AND SELF

Woman Resorted to Gas as a Means of Ending Three Lives

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Matrimonial troubles caused Mrs. Louis Michel to slay her children, Meta, 15 years old, and Gustav, 12 years old, and herself. The two children were found dead in bed with every gas jet in the house open and Mrs. Michel was found seated in the kitchen, also dead, with one end of a rubber tube through which gas was flowing, in her mouth.

Mrs. Michel and her husband had been separated for three months and she had started suit for a divorce. Pending a decision, her husband was to pay her alimony, but he failed to do so.

Passenger Steamer Overdue

Durban, Natal, Aug. 2.—Some alarm has been created by the non-arrival here of the British steamer Waratah, from Sydney, for London. She left Port Natal July 26 and since then has not been seen by any other vessel. The Waratah has 3000 souls aboard.

Minister's Real Helpmeet

New York, Aug. 2.—Mrs. F. S. Baker, wife of the pastor of the South Brooklyn Unitarian church, filled her husband's pulpit yesterday. She has been preaching sermons in her husband's place in order that he might take a month's vacation without putting the congregation to the expense of employing an extra pastor.

Suicide In a Church

Boston, Aug. 2.—Declaring he was pursued by men who wanted to kill him, Frank Saulis, aged 35, a Lithuanian, after attending mass at the Lithuan Catholic church in South Boston went into the basement of the church and committed suicide by cutting his throat. He was apparently demented.

Consecration of New Church

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER 1.—Daniel Voorhees Pike, a rising young Kokomo (Ind.) lawyer, hears that his ward, Ethel Granger-Simpson, is to be married abroad to the son of an English earl. Her father was his nearest friend, and he has long loved the girl. He goes abroad to arrange with her the business matters connected with her marriage. II—Ethel Granger-Simpson and her brother, Horace, have become anglomaniacs and are spending much of their late father's fortune in travel and entertaining. They become intimate with Lady Creech, the Earl of Hawcastle, his son, Almeric St. Aubyn, and Countess de Champigny, an adventuress and associate of the earl's. They are at a hotel at Sorrento, Italy. Ethel promises to marry the son because she craves a title. III—The Russian Grand Duke Vasill is shortly to arrive at the same hotel incognito as Herr von Grollerbagen. IV—The Earl of Hawcastle is in need of money and wants his son to get a huge settlement of money at his marriage to Ethel. An escaped Russian bandit is located at Sorrento. V—For some reason the comtesse fears the alleged bandit is one Ivanoff. Almeric tells his father Ethel has accepted him. VI—Horace agrees to persuade his sister Ethel to settle $750,000 on Almeric. VII—Ethel tells Horace of her delight at the prospect of her coming marriage into the ancient family of the St. Aubyns. VIII—Von Grollerhagen arrives with Daniel Voorhees Pike on foot, their auto having broken down. IX—Harold, Ethel and the Hawcastle party are disgusted with what they term the "American manners" of Pike. She tells Pike of her identity, as he had failed to recognize her in her European clothes and European deportment. X—Pike refuses to consent as her guardian to her settling $750,000 on Almeric, and Ethel is enraged at him. XI—The Russian refugee meets Pike, and the latter shows him a place to hide from the Italian police. Von Grollerhagen aids Pike to do this.

BLACKMAIL.

PIKE was still standing with the letter in his hand, looking after Ethel, when he awoke to the realization of what her words meant to him. She had given her promise, and she did not mean that anything in the world should make her revoke it. That promise was sacred to her, just as if it had been spoken before a clergyman.

In his heart Pike knew he would have to give in if he was to make her happy, and yet he knew that in making her temporarily happy he would be making her eternally miserable. If he could have the strength to hold out against her and refuse to sanction the marriage he knew the crew of aristocrats would never accept her without the cash, and that by the terms of John Simpson's will could never be theirs without his consent.

Of his own hopes he could see but the faintest glimmering. He had irretrievably offended the girl, and she would hate him all her life for it, he feared. His entrance into her new phase of life had been unfortunate. His continuance in it was little else than an insult, according to her way of thinking. And Jim Cooley, whom he had trusted to find the flaw in the Hawcastle escutcheon that he knew had existed, had failed him miserably.

The lawyer felt that he was a long way from home. He sighed and turned to where the sun was sinking in a haze of red across the bay. Then he heard the voice of Horace and chiming with it the cultured accents of Lord Hawcastle. Apparently they were coming to seek him. She had reiterated his refusal.

Wearily he turned again to the automobile and leaned against it. As he did so he heard Horace say:

"But Ethel says Mr. Pike positively refuses."

In return he heard Hawcastle reply:

"Leave him to me. In ten minutes he will be as meek as a lamb."

Dumbly Pike wondered what fresh argument the earl had to offer and mentally steeled himself against it. As he looked up he encountered the steady glare of the earl.

"My dear Pike," began the latter, "there is a certain question"—

"I said I would not discuss that with you. I meant what I said," observed Daniel quietly.

"This is another question," went on the other, heedless of the warning or at least unaffected by it.

"Late this afternoon I developed a great anxiety concerning the penalty prescribed by Italian law for those fortunate and impulsive individuals who connive at the escape or concealment of certain unfortunates who are wanted by the police."

Daniel looked at him, with a smile.

"So you're all worked up about that, are you?" Hawcastle glared at him, but went on.

"So deeply that I ascertained the penalty for it. For the person whose kind heart has so betrayed him the penalty is two years in prison, and Italian prisons, I am credibly informed, are—unpleasant."

Pike ruminated and folded his letter.

"Being in jail ain't much like an Elks' carnival," he observed.

"Even a citizen of your admirable country could not escape if his complicity were proved—if he were caught in the act. I will be plain with you."

These last words had an ominous note. "Let us imagine that a badly wanted man appeared upon the pergola here and made an appeal to one of your countrymen who, for the purposes of argument, is at work upon this car. Say that the too amiable American conceals the fugitive under the automobile and afterward, with the connivance of a friend, deceives the officers of the law and shelters the criminal, say, in a room of that lower suit there."

He looked about in the growing twilight and pointed dramatically to the window. Pike, now thoroughly interested and with his pulse beating a rapid tattoo, followed his finger. The earl went on:

"Imagine, for instance, that the shadow which appears upon that curtain were that of the wanted man. Would you not agree then to a reasonable request?"

Daniel swallowed painfully, for he saw in some manner that that swaying window curtain which had caught his eye an hour ago had held a distinct menace. It seemed too bad that this should be the end of it all—all the defenses he had raised for the girl of his dead friend should be swept away in an instant by a bit of folly.

"What would be the nature of that request?" he asked.

"If the request were refused, what would the consequences be?" Pike went on, with lowered eyes, for he would not trust himself to meet those of the nobleman.

"Two years at least in prison for the American."

Lord Hawcastle stepped close to him.

"If this fellow countryman of yours were assured that the law would be permitted to take its course if a favorable answer to a certain question were not received in an hour within that hotel, what, in your opinion, would the answer be?"

Pike looked up from the letter he was twisting in his hands, and his thin shoulders took on a squarer attitude. He looked his antagonist squarely in the eye, but he did not raise the tone of his voice.

"It would depend a good deal on which of my countrymen you caught. If it depended on the one I know best he'd tell you he'd see you in hades first."

For an instant the earl looked fixedly at Daniel, and his face went red and white by turns. There was a dangerous flash in his eyes, and he stepped a trifle closer and half raised his walking stick. Then, with a muttered oath, he dropped it, picked up his hat from the bench where he had thrown it and walked to the hotel steps.

"You have an hour," he said, menacingly turning. "At the end of that time—we will know what to do."

Daniel must have stood there ten minutes after Hawcastle had gone, and the twilight came down and enveloped him with its softness. As the lights came out here and there he turned and looked over at the windows of Von Grollerhagen's suit and noted the shadow still on the window blind.

"Looks to me like doc's in this thing and ought to be told," he murmured.

He found his way slowly across the grass and up the steps and in another moment tapped upon the door of the German's rooms. The door was opened by Ribiere, who informed him that Von Grollerhagen was dressing. He found his friend adjusting his white cravat before a mirror.

Within five minutes he had acquainted the other with all that had passed and had received a smile in return. Von Grollerhagen refused to take the matter seriously.

"Pouf!" he said. "Surely you can trust this Lord Hawcastle not to mention it. He must know that the consequences for you as well as for me would be, to say the least, disastrous. Surely you made that clear to him."

Daniel smiled gently.

"No," he answered grimly. "He made it clear to me. Two years in jail, and if I don't make up my mind in fifty minutes from now to do what he wants me to do"—

"What is it that he wants you to do?" asked the German.

"The young lady's father trusted me to look after her, and if I won't promise to let her pay £150,000 for that—well, you've seen it around here, haven't you?"

"I have observed it, if you refer to the son of Lord Hawcastle," answered Von Grollerhagen gravely.

"Well, if I don't agree to that Ivanoff goes to Siberia and you and I to jail."

Von Grollerhagen looked at him quickly.

"He threatens that! What do you intend to do?"

"I can't agree. There wouldn't be any trouble to it if it was only me. They could land me for two years or twenty. But I can't do what they want, even to let you and Ivanoff out. It ain't my money. All I can do is to hint that you get out right away. Ivanoff can't go. They've got a ring around this place."

"You could get away, too, my friend," said the German, watching him softly. "You had not thought of that?"

"No, sir, and I'm not going to think of it. But you"—

"As for me, I shall go," said Von Grollerhagen, standing up.

"Well, that's part of the load off my mind. I haven't had the nerve to tell that poor fellow in there, though."

Von Grollerhagen motioned to Ribiere.

"Appellez le monsieur la!" he commanded and pointed to the other door of the chamber. The man opened it at once and beckoned to Ivanoff.

"Ivanoff, some unexpected difficulties have arisen," said the German. "The police have discovered your presence here, and persons who wish evil to my friend have threatened to make trouble. He can do nothing further to save you unless he betrays a sacred trust."

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

20,000 BUILDINGS BURNED

Largest Buddhist Temple In the World and One of Most Important Stock Exchanges In the Country Are Destroyed—Fire Swept Through Narrow Streets Until It Had Covered Four Square Miles

Osaka, Japan, Aug. 2.—Confusion prevails as a result of Saturday's disastrous fire. Thousands of persons are homeless and hunger is staring many of them in the face. A system of relief has been organized by the municipal authorities, but it is inadequate.

The number of casualties has not yet been determined, but hundreds of injured persons are crowding the hospitals.

The last estimates are that 20,000 buildings were destroyed, these including banks, the stock exchange, the museum, government edifices and factories. While at present it is impossible to state accurately the losses, these are given roughly at several million yen.

The conflagration lasted more than twenty-five hours and the burned section presents a deplorable sight. The streets of the city are very narrow and the houses were mostly of wood construction. Under a strong breeze the buildings were easy prey for the flames.

Once hope was almost abandoned that the conflagration could be arrested. The firemen fought valiantly against the odds of lack of water and many of them fell unconscious at their posts. Had not the water supply been curtailed by the existing drouth it is believed the fire would have been checked without great damage.

During the fire the greatest confusion prevailed among the spinning girls in the factory quarter, but fortunately no serious loss of life occurred there.

The belongings of the people who were able to save anything from their burning homes are piled in great heaps along the railroad tracks from Osaka to Kobec, where they were removed when the fire broke out. The able-bodied members of families returned to the city to assist in fighting the flames, leaving the old people to guard their effects.

An area of over four miles square, containing some of the city's handsomest structrues, including the Buddhist temple, the largest in the world, was entirely burned over before the fire was brought under control. The stock exchange, which was one of the most important in this country, was entirely destroyed.

This loss, it is believed, will tend considerably to dislocate the business of Osaka, which, with its manufacturing concerns, is one of the chief commercial cities of Japan.

OIL MAGNATE WEDS

Pierce Married In London Today to a St. Louis Widow

Manchester Mass., Aug. 2.—Henry Clay Pierce of Pride's Crossing, St. Louis and New York, chairman of the Waters-Pierce Oil company and a reputed "silent partner" of the Standard Oil company, whose far-reaching financial interests extend to nearly every phase of American industrial life, wedded in London today at noon Mrs. Virginia P. Burrows of St. Louis.

The rather sudden announcement of the marriage arrived in the form of a cablegram received by Pierce's son, Clay A. Pierce, who is now at his summer home at Pride's Crossing.

TWELVE PERSONS KILLED

Nearly Four Score Injured In Collision of Electric Trains

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 2.—The number of dead as the result of a head-on collision of two electric trains twenty-five miles east of here totals twelve and the number of injured about seventy-five.

Many persons from eastern states were on the trains, having come to Spokane to register for the Indian land opening, and some of these were injured.

Three Victims of Accident

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Eugene E. Cutts, one of the persons who were precipitated into the water by the overturning of the power boat Item, died yesterday, thus increasing the number of fatalities resulting from this accident to three. The others to lose their lives were Miss Katherine Lynch and Miss Margaret Harvey.

SMASHES DOOR OF HER CELL

Drunken Woman Wrecks Door at the Police Station

People residing in the vicinity of Fayette street Wollaston were aroused from their peaceful slumbers early Sunday morning by a racket that came from one of the neighboring houses. Someone telephoned the police station and in the mean time Officer Reiley had heard the racket and was investigating. He found a free-for-all fight in progress at the house of Clifford Raymond. There were two men and a woman in the fight and all were under the influence of liquor. It seems that the woman had been hired in Boston as a housekeeper and before leaving for Wollaston all had indulged in more or less beer.

The officer called the wagon and sent the trio to the police station. The woman took on terribly and threattned to commit suicide. She had a box, which she said contained poison, which she tried to take but was prevented by the officers on duty, who took it away from her. The officers believe that the box contained nothing more poisonous than snuff. She gave her name as Elizabeth Gilletts while the men answered to the names of Samuel Gingell and Clifford Raymond.

The woman was placed in the woman's cell and the two men in regular cells. A few minutes later Sergt. Barry had his peaceful thoughts disturbed by a crashing sound that resembled the explosion of a bomb. At the same time splinters of the door of the woman's cell flew across the floor. Investigation showed that the woman had made a wreck of the inside of the cell. She had taken one of the heavy oak chairs, which she had smashed to splinters when she drove the legs through the panel of the wooden door between the steel bars and the station office.

Sergt. Barry rushed in expecting to find the woman injured but she had not suffered any by the fracus. The remains of the chair were taken away from her. This morning in court all three denied that they were drunk The court however thought different and fined the men $5 each. The woman was put on probation for a month.

ATLANTICS WIN AND LOSE.

Atlantic Professionals lost to the strong Newport team at Newport, R. I., Saturday, 12-3. Coffey of North Adams pitched for Newport and was hit hard 12 hits being registered off his delivery, while Driscoll held the Newport sluggers down to 11 hits. Bad fielding by Armstrong and Murphy for Atlantic on apparently easy plays cost the Granite city boys the game. Boston Americans are scheduled to play at Newport next Sunday.

The Atlantic team remained in Providence Saturday night and jumped over to Phenix early Sunday afternoon where they tackled the town team on Pawtuxet Valley field, the Atlantic boys winning 6 to 3. Patsey Duggan pitched for Atlantic and held Phenix down to 9 scattered hits while Atlantic touched up Fred Barnicle of the Worcester team of the New England league and Hanley of Manhattan state college for 14 hits, two doubles being secured by Joe Granahan, who played right field for the Atlantic boys. Jimmy Fay was the head liner in the hitting game, getting four singles. He also fielded in good style getting a man at the plate on a fine relay throw from Henry Granahan on an apparently home run hit to deep left field. Dan Fitzgerald, the Atlantic catcher has been secured by the North Adams, Mass., team, and Cunningham, a Dorchester boy caught both games. He showed up finely behind the bat and was also strong with the stick. The score:

RED SOX ANSWER BIGELOWS.

The Quincy Red Sox send the following in reply to the defi issued by the Bigelows: "All parties being agreeable the Quincy Red Sox will play the Bigelows a series of three games, the first game to be played Aug. 14, and the ground to be picked later. The Red Sox claim to supremacy will be quickly justified if the Bigelows come to time. "Milton C. Burton, 274 South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass.

It now looks as if it was up to the Bigelows to complete the arrangements, since the Red Sox have named a date. If the series is ever played it ought to bring out some good work, as both teams are undoubtedly fast. It is to be hoped that a disinterested umpire will be secured to handle the indicator in these games, in order that there will be no unnecessary kicking. Come on boys, get busy, and arrange this series, let both sides play good clean ball and may the best team win.

RED SOX BEATEN.

The Fore River Apprentices defeated the Quincy Red Sox Saturday at Merry Mount park. The reckless work of the Sox' third baseman allowed the Apprentices to score three runs that otherwise would not have scored. The Red Sox pitcher held the Fore River boys to four hits and ordinarily would have won his game. But as is often the case errors lost the day. A new third baseman has been secured and the Sox are now ready for the Bigelows.

DEFEAT FOR QUINCY IND.

The strong Plymouth Cordage team of Plymouth put it onto the Quincy Independents Saturday on the former's grounds, the score being 5 to 3. Michaels and Troupe, the former Makaria battery, were in the points for Quincy and although they worked well, were beaten on bunched hits. Lefty Ford, the fast little outfielder of the local team, kept up his batting streak, getting a double in Saturday's game.

NOTRE DAME BEATS CRANCH.

Cranch A. A. was beaten Saturday at the Marcella street grounds by the fast Notre Dame team of Roxbury. The score was 6 to 2. S. Redington, the Notre Dame pitcher, held the heavy hitting Cranch team to three hits and struck out eight men. Smith started the game in the box for Cranch, but was replaced by Knight, who pitched excellent ball. Berluchi led at the bat for the Cranch, getting a single and a double out of three times at bat.

BIRD CLUB OUTING.

Unique Organization Will Hold Its Annual Outing Tuesday.

The Bird club composed of local business and professional men, hold their annual outing Tuesday. The party will leave Houghs Neck in the power boat Fire Fly, Capt. T. L. Williams and the Blue Bell, Capt. C. C. Foster. The party will come to anchor off one of the islands while the club members drown a few worms. Should they be fortunate enough to hook in any of the finny tribe the party will land and proceed to fry them. Capt. Foster will be the chef of the party and promises to get up a lunch that will make their mouths water. They will have fish and if they do not catch any with worms, silver hooks are sure to produce the necessary supply.

THE WARD ONE PLAYGROUND

Fifty Children Present at Opening this Morning

To the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and the Quincy Women's club, goes the credit of establishing the first outdoor gymnasium in Quincy. At nine o'clock this morning the gym was opened in the lot back of the Y. M. C. A. building on Washington street, and about fifty little boys and girls, all under 12 years of age, took advantage of the playstead. The children came from all parts of the city and had a merry time all the morning.

Lester H. Clee, the boys' director of the Y. M. C. A., has the general supervision of the gym, and he is to be assisted by a large number of young ladies who are interested in this sort of work . The civic betterment committee of the Quincy Women's club started the scheme and is standing the expense of equipping the playground, which was furnished by the Y. M. C. A. Mrs. W. G. Shaw is chairman of the committee and she is assisted by Mrs. Ernest Gay, Mrs. Charles Sampson and Mrs. E. E. Miller. Miss Ella Packard, who is a student of physical culture, is to be at the playground all this week with Mrs. Shaw, and they will have an assistant each day. The following will help during this week:

Mrs. George Badger, Miss Beatrice Morrison, Miss Norma Lowe, Miss Roberta Smith and Miss Lucile Elwell, who is a student at Dr. Sargent's school of physical culture. These assistants will look after the safety of the children and see that they play games suitable for children to engage.

The playground is equipped with see-saws and swings, and there is also a big sand box for the smaller children to play in. There will also be other amusements for the children in the form of games, which will be played every day. When rain does not permit the children to play out of doors, they can use the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. This one great advantage that this playground will have over the usual municipal grounds. It is open for use by any child under 12 in any part of the city, as long as the children behave themselves . And this is one of the ideas of the playground, to teach the children to be gentle and to refrain from anything that would not be tolerated at home or in the schoolroom. The playground will be open every morning from 9 to 12 and the parents who allow their children to come, may feel sure that they are safe, for they will be under the watchful eyes of the supervisors all the time.

This playground scheme is one of the best of the many good things that the Y. M. C. A. and the Women's club have done for the city. It will keep the children off the streets and allow them to have a good time and still be safe. It will also, perhaps, awaken the city fathers to the necessity of having these outdoor gymnasiums in different parts of the city.

At the municipal election last fall it was voted to accept the playground act to have the playgrounds equipped and put in shape for use by the children for something else than baseball alone. The start made by the Y .M. C. A. will probably be an incentive to push the other along and those interested in the work should give the present enterprise their hearty co-operation. Several young ladies have offered their services as assistants, but the committee would be glad to hear from any others who are interested and who have the time to spare.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF LOCAL FANS

What Followers of the Local League Team Talk About

Everyone in town is talking of the wonderful batting of the Quincy Old Colony league team in the game against Taunton last Saturday. It certainly was a treat the way the local team pounded the ball that day. They gave O'Brien, the visiting twirler, one of the worst beatings he has ever received in all his pitching career. Every man on the team, except Burke, got one or more hits, several of the drives going for extra bases. The team plays Deweys on the local field next Saturday and if Thompson pitches, just watch for some more batting. When this lanky heaver faced the "Speedy Boys" in this city not long ago, he was hit hard and often, with the result that the Randolph management let him go. Dewey picked him up and he will probably work against Quincy on Saturday.

A question that many are puzzling over just at present is what will be done with Strobel when he returns from his vacation. The team Saturday looked mighty strong and many wondered where Strobel would fit. It goes almost without saying that he will be put back in the infield when he returns, but this will crowd someone else out. Lou Courtney is too fast to drop and George Donaher is too good a hitter to sit on the bench. We must then look to the outfield. The only weak point in the field is right field. Joe Burke is not hitting the ball. He is a fast clever fielder and is an excellent baserunner, but he does not get on very often. In the last seven or eight games Burke has not got over four or five hits. This is not a very good record, for it would give him a batting average of about .150, which is not very good for an outfielder. Other men have been let go this year because of weak hitting and it would seem that if anyone must be dropped to make room for Allie Strobel, Burke is the man. Of course he is a grand fielder, but Donaher can also play the outfield and it would seem that the best thing to do would be to put Donaher in right field, even for his hitting alone, and put Strobel at second, leaving Courtney at short. It is up to the management of course to do what they see fit, but to drop Donaher would be a very unpopular and unwise move. It would not be a good baseball move either to drop

QUARRY ACCIDENT.

Bartholemew Gunning Injured This Noon at Quincy Quarry Co. Plant.

Bartholemew Gunning, a quarryman employed by the Quincy Quarries Co., was seriously injured this afternoon while at work in one of their quarries. Gunning was at the bottom of the quarry guiding the boat which transports grout to the top of the quarry. He had hold of the rope when the boat started on an upward trip. The rope became entangled about his leg and he was thrown violently against the side of the quarry. His right leg was fractured in several places and he was also badly bruised about the body. He was removed to the City Hospital. The injured man is about 42 years of age and resides on Bryant avenue.

WANTED IN QUINCY,

J. F. Kennerson Arrested as he Left Jail for Larceny in Quincy.

Inspector Goodhue went to Providence Monday and brought back John F. Kennerson who was wanted by the police for the larceny of a horse and buggy over two years ago.

Kennerson has been serving a two years' sentence in Providence for forgery in 1906 and for the larceny of clothing. The checks forged were in the clothing stolen and Kennerson forged the endorsement and cashed them.

It was just previous to this time that Kennerson hired a horse and buggy of Penniman & Son for a short drive. He never came back and after considerable difficulty Mr. Penniman found his buggy in Dorchester, the horse in Boston and the harness in another place. All had been sold by Kennerson.

When the crime was eventually fastened upon Kennerson he was in jail doing time.

A fugitive warrant was issued for him and Monday when he walked out of jail where he had been serving a two year sentence he walked into the hands of an officer who proceeded to lock him up for the Quincy police. He was arraigned in court this morning.

BROKE HIS WRIST.

Patrick the 14 year old son of John Doyle of Cross street met with a painful accident Monday evening. He was riding on the rear of a grocery wagon on Copeland street when he lost his balance and fell to the street. He was taken up in a dazed condition and carried to the office of Dr. Reynolds where it was found that his injuries consisted of a fracture of the right wrist in addition to a bad cut on the head. After having his injuries dressed he was taken to his home.

THE MORNING FIRE.

The alarm from Box 37 at 1 o'clock this morning was for a slight fire on the School street bridge. The fire was a slight affair and could have been easily extinguished without an alarm. Some unknown party however discovered the fire and instead of notifying the police station which was near by rushed to Dobles corner and sounded the alarm. A chemical stream quickly put the fire out of business. There was no loss.

BIGELOWS ACCEPT SOX' DEFI.

Manager Saunders of the Bigelow baseball team sent the following communication this morning in regard to the challenge of the Quincy Red Sox for the championship of the city:—

"The Bigelow baseball club is ready to meet the Quincy Red Sox on the date named by their manager in the Ledger of Monday evening, and would prefer to play on the Ward Two playground, inasmuch as they have already got the permit for that field. The date named is August 14, one week from next Saturday, and we are ready to play the Red Sox on that or on any other date. J. Edmund Saunders, Manager, Bigelow Baseball club, North street, Quincy Point."

This would seem to bring the thing to a crisis. It is now up to the two managers to get together and arrange the details of the series. The Sporting Editor of the Ledger will arrange a date and place of meeting if the managers will communicate with him and let him know when they will be free to meet. The sooner the arrangements are made, the better for both teams. A good umpire must be secured for the series, some one who is not interested in either of the teams. In this way the games will be run off without a hitch and there will be no ill feeling between the teams after the series is over, no matter who wins. Come boys get together and arrange the series and let us have some good amateur championships.

BERTRAM E. McCURDY.

The funeral of Bertram E. McCurdy, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Seward McCurdy of Hill street, Quincy Point, was held Saturday afternoon from the home of his parents. A very large number of relatives and friends of the family attended. The little boy, who died Thursday, after an illness of a week, was surrounded and literally buried in flowers, which came from his playmates, among whom he was a prime favorite, from relatives and friends of his parents. Burial was in the family lot in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden.

—Edward Everett Hale's home in Roxbury is now displaying the "for sale" sign as his widow has decided to sell as she does not feel able to have the care of it.

People with large fortunes will await with anxiety the outcome of the income tax measure.

Train disturbance stock rose 10 points in the district court yesterday, making a selling value of $20.

Zeppelin's new airship, which started yesterday from Frankfort to Cologne, scented a storm shortly after starting.

What a pity "Sockless Jerry" Simpson is not alive in Congress today. How he would enjoy participation in the schedule of hosiery.

The "Sand man" was in the eyes of a good many "kiddies" last night in more senses than one as a result of the open air playground in ward 1.

Perhaps the woman who smashed a chair and the cell door at police headquarters imagined she was breaking up housekeeping.

The Maxim family which continues to contribute its share to science, yesterday gave to the world the noiseless cannon. Perhaps some day we'll have the bloodless war.

Perhaps those women who have taken up the fight for pure whiskey have had opportunity to make observations on the varying qualities of jags and wish to elevate the product.

What a triumph for the women-a woman elected to the superintendency of the Chicago schools at a salary of $10,000 and that woman over sixty years old too.

Persia's new Shah is but twelve years old, and China's baby emperor has just been officially recognized as commander-in-chief of the army and navy. Poor children.

When the Paris mob cried for bread it is said Marie Antoinette asked them why they didn't eat cake. Her remark would be apropos just now when a City Square restaurateur advertises free cake.

If the rain holds off much longer the men, women and children who have to travel the streets of the city that never see a watering cart, will turn to dust before their time.

Those "No Crossing" signs at the public library escaped being a target for some weeks but have evidently been discovered and their classic simplicity is now somewhat marred.

It has been again demonstrated this week, as it has many times before, that Quincy is a hard place for the criminally-inclined to get away from. It is a matter of police history that many crooks, who have pursued a successful career in other places, have come to grief in Quincy.

It is somewhat difficult for us who know him so well, to understand why it was necessary to cable all the way from Africa that Theodore Roosevelt attended church on Sunday. If there was a church anywhere within reach and the ex-president did not attend, we should have been surprised. That fact might have been worth cabling.

The close proximity of the public library, post office building and well kept estates seems to necessitate better looking grounds about the new Coddington school. It is a fine looking building especially when viewed across the library lawn from the post office. The yard is of gravel which should be changed to a lawn with granolithic walks. It should not be used for a playground neither should scholars be deprived of a place to play, but suitable grounds could be secured back of the building which would be better adapted for the purpose.

Many citizens wonder why it is necessary to dig up so many feet of sidewalk in making ready to lay the permanent walks. On School street a stretch of sidewalk, reaching from Hancock to Franklin streets, has been dug up for several days. The old sidewalk has been left in such a condition that nobody could walk there and up to last night there were no signs of the new permanent walks. This sidewalk was left dug out over Sunday with the result that many people were obliged to walk in the street. It would seem the better plan not to dig out the old sidewalk until the workmen are ready to begin work on the new.

EVERY APPLICANT GETS A FARM.

The great agricultural development now going on in the West is attracting widespread attention, and every land opening calls out thousands of letters of inquiry concerning tthe opportunity for settlers. Just now unusual interest centers in the Truckee-Carson irrigation project in Nevada, where a thousand farms offered to homeseekers by the Government open alluring possibilities.

There lands are free to every bona fide homeseeker, the only expense, with the exception of the nominal filing fee, being the pro rata share of the cost of building the irrigation system. This charge amounts to $30 per acre, payable in ten annual instalments, without interest. There is no drawing or any element of chance in applying for one of these farms. It is only necessary to make a homestead entry at the land office at Carson City or at the office of the Land Commissioner at Fallon, Nevada.

Nature has endowed few regions more liberally with all the elements necessary to build up a great commonwealth than are found in this section. The fertile fields grow alfalfa, cereals, fruits, vegetables, in fact practically all the products of the temperate zone; the climate is dry and delightful and the valley is singularly free from severe storms. The sun shines almost every day in the year. The great mining regions furnish a home market and good prices for everything that can be raised, and splendid transportation facilities connect the project with the commercial centers of the country. The Government irrigation system assures the farmers an abundant supply of water. The rivers offer unlimited possibilities for the development of power.

If you wish to obtain one of these farms you should write at once to the Statistician of the U. S. Reclamation Service, Washington, D. C., for detailed information.

THINK THEY WERE DUPED

Western Senators Place Stumbling Block In Way of Tariff Bill

Washington, Aug. 3.—Tariff legislation has been delayed again by the hide and leather question and as a result the conferees have been called together once more. Western senators complain that the leather schedule, as arranged by the conferees with the approval of the president, is unfair to the states interested in protected hides. It is agreed that some action must be taken to conciliate them if the conference report is to be adopted.

Without thought of serious obstacles in the pathway of the conference report, Senator Aldrich caused the report to be taken up Monday as soon as the senate met. The senate leader and his associates were not long in learning that the charge that there was a "joker" in the compromised hide and leather schedule had upset the comfortable majority previously counted on for the adoption of the report.

The difficulty appears to be a lack of understanding between the conferees, the president and the western senators concerning the condition under which the latter consented to hides being placed on the free list.

TESTIMONY BY THAW'S MOTHER

Once Given In Son's Behalf Now Used Against Him

INTRODUCED BY THE STATE

Menacing to Prisoner's Hope of Proving Himself Sane—Doctor Baker Describes Conduct In Matteawan as "Silly"—Disappearance of Newspaper Clippings From Thaw's Pockets Is Explained

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 3.—How Harry K. Thaw conducted himself at the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane, a phase of his life not gone into before, was described by Dr. Amos B. Baker, first assistant physician of the institution, the only witness called on Monday by District Atorney Jerome at the continuation of the hearing by which Thaw hopes to obtain his release.

The examination of Baker had not been finished when adjournment was taken. Aside from his testimony, a two-foot stack of canvas-bound books labeled "The People vs. Harry K. Thaw"—records of the murder trials—furnished all the evidence introduced by Jerome Monday.

MRS. MARY COPLEY THAW.

Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, as she sat in court, saw Jerome introduce against her son testimony she had willingly given heretofore to save his life. Now it is seized upon by the state to prove him insane. It included her accounts of his nervous temperament as a child, material valuable to Thaw when he was in danger of the electric chair, but now menacing to his hope of proving himself a sane man. One thing quoted by Jerome was her statement concerning Harry Thaw that "his body was too puny for his head and before and after the measles he had Saint Vitus' dance."

Dr. Baker's testimony was read by himself from his "case book" and described Thaw's conduct, both normal and queer, on many occasions from Feb. 1, 1908, the date of his commitment, until June 25 of the present year.

Though the witness said that in his belief Thaw was irrational now, Thaw's attorney made him admit that during the first three months of the patient's stay at Matteawan he observed no signs of paranoia. After that Thaw, by his counsel's advice, refused to let himself be examined or to answer questions asked by the hospital physicians.

The witness described Thaw's manner at most times as "silly" and "pompous." He said he quarrelled with the other patients who played cards with him, calling them "stupid donkeys." From his notebook he told of various incidents, including Thaw's refusal to accept mail addressed to him; his refusal to see his wife until told that Mr. Morschauser, Thaw's lawyer, had sent her, and his "insolent and domineering" actions to the physicians and attendants.

Last fall the prison authorities searched Thaw's pockets when he was asleep and the next day he offered $500 reward for the detection of any one tampering with his clothes. The fruits of this search appeared in court when Baker handed in as evidence about thirty newspaper clippings. They were not read, but Jerome explained that all were on sexual topics.

Mr. Morschauser weakened the force of this exhibit by making the witness testify that in all he had found nearly 200 clippings in Thaw's pockets and that they were on various subjects. Justice Mills told him to fetch the others today.

SAVING INSURANCE LEAGUE.

Just how much savings bank life insurance has been written at a number of the leading agencies in the state is set forth in some figures which have been prepared at the office of the State Actuary 161 Devonshire street, Boston.

As is well-known, the success that this Massachusetts plan has encountered thus far has been due almost wholly to the activity of managements of industrial companies which have authorized the establishment of agencies for the benefit of their employees. The general public outside of certain specified industries has still to discover the advantages of the new facilities, although now and then an individual applies for savings insurance at the State Actuary's office, or at one of the banks.

The largest amount of savings bank insurance for which application has been made thus far is at the Geo. E. Keith Company, Brockton, where the total up to July 15 was $185,023. The average size of the policies at this place was just about $383, the maximum under the law being $500.

The establishment at which the employees have taken out the largest average policy is the United Shoe Machinery Company, Beverly, where applications for insurance aggregating $114,372 have been made, with an average of $488 per policy.

Other large contributors to the total of savings bank insurance in the Commonwealth are the following: American Hide & Leather Company, Lowell; Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Company, Whitman; Dennison Manufacturing Company, So. Framingham; Fore River Ship Building Company, Quincy; Gillette Safety Razor Company, South Boston; Holtzer-Cabot Electric Company Brookline; W. H. McElwain Company, Brockton; Regal Shoe Company, Whitman; Tubular Rivet and Stud Company, Quincy; Typothetae, Boston; Winslow Brothers and Smith Company, Norwood.

In the city of Haverhill a number of agencies in shoe factories, large and small, have thus far made up a total of $120,754. Smaller totals are recorded from many other industrial centres, department stores and social settlement houses.

The readiness with which employees of these important Bay State industrial concerns have taken advantage of the opportunities afforded by savings insurance has encouraged the advocates of the plan to believe that eventually a large proportion of al the wage earners o fthe state will be reached.

SCHOOL AT SEATTLE EXPOSITION

The most unique and interesting schooling ever offered to young students is now provided by the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition department of education. The whole exposition has been turned into one huge and wonderfully varied school room under skilled instructors.

Two teachers were first appointed, but the attendance was so large that it was found necessary to appoint additional instructors for the school children presenting themselves to take advantages of the course of instruction.

The classes are open daily to pupils of any school in the northwest. There is no charge other than the regular gate admission, and any pupil desiring to take advantage of the opportunity may do so by presenting himself at the Auditorium before 10 in the morning. The "exposition school" lasts from this hour until 12.30.

From the Auditorium the children are taken to the various exhibits, and these are then studied under the guidance of the teachers. The different departments of the United States government building, many foreign, state, county, and special exhibits receive careful attention and study.

In this way the whole world is opened to the eyes and minds of the children. Many special demonstrations have been provided by the management, and all officials and exhibitors are cooperating to make the classes as valuable and instructive as possible.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

View of Navy Department Regarding the Death of Foster

Washington, Aug. 3.—Although regretting that death should occur from boxing exhibitions in the navy, navy department officials say, in connection with the death of Harrison H. Foster on board the battleship Vermont, that it occasionally is a result of the sport, no matter where encouraged.

Consequently, when they read of Foster's death following a boxing bout or similar exhibition, they said that no blame could be attached to any one unless subsequent reports should disclose that the men should not have been allowed to contest because of physical disqualifications.

The department received a dispatch from Admiral Schroeder noting Foster's death and stating that a provisional diagnosis showed cerebral hemorrhage. Schroeder added that he had ordered a board of inquiry.

A CROWN OF GOLD

Present From Italian Government to Miss Mabel Boardman

Boston, Aug. 3.—Miss Mabel Boardman of Washington, sister-in-law of Senator Crane, who is now at her summer home at Manchester, has received a gold crown, a present from the Italian government, for her services in behalf of the Italian earthquake sufferers.

The crown is a reproduction of the ancient civic Roman crown, composed of oak leaves and acorns in solid gold, and was enclosed in a box of leather adorned by the royal arms in gold. The crown bears the inscription: "To Mabel Boardman of the American Red Cross, from the Italian government as a debt of gratitude, 1908-1909."

POINTED HIS FINGER AT A LIVE WIRE

Boy Killed by Electric Current of About 66,000 Volts

Leominster, Mass., Aug. 3.—Arthur Solomon, 16 years old, was electrocuted by a high tension feed wire of the Connecticut River Transmission company. The company conveys power from Mt. Vernon, Vt., to Fitchburg, and has a series of towers of skeleton steel construction on which the wire with a current of about 66,000 volts is carried.

Solomon and some other boys were out berrying when Solomon started to climb one of the towers. He had reached the first crossarm when he pointed his finger at the live wire. There was a sudden flash of electricity and he fell to the ground. He died before physicians could reach him.

SIMPLE TEST OF SANITY

Magistrate Deemed It Sufficient to Send Woman to Hospital

New York, Aug. 3.—A new, or at least a very odd physical test as an index to one's sanity, was introduced by a police magistrate when Mrs. Harriet R. Berry, a trained nurse, was brought to court on a physician's application that inquiry be made into her mental condition.

"Close your eyes, madam, and touch your nose with the index finger of your right hand," commanded the magistrate.

It was only after several attempts that Mrs. Berry succeeded and the court ruled that the test was sufficient to indicate unsoundness of mind. Mrs. Berry was accordingly taken to Bellevue.

Son and Daughter of Wealthy St. Louis Italian Are Kidnapped

St. Louis, Aug. 3.—Grace Viviano, 5 years old, and Thomas Viviano, 3 years old, were kidnapped near the home of their wealthy parents in the Italian colony. Shortly after the children disappeared, a letter demanding $25,000 ransom was delivered to the father of the children, Pietro Viviano, and a cousin of the same. The Vivianos live in the same building.

The police are searching for Samuel Turrisi, an employe of the Viviano cousins. He is said to have been seen with the children shortly before they disappeared.

Wu Will Fill Vacancy

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Daniel Voorhees Pike, a rising young Kokomo (Ind.) lawyer, hears that his ward, Ethel Granger-Simpson, is to be married abroad to the son of an English earl. Her father was his nearest friend, and he has long loved the girl. He goes abroad to arrange with her the business matters connected with her marriage. II—Ethel Granger-Simpson and her brother, Horace, have become anglomaniacs and are spending much of their late father's fortune in travel and entertaining. They become intimate with Lady Creech, the Earl of Hawcastle, his son, Almeric St. Aubyn, and Countess de Champigny, an adventuress and associate of the earl's. They are at a hotel at Sorrento, Italy. Ethel promises to marry the son because she craves a title. III—The Russian Grand Duke Vasill is shortly to arrive at the same hotel incognito as Herr von Grollerbagen. IV—The Earl of Hawcastle is in need of money and wants his son to get a huge settlement of money at his marriage to Ethel. An escaped Russian bandit is located at Sorrento. V—For some reason the comtesse fears the alleged bandit is one Ivanoff. Almeric tells his father Ethel has accepted him. VI—Horace agrees to persuade his sister Ethel to settle $750,000 on Almeric. VII—Ethel tells Horace of her delight at the prospect of her coming marriage into the ancient family of the St. Aubyns. VIII—Von Grollerhagen arrives with Daniel Voorhees Pike on foot, their auto having broken down. IX—Harold, Ethel and the Hawcastle party are disgusted with what they term the "American manners" of Pike. She tells Pike of her identity, as he had failed to recognize her in her European clothes and European deportment. X—Pike refuses to consent as her guardian to her settling $750,000 on Almeric, and Ethel is enraged at him. XI—The Russian refugee meets Pike, and the latter shows him a place to hide from the Italian police. Von Grollerhagen aids Pike to do this. XII—The fugitive tells Von Grollerhagen and Pike how he came to be sent to the Siberian mines. Horace falls in love with the adventuress, the comtesse. XIII—Pike tells Ethel that he can never forget how she used to sing "Sweet Genevieve" back home in Indiana. XIV—Hawcastle tells Pike that he will have him put in jail for sheltering a fugitive from justice unless Pike gives his consent to Ethel's marriage with Almeric.

For a moment the Russian refugee staggered and supported himself with his hand on the table. Then he looked up.

"I thank you for what you have tried to do."

Von Grollerhagen went on:

"In the meantime my friend believes Naples a safe place for me. And so auf wiedersehen."

"Goodby, doc, and God bless you!" he said. And Von Grollerhagen squeezed Pike's fingers.

"To our next meeting," he said and in a moment was gone.

CHAPTER XV.

"HE'S A RUSSIAN NOBLE!"

THE instant he had disappeared Ivanoff crossed rapidly to the small table near the bedroom and picked up a cigarette from a box that lay there with a bottle.

"I thought so. Russian!" he said, and in answer to Pike's look of inquiry went on. "That man, your friend, who calls himself Von Grollerhagen, is not a German—he is a Russian—not only that—he is a Russian noble. I see it in a hundred ways that you cannot."

"He helped us this afternoon," said Daniel, but Ivanoff did not seem to hear him.

"I have felt it inevitable that I should go back to Siberia ever since I came here"—

"Perhaps"— began Daniel, but the other interrupted.

"There is no 'perhaps' for me. There has never been a 'perhaps' since I met Helene, my wife—she who sent me to the mines, she and my dear English friend."

For a moment Daniel was thoughtful; then he looked up quickly.

"What was his name?" he asked.

"Glenwood—I shall never forget it," the Russian replied. "He had contracts with the ministry of finance. He supplied hydraulic machinery to the government. The name Glenwood means nothing to you, and there are a million Helenes in France. I prayed God to let me meet them before I was taken, but"— He paused as a knock came upon the door. "It is the carabinieri!" he said hoarsely and shrank back.

"Not yet," answered Pike quietly. "Go back to your room. We won't throw our hands into the discard until we're called, and I guess we'll keep on raising." He waited a moment until Ivanoff had retired and then opened the door. Mariano stood without bowing.

"Miladi Creech—she ask you would speak with her a few minutes," he said.

"Where is she?" asked Pike.

"Here, sir," replied the man.

"Tell her to come right in. Ah, come in, ma'am," he went on as Lady Creech appeared in the doorway. When he had closed the door behind her she said coldly:

"My brother-in-law feels that some one well acquainted with Miss Granger-Simpson's ambitions and her inner nature should put the case finally to you before we proceed to extremities," she said.

"Yes, ma'am," answered Daniel.

"My brother-in-law has made us aware of the state of affairs, and we are all quite in sympathy as to what should be done to you, but in the kindness of our hearts we condone your offense—if you accede to our reasonable demands."

Daniel looked at his watch.

"In twenty minutes?" he asked.

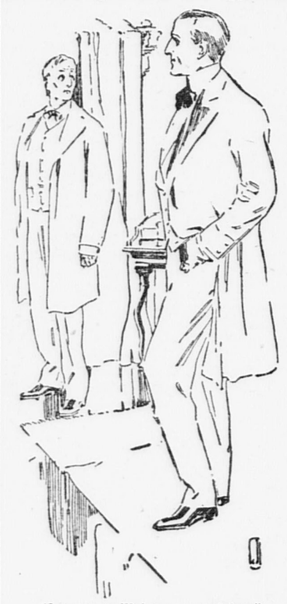

"In twenty minutes," she replied frigidly.

"You say he told all of you. Did he tell Miss Ethel?" Daniel asked.

"It has not been thought proper. Young girls should be shielded from everything disagreeable," she answered pompously, and Daniel grinned.

"Yes, ma'am," he said. "That was the idea that got me into this trouble. You see, I know your interest in her. I've handled all her accounts"—

"If you don't mind we'll omit all tradesmanlike references," remarked the old lady acidly. "It has been suggested that you make this opposition because you have a sentimental interest in the young lady yourself. We can comprehend no other grounds."

"I guess we'll keep on ratsing."

"Me!" echoed Daniel in surprise. "You can't 'comprehend.' But you can comprehend I could have no hope, can't you?"

"One never knows," replied Lady Creech loftily. "We had thought to offer her an alliance with a family that for 700 years"—

"Yes, ma'am, I know—Crecy and Agincourt," interjected Pike, but she paid no attention.

—"has never been sullied by the low ideals of trade and barter"—

"Wait a minute, Mrs. Creech," said Daniel quickly, tugging at his coat pocket. "I've got a letter right here that tells me your brother-in-law was in business—and I respect him for it—only a few years ago."

"A letter from whom?" demanded the lady angrily, rising.

"Jim Cooley, our vice consul at London. He says Mr. Hawcastle"—

"Mr. Hawcastle!" ejaculated Lady Creech.

"Well, I can call a person cap or doc or colonel, but I don't just know how to use the words you have over here for those things. I don't mean any disrespect. Just let me run on in my own way. Jim says your brother-in-law was in business in Russia"—he stopped suddenly, for an idea had occurred to him—"in business in Russia!" he repeated dazedly. "Why didn't I think of that"—

"Since some of your officials have been spying"— Lady Creech began, but he interrupted.

"Never mind. He was in business in Russia. I don't say he was peddling shoestrings or wienerwurst"—she screamed. "He was probably"—he stopped a moment and looked at her. "He did not have contracts with the government for hydraulic machinery, I suppose?" he asked tensely. The old woman tossed her head.

"Even if he did, he protected the historic name," she replied proudly.

"I believe you!" said Daniel fervently. "Have you ever heard the name of —Glenwood?" he asked quickly.

"Is your mind wandering?" asked Lady Creech. "Glenwood Priory is the name of the property Hawcastle inherited from his mother. Can you state its connection with the subject?"

Daniel almost staggered with the thought—the knowledge that came to him. He looked up.

"That's how he protected it," he said. "He took the name of—Glenwood. God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform! Lady Creech, tell your brother-in-law he can have his answer here—in ten minutes."

As she swept from the room in dignified amazement Pike sank into a chair for a moment and fairly glowed with eagerness.

ALDEN REUNION TOMORROW.

Tomorrow is the day that the numerous descendants of John Alden and Priscilla Molines whose names have been made famous the world over by Longfellow's poem, "The Courtship of Myles Standish," make their annual pilgrimage to the old John Alden homestead, at Duxbury, Mass. A special train is to be run from the South Station, Boston, leaving there at 8.40 A. M. Trains and trolleys from other directions are expected to land from 600 to 1000 of the Alden Kindred at the old home. It must be an interesting and enjoyable experience these Pilgrim descendants have each year, as they gather to do homage to their noted and worthy ancestor. All descendants, with their wives or husbands or children, are invited. Descendants are also at liberty to bring a friend or two along with them.

TRAIN LEAVES BARCELONA

Indication of Improvement In Catalonia's Capital

ACTUAL SITUATION UNKNOWN

Smaller Cities Reported In Hands of Revolutionists, Who Will Eventually Be Forced to Capitulate—Private Advices Say That There Were Five Thousand Victims of Recent Disorders—Churches In Ruins

Paris, Aug. 3.—The internal situation in Spain seems to be improved. Barcelona has emerged from her isolation and the threatened general strike in Madrid appears to have been averted, at least temporarily.

The first train out of Catalonia's capital city since the beginning of the tragic events there reached the French frontier last night, bringing censored and plainly inexact newspaper accounts of the insurrection and of the conditions in the outlying parts of Catalonia. The rest is shrouded in mystery.

BARCELONA RAILROAD STATION.

Several of the smaller cities are reported to be in the hands of the revolutionists and many villages have proclaimed the district a republic.

Troops are being steadily distributed throughout the rebellious districts, and barring new serious outbreaks, the insurrectionists eventually will be forced to capitulate. It is said that the authorities are determined to crush the insurrection before the return from South Africa of Deputy Leroux, chief of the Republicans at Barcelona, whose period of exile for political reasons was set aside by the chamber of deputies last April.

Reports from San Felice, Palemos and Cassa de la Selva, say that those places are still in the hands of the revolutionaries. It is rumored that the Spanish gunboat Tenerario has left for San Felice to aid the troops.

In striking contrast with the estimate of the victims of the disorders given by the Barcelona newspapers which arrived last night at Cerbere is one of 5000 emanating from private advices received from Madrid. This latter estimate, however, is labelled "perhaps exaggerated."

Spain's censorship is more inexorable than ever. No news has been received from the various points in the north, where the trades unions had planned a general strike for Monday, and therefore the actual conditions there and elsewhere cannot be stated.

Copies of La Publicidad and other Barcelona newspapers, after pointing out that their accounts of the fighting at Barcelona had been censored, leaving it to be supposed that they are incomplete, publish a list of thirty-five churches and convents which were burned between July 26 and July 30. After July 26 Civil Governor Gallardo resigned, turning over his power to Captain General Santiago.

Published reports also have it that the bishop of Barcelona abandoned his palace and fled to Sarrio. The Red Cross labored devotedly during the fighting.

BLIND MAN LOSES JOB

But Employers Provide For His Comfort During Lifetime

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 3.—J. H. Barron, an old and valued employe of the F. A. Whitney Carriage company of Leominster, now nearly blind, was unexpectedly given his discharge by the superintendent of the concern when he reported for work Monday.

He had not recovered from his surprise at this action when Superintendent Shaw handed him a check for $500 and told him to come around after more when that was gone, making the old and faithful employe a pensioner of the company for life.

Big Order For Freight Cars

Pittsburg, Aug. 3.—Contracts were awarded by the Pennsylvania Railroad company for freight cars to cost between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000. The cars will replace old equipment.

Chile Not Helping Bolivia

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 3.—The government officially declares that statements that Chile had made offering of men and arms to Bolivia are untrue.

Chief of police Burrell and Lieut. McKay arrived home this morning from Lorraine, Ohio, having in custody Fred Jacobson, who is wanted for breaking and entering the office of the Gallagher express company on Depot street on the night of July 3, and the larceny therefrom of $168.

CAMPBELL HELD.

Man Wanted For Larceny at Quincy Held for a week by Brookline Court

Leo Campbell who was arrested in Brookline for larceny from Mrs. Sennott at Wollaston was not arraigned in the Quincy court this morning as expected. Campbell was arraigned in the Brookline court Monday and the case against him was continued a week to enable the officers to look the man up as it is thought he has a bad record.

Mrs. Sennott accompanied Inspector Goodhue to Brookline Monday and identified Campbell as the man to whom she let a room. It appears that Mrs. Sennott does not run a boarding house as stated. It appears that it was a neighbor who keeps boarders and that Mrs. Sennott took the young man in while repairs were being made to her neighbor's house.

OBJECT TO GAS PLANT.

After long negotiations, the officials of the Plymouth County Gas and Power Company have secured an option on the property on Quincy avenue, East Braintree, extending from the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to the Whitmarsh estate. The property is owned by the Old Colony Street Railway Company and the N. L. White estate. There are several acres in the plot and it is considered an ideal location for the company's plant. There is objection, however, to the company's locating there, as it is claimed that a gas plant would depreciate the value of the estates on Quincy avenue, where some of the town's wealthiest citizens live.—Boston Transcript.

Strobel or Courntey. But to let Burke go, and keep a string on him for some future time if he was needed would seem to be the wise thing to do. Let us hope that the management will do the wise thing.

Lou Courtney has at last shaken the batting hoodoo that has been following him since he joined the Quincy team. He has been plugging along getting a hit now and then, but did not seem to strike his gait. Last Saturday, however, he connected for two pretty drives and from now on watch for some good stickwork from "Court." Before joining the local team, Lou was in the Maine State league and was showing the way to all the batters in the league, with an average close to .400.

Dean the new third baseman made good with a vengeance. He got three hits and scored three runs, while he fielded his position without an error, accepting several hard chances.

Courtney worked the time-worn "hide the ball" trick on Jack Hafford in Saturday's game. Hafford was on second as the result of a drive to right centre for two bases. He was happy and immediately started jumping off the base. The ball had been relayed into Courtney who made a bluff to throw to the pitcher. Instead he held the ball and when Hafford got off the base, Lou tagged him out. Hafford took it all right, and shook hands with Courtney for the clever work.

Arbie Dam, the former Dewey player, covered the right garden for Randolph Saturday, and made good. He hit for a three bagger and did not have a thing to do in right field.

Another crack twirler in the person of Martin of Rockland, got a bad beating Saturday. The Randolph team connected with his shoots for 11 hits with a total of 14 bases, winning the game hands down by the score of 7 to 2. Fred Smith of this city caught Martin in fine style and hit for a single and a double. Fred has gone to his father's summer cottage in Old Orchard, Me., for the week.

Andy O'Connor, who pitched for Randolph Saturday, was with the Shoemakers at the beginning of the season and pitched such good ball that he was picked up by some team in Pennsylvania. He has now returned to the fold and will remain with the team for the rest of the season. His twirling will help Randolph a whole lot.

The fielding and batting of Walter Lonergan, the star left fielder of the local team, in Saturday's game was a revelation. He caught five flies in left, got three hits, scored three runs and made a double play unassisted, the latter something unusual for an outfielder. "Lunny" made a swell catch on the play coming in back of second base to take the ball. The runner, who did not think Lonergan had a chance to get the ball, was away down to third base, when the sphere was caught. Lonergan kept right on going after he caught the ball and tagged second before the base runner got back, completing the double play.

There is considerable rivalry between the Bigelows and the Quincy Red Sox for the 18-19 year old championship of the city. The Red Sox came out and said they were willing to play any team in the city for the championship, and the Bigelows immediately answered the defi. Now the Red Sox have named a date for the first game and it is up to the Bigelows to be game. There ought to be some fun when the two teams come together.

Billy Galvin of Dorchester, who is summering at Houghs Neck, is playing great ball for the Everett team. He is leading the team in hitting with an average of close to the .400 mark. Good work, Bill.

Atlantic Professionals leave tonight for Hyannis where they play the town team of that place tomorrow. The Hyannis team is composed of some of the best college players in the country and fast throughout. Van Vleck, the crack pitcher of the Yale team the past two years is twirling for Hyannis.

—A novel drinking fountain, requiring no cup, has been erected on Claflin field, Newtonville. Eight others of similar design are to be placed in various sections of the city on recommendation of Mayor Hutchinson.

MRS. JOHN W. MOORE.

Mrs. Martha A., wife of John W. Moore, a long resident of Quincy, passed peacefully away Monday evening at her home, 43 Quincy avenue, after an illness of several months' duration. Mrs. Moore had been confined to her bed for several weeks, and although for several days unable to take any nourishment, she suffered no pain and the end came peacefully. Like a child dropping asleep.

Mrs. Moore was a daughter of Stephen Penniman, late of Braintree and Quincy and a descendant of Maj. Stephen Penniman of revolutionary fame. She was one of a large family of children, but one of whom, Mrs. Thomas Magee, now remain. Mrs. Moore has made her home in Quincy the greater part of her life, although at one time she resided in Chelsea, where her husband had charge of the property of the late Henry H. Faxon.

She has always been prominently identified with the First Universalist church of this city and has always been an earnest and hard worker for its welfare.

She leaves a husband and one daughter, who is the wife of Edmund J. Parmenter, who resided at home. Funeral services will be held from her late residence, Thursday at 2.30.

LOST CHILD CALL.

The lost child call at 11.03 this noon, followed by one round from Box 16 was to summon helpers to search for a 2 year-old boy named Fay. The boy resided with his parents at Houghs Neck and early this morning wandered away. His mother became alarmed at his absence and as she could find no trace of him the lost child call was sounded. The boy was found playing in the sand on the beach almost before the alarm was through sounding.

—Hadley the little town in western Massachusetts which is observing its anniversary and old home week has a connecting link with Quincy in the names of Whalley and Goff for it was the town which harbored the regicides. On Presidents hill is Goffe street and until recently Munroe road was known as Whalley road but patriotic residents had it changed. American fiction treats of Whalley and Goff. "The Wept of Wish-ton-wish," one of the most striking of Cooper's novels, illustrates his method of handling the Hadley legend of the Puritan general emerging from his refuge to resume his old calling as a deliverer. Hawthorne's "Grey Champion" may be yet another treatment of the regicide tradition. A very different souvenir of the regicides is thought to have been preserved in the substitute oath: "By goffwhally," or "goffally," which old men remember to have heard uttered in their youth.

MAY BRING MESSAGE FROM FROZEN NORTH

Schooner Sails With Supplies For Peary's Steamer

St. John's, Aug. 3.—The expedition which will carry relief supplies to Commander Robert E. Peary left St. John's today. Schooner Jeanie takes fifty tons of coal and the same amount of stores, which she will land at Etah, Greenland, to supplement the supplies on Peary's steamer Roosevelt.

If Peary is not at Etah the Jeanie will leave as soon as she has discharged her cargo, bringing any dispatches Peary may have left.

Captain Bartlett, who commands the Jeanie, will enquire among the natives if they have heard of Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, who went north two years ago to look for the pole and who has been missing for months. If Cook is at Etah he will be brought down on the schooner.

RECEIVED STOLEN GOODS

Two Years' Sentence Imposed Upon a Boston Wool Broker

Boston, Aug. 3.—For receiving stolen goods, Henry P. Garrity, a local wool broker, was sentenced to two years in state prison for having participated in the robbery of leather valued at $4000 from a railroad company. Two other men have previously been convicted of stealing the leather and sent to state prison.

Garrity recently pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods and turned state's evidence in connection with a large robbery of wool from the American Woolen company's mills at Lawrence, several other men being implicated. Sentence in that case is pending.

Canal Work Going On

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Aug. 3.—The big dredger Kennedy began operations on the Cape Cod canal, a fleet of seagoing tugs and scows assisting in placing the big piece of floating machinery so that it could dig to a depth of sixteen feet.

Y. R. A. OPEN RACES.

The annual open races for yachts of the Y. R. A. and interclub classes will be held under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club Wednesday afternoon off the club house at Houghs Neck. Cash prizes aggregating nearly $100 will be given and in addition, the wins will count in the Y. R. A. percentages.

The valuable prizes will serve to attract a large fleet of yachts and especially so as there are no other races scheduled for Wednesday, as is usually the case when the races are held on a Saturday.

The preparatory gun will be fired at 1 o'clock and the starting gun ten minutes later, at which time the first class will be sent away. The other classes will be sent away at intervals of five minutes.

TODAY'S COURT.

Everett W. Osborne was fined $10 for drunkenness at Cohasset.

Abraham Caswell and William H. Burns were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Guy W. Phillips was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Margaret Kelley was arraigned for assault on Eva Steir at Quincy. She was fined $10 and the sentenced suspended until Thursday.

—Even Boston is looking forward to a lower tax rate this year, at least a 30-cent reduction.

ARAWAK WINS BY 2 MINUTES

Quincy Cape Cat Boats Race At Hingham Tuesday

All of the class D boats of the Quincy Yacht club took part in the open Y. R. A. race under the auspices of the Hingham Yacht club Tuesday. The race was sailed in a light easterly breeze which shifted to the southwest before the finish. The first class to get away was the cape cat class and the winner was the Arawak which sailed her first race of the season.

As the signal was given the boats in this class were all bunched at the windward end of the line near the red barrel, the Stridaway being the windward boat of the lot. As they stood down the channel, all except the Iris and Arawak kept luffing far to windward of their course until near Crow point.

This allowed the Arawak and Iris to pull away, and as the former found the light air and smooth sea just to her liking once ahead she was never caught and she finished with a lead of 2 minutes 15 seconds over the Iris. The corrected time in this class changed the standing of the boats considerably from their actual finish, as the Busy Bee, which ended the race in seventh place, moves up into third position on her allowance. The summary:

STOPPED RUNAWAY TEAM.

Quincy Man Loses his Hat While Performing Heroic Act in Boston.

"Bud Brier" of the Boston Globe said in his column:

"A new straw hat worn by Jack Deasy a well-known Quincy tennis player, was the means of bringing out a story of heroism which had been suppressed for several days. As Mr. Deasy was on his way to lunch in Boston one day last week a pair of horses attached to a heavy dray came tearing down the street, without a driver. There was the usual number of shouters and arm-wavers, but no one made a real attempt to stop the runaways until they approached Mr. Deasy. After a quick run, he grabbed the bridle of the off horse and in a few minutes brought the team to a standstill. He lost his hat, however, under the wheels and had to buy a new one. Asked why he did not 'touch' the firm which owned the team for the price of a hat, Jack replied. 'It was an old straw hat, anyway. If a man has to wait for a runaway to compel him to change his headgear he ought to be fined in addition to paying for the hat.'

"While he makes little of the incident, a man who witnessed it says that it was a brave performance and prevented injury to teams and people further along the street."

AUGUST AMERICAN BOY.

The delightful sports and pastimes of a summer outing shown in the front cover picture of the August American Boy are in pleasing accord with the contents of the magazine. The popular serials, Winning His Shoulder Straps and The Young Continentals at Lexington, are continued with increasing interest. Of the many fine short stories, there are, The Dean's Diagnosis showing how one mischievous boy was reformed in the effort of reforming another mischievous boy; The Forward Step tells of the heroism displayed by a boy who thought he was afraid; The Camp of the Royal Pirates, a particularly jolly story of the camping experiences of five boys on their vacation; An Attractive Cannon tells how an ingenious boy stirred up a whole town. The articles in this number are particularly good.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Parents of Quincy Teacher Observe Fiftieth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel H. Hatch celebrated their golden wedding at their home in Marshfield on Tuesday. Mr. Hatch was born Dec. 8, 1837, a son of Dea. Joel and Rebekah Hatch. He is a direct descendant of Elder William Hatch, who settled in Scituate in 1635, and he lives on a part of the original farm. He married, in 1859, Caroline B., daughter of William C. and Caroline (Ford) Oakman of Marshfield, and they have a son, Harris B., of Hyde Park, and a daughter, Alice S., long a teacher in the schools of Quincy.

They received a great crowd of relatives and friends at their home, and were presented with many gifts. Mr. Hatch has served his town in various official positions and is a civil war veteran.

GENERAL NEWS ABOUT BASEBALL

Notes of National Games at Home and Abroad

Boston, Philadelphia and Cleveland in the American league won doubleheaders yesterday and incidentally crawled up a few points on the Detroit leaders, who were twice beaten in Boston. This race is almost as exciting as the Old Colony league fight. It certainly draws large crowds, 30,000 people watching the Speed boys take two games from the Tigers yesterday. The crowd swarmed over the playing field and the game reminded one of a game in some sand lot, the way the fans crowded up along the base lines. It is surprising where all the people come from and one would think that nobody worked, to see the crowds at the games. Think of 30,000 people inside one enclosure. As many people as there are in the city of Quincy.

There were 23 two-baggers in yesterday's games at Huntington avenue. The large number of extra bases came on account of ground rule which allowed but two bases on balls hit into the crowd. Some of the hits would have been easy outs on a clear playing field while others would have gone for more than two bases, notably those of Stahl and Wagner, which would have been easy homers.

"Jep" Saunders, who is pitching for the Bigelows, is showing some of his old time form. A year or two ago the Bigelows were admitted to be 17-18 champions of the state, and Jep did some good twirling in those days. He is back in his oldtime class now and in a recent game fanned 23 men. The Quincy Red Sox will have to go some to beat him, when the two teams meet for the championship of the city.

Briggs, the new first baseman of the Old Colony league team of this city, looks the goods. He gave a classy exhibition Saturday against the Taunton team, getting two hits and fielding his position in a fast clever style. He is considered one of the best fielding first baseman in the smaller leagues.

Guess Billy Duggan isn't playing the game some these days and hitting the ball like a feind. Saturday he got three slashing singles and hardly a games goes by without one or more bingles being credited to the speedy centre-fielder.

The Makaria team seems to be in the midst of a terrible slump. They were winning every game the first of the season, and looked good to go through the season with a wonderful record of victories. Of late, however, they have gone back and for some reason or other cannot seem to come home a winner. They lost a good pair when Michael and Troupe jumped to the Quincy team.

Ordway, who played third base for the Stoughton team of the Old Colony league the first of the season, is playing the short field for the Millinocket, Me., team, and is going in his same old classy style. In a game yesterday against Houlton he got two hits and played a fine fielding game.

"Hi Hen" LaBelle, who pitched for Quincy Saturday was in the box for the Lowell New England league team yesterday in the game against Lawrence. LaBelle was sent in to relieve Blanchard and pitched good ball, Lowell winning the game 12 to 7. This will lose Quincy another good man, for if LaBelle has signed with Lowell, he will not be eligible to play in the Old Colony league.

Nash, the Brown college star, who is playing short for Dewey, is putting up a fast article of ball, both at the bat and in the field. He got a single and double Saturday and fielded without an error.

There will be a big shake up Saturday after the games in the Old Colony league, unless of course the leaders both get beaten or both win. If Quincy beats Dewey and Randolph beats Taunton, the local Speed Boys will lead the league alone. Let us hope that Quincy will win anyway and stay with the bunch. The worst will be a tie for second place with Dewey.

John Driscoll, the sterling little pitcher of the Atlantic Professionals, has been signed by Mal Eason of the Lawrence New England team and will report to that club in a short time. Driscoll has made many friends in this city, and a brilliant future is predicted for him in the small league.

BIRD CLUB OUTING.

The annual outing of the Bird club was held Tuesday and proved to be fully as enjoyable as those held in other years. All of the "birds" had their wings on so that if by any misfortune their boats should be capsized they could fly ashore, but as one of them remarked it would be a queer sight. It took two power boats this year to accommodate the party, the Fire Fly Capt. T. L. Williams, and the Blue Bell, Capt. C. C. Foster. The start was made on the early morning tide from the Quincy Yacht club house and after cranking up the bows were headed for the fishing grounds.

Here anchors were cast overboard and hooks bated with tempting morsels for the fish. Fortune favors the brave and a few of the finny tribe fell into the bottom of the two boats. Then shore was headed for and a camp fire built. Capt. Foster did the cooking and he fully sustained his reputation of being a good provider. The fish with the eatables that the party took with them was sufficient to furnish an appetizing repast and after an hours stuffing the party again boarded the boats and after a sail about the harbor headed for home.

The mayor returned yesterday from the Granite State to the Granite City.

The Boston Red Sox were holeproof yesterday.

Long continued health to Lawyer W. G. A. Pattee who was able to drive out yesterday after a long and severe siege of illness.

West Quincy soon ought to be on solid footing. The first permanent sidewalk for that section of the city was begun yesterday.

It is rather more than likely that the average business man won't relish the humor of any "joker" that is inserted in the tariff bill at this stage of the game.

The sleep of a good many firemen in the city was unnecessarily abridged yesterday morning by that insignificant bridge fire.

All of the John and Priscilla Alden descendants are journeying to Duxbury today. "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" seems to have been the long-distance talk of the early Pilgrim days.

Complaint is being made that the new Lincoln penny will not fit the penny-in-the-slot machines. We know of a number of these machines that will not work for any kind of a penny and they never give back the penny either.

There may have been better or newsier local papers in the cities outside of Boston than the Ledger last night but we doubt it. The Ledger is a good paper to have in your house every night. It is interestingly local in all departments.

The new tar walks on School street give indications that there will be dry walking on the sidewalks there next winter and spring, something that has been unknown on that street for many, many years. Heretofore, it has been necessary to walk in the car track on some of the juicy spring days.

A page from yesterday's police record goes to confirm the statement made in these columns last night that many evil doers who get away successfully in other places, come to grief in Quincy. Yesterday the police brought back prisoners from Lorraine, Ohio, and Providence, R. I., and put a claim for a man under arrest in Brookline, Mass. The police of Quincy seem up to the average of most places and just a little bit more, too.

The accident in one of our quarries yesterday again calls attention to the dangerous character of the work of the men who are employed in the bowels of the earth, so to speak, and out of sight from the general run of men. Fortunately serious accidents in our quarries are less numerous than they used to be years ago, probably because the use of batteries in setting of blasts has superseded the use of the old-fashioned fuse and powder.

Recent fires in the vicinity of the School-street bridge suggest the necessity of a fire alarm box in that vicinity. The nearest box to that section of the city and the box that is always rung in, is 37 at the corner of Franklin and Water streets. It sometimes happens that the central fire station apparatus takes Water street to the box which brings it a long way from School street. The same is always true of the West Quincy apparatus which also responds to this box. This apparatus always takes the straight run down Water street to Franklin and when it reaches the box it is still quite a distance from School street.

The best thing the city can do and the best way to do it is to do it quickly is to pave Franklin street, from Water to School street, pave School street to Hancock street and then pave Hancock street to "the Hollow." It will not require a great deal of paving as the street on both sides of the track is very narrow. At present there are two big ruts in the street and all the macadamizing in the world will not change the result as there is just room enough for one set of wheels and no more. Better pave the streets now and save them. It was found necessary to do this on Hancock street near the Packard estate when that street was double-tracked last summer. Previous to that time this part of Hancock street was a slough hole every time it rained and it is just so with the other streets mentioned above. A stitch in time saves nine.

HAS SAVED 22.

Ida Lewis Known as Grace Darling Saves More Lives.

Ida Lewis, "the Grace Darling of America," who, from Lime Rock lighthouse, off this harbor, had saved the lives of 18 persons, added four more lives to her splendid record Monday. Ida Lewis is 68 years old, and for 30 years has kept burning the light of Lime Rock, helping and succeeding her father, Capt. Wilson.

A steamboat from New York, the Commonwealth, rounded the south end of the torpedo station here Monday leaving and spreading a tumultuous wake. Up to that time the water had been as smooth as a sea of ice, and five frolicking girls had ventured out on it in the moonlight. The waves over-turned their boat; instantly they were shrieking and struggling.

Ida Lewis from the south end of the harbor, off Newport on a cluster of rocks, saw the girls' danger and jumped into her lifeboat, named like the first one, "The Rescue." With a bravery and vigor remarkable in a woman of nearly three score and 10, she rowed to the girls and, one after another, lifted them into her boat. She would not tell their names; she described her feat most modestly.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY will be happy to answer inquiries.

PUBLIC DINNER TO ROOSEVELT

Former President Is Recipient of Unique Presents

INTERESTED IN EAST AFRICA

Says It Would Be Calamity to Neglect Large Tracts Fit For Prosperous Settlement—World's Most Attractive Playground and Great Field For Capitalists—Settlers Should Make It a White Man's Country

Nairobi, British East Africa, Aug. 4.—Theodore Roosevelt and his son, Kermit, were the guests of honor at a public banquet given here last night. Frederick J. Jackson, governor of British East Africa, was chairman, and 175 persons sat down at the table. Town Clerk Sanderson read an address of welcome to Roosevelt and afterwards handed him the address, which was enclosed in a section of elephant tusk, mounted in silver and with a silver chain.

The American residents of the protectorate presented Roosevelt with a tobacco box made of the hoof of a rhinoceros, silver mounted; the skull of a rhinoceros, also mounted in silver, and a buffalo head.

Mr. Roosevelt, in reply to the toast proposed by Jackson, said:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of British East Africa for their generous and courtly hospitality. I have had a thoroughly good time. I am immensely interested in the country and its possibilities as an abode for white men. Very large tracts are fit for a fine population and healthy and prosperous settlements, and it would be a calamity to neglect them. But the settlers must be of the right type.

"I believe that one of the best feats performed by members of the white race in the last ten years is the building of the Uganda railroad. I am convinced that this country has a great agricultural and industrial future, and it is the most attractive playground in the world. It most certainly presents excellent openings for capitalists, and ample inducements should be offered them to come here. The home-maker and actual settler, and not the speculator, should be encouraged in making this a white man's country.

"Remember that righteousness and our real ultimate self-interest demand that the blacks be treated justly. I have no patience with sentimentalists, and I think that sentimentality does more harm to individuals than brutality. Therefore, I believe in helping the missionary, of whatever creed, who is laboring sincerely and disinterestedly with practical good sense.

"It is natural that I should have a peculiar feeling for the settlers. They remind me of the men in our west with whom I worked and in whose aspirations I so deeply sympathize."

In conclusion Roosevelt drew a comparisin of the conditions as he had found them in British East Africa with those that confronted the pioneers of western America.

LYNN FINANCE COMMISSION

Appointed by Mayor to Delve Into Affairs of the Shoe City

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 4.—Lynn is to have a finance commission which will delve into the city's affairs as far back as its perseverance lasts, Mayor Rich having nominated a body of five men for that honorary position.

Its duties will be primarily to recommend remedies in connection with the city's finances to be incorporated in a new charter bill. The members will serve without pay and have until March 1, 1910, to complete their work. They will have power to summon any desired witnesses through the superior court and to punish delinquents by the same means.

BATTLE IN TAILOR SHOP

Gotham Strikers Endeavor to Augment Their Ranks by Force

New York, Aug. 4.—Two hundred of the restless garment workers who are on strike in Manhattan invaded an East Side tailor shop in an effort to force seventy-five employes to join their ranks. A general fight followed, seven arrests being made.

The strikers demand the restoration of a 20 percent wage cut made in 1907. They number in all more than 20,000.

Garment workers in Newark endorsed the strike in New York and will arrange for a strike beginning next Monday. About 2000 hands will be affected there.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Complaining that he had been for months continually persecuted by members of an opposition faction in his congregation, Rev. Father Suck appeared in city court and made application for a permit to carry a revolver, which was granted.

Ocean Bound Wins Big Purse

Saratoga, Aug. 4.—W. Clay's Ocean Bound easily won the $10,000 Spinaway stakes for fillies, 2-year-olds, 5½ furlongs. While at the post she was badly cut down and pulled up very lame.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING.

The regular business meeting of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church was held in the vestry, Monday evening. The meeting was called to order by the president Miss Francis, at 8.15. After the usual devotional exercises the reports of the secretary, treasurer and four vice-presidents were received and accepted by the league. Plans were given concerning the Sterling Camp meeting and Epworth League rally.

After the business session a social hour was enjoyed. This was in charge of Miss Hannant and Miss Katharine Hodgkinson. Games were enjoyed, after which refreshments were served under the direction of the fourth vice president, Miss Maude E. Hodgkinson.

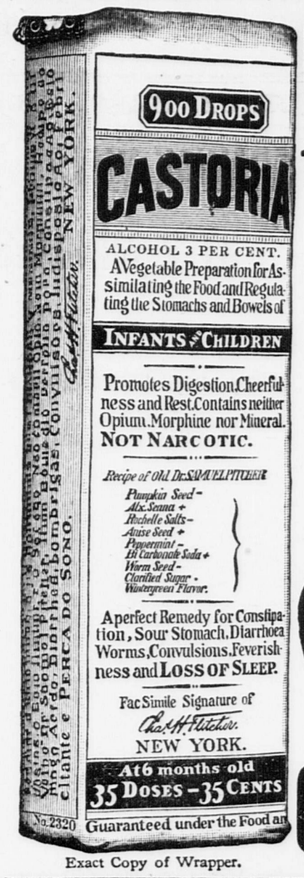

JAMES M. PARK RELEASED.

Word was received from Barre, Vt., this morning that James M. Park who had been arrested in that city for assault at Quincy had been released.

The case was a trivial one and the Quincy police telegraphed that the expense would not warrant sending an officer after him.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THAW'S NERVES GET A SHAKEUP

Hears Testimony Tending to Keep Him In Asylum

THREE ALIENISTS TESTIFY

Baker Says Prisoner Is Not Only Insane Now, but a Dangerous Person to Be at Large—Others Express Opinions Along the Same Line—One Subject on Which Hirsch Would Not Give an Opinion

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Three of those medical men known as alienists, who have become such a familiar part of modern criminal court procedure, united in the supreme court Tuesday to make it unpleasant for Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanford White, was adjudged insane, but now demands his release from the Matteawan asylum as a mentally normal man.

All three testified that he was insane, and when Thaw took the stand briefly after some disconcerting testimony, he was plainly ruffled and nervous, but Mr. Jerome dismissed him after a few comparatively unimportant questions.

Of the alienists who testified—Dr. Flint, Dr. Hirsch and Dr. Baker—the last named gave testimony of the most importance. He is acting superintendent of Matteawan and appears as a witness without compensation, the only alienist in the case with this distinction. Justice Mills called attention to this fact and took a hand in questioning him. Baker said that in his opinion Thaw was not only insane now, but a dangerous person to be at large.

It was shortly after this declaration that Jerome quickly called Thaw to the stand. He was pale and apparently shaken and kept removing and wiping his eyeglasses. The district attorney put some rather incoherent notes written by the prisoner in evidence and asked him to explain them. After parries back and forth and laborious explanations by Thaw as to the meaning of certain writings, he said:

"And I want you to know, Mr. Jerome, that many of these notes you call suggestions were written at the request of my lawyers."

Mr. Jerome pointed his finger at the witness and said: "Do you mean to sit there and tell us, who observed you in both homicide trials, that you did not believe you knew more about the case than your lawyers did?"

"I do," was Thaw's reply. In reply to further questioning Thaw said he discharged some lawyers, and interfered with them only when he thought it absolutely necessary.

Thaw was excused after a bit more of this ordeal and Dr. Flint was called. He described a paranoiac as a person dominated by certain delusions, whose mental and physical state might not otherwise be affected except insofar as these delusions influence him. The disease rarely caused death and except in the last stages the patient might retain his faculties unimpaired. "Paranoiacs," he concluded impressively, "never recover."

Charles Morschauser, Thaw's attorney, attacked this testimony with every legal expedient. In Flint's case he endeavored to show that he had given contradictory testimony in the previous cases where he appeared as an expert. He caused Hirsch some unhappy moments by inquiring about a book he is writing.

"Do you in this book claim that Jesus Christ was a paranoiac?" he asked. The alienist's reply was that he would not like to give any opinion on the subject.

The alienists delivered their opinions of Thaw in answer to Jerome's hypothetical question, only a small part of which was read. It dealt mainly with Thaw's family history and his early life.

AWAITING CALL TO GLORY

Cooneyites Spending Their Supposed Last Moments In Prayer

Dublin, Aug. 4.—In the belief that the millenium may be ushered in any moment, over 2000 "Cooneyites" are holding continuous prayer meetings at Ballinamallard. The pilgrims have arrived from all parts of the country, and remarkable scenes are being witnessed.

Hundreds of persons are baptized publicly in the river every day, and the converts are sleeping out in the open air on the farm of one of the leaders.

Long Chase For Alleged Thief

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 4.—A pursuit of many months in several sections of the country ended here when private detectives arrested Arthur Reisman of Cleveland on the charge of larceny of $1300 worth of jewelry there.

Navy Yard Men Out of Work

Boston, Aug. 4.—One hundred men were discharged from the local navy yard last night, the work having been so reduced there is not enough for the large force of men to do.

CHAPTER XVI.

A WHISPER OF VENGANCE.

THE moment Lady Creech had gone Daniel smiled broadly for the first time since he had set eyes upon Ivanoff. He could see his way clear now to the thorough accomplishment of his mission, and fervently thanked heaven for putting into his hands such a weapon as the Russian fugitive.

"Glenwood, eh? And he protected the historic name of St. Aubyn, that noble earl; protected it on the surface while he dragged it in the mire of another man's disgrace and humiliation in private. He was a sweet lot, that noble earl! He carried himself high, and his keen eye lost no whit of its dignity and importance from that conscience that must be uneasy within his breast."

And the woman, too, "Helene," Ivanoff had called her. So they had stuck together all those ten years, with Lady Creech as a most complaisant and discreet chaperon—but that couldn't be, for, whatever else Lady Creech might be, worldly wise and haughty, she was at least an English gentlewoman at heart, and she would have starved rather than connive at a scandal of that sort.

No, Daniel reflected, he would have to leave Lady Creech out of the mess, even though she was a bitter old dame. But Hawcastle should feel the touch of the iron. It should burn him deeply, and the scar would remain.

And the fair countess, who was angling for that addle pated Horace and his share of the estate! That woman, who had deliberately sent a good man to what was worse than death, should he have any pity for her? Not for a single instant.

He leaped up and hastily crossed the room to the writing desk, scribbled a note and, before he put it in the envelope, rang the bell.

As he sealed the note Mariano tapped discreetly at the door, and Pike called:

"Come in!"

"Look here, Mariano, I want you to take this note to Miss Simpson," he said quickly.

"To Mees Granger-Seempsone?" asked the man deferentially.

"Yes. Do you know where she is?"

"She walk upon the terrace alone, sair," replied Mariano.

"Then give it to her yourself—to no one else—and do it now!" he went on emphatically, pushing the servant out of the door in his haste. When he had closed it he went to the door of the suit, threw it open and called:

"Ivanoff!"

Almost immediately the Russian came into the room, and Pike noted the suffering upon his face, the look of timid apprehension with which he glanced furtively about. For him there was a carabinier in every corner.

"Have they come?" he whispered tensely. Daniel went over to him and laid a lank hand upon the bent shoulder, looking him triumphantly in the eyes.

"Not yet," he answered, and paused. "Ivanoff, you prayed to see your wife and your friend Glenwood before you went back to Siberia."

"If that prayer is answered through me," he went on, "will you promise to remember that it's my fight?"

Ivanoff covered his face with his hands, and his breath came chokingly.

"It is impossible! You wish to play with me!" he gasped.

"Do I look playful?" demanded Daniel. And as he spoke a bugle sounded sharply outside the window off to the right. At the sound Ivanoff shrank into himself, and his fingers trembled in the other's grasp.

"The carabinieri—for me!" he cried.

Both men turned quickly to the window, and Pike thrust Ivanoff behind him as he drew aside the heavy curtain.

"Don't show yourself!" he commanded. But there was a smothered exclamation from the fugitive, and he pointed over Pike's shoulder.

"Look! Near the lamp yonder—there by the gates—the carabinieri!"

His arm trembled as it rested for an instant on the American's shoulder, and Pike returned quietly:

"Pouf! They've been there since we hid you beneath the machine." He stopped and shaded his eyes with his hand from the glare of the lamps inside the room, then started. "Why—who on earth—who's that they've got with 'em? Why, good Lord, it's doc!"

Ivanoff strained over his shoulder to look and then replied bitterly:

"It is Herr von Grollerhagen! Did I not tell you he was a Russian? He has betrayed me himself! He was not satisfied that others should. Ah, I knew I was in the wolf's throat here!"

Pike swore emphatically and exhaustively.

"Don't you believe it!" he snarled. "They've arrested poor old doc! Got him as he went out!"

"No!" cried Ivanoff. "They speak respectfully to him! They bow to him"—

"They'll be bowing to us in a minute. That's probably the way these colonels run you in!" snarled Daniel.

As he spoke there was a sharp knock on the outer door, and he seized Ivanoff by the arm.

"Back into the room with you! Wait until I call, and remember it's my fight!"

He was about to add more when the door opened and Mariano appeared. Instantly the American changed his tone to one of severe command.

"And don't you forget what I've been telling you. You get the sand out of that gear box first thing tomorrow morning, or I'll see that you draw your last pay Saturday night!"

Ivanoff caught the idea and bowed silently and then turned and entered the door to the inner chamber. Mariano came forward and bowed.

"Mees Granger-Seempsone," said he and went out, standing to one side to make room for Ethel as she entered with a look of complete astonishment on her face. Pike approached her.

"I'm much obliged to you for taking my note the right way," he said. "I've got some pretty good reasons for not leaving this room."

She inclined her head icily and fidgeted with the note she held.

"Your note seemed so extraordinarily urgent," she began, but he interrupted.

"It had to be," he said. "Some folks who want to see me are coming here, and I want you to see them—here. They'd stopped you from coming if they could."

"There was no effort to prevent me," she said coldly.

"I didn't give 'em time," he smiled.

"May I ask to whom you refer?" she inquired.

"Certainly. The whole kit and boodle of 'em," he replied. "Excuse me. I haven't time to be elegant, even if I knew how."

"Do you mean my chaperon would disapprove?" she asked, hastily rising.

"I shouldn't be surprised. I reckon the whole fine flower of Europe would disapprove. 'Disapprove!' They'd sandbag you to keep you away!"

"Then I can't stay," she cried and started for the door. He stepped between her and the exit and raised his hand with a gesture of command.

"Yes, you can, and you will, and you've got to," he said. "I'm your guardian, and you'll do as I say. You'll obey me this once if you never do again. You'll stay here while I talk to these people, and you'll stay in spite of everything they say or do to make you go!" She looked startled and stepped back from him, and he went on:

"God knows I hate to talk rough to you. I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world, but it's come to a point where I've got to use the authority I have over you."

In an instant she flared up.

"Authority! Do you think"—

"You'll stay here for the next twenty minutes if I have to make Crecy and Agincourt look like a peace conference," he snapped. And she sank back into a chair with a gesture of alarm.

Pike went closer to her and spoke more softly.

"You and your brother have soaked up a society column notion of life over here," he said. "You're like old Pete Delaney of Terre Hut. He got so he'd drink cold tea if there was a label on the bottle that spelled whisky."

"You're going too far!" the girl cried.

"They've got you fuddled with labels here," went on the American. "It's my business to see that you know what kind of people you're dealing with."

She dropped her head.

"You're bullying me! I don't see why you talk so brutally to me."

"Do you think I'd do it for anything but you?" he asked.

"Don't you think I know you despise me?" he asked bitterly. And she flared again.

"I do not despise you. If I had stayed at home and grown up there I should probably have been a provincial young woman, playing 'Sweet Genevieve' on the organ for you tonight," she said. "My life has not been that, however, and you have humiliated me from the moment of your arrival here. You have made me ashamed both of you and myself. And now you have some preposterous plan that will shame me again—both of us—once more before these gentlefolk."

There was a bustling without and some loud talking, and Pike smiled wanly.

"I think them gentlefolk are here," he said. As he spoke the door was thrown open, and Lady Creech hurriedly entered, followed by the countess, Horace, Almeric and the earl. The latter bowed sardonically to Pike, and Lady Creech hurried to Ethel with a cry of astonishment.

"My dear child! What are you doing here in this dreadful place with this dreadful person?" she demanded shrilly.

"My dear! Les covenances!" cried madame.

"Ethel! I am surprised! Come away at once!" demanded Horace.

"Oh, I say, you know, Miss Ethel, really!" echoed Almeric. "You can't stay here, you know!"

Pike stopped them with a gesture and said:

"I'm her guardian, and she's here by my authority, and, what's more, she'll stay by my authority."

Horace turned to the earl.

"Lord Hawcastle, will you insist upon Ethel's leaving? It's quite on the cards we shall have a disagreeable scene here."

Hawcastle smiled evilly.

"I see no reason for it. We're here simply for Mr. Pike's answer. He knows where he stands, and he knows where we stand," said the earl suavely, and the American met his smile evenly.

Populace of Barcelona In Sympathy With Prisoners

HATRED OF LONG STANDING

It Is Shown by Madrid's Lack of Interest In Slaughter of People In Catalonian Capital—Work and Amusements Being Resumed In City Whose Streets Were Recently Flowing With Blood

Barcelona, Aug. 4.—The city of Barcelona is quiet, but the populace unceasingly demands the liberation of the prisoners taken during the fighting. Troops still patrol the streets, but otherwise life is almost normal.

It is impossible to give an estimate of the number of victims of the disorders, but they are far in excess of the official figures announced.

FATAL SQUARE IN BARCELONA.
[Near this triumphal arch the rebels were penned in a solid mass and slaughtered by machine guns.]

It is stated from a good source that the revolutionaries intend again to take up arms if the prisoners are not liberated.

Indifferent Indeed

London, Aug. 4.—The Daily Telegraph's special commissioner, who has ust arrived in Barcelona, sends to his paper a dispatch giving a curious picture of the indifference or ignorance of the Spanish people evinced throughout his journey from the frontier, even in Madrid, to the events in Barcelona.

"The tranquility and gaiety of the populace of Madrid," the correspondent says, "seems to me incongruous and absurd. Barcelona is not loved much in the rest of Spain, and the old deep hatred between Catalonia and Madrid is aroused on every occasion. The cannonades in Barcelona disturbed Madrid about as much as if they had occurred in a foreign country. Spain favors repression there because Barcelona raised the flag of insurrection."

Even in approaching Barcelona the correspondent observed few indications of the recent bloody events there. The railways were running and work and amusements were being resumed. Entering Barcelona at night little out of the ordinary was noticeable except the blackened and burned churches and convents. The streets and cafes were gay, noisy and brilliant. There was nothing to recall the revolution but an occasional fanfare.

"Somewhat surprised and disillusioned," the correspondent continues, "I made a tour of observation. Everything surprises me. One sees that the interruption of normal life has been slight. The revolution must have been superficial if it has not even upset the good humor of the town."

A Republican Plot

Paris, Aug. 4.—In a dispatch from San Sebastian a correspondent of The Temps says he has learned from authoritative sources that the outbreak at Barcelona was a result of a Republican plot, which was timed to coincide with a general strike throughout Spain scheduled for Aug. 2. The movement at Barcelona was premature. The plot was betrayed to the government, which was able to block the efforts of the organizers at Bilbao, Alicante and elsewhere.

Bulldog Mangles a Woman

New York, Aug. 4.—While lying in the hallway of her home in Brooklyn Mrs. Laura Liebess was attacked by a bulldog and her body so terribly torn that she will die. Neighbors arrived just in time to save her 13-year-old son from a similar fate. The dog attacked the woman after she had fallen in a fit.

Lived Nearly 104 Years

Methuen, Mass., Aug. 4.—At 103 years and 7 months, John Thompson died here last night. He had worked as a dyer up to six years ago. It is but twenty-five years since he came to this country from Scotland, where he was born.

Mann of Central avenue, Everett, on Monday evening, the party being in honor of Mrs. Mann's birthday. Readings and songs by Mrs. Mann and her son were enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

RETURNED FROM CAMP.

A happier crowd never landed in Quincy than the boys returning from the Y. M. C. A. camp held at Oldham lake, Pembroke, during the past two weeks. It was indeed a great success and every boy attending the camp has determined he will attend next years' outing. Every meal was eaten in the open air and the weather was perfect. Boating, baseball, swimming, cricket and quoits were the big features. The boys were good hikers and on Monday went over the road twenty miles to Plymouth. The town was owned by the boys and after sleeping out in the open air the return trip was made without an accident. This is one of the big things of the year and it is hoped may be even greater next year.

TEAMS IN COLLISION.

Quincy Carriage Runs Into Wagon on a Milton Street.

A carriage belonging to Brooks Adams and driven by John Manning, was in collision Tuesday evening on Granite avenue, Milton, with a pedler's wagon owned by John McAnarney of Grant place, Charlestown. Mr. Manning was driving towards Quincy and turned out to get by a stone wagon that was driving ahead of him. The street was dark at the point and Mr. Manning did not notice a wagon coming the opposite way until it was too late to avoid the collision. Mr. McAnarney was thrown from his wagon and was partially stunned by the fall and Mr. Adams' horse was considerably cut. The accident was unavoidable. Mr. McAnarney was sent to his home in Charlestown but Mr. Manning was able to bring his horse home.

HOMES INVADED BY DENSE SMOKE

Forest Fires Die Down With the Subsidence of Wind

Falmouth, Mass., Aug. 4.—An almost dead calm has prevented further spread of the forest fires which of West Falmouth and which has destroyed a great additional stretch of woodland.

Over the great area covered by the fires of the past few days and throughout the lower end of Cape Cod there hangs a dense cloak of smoke. The absence of wind has resulted in the almost impenetrable pall remaining close to the ground and it has invaded homes throughout the section and made travel difficult.

In the event of a renewed upspringing of the wind from a dangerous directon the 400 odd men who rallied to fight the flames will again come forth.

TURRET BELL AFLOAT

Had Been Stranded Off Prince Edward Island Nearly Three Years

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Aug. 4.—Of the several vessels which were wrecked in the great gale of November, 1906, on provincial shores, the steamer Turret Bell, just floated, is the only survivor.

After her nearly three years of desuetude the Turret Bell was still able to proceed here under her own steam from the north side of the island, where she was stranded. After undergoing temporary repairs she will go to Quebec. The successful salvors were the Reid Wrecking company.

The Turret Bell is of 1376 tonnage and was built in 1894. She had been abandoned to the underwriters.

BOY KNOCKED OVERBOARD

Clergyman Tries to Rescue Him and Both Are Drowned

New London, Conn., Aug. 4.—Rev. H. L. Mitchell, rector of the Episcopal church at Plymouth, Conn., and Clarence Blakeslee, organist of the same church, were drowned in Fisher's Island Sound.

The clergyman had been camping near Noank and Blakeslee was one of a party of six boys he had taken out in a catboat. Blakeslee was knocked overboard by the boom and Mitchell dived after him, but neither reappeared again. The boat with the remainder of the party was picked up and towed into this port.

WESTERN SENATORS WIN

Leather Schedule Adjusted to the Satisfaction of All Concerned

Washington, Aug. 4.—Bitter controversy over the duty on boots and shoes, which threatened to defeat the Payne tariff bill in the senate, seems ended. The senate will vote on the bill tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

It is planned to correct the shoe and leather schedule, which offended the western senators, by a concurrent resolution to be acted on separately.

The form of the concurrent resolution was agreed upon in an informal conference. Instructions are given by this resolution to the enrolling clerks of the senate and house to change the language of the proviso reducing duties on boots and shoes and harness.

The change will lower the duty of all boots and shoes to 10 percent, and will also reduce harness and saddlery.

It was for such a reduction on manufactured leather goods that western senators assert that they voted with the east for free hides.

SOLDIER'S IRE AROUSED

He Vents It by Belaboring an Editor With a Cane

Louisville, Aug. 4.—Present-day journalism and "Old Kentucky" clashed when Adjutant General Philip P. Johnson of the Kentucky National Guard caned Denny B. Goode, editor of a weekly social and political paper. The general took umbrage at an editorial reference in the paper to him as "General Peacock P. Johnson" and an epigrammatic remark that Johnston is a man who "spells 'me' in capitals and 'you' in agate type."

Johnston, with one of his aides, entered Goode's office and when assured by Goode that the editor had written the objectionable statement, Johnston laid over Goode's head and ears with a thick black cane.

Johnston was arrested. He is a citizen of Lexington and a breeder of horses.

MILE-A-MINUTE CLIP.

Billy Fallon and Chief Pierce of Milton In Wild Chase For Auto.

Billy Fallon, the policeman-chauffeur of the Milton police department, had a wild ride Tuesday night in company with Chief Pierce, chasing a flying automobile which was exceeding the speed limit many miles an hour. Billy and the chief were driving along easily just watching for some reckless devotee of the auto game, when along came the car in question. It was going at a high speed when the Milton auto started on the trail. As soon as the driver of the car noticed that he was being chased he let out his machine. He had a big 60 horsepower Pierce Arrow car, and he thought it would be an easy trick to run away from the little Stanley steamer owned by the Police department of the lively little Blue Hill town. He did not reckon on the speed of the car, however, and he soon found out that he had a big contract on hand to keep in front. At first he began to pull away from the officers and noticing this, Billy Fallon let out a few notches until he was going fifty miles an hour. Still the big Arrow was going ahead and Billy put on more steam, then more and more, until the speedometer registered 59 miles an hour. They were going some just now and came to a hill. The Stanley car is noted for its ability to climb hills and it showed its speed at this time. Just as the autos reached the top of the hill, the Milton auto went by and the speedometer showed that they had been going 50 miles an hour up that hill. They caught their man and he was summoned into court this morning.

He gave his name as William B. Cowen and said he drove for Dr. Maurice Richardson, the eminent surgeon of Boston. The court heard his case and Judge Pratt imposed a fine of $25.

POOR GARBAGE COLLECTION.

Norfolk Downs people are up in arms because the Board of Health has diverted the regular garbage wagon, which has always covered that locality, to Houghs Neck. During the summer season collections have been made twice a week, on Tuesdays and Fridays. But for over two weeks not a garbage pail has been emptied in the section near the Parkway. The condition of the contents of the pails is indescribable. Some of the people buried their garbage, others burned theirs, while others hired boys to cart it away. In the meantime the Board of Health was deluged with complaints by telephone and mail. For several days after the Board had been notified of the distressing state of affairs nothing was done to remove the festering mass. In the meantime the Board was faintly affirming that they supposed that a team was attempting to do the work of the regular wagon, which the Board of Health had so generously assigned to Houghs Neck.

Finally Mayor Shea was personally appealed to and it is hoped that through his intervention the trouble will be rectified.

EIGHT PLANS PRESENTED

School Board Considers Plans for Houghs Neck School

A special meeting of the school committee was held last night for the purpose of receiving plans for the proposed school house building at Houghs Neck. Eight different sets of plans were offered and six architects were present to explain their plans. Each architect was given 20 minutes to explain his plans. At the conclusion of the explanations the committee took the plans under advisement and made an examination of those which seemed to best answer the purpose. No action was taken in the matter of giving the official approval of the board to any plan but this will probably be done at a meeting of the board which will be held Aug. 11.

The resignation of Superintendent of Schools Frank E. Parlin was received and was accepted with sincere regret. Some very nice things were said about Mr. Parlin and each member present personally expressed his regrets that the superintendent was to leave Quincy but also felicitated him upon his promotion to the superintendency of the schools of Cambridge and wished him all kinds of success in his new fields of labor.

Other resignations were received as follows: Miss Edith M. Rodman of the Wollaston school, Miss Edith M. Holmes of the Lincoln school, Miss Alice M. Parker of the Willard school.

The following new teachers were elected: Miss Olive L. Huston to the Willard school, Miss Rachel G. Warshaw to the Wollaston school, Miss Esther J. Viden to the Lincoln school and Miss Grace M. Lamb to the John Hancock school.

A sub-committee, consisting of Chairman Hunting and Messrs. Wadsworth, Miller and Newcomb, was appointed to consider applications for a superintendent of schools and to examine any candidates who might apply. This committee will report Aug. 11. The meeting adjourned at 11.10 to meet Aug. 11.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

EXPLAINS BOSTON 1915.

What a city can do when all its people are banded together for one good object was the theme of an address delivered at South Framingham recently by C. Bertrand Thompson. Taking as his subject "Organized Democracy," Mr. Thompson, who is general committee secretary of Boston 1915, gave a description of the work begun by that organization, and the possibilities which it opens. He said in part:

"Ten people working together can do more than fifteen working separately; one hundred working together more than one thousand working separately. There is no limit to what a million people working together can accomplish, and so it is the aim of Boston-1915 to have every individual in this great metropolis pool his efforts with those of every other individual and by their united activity secure results whose magnitude and value will be a model to the world. This movement is a savings bank for small deposits. Ten thousand people putting their tiny weekly savings into a cooperative credit association accumulate a fund of cash and credit which gives them extraordinary power and so in this movement we propose to have the half afternoons or hours or even minutes which each individual can contribute devoted to the attainment of great civic ideals, and working for them irresistibly.

"Organization and efficiency actuated by civic spirit and idealism are what Boston-1915 stands for. The needs of a great metropolitan district are tolerably familiar to students and are becoming more and more obvious to the masses of people. Dozens and hundreds of organizations already exist to meet these needs, but their efforts are too often somewhat ineffectual because they do not pool their interests. We propose to offer them the opportunity to increase their efficiency by the very simple but extremely effective expedient of coordination and cooperation. We do not propose to undertake anything for the doing of which an agency already exists. We do not propose to learn from the people themselves what needs to be done and what resources they already have to do it with and to help them get it done by organizing their resources. In this way we hope to set in motion and to maintain a mass movement incarnating the democratic genius of the American people and working definitely in the direction of a perfect city. That is what we mean by the war cry 'Boston-1915—the Finest City in the World.' We are offering the opportunity for the grandest democratic municipal experiment which has ever been tried, and it remains only for the people in whose interest the movement is undertaken to continue to show the interest and cooperation which they are already manifesting."

KNOCKED DOWN AT HIS DOOR.

George Germaine, a well-known resident who has lived for years in a small shanty-like residence near the Johnson lumber wharf, was brutally assaulted at the door of his little home last night by four men. He is in such a precarious condition today that Dr. Bushnell has ordered his removal to the Massachusetts general hospital in Boston, the city hospital here being crowded.

The assault is one of the most unprovoked and brutal that has come to the attention of the police in a long time. Germaine was summoned to the door of his home about 10.30 by a knock on the door. He was confronted by four men who immediately began to hammer him on the head and face. Germaine fell from the repeated blows and the brave assailants ran in the direction of Washington street.

Germaine called for help and people who live nearby went to his hut. They found his face and head in such a condition that they sent for a physician and notified the police. Officers Olson and Ford went to the place and Dr. E. H. Bushnell responded to the call for medical aid. Germaine said he could not identify his assailants, so sudden was the attack. He was unable to assist the police much because of the suffering he was experiencing from his wounds.

Dr. Bushnell said this morning that Germaine's injuries were such and the fact that he lived alone made it necessary to send him somewhere so that he could receive proper treatment and he will be taken to the Massachusetts general hospital today.

ADDRESS ON WATERWAYS

Dock Commissioner Crane Speaks at Quincy Y. C.

A large audience listened to Frank F. Crane at the Quincy yacht club Wednesday evening, when he gave an interesting and instructive talk on inland waterways. This subject has been the cause of a lot of talk for the past few years and Mr. Crane has made a thorough study of the question. He told many things about the canals that most people do not know about, facts about cost and time saved. He said in part.—

The private Corporations own the railroads and we the people of the United States own the Waterways. The capital investment in the railways is fifteen billion dollars. While that of the government in the waterways is one half of one billion dollars total expenditure for over one hundred years on about one thirtieth of the money spent on the railroads.

For the last few years the U. S. Gov. has spent on the waterways about twenty million dollars per year, and the yearly freight tolls paid the railroads has been two billion dollars or one hundred times that amount. Does money spent on our waterways pay? Take the Soo Canal, the Gov. spent ten million dollars on the Soo Canal and its freight statistics show that grain shipments increased from one million two hundred thousand bushels to ninety million bushels per year; flour shipments from a few thousand tons to nine million tons and coal from a few thousand tons to seven million tons, per year. Come nearer home, take the Erie Canal of New York, built in 1817 made a fine canal in 1852. At that time the state of New York found that the Erie canal had cost the state 39 million dollars that its interest account was 13 million dollars that it had paid back to the state the 39 million cost, the 13 million dollars interest and 25 million dollars profit.

What is the difference in cost of freight by rail or by water? The average cost of one ton per mile by rail is 7 1-2 mills—by water one mill. What would be the saving in distance, if the Brockton canal should be built. Starting on the route from Beaufort to Boston, take the Albemarle and Chespeake Canal, it is 13 9-10 miles long and saves fifty miles of outside navigation, then you come through the Chespeake and Delaware canal 13 8-10 miles long and saves 318 miles of outside navigation. Then the Delaware Raritan canal 31 4-10 miles long and saves 184 miles outside navigation.

And if the Brockton canal or one similar was built it would be about 30 miles long and save about 122 miles outside navigation. The total length of these canals already built, with the exception of the Brockton canal is 89 1-10 miles and saves 674 miles of outside navigation. In the face of the winter record of 1908 and 1909 221 lives lost and 89 ships wrecked in the North Atlantic involving a monetary loss of three million dollars, is it not our duty to instruct our Congressman to favor all proper water way legislation and only elect such men as will give heed to that instruction?

The Brockton Canal book, the supplementary Quincy Book with cuts of the proposed canal have all been means to one end, the U. S. Government is today making a survey of the best and most feasible route from Narragansett Bay to Boston and it is our hope that the Brockton canal route will be the one selected, and with the other canals already built it may be possible in the next five years for the Quincy Yachtsmen to sail by a safe and protected free inland waterway from Quincy to Key West.

BELCHER MEMORIAL FOUNTAIN.

To Be Erected at Northfield, Mass., by Quincy Firm.

Last week the son of Mr. Joseph Walker, proprietor of the Aberdeen Granite works of Quincy, was in town to make arrangements for the erection of the Belcher Memorial fountain. It is about finished and will be sent here early next month and put in place. Not only will it supply an abundance of our pure mountain water for man and beast, but it will strikingly adorn our noble thoroughfare. Its height is over 16 feet, it weighs 55,000 pounds, the chief basin is nine feet across, there are two receptacles for water for dogs, and the entire structure above the foundation is of the best Quincy granite. It is a worthy memorial of the esteemed ladies whose name it perpetuates. How satisfactory is it, indeed, to have that name preserved in this manner! Not only is it a name long held in honor in this community, not only will its inscription remind us and our children of the beautiful lives of Miss Eliza and Miss Mary Anne Belcher, but it is a name conspicuous in the history of the commonwealth. The Belchers are direct descendants of Governor Jonathan Belcher of our provincial period. He came of good New England stock on both his father's and his mother's side. In a modest way the Misses Belcher would sometimes allude to this relationship. It was evident they took pride in it, although they said so little about it. Perhaps the excessive loyalty of the royal governor may have disposed them to reticence. In his zeal for the king he affronted the rising spirit of independence among the colonists. From a book just published, and written by the Rev. D. M. Wilson and Mr. Charles Francis Adams in collaboration, we quote the following:

"Through 11 troubled years Jonathan Belcher was royal governor of the Province of Massachusetts Bay; and subsequently transferred to New Jersey. He for ten years and until his death in 1757, administered the affairs of that Province both to his own satisfaction and to that of the people. A Boston boy he was to the manner born. He was, also, a graduate of Harvard college, nine years the senior of John Quincy. And yet Governor Belcher was neither a fortunate nor a popular chief magistrate of Massachusetts. Though a victim of the gout, the suffering caused by attacks of which may have made him irritable, his person and presence are said to have been graceful and pleasing, while his manner was hearty and his address affable. But, known to be a friend and advocate of high prerogative principles in government, he was given to intrigue and suspected of tortuous political methods. Not in sympathy with the mass of the community he was set to rule over, he was, when opposed, inclined to arbitrary measures."

But however far the governor missed it by yielding all too easily to the blandishments of royalty, others of his name threw themselves heartily into the cause of liberty, and Belchers from that early till now have been genuine New Englanders in thought and deed. Succeeding generations can delight themselves without a reservation in all the memorial foundation stands for. And, let us interject here, the fountain is likely to stand through many ages so substantial is it, and built "upon honor," as is all the work of the Aberdeen Company.—Northfield Press.

—Central Park, New York, is to be lighted by electricity. It will take 1,400 arc lamps to light the park.

Every one seems to be keen on the Lincoln cent.

They should have had the sacred cod from the state house as one of the decorations at the Gloucester celebration.

A much needed rain at last but there are probably a lot of disappointed people who said this morning "Rain! Rain! go away, come again some other day.!"

If, as the medical men testified in Thaw case, "exaggerated ego" is a form of insanity, there are many people besides Thaw who may be safely scheduled in the dippy class.

Even in those cities where there is a reduction of the tax rate this year, the rate still continues high. That is one of the penalties of wearing municipal-made clothing.

The timid rain plucked up enough courage to pay a fleeting visit last night and not a soul was heard to say anything but complimentary things. Mud looked really good on the streets.

If three lots of land caused the city council to delay three months on the Houghs Neck school proposition, how long will it take the school committee to dispose of eight plans? Keep your eye on the school committee and see how differently they do business.

"Righteousness and our real ultimate self-interest demand that the blacks be treated justly," said Theodore Roosevelt at a dinner given him in East Africa Tuesday night. Members of the 25th U. S. infantry will grin when they read that.

It isn't a bad suggestion that the rotary street sweeper be used on some of the streets around city square night times to scrape up the oil-filled dust which the automobiles create. On Washington street in front of the post office there is an accumulation that will make a nasty mess once a good wind gets at it to scatter it.

Reckless drivers of automobiles who while under the influence of intoxicants drive their machines at top speed through crowded streets, ought to be pushed to the limit of the law. The sober, reckless driver is bad enough, the Lord knows, but when intoxication is added such a man becomes a double menace to the community.

That is a pretty state of affairs that was reported from the Wollaston park section of the city in last night's Ledger. For two weeks no garbage wagon has been seen in that vicinity and, naturally, the people living there don't like the thing a bit. It would seem that there ought to be a quick response to this complaint. If the Board of Health isn't any closer in touch with the situation than to suppose the wagon was making its regular collections then it is time for somebody higher up at city hall to furnish the necessary relief.

The police department has inaugurated a regular old home week. Having landed much-wanted men in Lorraine, Ohio, Providence, R. I., and Brookline, Mass., they learned last night that another man awaited their coming in Newport News, Va. If there are any other wrong doers that are wanted in Quincy they had better come back before they are sent after. It will save expense and may help out in the sentence. The Quincy police are getting to be regular "speed boys" and with good reason for Chief Burrell was one of the crack ball players of this section of the country in his day.

With the close of the tariff session of Congress official Washington will take its annual exodus. The President will hasten to Beverly, Massachusetts, as soon as he has affixed his signature to the tariff bill. He is naturally anxious to reach there because of the delicate condition of Mrs. Taft's health and all the country will wish him and his a restful and pleasant vacation. It will not be for long, for, unless his plans miscarry, he will start on September 15 for a tour of the country which will take in the Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle, the Pacific coast, Arizona and New Mexico including a brief meeting with President Diaz of Mexico, when the two Executives will eat luncheon at a table placed exactly over the international boundary on the bridge El Paso. He will then come North to St. Louis and sail down the Mississippi on one of the large river steamers, look in on the Deep Waterways Convention at New Orleans, renew old acquaintances with many of the cities of the South and reach Washington late in October.

The great success of the Wright brothers at Washington must prove an occasion of pride to America generally. These enterprising and energetic young men proved to the satisfaction of the government that their aeroplane could accomplish all that was claimed for it and incidentally performed two most surprising feats. They remained two in the machine in the air on one flight considerably over an hour and on another made a world's record flight of ten miles at an average speed of 42.5 miles an hour over broken and untried country.

The passage of the tariff bill and its approval by the President must prove a source of gratification to all sensible citizens. The measure actually revises the tariff downward, despite the misleading figures which our Democratic friends present to establish their claims to the contrary. A word as to these figures is not amiss. By calculating the percentage of the duty on the articles taxed, but omitting any reference to the articles transferred to the free list, they manage to show a slight increase in the percentage of taxation. Of course such a method is wholly erroneous. To present a comparative statement that would be worth anything it would be necessary to show the percentages of reduction, inserting those percentages represented where, as in the case of hides for instance the entire 15 per cent formally imposed was stricken off. Deduct from the percentages of reduction the comparatively few percentages of increase and the remainder would afford a fairly accurate measure of the reduction.

SLAIN IN HIS OWN HOUSE

Vermont Farmer Dies of Injuries Inflicted by Neighbor

WERE FRIENDS FOR YEARS

Posse of Two Hundred Farmers and Citizens of Hardwick, Armed With Shotguns, Start on Man Hunt In Woods—Searchers Plentifully Supplied With Food and Ammunition and Determined to Capture Slayer

Hardwick, Vt., Aug. 5.—Stirred by the murder of Charles Perkins, a prosperous farmer of this town, who was killed in his house, it is alleged, by Joseph Pascal, a neighbor, a large posse of farmers of Hardwick and the neigboring town of Walden, armed with shotguns, are searching for the latter in the woods, determined to take Pascal dead or alive.

After killing Perkins and threatening the other members of the family, Pascal backed off into the woods, covering his retreat with a shotgun, and has not been seen since.

Terrorized, the Perkinses remained in their home for over an hour, when one of the sons ventured into town and apprised the constable of the tragedy.

When the murder became known the town was thrown into a ferment.

Farmers came riding into the village, demanding vengeance against the alleged assassin, and immediately a man hunt was organized.

About 200 farmers and citizens assembled in the village, and after receiving final instructions toward capturing the man, paired off into the woods.

Soon the dense forests and the labryinth of passages leading into caves and retreats were being scoured by the searchers, who are plentifully supplied with food and ammunition.

In the meantime others returned to the village and patrolled about the confines of the Pascal farm and the Perkins home, where Pascal was last seen. The search will be continued until the mission is accomplished.

Pascal was 45 years old and is said to have gone to Perkins' house in search of his wife, who left home after a quarrel Tuesday afternoon, with her three small children.

The couple have five other children who do not live at home. The fugitive and deceased were friends for years. Mrs. Pascal is said to have been a relative of Charles Perkins, and naturally looked to him for protection and counsel in time of trouble.

An autopsy disclosed the fact that death was due to blows from a blunt instrument which crushed the chest, fractured three ribs and ruptured the aorta. It is the opinion of the physicians that a bullet wound in the wrist was inflicted after the other injuries. It was at first thought that Perkins died from the shock caused by the bullet wound, owing to his age. Perkins was 72 years of age.

New Charge Against Sailor Who Is Held by Naval Authorities

Marietta, Ga., Aug. 5.—David Williams, the negro mess attendant on the battleship Vermont, who is being held by the naval authorities pending an investigation into the death of Harry Foster, following a boxing bout between the two negroes on board the Vermont, is wanted by the authorities of this city, his home town, on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

One year ago he attempted the life of Howard Northcutt, a prominent young man of Marietta. Williams cut Northcutt's throat. A formal request will be made to the navy department at Washington for the delivery of Williams to the Georgia authorities.

VIRGINIA PRIMARIES

Vote Is Being Cast Today For Democratic Nomination For Governor

Richmond, Aug. 5.—With an address in his home city of Lexington by Harry Tucker and with Judge Mann speaking to the voters of the Eastern Shore, the campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor of Virginia was brought to a close last night.

Both the Mann and Tucker leaders make confident claims, each professing to have the state won by from 14,000 to 15,000. The vote is being cast today.

City Election Held Void

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

"The Canterbury Pilgrims" Ends a Splendid Festival

GLOUCESTER'S ANNIVERSARY

Superb Pageant the Feature of Celebration of First Settlement of the City by Pilgrims 286 Years Ago—Fleet Fires Salute and City Bells Chime With Music—President Taft's Absence a Disappointment

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 5.—A spectacle unique in the annals of New England, and probably the most elaborate of its kind ever seen in this country, brought to a splendid close last night the celebration of the first settlement of Gloucester, 286 years ago.

Seated in a natural amphitheatre overlooking the harbor, 5000 persons witnessed the production, by a cast of 2000 players, of "The Canterbury Pilgrims," a pageant most artistically conceived and brilliantly staged.

"Gloucester Day" celebration is an annual fixture in the local calendar, but this year an unusually elaborate program was arranged, and when it was thought that the occasion would be marked by the presence of President Taft the citizens vied with each other to assist in the plans and make the affair eclipse all previous efforts.

The inability of the president to come here on account of the pressure of tariff affairs in Washington caused much regret and some slight changes in the program necessary at the last moment, but the arrangements as a whole were carried out on the scale originally planned.

The city was in a gala garb of flags and bunting, a squadron of warships and the many vessels of the famous fishing fleets in the harbor were profusely decorated also, and a parade in which the sailors from the squadron assisted, served as a sort of curtain-raiser to the grand fete of the evening.

The pageant was given at Stage Fort park, a peculiarly appropriate spot historically because it includes the site of the house of Roger Conant, the first governor of the little Gloucester colony. Percy Mackaye is the author of the play, "The Canterbury Pilgrims," and he was assisted in the production by Erin Pape, one of the summer colony of artists here, who developed the artistic elements and was master of the pageant, and by Walter Damrosch, who arranged the music.

On an open-air stage 175 feet long and 680 feet in depth, the principals in the various acts and the hundreds of people making up the choruses faced an audience seated in an immense natural amphitheatre. There was no curtain, but a beautiful display of colored fire screened the stage between the acts.

The music was by a band of sixty-five pieces and a large pipe organ built expressely for out-of-door work. At certain periods in the performance the bells of the city churches, connected electrically with the organ, sounded their chimes, while a salvo of artillery from the warships was also a feature of one portion of the play.

It was around the Chaucer story of the "Wife of Bath" that the plot of the play was laid, with the "Coburn Players," a company of professionals, carrying the principal parts in the cast. The scenes were laid in Southwark in 1387, and the costuming of all the great throng of participants was designed to be as historically correct as possible.

The first act was preceded by a salute of twenty-one guns from the cruisers in the harbor and an overture, after which a curtain of blue and green fire which appeared before the stage was withdrawn, and a series of folk songs and dances followed, woven into the action of the play.

The last act, the fourth, began with a jousting tournament before King Richard, performed to the sound of battle music, and ended with a beautiful festival called "The Spirit of the Flowers."

Side Crushed In by a Car

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 5.—Michael Collity, 50, came from his work at a brewery and stepped directly in front of a car he intended to take so quickly that the motorman could not stop before the car struck him in the side. Collity's entire right side was crushed in, the ribs being broken from the spinal column. He died in a few minutes.

Zeppelin Honored With Monument

Frankfort-on-Main, Ger., Aug. 5.—A monument to Count Zeppelin was unveiled near Oppenheim to mark the spot where Zeppelin landed in his airship Aug. 4, 1908, during his flight from Lake Constance to Mayance. The monument was erected by the state of Hesse.

Monster Shark Captured

Boothbay Harbor, Me., Aug. 5.—Woodman Clifford and M. P. Hodgdon captured a big man-eating shark ten feet long and weighing half a ton. He was captured off Monhegan after an exciting fight in which both Clifford and Hodgdon came near losing their lives.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"I reckon you're right so far," he said.

"And your answer will be yes?" asked the earl, but Pike shook his head.

"You're wrong there," he answered, and Hawcastle changed front in an instant.

"Perhaps you are right, Mr. Granger-Simpson," he said. "There may be painful things done. Better your sister were spared them. Take her away."

Pike snapped at them all and moved to the door, where he faced them.

"You're here for an answer, you say?"

"Yes," answered the earl, after an instant's pause, and Dan went closer to him.

"An answer to what?" he demanded, looking the other in the eye.

"An answer to our request that you accede to the wishes of this young lady," replied the earl uneasily.

"And if I don't what are you going to do?" demanded Pike quickly. Horace at once broke in.

"Ethel, you must go!" he implored. But Pike waved him to silence.

"Tell her. Why do you come here sure of the answer you want?" he insisted savagely.

"A gentleman would spare her that," said Hawcastle, with uneasiness, and the American laughed.

"I won't!" he snapped. "Speak out! Why?" But the earl would not answer directly, so Pike turned to Ethel.

"This afternoon I tried to help a poor devil, a broken down Russian running away from Siberia, where he'd been for nine years."

Ethel half rose in her chair and faced him eagerly.

"A poor, weak thing," he went on, "hounded like you've seen a rat in the gutter by dogs and bootblacks. Some of your friends here saw us bring him into this apartment. They know we've got him here now. If I don't agree to hand over you and $750,000 of the money John Simpson made it means that the man I tried to help goes back to Siberia and I go to an Italian jail for two years or as much more as they can make it."

"Nonsense," cried Hawcastle. But Ethel waved him aside and turned, with a withering look on Pike.

"I knew you had some further humiliation in store for me. Do you think I would believe that an English nobleman would stoop"—

Pike interrupted her ruthlessly and bitterly.

"Stoop?" he cried. "Why, ten years ago in St. Petersburg there was a poor devil of a revolutionist who in his crazy patriotism took government money for the cause he believed in. He made the mistake of keeping that money in the house, when this man"—he pointed to Hawcastle—"knew it was there. He also made the mistake of having a wife this man coveted and stole, as he coveted and stole the money. Oh, he made a good job of it! Don't think that tonight is the first time he has given information to the police. He did it then, and the husband went to Siberia"—

"A dastardly slander!" he cried.

"And he'll do it again tonight!" Pike went on. "I go to an Italian jail"—he whirled and pointed an accusing finger at Mme. de Champigny—"and that same poor devil of a husband goes back to Siberia!"

"You came for your answer," went on Pike stridently, "and, by the living

"He has betrayed me himself!"

God, I've got it for you!". He stepped to the door of the inner chamber and threw it open.

"Ivanoff!" he called, and the Russian came into the room. At the sight of him Hawcastle fell back against the mantel, and the countess collapsed in a heap on the floor. Ivanoff saw none but her and, striding to her, lifted both clinched hands above her head.

"Ivan—oh, mother of God!—Ivan! Don't kill me!" she gasped.

For a moment he stood over her, then collapsed into a chair, where he wilted, sobbing violently.

CHAPTER XVII.

FACE TO FACE.

If the roof of the building had collapsed and had left the persons there assembled in the room confronting death itself, there could have been no more complete astonishment.

It was Horace who first appreciated the somberness of the crouching, terror stricken woman upon the floor.

"Helene!" he whispered, but Pike stepped forward and waved him back.

"You stand back!" said the lawyer. "She's his wife!" And at the words Horace fairly staggered. Daniel went on, pointing to the cringing Hawcastle, "And there's his best friend."

The words seemed to rouse some of the fighting St. Aubyn instinct in the earl, and his eyes flashed.

"It's a lie!" he cried hoarsely. "I never saw the man in all my life before."

"The lady seemed to recognize him," said Pike grimly. "I guess you won't have to jab your memory too hard. It's only ten years to St. Petersburg, Mr. Glenwood!"

"Call 'em in! We're ready!"

Almeric, with a frightened glance around, stepped to the doors and threw them wide, calling as he reached the passage:

"Tell that officer to bring his men here!"

He turned and again entered the room, and Pike's face lit up unpleasantly as he looked at him, then softened as he turned to Ethel.

"I want you always to remember that I consider it cheap at the price," he said.

There was a quick step without, and Von Grollerhagen entered, followed by Ribiere. For an instant he glanced about the circle and then spoke in a clear, ringing voice.

"There will be no arrests tonight, my friends," he said, and at the words Hawcastle sneered openly.

"This man goes, too!" he declared violently. "Call those carabinieri!" he reiterated to Almeric.

"The officer is not there. You see, the carabinieri have been withdrawn." He turned to Daniel. "For you, my friend, I have relinquished my incognito." Pike stared at him uncompromisingly, and the German turned to Lord Hawcastle.

"This man Ivanoff," he said, "is in my custody."

For a moment the two men measured each other, and then Hawcastle burst out violently:

"By whose authority? Do you know you are speaking to the Earl of Hawcastle?"

"More respect, sir!" he cried. "You are addressing the Grand Duke Vasili of Russia!"

Hawcastle paled and fairly staggered into the arms of his son, who reeled from the shock. The others stared uncomprehendingly, and Pike looked up with a curious frightened look upon his lean face. Quite slowly he moved to the table and rested a hand upon it and with the other caressed his chin. His eyes were looking straight ahead, and he murmured in awestruck tones:

"God Lord! And think what—why, I've been calling him—doc!"

The grand duke perceived the agitation on Pike's face and came forward to take his hand.

"My friend," he said gently, "it has been refreshing." He spoke to Ribiere.

"I shall take the man Ivanoff's statement in writing. Bring him to me with you."

He turned on his heel quickly and went off through the door on the other side of the room that led to his private chamber. When he had gone Ribiere touched Ivanoff on the shoulder as a signal, and the stricken man arose. One glance he cast upon the guilty woman, who shrank so shiveringly into a corner as he gazed upon her, and then said:

"I would not touch you—even to strangle you!" and then to the thunderstruck Hawcastle he said:

"God will let me pay my debt to the Earl of Hawcastle!"

In an instant he was gone, and Hawcastle, pale with rage and anguish, strode forward to Pike, who was smiling.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

Here is Quincy proof that this is so:

Mrs. Fred Curtis, living at 18 Quarry street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with such satisfactory results in my family that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend them. My husband was in pretty bad shape as the result of backache. He tried plasters and used several remedies, in an effort to get relief, but did not succeed until he began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at the Cox Drug Store. This remedy cured him in a short time and he is now feeling better than for years. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be an excellent remedy for regulating the action of the kidney secretions and toning up the general system."

SHIPPEY OUT OF OFFICE

Chicago's Chief of Police to Be Succeeded by a Newspaper Man

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Bernard J. Mullaney, private secretary to Mayor Busse, has been asked by the mayor to accept the office of chief of police of Chicago to succeed George M. Shippey, who resigned yesterday. Shippey has been out of active work for several months on account of poor health.

GEORGE M. SHIPPEY.

Mullaney is 39 years old. He was a political reporter on various Chicago newspapers for many years, later going into the advertising business and then conducting the campaign that put Busse in office.

FLEET SAILS FOR HAMPTON ROADS

Month's Practice In Cape Cod Bay Is Brought to an End

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 5.—Quietly and without display, the battleships of the North Atlantic fleet, which have been practising in Cape Cod bay for the past month, steamed out of this harbor last evening, bound for Hampton Roads, where they will supplement their practice in the calm waters of Cape Cod bay with maneuvers and practice under rougher conditions.

The battleship Maine alone of the sixteen vessels composing the fleet remained behind. She will receive various minor repairs at the Portsmouth navy yard.

The battleships were preceded in their departure by several hours by the flotilla of eleven torpedo boats. These sombre little craft set a pace which the battleships could not hope to follow.

SENATORS TALK POLITICS

Not Well Pleased by Being Forced to Attend Night Session

Washington, Aug. 5.—As though protesting against being called out to a night session, its members were very tardy in their attendance upon the meeting of the senate last night. Nearly an hour passed after the appointed time before a quorum could be assembled. It was finally obtained after an order was issued to the sergeant-at-arms to bring in the absentees.

The entire session was consumed by speeches by Senators Cummins and Daniel. During the evening a political debate was injected into the proceedings and "regulars" and "insurgents" bandied accusations as to the effect their course would have upon the political future of their party.

IN LEGION OF HONOR

Dr. Wiley, Food Expert, Made a Knight by President of France

Washington, Aug. 5.—Because of the part he played in connection with the international exposition held in Bordeaux, France, in 1907, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, has had conferred upon him by the president of France the cross of Knight of the Legion of Honor.

Dr. Wiley was officially informed of this action through the French embassy here. It will be necessary for Wiley to obtain authority from congress to accept the decoration.

Stockholders Want Regular Dividends

New York, Aug. 5.—A movement was launched here by a number of common stockholders to bring about the election of a new board of directors of the American Shipbuilding company. Failure to declare dividends regularly, as alleged, is the cause of complaint.

End of Russian "Republic"

Novorossysk, Russia, Aug. 5.—Sentences were imposed on eighteen men concerned in the attempt to establish a republic in southern Russia in 1908. Three were exiled to Siberia, two sentenced to hard labor for life and thirteen to imprisonment for six years.

Panic In Circus Tent

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 5.—During a wind storm the menagerie tent of the Bailey & Barnum's circus was blown down and two women were seriously injured. A large crowd was thrown into a panic. None of the animals escaped.

BRIEFS

Miss Margaret Gill is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

It is expected that work on the Hall Place M. E. church will be completed this week.

Miss Nellie Gerry of Old Colony street left Wednesday morning for Burlington, Vermont for a short stay. Later she will go to Montreal and will return by the way of Niagara Falls.

Mrs. William L. Carson has gone to Westerly, R. I., for a week to visit relatives taking with her, her two youngest sons Fredrick and Clarence.

A five-car train conveyed the Alden descendants to the reunion on Wednesday some 120 boarding the train at Boston and others joining the party at Braintree and stations en route.

Miss Mary Connors the popular clerk at Mrs. Lark's store at Brewer's corner has gone to Cape Ann to spend two weeks' vacation.

The Copeland club will hold its annual field day on Labor day. There will be sports of all kinds also good music by a band and a fine outing for all.

Mrs. William Wilson and daughter Floris of Presidents avenue are spending the month of August at Hampton beach, New Hampshire.

Opening with fifty children in attendance on Monday the playground has become at once popular. Each child tells the other of the good times so that each day there is an increased attendance, seventy-five being present Wednesday morning.

Some much needed improvements are being made on Centre street. Work has been going on for the past two or three weeks regrading the street, which when completed will be greatly appreciated by the residents.

A big limb of an elm tree on South street near the corner of Elm street fell down this morning in the rain storm. Fortunately nobody was passing at the time. If the limb had struck anybody serious injuries would have resulted as the limb was a very large one.

The police department has asked for requisition papers for the purpose of going after William Oswald who is under arrest at Newport News, Va., for complicity in the breaking and entering case for which Fred Jacobson was brought back yesterday from Lorraine, O. It is probable that Lieut. McKay will go to Newport News for Oswald.

Club members and others interested in the work of the summer sewing and sloyd classes are cordially invited by the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club to visit the club house for sewing and the Y. M. C. A. for sloyd, on Tuesday or Friday mornings. The playground at the Y. M. C. A. will also be found interesting.

Applications for savings bank life insurance and old age pensions at the Fore River Ship Building Company during the week ending July 31 amounted to $6,875. The interest in this new project and the steady stream of applications continues to lend every encouragement for its growing popularity and success.

BRIEFS

Thompson B. Crane is spending the week at Hull.

Miss Annie May Williams of Barry street has accepted a position with a prominent Boston firm.

J. J. McAnarney, a well known local attorney has returned from a vacation at Cohasset.

Miss Bessie Nichols of Station street, who has been spending the past two weeks with her aunt at Bay View is expected home this week.

Miss Eleanor Staele, formerly of Willard street, West Quincy has gone to West Roxbury. Miss Steele is an active member of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church and will be greatly missed by her many friends.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Committee Appointed to Arrange for Outing and Discussion of City Improvements.

The Quincy Board of Trade held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening in the Adams building. President Richards was in the chair and the meeting was largely attended.

The first business of the meeting was the reading of the roll and the minutes of the last meeting. The subject of the annual outing was then brought and discussed, and there was quite an argument as to where the outing should be held. It was finally decided to appoint a committee to look into the affair and report at the next meeting. It was decided to have the outing at Bass Point or at Houghs Neck, and the committee was instructed to look into the relative merits of the two places. The outing is to be held some time towards the end of the month. The committee appointed was: C. C. Foster, chairman, Walter H. Piper, Charles H. Johnson, Otto Gellotte, Edward J. Sandberg and T. L. Williams.

Charles H. Johnson reported that he had been to see the Mayor in regard to the chain gang, and the Mayor had acted on the matter, issuing an order to have the "chain gang" restrained.

President Richards suggested that the Board hold meetings in the different sections of the city during the coming winter, and give talks on the improvements of the city, throwing some of the larger manufacturing plants on a screen. The meeting then adjourned.

STOLEN JEWELRY FOUND.

Inspector Goodhue Finds Mrs. Sennott's Valuables in Boston Pawn Shop.

After three days' search, Inspector Goodhue of the local police department on Wednesday located some of the jewelry that was stolen from Mrs. Sennott of Wollaston some time ago, and which it is alleged was stolen by Leo Campbell, who was arrested this week in Brookline. Jewelry to the amount of $75 was found, it being located in one of the many pawn shops of Boston. It was necessary for Inspector Goodhue to make the rounds of these shops in order to locate the stuff, but his efforts were rewarded at last. Two watches were also stolen at the time, but these were not found. Campbell will be arraigned in the local court when the Brookline authorities release him .

—The large amount of back taxes that are on the collector's books ought to be collected if such a thing is possible. Every dollar that is dodged or not paid in a reasonable time has to be made up by the men who are fairly assessed and who pay their tax bills. Some of these back taxes cannot be collected for various reasons, but there still remains a considerable amount that can be secured by proper effort. After a reasonable attempt has been made, and without result, other means that are available should be brought into action. The burden of taxes should be borne equally.—Lynn Item.

TODAY'S COURT.

Wendell P. Bosworth of Boston was arraigned for exceeding the automobile speed limit in the Blue Hill reservation and was fined $10. Appealed. The case of Wesley E. Winchester, the chauffeur, for the same offence placed on file.

William Packard of Avon was arraigned for drunkenness and for operating an automobile under the influence. The first charge was placed on file and for the second a fine of $25 was imposed.

The continued case of Forwell Mulligan for threatened assault on Bernard Graham was called, and Mulligan was placed under bonds to keep the peace for three months.

—It is figured that it will take $112,000,000 to build the subways necessary to take care of the street traffic in the city of Chicago.

OPEN RACE OF QUINCY Y. C.

Iris Wins in Cat Boat Race Onda II in Lipton Cup Series

With a strong, wholesail east wind, that kicked up a beautiful chop, the annual open Y. R. A. race of the Quincy yacht club was sailed Wednesday afternoon off the clubhouse at Houghs Neck. There were six classes represented in the regatta, making 38 boats that came to the line for the start, and throughout the afternoon this bunch of boats gave a fine exhibition of racing.

Of all the races perhaps the most interesting was that in the Class P, for Wednesday's race was realyy the beginning of the fight for the first leg in the Lipton cup. Previous to this there have been but four races that counted for the cup, but in the next 11 days there will be nine for the class. Wednesday's winner was the Onda II, owned by John Greenough. This is the fifth new winner in this class this year, which ought to make the races the coming week very interesting.

The start was made off the clubhouse the course being a beat to the mark off Strawberry Hill, a close reach to the government buoy off Peddock's island and a broad reach home. Classes P, D, I and the sonders, went twice around the triangle, and the others once.

At 1.10 the first class, the 31-raters were sent away and the Onda took the lead, being to the leeward of the Wianno and the Timandra. All three went over on the starboard tack, which they held to the Hull shore, the three boats having a pretty fight to this point. But when the boats came about for the hitch to Strawberry hill, the Onda began to pull away from the others and at the first mark, was about a minute to the good, the Wianno being second and the Timandra third. This order held to the finish, the Onda finally winning by 2 minutes 11 seconds.

There were only two boats in the sonder class, the Wolf and the Vim. It was essentially a Wolf day, she being considered a heavy weather boat. It was easy for the Eastern yacht club boat from the very start, the Vim not having a look-in.

The starting gun for the 18-foot knockabouts brought to the mark only five boats, the Dorchen going over first, closely followed by the Vanken, Reina, Acanthus and Zetes IV. The Dorchen held the lead all the way round the first time, with the Reina right on her heels all the time. At the turn at the starting mark for the second time around, the Reina sneaked by the Dorchen and gradually pulled ahead, the Dorchen never being able to catch her. Reina won by one minute and 14 seconds.

The one design 15-footers and the dories also gave some fine races, the heavy breeze making them keel over and shoot ahead with wonderful speed. These boats only went around the course once, the winners being the Meare, E. W. Duggan, in the 15-footers, and the Raggylug, S. H. Brown, Jr., in the dories.

Nine boats got away in the cat-boat class, the honor of going over the mark first going to the Emeline, the others being pretty well bunched. An accident forced the Almira out of the race, for just before the starting gun was fired, the Almira on a starboard tack, close hauled, was run into by the Dolly II, which was running free and the Almira's sail was torn out.

The Emeline ran a great race all through and seems to be coming right along to her old-time form. To the first turn at Strawberry hill the Emeline and Iris had a great fight, but the Iris turned first. Once ahead she could not be caught and finished with a good lead. The Emeline was second and the others were strung out behind. The summary:

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

To John V. Scott, of Brockton, in the County of Plymouth, and to all persons whom it may concern:

You are hereby notified that by a virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage deed given by said John V. Scott to Horace W. Atwood, dated August 8th, A. D. 1899, and recorded with Plymouth County Registry of Deeds, Book 850, Page 231, for breach of condition contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, the undersigned, mortgagee and present holder of said mortgage, will sell at public auction, on the premises, on SATURDAY, August 28th, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M., all and singular the premises conveyed in and by said mortgage deed, to wit:

Certain parcels of land situated in Quincy in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth comprising the lots numbered 182, 183, 184, 185, and 186 as shown on the plan entitled Plan of Portion of section three of Manet Land Associates lands at Houghs Neck, Quincy, Mass., 1890 and recorded in the Book of Plans in Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. Said lots 182, 183, 184, 185, and 186 are bounded and described as follows: Northerly on lots 141, 140, 139 and 138 one hundred and eighty (180) feet. Easterly on lots 186 and 187 one hundred (100) feet. Southerly on Turner Street one hundred and eighty (180) feet. Westerly on lot 181 one hundred (100) feet. Lot 186 is bounded and described as follows: Northerly on lot 137 eighty-three and forty-nine hundreths (83 49-100) feet. Easterly on River Road fifty and fifty-five hundredths (50 55-100) feet. Southerly on lot 187 seventy-five and ninety-five hundredths (75 95-100) feet. Westerly on part of lot 185 fifty and fifty-five hundredths (50 55-100) feet. Being the same premises conveyed to John V. Scott by Horace W. Atwood on or about August 8th, 1899, and recorded with the said registry. Excepting however, lot 186, which has been released from terms and conditions of this mortgage by mortgagee, and is not included in this sale.

Terms made known at time and place of Sale.

SWIMMING FEAT.

Miss Mary Keyes of 595 East 5th street, South Boston, successfully swam the three-mile course from City Point to Squad Rock at Squantum Wednesday in a choppy sea and easterly wind and the main ship channel streaked with extremely cold water.

The course taken was due southwest, leaving City Point life-saving station to port and Halftide rock to starboard.

Miss Keyes performance stamps her among the leading girl swimmers in Massachusetts, and places her on a par with the best on the Atlantic seaboard.

The swim was made under the direction of Joseph B. Trotman of the City Point life-saving crew, who successfully coached her to a brilliant finish. Joseph Maloney, the Boston Latin football star, was clerk of course.

DEWEYS PLAY LOCAL LEAGUERS

Speed Boys and Admirals Clash in Quincy.

One of the most interesting games in the Old Colony league series will be played tomorrow at the Water street grounds when the local "Speed Boys" will cross bats with Deweys of Weymouth. Many things can happen as the result of this game, as it is possible for Quincy to go into first place, provided that Randolph beats Taunton. Manager Hoye of the Randolph team says that he is going to make it three straight for his club and enable Quincy to take the lead. So it is up to the Quincy team to do its part and win tomorrow's contest against the Deweys.

The Quincy team will line up the same as it did last Saturday against Taunton with the possible exception of the pitcher. As "Hi" Hen LaBelle has gone to Lowell it may not be possible to secure him, but it is thought that he has not signed a contract with Lowell, but simply pitched with them to help them out. If this is true, then Quincy can play him without any danger, but it will be safe to find out whether or not he is a free agent. Quincy has had one mix-up over a man who was not eligible to play in the league, and it will be best to look the matter up before allowing LaBelle to pitch Saturday. If LaBelle does not pitch, the management will have some good man to fill his place, and it will probably be Simpson, who has been twirling for the fast Reading team all the season. Simpson is a clever workman and has been pitching winning ball for them all the year . He pitched one game for the Quincy Independents against the Makaria of this city, beating them easily. He was first substitute pitcher on the champion University of Pennsylvania team, being the understudy of Shultz, the best college pitcher in the game the past season. If he is secured to pitch for the local team, he should be able to hold his own.

Murray will be behind the bat as usual, while Briggs, who made such a hit on first base last Saturday, will be back on the initial sack. Donaher will be seen again at the pivot position with Courtney at short. Dean will cover third. The outfield will remain as it has all the season, with Lonergan in left, Duggan in centre and Burke in right.

Manager Nash will have a strong team on the field against the local boys and it will surely be a fast game. If Dewey wins she will be back with the leaders and if she drops this game, she will drop back another notch in the standing. Thompson, the former Randolph pitcher, will probaby be on the slab for the visitors, and as he is pitching good ball, Quincy will have to go some to win. But the local boys are capable of going some and will make Thompson pitch fast ball. The rest of the team will line up the same as usual.

As there is great rivalry between the two teams and the towns, it is expected that a big crowd will be present, and the local management is preparing to handle an overflow. Come early and avoid the rush.

The Makaria team will have as opponents the fast Athletics of Malden. The former contestants for the local championship have not been playing very good of late, but they say they are going to get back into their old stride tomorrow and take the game. "Stan" Bates will probably be in the box and if he pitches the way he did for the Quincy high team this season, the Makaria ought to get the game.

The Quincy Independents, Cranch, Bigelows, Atlantic Professionals and the various other local teams, all have games scheduled for tomorrow and if the weather man only hands out some good weather, there will be some hot baseball in this town tomorrow.

There will also be plenty to interest the yachtsmen, as the Quincy yacht club holds a launch race, while the annual interclub race with the Winthrop Y. C. is scheduled for tomorrow also.

QUINCY BOATS WIN AND LOSE

Busy Bee and Dorchen Win, Iris and Crooner Disabled

Quincy boats had good luck and bad luck Thursday at the annual regatta of the Boston Y. C. held at Hull. The good luck was the fact that the Busy Bee, owned by W. J. Coombs, won the cat boat race, and the Dorchen II, owned by A. W. Finlay, won the race for 18-foot knockabouts. The bad luck was the fact that two boats were disabled and forced to withdraw from their races. The Iris, F. F. Crane, in the cat boat class, and the Crooner, C. F. Adams, 2d in the sonder class. This was the first race of the Crooner since the Quincy cup races and it is unfortunate that she should be disabled in her home waters.

A drizzling rain, accompanied by a heavy northeast breeze, made the day a hard one for the crews of the various races. The rain and choppy salt water wet the yachtsmen to the skin, despite the oilskins that they all wore. And even at that only four of the 51 starters failed to finish their races.

All the boats were sent over the same course, the large and small triangular course off the Hull clubhouse. The distance was about 9 1-2 miles and gave the boats a beat from the starting line off the club house to the mark off Strawberry Hill, a run to the mark off Quincy Great Hill, a reach to the government buoy off Peddock's island, then a beat to Strawberry Hill again, a run to Sheep Island and a reach home.

The class P boats were the first to be sent away, the others following at five minute intervals. Another new winner was added to the list in class P. when J. B. Nichols and his Essex won the race Thursday It was a battle royal between the Onda II and Wianno, the former crossing the finish line first, with Wianno second, the Timandra third, and the Essex last. The Essex was well within her time allowance, however, and won the race.

The race between the sonders was a very interesting one from a local standpoint, for three of the five boats that battled for the Quincy cup, including the Crooner, the Quincy boat, were in the race. There was a heavy breeze blowing, kicking up a beautiful chop, which was just to the liking of the Crooner and the Wolf, the heavy weather boats among the sonders. The Wolf ran away from the other boats and after the first two legs of the first triangle, they had no chance to catch her. On the reach from Quincy Great Hill to Peddock's, the Crooner had her mast carried away and was out of the race. The Joyette, owned by W. H. Childs of the Bensonhurst Y. C., sailed her first race in eastern waters, and landed second place in the race. She proved to be very fast in reaching, but did not have a show with the Wolf. The Vim was third, Sally X, fourth, Corinthian fifth, with Crooner dismasted.

The Busy Bee won the race for cape cats, with the Emeline, Commodore Robbins' boat, second. Then came the Hustler, Josephine, Arawak and Almira in order, with the Iris disabled and the Stridaway withdrawn.

One of the most interesting races was that in the dory class between the boats of the Massachusetts Bay racing dory association and the Gravesend Bay yacht racing association. This was the first of a series of three races for the intercity trophy offered by Bryan S. Permar of the Boston Y. C. The New York boats, although they were sailed well, were outclassed by the Massachusetts racers and never had a look-in. They were not one, two, three, with the local boats, all of the four boats failing to get one of the first four places. J. J. Blaney's Barbara won the race, with Elizabeth second, Nisan third and Bessie fourth. The New Yorkers trailed in the rear.

MRS. MOORE LAID TO REST.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha A. Moore, wife of John W. Moore, and mother of Mrs. Edmund J. Parmenter, was held yesterday afternoon at her home, 43 Quincy avenue, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many beautiful floral tributes, testifying to the esteem in which Mrs. Moore was held.

The services were conducted by Rev. C. H. Paddock, pastor of the Universalist church, of which Mrs. Moore had been a faithful and hard-working member for many years. The services were simple and at their conclusion, the body was taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery for burial.

FUNERAL OF GEO. WHITEHOUSE

Funeral services for George Whitehouse of Wollaston, who died Tuesday in Taunton, were held yesterday afternoon in A. W. Fay's undertaking rooms, Newport avenue, Wollaston. The officiating clergyman was Rev. A. Edwin Clattenberg, rector of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

ALDEN KINDRED.

At the annual reunion of the Alden Kindred of America at Duxbury on Wednesday the following officers were elected: President, George A. Alden of Brockton; vice president, Augustus A. Alden, Roxbury; secretary, Mrs. Flora S. Matheson, South Braintree; treasurer, Charles L. Alden, Hyde Park; executive committee, George F. Washburn, Boston; Wayne W. Blossom, Concord; Susan A. Smith, Kingston.

Frank A. Bates of South Braintree, president of the Bates association was among those giving short addresses. The principal speaker was Professor Herbert C. Tolman of Vanderbilt university.

BLACKLOCK HELD ON SUSPICION

Charged With Assault and Battery on George Germain

Inspector Goodhue this morning took into custody Fred Blacklock, 27, of Greenleaf street, charged with assault and battery on George Germain, who was brutally beaten by a gang of thugs Wednesday night at his home on the shore of Town river, Quincy Point. Blacklock is held on suspicion and it is alleged that he was one of the guilty parties. He was taken to the home of Mr. Germain, who positively identified him as one of the men who attacked him. Blacklock emphatically denies having any connection with the case and says he knows nothing about the matter. He admits that he was at Germain's house early in the evening, but says that he was alone and that he went away early. He says positively that he knows nothing about the affair.

Mr. Germain also named another man in the case, and the police are looking for the man. The man in question is a stranger in town and has only been known to the police for about two months. He is known as one of the "chain gang," but cannot be located. It is thought that he has left town fearing arrest in the case.

The police are at a loss to state why the old man was assaulted. They can find no reason why he was called to his door and beaten into unconsciousness, as nothing is missing from the house. This would seem to indicate that there is some other cause besides that of robbery.

Mr. Germain is at present at his home and is in pretty bad condition, though the doctors say he will recover.

The Admirals come to town tomorrow looking for Quincy scalps in the Old Colony league but their eyesight has got to be better than it was the last time.

To Quincy people who know the Swedes as law-abiding citizens, it is hard to realize that in Sweden the army is mobilized on account of labor troubles.

For a hard luck boat the Almira is in a class all of her own. At the Squantum open race she unstepped her mast and at the Quincy open race her sail was torn in a collision. Too bad, Almira!

If the rain went far enough into the ground to do any good at all, there ought to be a long, green fall as a result. The grasses will get a new lease of life that will keep them green until late into the autumn. The same thing is true of the foliage on the trees provided the moths and other pests do not get ahead of nature and eat all the leaves off.

Complaints are coming in from other sections of the city regarding the collection of garbage. It does not seem to be the fault of the collectors but of insufficient money appropriated to the Board of Health for the work. There should be more teams and men and every house visited at least twice a week, winter and summer. A weekly or fortnightly collection in summer should not be tolerated.

Steamships which are on the ocean with cargoes of such goods as may have the import duties increased on them by the passage of the new tariff bill, have been notified by wireless to rush to port so as to get their cargoes here before the tariff bill becomes a law. One would think from reading this that the owners of the cargoes wanted to get the goods here under the cheaper tariff so as they could sell for a lower price. Nothing of the kind. The goods will come in cheaper but they will be held in reserve until the tariff becomes a law and then will be sold at a higher price and the excuse will be given that the new tariff is the cause of the increase in price. This is one way of filching the public without the general run of the public ever catching onto the fact.

The greatest occasion for gratitude over the tariff contest to all true Republicans must be the highly satisfactory manner in which the President has acquitted himself, demonstrating even to the most sceptical his right to the title of leader of his party. To William Howard Taft is due the fact that the bill is a revision downward, that the interests were not able to cause the stultification of the party pledges, that the measure contains a provision for taxing the net earnings of the corporations and that it contains the germ of a tariff commission which under his fostering care promises to grow into an effective agency for the control of the protective tariff and the prevention of the effective influence of that selfishness and greed which have done so much to make the protective policy repugnant and which, uncontrolled, would have compassed its complete rejection by the American people.

The leaders in Congress, led by Speaker Cannon, did all in their power to destroy the tariff commission provision inserted in the bill by the Senate but fortunately they failed to achieve that which they set out to do. The maximum and minimum provision makes it necessary to entrust the President with a large measure of discretion. Under its provisions upon him devolves the responsibility of ascertaining whether or not any country discriminates against the trade of the United States and, moreover, whether or not such discrimination is undue. In the exercise of that power and the defrayment of that responsibility the President will take steps to ascertain the cost of production here and abroad and whenever another tariff revision is undertaken he will be in a position to lay before Congress a mass of substantiated data besides which the ex parte testimony, at "tariff hearings, from interested beneficiaries of the tariff will be shown up in its true worthlessness.

STREET SHOWER BATHS.

Street shower baths are a feature much appreciated in Kansas; men, children and even the horses indulge in the cooling spray.

The construction is very simple. It requires only three lengths of galvanized water pipe and a shower bath attachment. One section of the pipe is fastened horizontally to a city fire plug. From this rises a five-foot section. To the latter the shower proper is fastened. The horizontal section is an inch in circumference and the perpendicular section three-quarters of an inch, and that's all there is to it.

When the four cold streams from the first Kansas City shower bath poured down on the sizzling bricks a crowd of boys gathered. They wanted to get under, but were perverted by visions of maternal wrath should they come home with their clothes soaked. One little fellow, attracted by the crowd, elbowed his way to the front row, took one look, elbowed his way out and fled. The older boys laughed. In a remarkably short time, however, the youngster returned, clothed in his oldest shirt and knee trousers. With a whoop of triumph he dashed through the onlookers and into the centre of wetness.

"Come in, de water's fine!" he hooted, capering under the downpour.

The problem was solved. Within 15 minutes every boy in the neighborhood, dressed in his very worst, was drenched to the skin.

Nor is it the boy alone who profits. The shower attachment is some seven feet high, and drivers of weary horses were quick to take the hint.

—According to Consul Charles McCullough, of St. Stephen, New Brunswick contracts have been awarded for constructing an electrical plant at Grand Falls on the St. John river in New Brunswick, where there is a fall of 135 feet. The plant is expected to cost $5,000,000 and to develop 120,000 horse-power, and power will be furnished to numerous towns in Maine and New Brunswick. It is expected that many new manufactories will be established, including a large pulp and paper mill.

PAYNE BILL BECOMES A LAW

President Taft Signs It Immediately Upon Its Receipt

SAYS IT IS NOT PERFECT

Believes, However, That It Is a Sincere Effort on Part of Republicans to Make Downward Revision—Congress Adjourns After Uninteresting Session, the Attendance In House Being Reduced to Corporal's Guard

Washington, Aug. 6.—The tariff has been revised and the extraordinary session of congress has been brought to a close. Both houses adjourned sine die officially at 6 o'clock last night, but as a matter of fact adjournment was taken in the house at 5:38 p. m. and in the senate at 5:58 p. m.

The closing hours of the session were most uninteresting. The revision had been according to the desires of some and with the hearty disapproval of others, and the last two days had been consumed by members of the senate in expressing their satisfaction or dissatisfaction, as the case might be.

The Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, which has been debated for nearly five monthsh, became a law by President Taft's signature at 5:06 o'clock last evening.

Soon after adopting the conference report, both houses voted a concurrent resolution, which lowers the duties on boots and shoes. An attempt by southern senators to include with the bill a reduction on cotton bagging met with defeat.

President Taft arrived at the Capitol at 4:45 p. m. and entered the room set aside for the occupation of the president on the concluding day of a session of congress. His appearance there caused members of congress to desert their two chambers and form in line to be received by him. There was a constant procession of handshaking statesmen through the president's room from the time of his arrival until his departure at 5:50 o'clock.

Just as the hands of the gold clock in the president's room reached 5:06 the Payne tariff bill was laid before the president and he attached his signature, adding "Signed five minutes after five o'clock, August 5th, 1909—W. H. T."

Revision Is Downward

President Taft last night gave out a statement embodying his views of the new tariff act, which he designates officially as the "Payne Bill," in accordance with the past custom of giving recognition to the framer of the measure in the house.

The president says that though the bill is not perfect by any means, nor "a complete compliance with promises made, strictly interpreted," it is nevertheless, a sincere effort on the part of the party to make a downward revision and to comply with the promises of the platform.

Six o'clock was agreed upon by the two houses as the hour for final adjournment. A resolution offered by Mr. Culberson expressing the appreciation of the senate for the able and impartial manner in which the vice president had presided over the sessions of that body was adopted.

In especially happy language Mr. Sherman thanked the senate for the courteous treatment extended him at all times. His life in the senate, he said, had been made a continual pleasures by the consideration shown him at all times.

While the committee appointed to notify the president that the house was ready to adjourn was performing that duty, there was such an exodus of members from the chamber that the attendance dwindled away to a mere corporal's guard.

A half hour yet remained before the appointed hour of adjournment and the time was dragging so heavily that by direction of the speaker the hands of the clocks were set ahead twenty-five minutes.

Before adjourning the house, Speaker Cannon, with the members standing with their hats in their hands, made a neat speech in which he thanked them for their service during the special session. Upon its conclusion he got a round of applause from both sides.

Insurgents Disciplined

Speaker Cannon annunced the appointment of committees for the Sixty-First congress late yesterday. The "insurgents" against the house rules are disciplined and in a number of instances ranking members have not been given the chairmanship of their committees.

ICE.

Residents of nine-tenths of the cities and towns of the United States have doubtless been interested in the announcement made in Washington that Uncle Sam was making his own ice at a cost of 65 cents a ton. They are interested because there are only a few towns of the country in which ice in not sold at retail for a great deal more than 65 cents a ton. In a great many cities consumers of ice are paying half that amount per 100 pounds. They are paying these high prices because someone has a monopoly of the ice business or because there is an agreement as to the price between manufacturers of ice. They are not paying such prices because the cost of manufacture requires it.

Uncle Sam, in the past, has bought ice from dealers. He has paid them $7.65 a ton. He considered this too much and so an ice plant was established in connection with the post-office department. The post office department was using one ton of ice every 24 hours. By using its own product it has been enabled to effect a saving of approximately $2,300 a year. The profit to the manufacturers who have had federal ice contracts, making due allowances for waste and for cost of delivery, must have exceeded $5 a ton. The government makes ice for about $.0003 a pound. The contractors sold ice to the government for about $.003 a pound. Every 150 pounds of ice that the government makes costs it about 5 cents. Every 150 pounds that it bought of contractors cost it about 45 cents. For this same 45 cents, by making its own ice, the government can now get about 1,350 pounds. These figures are not accurate, but they are close enough to show the advantage that comes of eliminating the contractor.

If the government furnished an isolated example of ability to produce ice cheaply, there might be no occasion for calling attention to the prices that the public is generally paying for its ice, but the government has no such monopoly of ability. In Jacksonville, Fla., ice dealers who are presumably not in the business for their health are selling ice at retail for 15 cents per 100 pounds. In a few other cities similarly low prices prevail, but in the great majority of our communities ice brings from 20 to 30 cents a hundred pounds. In other words about one-twentieth of a ton sells for nearly one-half as much as the government has shown it costs to manufacture a whole ton. The facts that Uncle Sam has furnished the public are particularly interesting because they give the people their first information regarding the approximate cost of making ice. The discovery will undoubtedly lead in time to the classifying of ice companies with other public service corporations, such as those that supply the people with gas, electricity, water and means of transportation.—Woman's National Daily.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. SURBURBAN LIFE.

There are few phases of life in suburban communities not touched upon in Suburban Life for August. The leading article is an entertaining description of the home of Edwin Markham, the poet. It seems that the author of "The Man with the Hoe" is often to be found wielding that prosaic instrument in his own garden. "The Beautiful in Feathers" is an unusual and handsomely illustrated story. "A Bungalow Which is Worth While" is both pictured and described. Jason Rogers, the well-known expert golfers, writes pointedly on "Golf Reduced to its Simplest Terms" and B. S. Bowdish contributes an article entitled "The White Badge of Cruelty," which ought to be read by every woman. Among the essentially practical articles is one entitled "Early Work in the Greenhouse;" another with the title, "Living Well from Twenty Acres," and a third on "Planning a Modest Country Home."

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"Why, you"— the earl began, but Daniel raised his hand. He spoke softly, even genially.

"Oh, I hated to hand you this, my lord," he said. "I didn't come over here to make the fine flower of Europe any more trouble than they've got. But I had to show John Simpson's daughter, and I reckon now she ain't wanting any alliance with the remnants of Crecy and Agincourt."

From the other side of the sofa, where she had been sobbing on her brother's shoulder, Ethel came tremblingly.

"I have no choice," she said slowly. "You see, I gave Almeric my promise when I thought it an honor to bear his name. Now that you have shown me that it is a shame to bear it the promise is only more sacred. You see, the shame is not his fault, is it? You—want—me—to—be—honorable—don't—you?"

When she had finished Daniel was leaning well back on the table.

"Your father and mother—both—came from Missouri, didn't they?"

He sighed heavily, and she hung her head. Hawcastle looked toward the open door of the room and touched his son upon the shoulder. When they had reached the door the earl looked back and shook his fist at Pike.

"You haven't heard the last of this, curse you!" he said and disappeared quickly. Lady Creech, who had been in a semi-swooning condition, came suddenly out of her trance and gazed sharply about her.

"Don't mumble your words," she said sharply and rose to her feet. With a withering glance at Pike she turned to Ethel.

"Come, my dear," she said. "This terrible place is not for you. Let us go."

Horace came suddenly to life and closed his drooping jaw. He stepped forward and faced the old lady.

"My sister will remain for a time, Lady Creech," he said. "I will look after her—in the future."

Lady Creech put up her lorgnette and stared at him and with a haughty sniff left the room with the air of a conqueror. Pike gazed after her whimsically.

"There goes the last of the empresses," he said and looked down at his feet.

Twice Ethel essayed to speak, and twice she put out her hand in his direction, and both times she failed. Then, with a choking little sob, she picked up her dress and fairly ran from the room. Horace followed her quickly, and still Pike stood there in an attitude of incomprehension.

The point he had striven for had failed. He had shown this girl the true rottenness of the people she had tried so hard to ally herself with, and the knowledge had failed to move her. His brilliant plan had recoiled upon his own head and had resulted in more firmly implanting a sense of duty in her heart. He saw no way out now. At first it had been a desire—now it had become a duty, and he wondered if he had the right to withhold from her her patrimony.

It was not until he saw a dark figure with a bag in its hand walk quickly down the steps and out through the entrance garden, not until he had heard the creak of carriage springs and the muttered directions and then the crunch of the wheels, that he awoke. He called a passing servant—Mariano, it proved it be—and questioned him.

"Who was that?" he asked.

Mariano bowed deeply.

"It is milor' the Earl of Hawcastle," he replied. "He has gone to keep the appointment he have made some days since at Napoli, it is said."

CHAPTER XVIII.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

LADY CREECH was out early the next morning. Perhaps she had hope that something might be saved from the wreck and recollected the ancient adage about the early bird. She was seated on the terrace having breakfast and keeping a keen eye on the main entrance when the hopeful Almeric appeared, yawning and inexpressibly bored.

"Mornin', aunt," he said.

"Where's your father, Almeric?" she demanded.

"Flew the bally coop for Naples last night. Seemed to be jolly well upset, you know. Feared this beastly convict chap would take a shot at him or something like that."

Lady Creech snorted.

"He always was a fool. Bah! He should have stayed. Where's the countess?"

"Naples; to look after the governor, I'd say. Went off this morning. Beastly about this convict chap, you know. What's to become of him?"

"I can at least give you some information," the old lady replied. "This grand duke person's obtained for the fellow a pardon by telegraph from St. Petersburg."

"How's the dear Ethel this morning?" asked Almeric when he had digested his astonishment.

"Behaving very peculiarly—outrageously, I might say."

"How?" demanded Almeric, stifling a yawn.

"Shedding tears over this Ivanoff's story. What's more, she has sent that dreadful Pike person to him with assistance."

"Money! By Jove! Good girl! Buying the beggar off to keep him from making a scandal for us! How's that?"

"Almeric! How clever of you! Of course she is! Your father will be pleased. What a pity he didn't wait!"

Daniel appeared at the top of the steps and, seeing the pair, came slowly toward them. As he reached the table where they sat he addressed Almeric.

"Your pa seemed in a hurry last night," he said.

Almeric started violently, but Lady Creech arose and, with a haughty glance, swept into the hotel. Pike looked after her and then back to Almeric.

"Oh, yes," the latter answered. "Had to catch a train—the pater had—he's easily worried by trifles, you know."

"Well, you don't worry—not too easy, do you, son?"

"Oh, one finds nothing particular this morning to bother one," the young man replied, yawning. "Nothing at all. Of course Miss Ethel is standing to her promise?"

"Yes, she is," replied Pike grimly, and Almeric went on:

"Ye-es, the governor only thought it best to clear out a bit until we were certain that she manages to draw off this convict chap—what you Americans call 'affixing him,' isn't it?"

Pike lifted a warning hand.

"Don't try to talk United States, son. Just tell me in your own way."

"Why," replied Almeric, "she's been giving him money, hasn't she? You took it to him yourself, didn't you? Naturally we understood what it was for. She's trying to keep the beggar quiet."

"So that's what she sent the poor cuss the money for, was it? That's the way you look at it, eh?" the American asked.

"Why, of course! What other reason could there be?" asked the other.

"Well, you know I'd sort of gathered it was because she was sorry for him—thought he'd been wronged, but, of course, I'm stupid!"

"Well, ray-ther! I don't know that it was so necessary for her to hush him up, but it showed a very worthy intention in her, didn't it, eh, now?"

Pike looked at him carefully.

"Would you mind my being present when you thank her for it?" he asked, and Almeric laughed riotously.

"Shouldn't in the least if I intended to thank her. It simply shows that she considers herself already one of us. It's perfectly plain—as plain as you are, eh?"

He walked off whistling.

Pike gazed after him with an admirable chuckle. As he turned about he saw Ethel standing at the head of the steps, and there was a sad look upon her face.

"I hear that Lord Hawcastle has left," she said quietly.

"Yes. I saw him go last night," he answered, looking up at her.

"He left very quickly," she said absently.

"He did seem to be forgetting the scenery," the American replied. "Did you see Ivanoff?"

"Yes. I am almost sorry. He made so much of—what I could do."

"There are some good people over here, ain't there?" he ventured, and she looked at him quickly.

"When you are at home again I hope you will remember them," she said.

"I will," he replied.

"And I hope you will forget everything I ever said," she went on.

"Somehow it doesn't seem likely as if I ever would," he returned.

"Oh, yes, you will," she said. "All those unkind things I said to you"—

"Oh, I'll forget those easy," he interrupted quickly, and she went on, almost tearfully:

"And the other things, too, when you're once more among your kind, good home folks—and probably there's one—you'll be so glad to get back to you'll hardly know you've been away—an unworldly girl, one that doesn't need to be cured of—oh, all sorts of follies—a kind girl, one who's been sweet to you. I can see her; she wears white muslin and waits by the gate for you at twilight. Isn't she like that?"

He shook his head.

"No, not like that."

"But there is some one there?" she asked.

He smiled sadly.

"Well, she's only been there in a way. I've had her picture on my desk for a good while. Sometimes when I go home in the evening she kind of seems to be there. I bought a homey old house up on Main street, you know; it's the house you were born in. It's kind of lonesome sometimes, and then I get to thinking she's there, sitting at an old piano that used to be my mother's and singing to me"—

"Singing 'Sweet Genevieve?'" she asked quietly.

WHITE'S DOINGS TOLD IN COURT

Stories of Architect's Alleged Attempts to Ruin Women

JEROME'S OBJECTION FAILS

Two Women Allow Use of Their Names In Connection With Salacious Testimony—Thaw Himself Details Alleged Experience of Girl Who Escaped Ruin by a Lucky Chance—Aged Mother Testifies

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 6.—More of those stories which have stained the memory of Stanford White, stories that paralleled the tale of the Madison Square tower room as told by Evelyn Thaw, were related to a breathless courtroom at the Thaw sanity hearing before Justice Mills Thursday. Witnesses called in Thaw's behalf first took the stand and then Thaw himself, who hopes to show that what he knew about White was not a "delusion" as the state contends.

Between these unsavory accounts came an illustration of mother love and filial affection that brought tears even to the eyes of those eager faced women who had refused to leave the courtroom when warned of the testimony that was to come. This was the appearance on the stand of Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, the prisoner's mother.

Charles Morschauser, Thaw's attorney, called to the stand David N. Carvalho, the handwriting expert. Carvalho said he received no compensation for coming; in fact had refused an offer of pay. Then he told of episodes connecting White with two young women whom it is alleged he tried to ruin. Both these women allowed the use of their names. One was Miss Mae McKenzie, an actress, and the other's name was given as Sue Parker.

When Carvalho began his testimony about White District Attorney Jerome seemed reluctant to admit it. Defeated finally in his struggle to bar it, he expressed regret that evidence of this kind should once more mark a case already famous for its salacious details.

Thaw Takes the Stand

It was at the beginning of the afternoon session that Thaw himself took the stand. Mr. Jerome seemed anxious to let him tell all he knew and led him through one story after another, evidently with the hope that the palpable eagerness of the witness to talk on this theme would show Justice Mills that he was insane on the subject.

And Thaw was eager to tell. The words fairly tripped over each other as he ran on. "This thing I am going to tell you now," he said, prefacing one of his narratives, "affected me very seriously at the time."

Continuing he described in detail the alleged experience of a girl whom he said White had tried to wrong when she was but 16. He said that after winning her confidence by a display of disinterested friendship White lured the girl to his place on Twenty-fourth street, New York. The girl escaped through a lucky chance, he said, and later obtained $5000 from White under threat of a suit. After that, he continued, White had the girl boyccotted so that for several years she could not obtain an engagement at any theatre in New York.

The incident as related occurred within a month of the events in the Madison Square tower room narrated at the trial by Evelyn Thaw. "This woman," concluded Thaw, "is now married and one of the foremost actresses on the American stage."

Mae McKenzie's story had been told earlier in the day, but Jerome evidently wanted to hear it from the lips of the prisoner. Thaw repeated it, beginning like a magazine story.

According to Thaw these were not all of the tales he could tell about the man he killed. He gave the location of four places he said White maintained for immoral purposes.

The aged Mrs. Thaw's appearance on the stand was pathetic. Before she had spoken two minutes her feelings overcame her and she paused. Thaw kept his seat, but his extreme agitation was very evident. A few minutes later his mother stopped again. Tears came to her eyes, she put her palmleaf fan before her face and bowed her head. Then Thaw could not restrain himself. Springing to his feet he ran to the witness stand, put his arms about his mother's shoulder, patted her hair and whispered to her.

With twitching lips Mrs. Thaw told for the second time the story of the death of her baby that occurred fourteen months before Harry's birth. This fact was used at the second trial as having a powerful pre-natal effect on Harry.

The witness related Harry's early life history. He was rather delicate, she said, but his speech, instead of being nearly unintelligible, as former witnesses testified, was defective, she declared, only in the pronunciation of two letters.

Mr. Jerome did not cross-examine Mrs. Thaw, and this fact seemed to surprise her. The remainder of her testimony described her visits to Mattewan.

There is considerable sickness just now and the Quincy Hospital is taxed to accommodate all who need treatment. The new wing is progressing and will greatly facilitate the work of the Hospital when completed.

Mr. Charles Barron of the money order and registry division of the Quincy post-office, leaves today for Amherst, where he will join his family in a two weeks' vacation.

Rev. C. Rydstrom of this city preached at the Swedish camp meeting at Ashbury grove on Wednesday morning, his subject being "The Friendship of Jesus." Swedish residents of this city have been in attendance at the meetings this week.

David Dow and family formerly of Dorchester, have moved to Beach street, Wollaston, occupying the house in which Robert Frazier and family formerly lived.

Mrs. Coldwell of Marlboro street gave a surprise party to her son Russell Thursday afternoon. Games were played and a general good time was enjoyed by all. Those present were: Wesley Browne, Emily White, Edwin Ribrowe, Bertha Pletsch and Kenneth Swan.

Little Margaret Wallace granddaughter of the late Gen. Warren B. Stetson of Middleboro who was seriously poisoned by eating pills belonging to her grandmother is reported as having recovered from the effects. The boy Allen aged three ate more than Margaret and died a few hours after.

BRIEFS

George E. Adams began his duties as acting clerk of the district court this morning and will substitute during the absence of Clerk Churchill who left on his vacation yesterday.

Work was begun this morning laying tar permanent sidewalks on Washington and Maple streets. These walks begin where the government granolithic walks end and will make a continuous permanent walk to the post office building from Temple street on one side and on Maple street from Hancock street on the other side.

Chief of Police Burrell and Lieut. McKay will leave this evening for Newport News, Va., to get William Oswald who is under arrest there for complicity in the robbery of the office of the Gallagher express company in this city on the night of July 3. The officers will leave on the steamship Gloucester of the Merchants and Miners line.

Friends of Franz Marceau the crack school-boy miler, of Wollaston hope to see him continue his fine record at the Locust street games at South Boston, Saturday. At the St. Augustine games two weeks ago Marceau ran against some of the best milers in New England, finishing second. McVicar the star runner of South Boston A. C. finished a few yards ahead of him.

BURGLARS AT ATLANTIC.

Burglars again visited Atlantic at about one o'clock this morning, entering S. H. Edwards' plumbing shop in Sagamore block on Sagamore street. They gained entrance through a small window on the west side of the shop, presumably intending to search the office in the front part of the building but finding a strongly bolted door leading from the office to the shop, they returned to the outside of the office and broke one of the plate glass windows.

Night officer Duffy who was at the Atlantic railroad station heard them when they broke the window and was soon in pursuit shooting at them five times. One of the bullets went through one of the show windows and out a window on the other end of the building. Duffy chased them across a vacant lot between Sagamore street and Billings street but unfortunately fell into a large hole where dirt had been taken out, thus loosing sight of them. They ran in the direction of Neponset. The Neponset police were notified but saw nothing of them.

NEW SOCCER TEAM.

Angus M. Cameron, the soccer football authority, has returned to Boston after several months' absence, and has set about the task of having Quincy represented in the Boston, and District association football league. Some time ago the Fore River team applied for membership in the league and admission was refused for some reason or other. The rejection caused several red-hot fans of this city to get together and form a new team, with Cameron at the head. The new team has applied for membership and will be known as the South Quincy, F. C.

The New York and New Hampshire team has also applied for membership in the league.

There are many soccer fans in this city who would like to see a league team in the B. and D. league and it would undoubtedly be a paying proposition here.

DISTRICT COURT BUSY PLACE.

The officials at the district court were very busy men today, it being necessary to adjourn the session this noon in order that the judge and his assistants could get a little lunch. At one o'clock there were still one or two cases to try and as they seemed to be rather long drawn out, it was decided to take a short recess until 2 o'clock. Business was then taken up again and lasted till well on in the afternoon.

TODAY'S COURT.

Alexander McKee, B. Phillips and Charles N. White of Quincy were fined $3 each for playing ball on the Lord's day.

John J. Tracy of Weymouth was arraigned for drunkenness and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

Lottie F. Webster of Quincy was arraigned on the charge of being a common railer and brawler. Case continued until Sept. 7.

Ludvig Bergbaur of Quincy was arraigned for assault on Fred Schatzel of Quincy, and was fined $1 and placed under bonds to keep the peace.

—Experiments made by the Philadelphia Railroad Company show that there is no danger from electric shock, even from a high voltage line, to the operator of a fire stream when the nozzle is held at a distance of upwards of three feet from the wire.

DIES IN BRIDE'S ARMS

American Consular Officer Succumbs to Tuberculosis Aboard Steamer

Antwerp, Aug. 6.—Joseph H. Leute, American vice and deputy consul general at Zurich, Switzerland, died from tuberculosis in the arms of his young bride on board the steamer Marquette just as the vessel was entering this port.

Leute was married in Philadelphia on the eve of sailing from that city July 25. He was 25 years old, a native of Pennsylvania and is said to have been a consular officer of great promise.

THE VIRGINIA PRIMARY

Indications That Tucker Will Be Democrats' Choice For Governor

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 6.—Forty counties in the state and all the larger cities heard from give Mann for governor majorities of 5500 and Tucker majorities of 3600.

Indications are that Tucker has won the nomination in the state Democratic primary.

Three French Cruisers Coming

Paris, Aug. 6.—The cruisers Verite, Liberte and Justice have been selected to go to New York to participate in the Fulton-Hudson celebration in September.

☞Summer recreation days are just the time for reading our comprehensive and up-to-date sketch of the natural resources and rapid development of Glorious Old Georgia. The author has spent several months carefully studying conditions and phases of life, advancement and industry in the Empire State of the South. This article is the first of a series to appear in each of the forthcoming issues of the National Magazine, devoted to similar practical comprehensive and fascinating information concerning the great states forming the United States of America. It is altogether appropriate that this work should be undertaken by such a periodical as the National Magazine . The articles on "Affairs at Washington" have riveted attention on work being done at the Capitol, and that interest has been accentuated by vivid descriptions of the surroundings of national government officials now sojourning at the North Shore, revealing in their charming simplicity the fact that Joe Chapple is as much at home in chronicling the everyday events of country life as he is in recording important events at Washington.

TRIED TO DISARM SUTTON

Utley Was Reaching For Lieutenant's Hand When He Shot Himself

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6.—For five hours Lieutenant Utley of the Marine Corps was subjected to an exacting examination and cross-examination in his connection with the death of Lieutenant Sutton, now the subject of investigation before the naval board of inquiry at the academy.

Notified of his privilege as a defendant by Judge Advocate Leonard that he need not answer any questions which he thought might tend to incriminate him, Utley waived the privilege. His story in substance was corroborative of the testimony of the other officers who were present at the fight between Lieutenants Adams and Sutton when Sutton was shot.

In answer to Leonard's questions, the witness said he would consider a man committed suicide who was attempting to shoot someone else and shot himself by mistake. And later, under cross-examination by counsel for the Suttons, he admitted that he was reaching for Sutton's hand to disarm him when the latter freed his arm from beneath his chest and the revolver flashed.

A SCARCITY OF FOOD

One Result of the Serious Labor Conflict In Sweden

Stockholm, Aug. 6.—Although Stockholm has been quiet it is believed this situation represents merely the calm before the storm, for the ranks of the strikers are being augmented hour by hour. Thus far rioting has been avoided, but fears are expressed that trouble may arise at any moment.

The government, however, is making ready to meet any contingency. Additional troops have been ordered to Stockholm from other cities and the streets are full of clattering army wagons arriving with supplies from the farming districts, each carrying two soldiers with fixed bayonets and surrounded by mounted guards.

Within the city the pinch of hunger is beginning to be felt. Prices accordingly have risen to heights which almost preclude the poorer classes buying food. Thousands already are camping in the outlying districts, some living almost entirely on the fish they are able to catch.

IMMIGRATION LAWS OPEN TO CRITICISM

Rules In Port of New York Not Applicable In Boston

Boston, Aug. 6.—The local immigration officials find themselves in a delicate position in admitting certain immigrants, owing to a difference in opinion as to the requirements for the admission of foreigners between New York and Boston.

Aliens who have been deported from New York because they did not have at least $25, being otherwise acceptable, are returning to the port of Boston in considerable numbers. Commissioner Billings of the local port has ruled that if every other requirement is met no alien will be turned back from this port because of lack of the $25.

FIGHTING HAS ENDED

Official Report That Order Has Been Restored In Spain

Washington, Aug. 6.—Through the diplomatic corps at Madrid the Spanish government has made known officially the restoration of order in Barcelona and improved conditions elsewhere.

The shops in Barcelona are open, street cars are running and telegraphic communication restored. Railways are expected to be repaired in a day or two. There is no more fighting reported from Melilla. All is quiet at Madrid and Bilboa. No American citizens are in danger.

BEAT CHILD'S BRAINS OUT

Fiendish Crime Committed by a Young Nova Scotian Negro

Guysboro, N. S., Aug. 6.—Andrew Issard, 13 years old, a negro living at Boylston, in the absence of his parents tied the 6-year-old daughter of Annie Ash to a tree and beat her brains out with two large sticks and a rock. The boy was arrested and arraigned on a charge of murder, being committed for trial.

The mother of the girl, who is a cripple, and the defendant's younger brother were witnesses of the affair.

Rioting by Hebrew Strikers

Montreal, Aug. 6.—Three hundred Hebrew bakers on strike here for shorter hours and better pay began rioting, beating a number of drivers on non-union wagons, spoiling numerous loads of bread by showers of stones and water and otherwise making trouble. The Jewish quarter, containing 10,000 persons, is threatened with a bread famine.

Quadruple Drowning Accident

Baltimore, Aug. 6.—Four persons were drowned in the Patapsco river, while sixteen persons who were their companions are alive and thankful that they were not also drowned when their gasolene launch was wrecked by striking a submerged pile.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENCY.

Editors Leger:

With the resignation of Mr. Frank E. Parlin as Superintendent of the Quincy schools, there arises the need of a choice of a man for his successor, who shall be as heartily in touch with the peculiar spirit of the Quincy school system as the men whom Quincy has been so fortunate in securing the past twenty years.

There comes to the mind of some of our people who are interested in school matters, the name of a man who has already done much for education in Quincy, that of Mr. Charles Harper, former principal of the Quincy High school. There is probably no other man who better understands the conditions in Quincy than Mr. Harper.

Mr. Harper is a born organizer with very superior administrative ability as was clearly demonstrated in the masterly way in which he brought order out of seeming chaos during the renovation of the High school building and the skill with which he handled his six hundred pupils, securing from each, the required years' instruction.

There is to be found in Mr. Harper a man of mature years, yet, conservative enough to avoid radicalism. He touches life from all sides which of course is the proper end of education. His prospective is large and he has the power of seeing far ahead, understanding how his moves will terminate.

Finally, he has the love and respect of all the teachers who have taught under him. This in itself is the surest means of securing efficient teaching. Himself a teacher, he understands the requirements of a teacher. He is always found thoughtful for the best interests of those under him.

From the standpoint of character and morals pupils may find in Mr. Harper a man who may be patterned after. With wide Christian charity he still has the courage to stand for the right and stand for it persistently. What could be better for the young of our city than to have a man of this type constantly before them during their formative period?

Great would be the good fortune of Quincy if it might at this time regain that which seemed such a loss two years ago in the resignation of Mr. Harper.

NAILED AFTER HARD CHASE

Lorenzo Burgnoli Arrested for Burglary in Wollaston

About 3 o'clock this morning Mrs. Daniel Donnelly, wife of the late Alderman Donnelly, of Montclair, was awakened by strange noises in the lower part of the house, and being in a quandary as to what was the cause of the noise, she arose from bed and went down stairs. She turned on the light and there to her consternation stood a man calmly examining the contents of the sideboard, preparatory, it is supposed, to carrying them away. Mrs. Donnelly showed no fear, but asked the stranger what he wanted. When the man heard the question he made no reply, but escaped through a window and beat it. Mrs. Donnelly immediately notified police headquarters by telephone and told of the affair. All the police on the force were notified to keep a sharp lookout for the man.

About 4.30 Officer Malone was returning to his home in West Quincy from the Atlantic beat and was making his way through Beale street in Wollaston, when he heard sounds like the opening of a window. He turned his eyes in the direction of the sound and saw a man in the act of going through a window into the house of James W. Bent of Beale street. When the man saw the officer he jumped from the window and started on the hotfoot through some nearby woods. Officer Malone shouted for the man to stop, but the fugitive paid no heed. The officer then pulled his revolver and fired several shots after the man, at the same time keeping up a hot chase. He finally landed the man in the thickest of the woods and after a hard struggle succeeded in putting the nippers on him. He did not succeed, however, until he held the revolver up to the man's head and threaten to let the daylight through him if he did not surrender.

It was a daring and clever piece of work, this capture, and took a whole lot of nerve. It is not every man who would dare to chase a man into the woods, not knowing when he was going to hide and jump out with a knife or a gun. Officer Malone deserves all the credit that can be given for the stunt, for it was indeed a slick piece of work.

The man was booked at the police station as Lorenzo Brugnoli, and is about 45 years old. When asked why he was in the house, he said he was drunk and that he did not know where he was. After hearing the story of Officer Malone and questioning the prisoner, Judge Avery held Brugnoli in $3000, on each of the counts of breaking and entering.

CHILDREN AT PLAYGROUND.

Great Opportunity for Quincy Children at Y. M. C. A. Playgrounds.

The Ward I playground conducted by the Quincy Women's club and Quincy Young Men's Christian Association, finished its first week with great success. At an early hour each morning the children have been on hand ready for a morning's play. Games of all kinds, drills and dances have been the attractions for the girls during the week. The gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. is a great addition to the playground and is being used to great advantage. Basketball, whip tag, and baseball are the big events for the boys. The sand box, swings and teeters are in constant use with a large waiting list. The program today consisted of a peanut hunt for all the children and proved to be a strong feature of the day. An hour of games for both sexes and then drills and dances for the girls and an athletic meet for the boys. The young ladies have been of great assistance during the week and their help is greatly appreciated by both organizations. The people of Quincy are invited to attend the playgrounds any day between nine and twelve. The ladies that are to assist next week are Miss Barker, Mrs. Badger, Miss Smith, Miss Elwell, Miss Shaw, Miss Welch.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

"Yes, that's my favorite. But, then, I come to and I find it ain't so. No voice comes to me, and I find there ain't nobody but me"—

"You'll find her some day," she put in quickly. "I shall think of you often with her listening to her voice in the twilight. And I shall be far away, keeping the promise that I have made and living out—my destiny."

"What destiny?" he asked gravely.

"I am bound to Almeric by his misfortune. He has to bear a name that is disgraced, and it is my duty to help him bear it—to help him make it honorable again, to inspire him in the struggle that lies before him to rise above it by his own efforts, in the product of his work"—

"Work?" asked Pike in astonishment.

"Yes," she went on. "No matter how humbly he begins and no matter what it costs me, I must be with him, helping him. Isn't that true?"

"That's what any good, brave woman would do," he said.

"It must be done. I haven't seen Almeric since last night. I must see him now. I've shirked facing him today. He has always been so light and gay that I dread seeing him bending under this blow. It is my duty to help him bear it."

"Yes; it's your duty all right."

"Then you think I am right. You agree"—

"Yes; I agree," he answered gravely. "I give my consent to your marriage."

"You do!" cried Ethel. And there was a distinct horror in her tone. It was as if the idea shocked her.

"I'll place it in your hands," he answered and then was rudely twirled about by Horace, who had approached.

"I protest against this!" cried the young man. "She does not know what she's doing! I for one won't have it!"

CHAPTER XIX.

IN SUSPENSE.

"A fine guardian, you are!" he said witheringly. "You came here to protect her from something you thought was rotten. Now we all know it's rotten you hand her over!"

The lad paused, and then he laughed bitterly.

"By Jove," he exclaimed of a sudden, "I shouldn't be surprised if you consent to the settlement too!"

The lawyer looked at him gravely.

"My son, I shouldn't be surprised if I did."

"By the Lord, but you play a queer game, Mr. Pike."

"Oh, I'm just crossing the Rubicon. Your father used to say: 'If you're going to cross the Rubicon, cross it. Don't wade out to the middle and stand there. You only get h—ll from both banks!'"

"I beg your pardon," said a voice behind them, and they turned to find Lady Creech. She went on, addressing Horace:

"Mr. Granger-Simpson, have you seen my nephew?"

"No. I've rather avoided that, if you don't mind my saying so," Horace replied.

"I'm sorry, Lady Creech," he went on, "but I've had a most awful shaking up, and I'm thinking of going back home with Mr. Pike. I think he's about right in his ideas. You know we abused him, not only for himself, but for his vulgar friend, yet his vulgar friend turned out to be a grand duke, and look at what our friends turned out to be!"

He stepped quickly to the entrance and disappeared into the hotel. Almeric's voice was heard as Lady Creech turned to go, and Pike smiled.

"Here he comes now, bending under the blow," he said.

Almeric appeared with a white bull pup, which he handed over to Mariano with the remark:

"Wash him a bit, old chap; tepid water, you know, and a drop of milk afterward—nothing but milk, you know. Be deuced careful, I say!"

"Almeric, really there are more important things, you know."

"Rot!" replied the young man. "I almost missed him. But I think I'm to be congratulated, you know. Eh?"

"I think you are, my son," said Pike quietly. "I have given my consent."

"Rippin'!" declared Almeric. And Lady Creech started forward.

"And the settlement?" she asked. Pike nodded.

"The settlement also—everything!"

Ethel came from the side of the terrace, followed by Horace, who seemed to be arguing with her.

"Of course I never worried, you know," said Almeric. "But I fancy it will be a weight off the poor governor's mind. I'll wire him at Naples, for he'll be glad to know about that bally convict chap—the arrangement you made with him, you know."

"Almeric, I think it's noble to be brave in trouble, but"— Ethel began, and Pike smiled behind his hand. Almeric looked at her in astonishment.

"I say, you know, you've really got me!"

"I mean that I admire you for your pluck, for your seeming unconcern under disgrace, but"—

"Disgraced! Why, who's disgraced? Not even the governor, as I see it! You got that chap called off, didn't you?"

"Why, that convict chap. Didn't you send him away? You bought him off so he wouldn't talk, didn't you—gave him money not to bother us?"

She whirled on him like a storm.

"Why, heaven pity you! Do you think that?" she cried.

Almeric was taken aback.

"Oh—what! He wouldn't agree? Oh, I say, that will be a pill for the governor—he'll be worried, you know!"

Ethel went close to him.

"Don't you see that you've got to worry a little about yourself; that you've got to begin to do something worthy that will obliterate this shame? To work—to work!"

"What possible need will there be for that? Why, there's the settlement"—

"Settlement!" cried Ethel, aghast. "You talk of settlement now?"

"Don't you see? The only objection was the settlement, and Mr. Pike's given his consent to that."

"He's consented to that?" she asked.

"With his own lips. Didn't you?" Almeric asked Pike.

"I did," said the lawyer quietly.

She recoiled from the group.

"Yesterday, when I wanted something I thought of value, he refused to let me buy it. Today, when I know that name is less than nothing, he bids me give my fortune for it. What manner of man is this?"

Almeric slapped his leg.

"I don't see that the situation is changed. I don't stick out for the prerise amount the governor said. If it ought to be less because of last night—why, we won't haggle over a few thousands."

With a cry of rage and despair Ethel turned on him.

"This is the final word of my humiliation! I felt that you were in shame, and because of that I was ready to keep my word—to stand by you and help you make yourself into a man. Now you ask me to pay you for the privilege. I am released! I am free! I am not that man's property to give away!"

Lady Creech turned to Almeric.

"This is beyond everything! Give me your arm, Almeric. We will go."

"Most extraordinary girl. Beyond everything, isn't she?"

Together they went into the hotel, and Pike watched them with somber eyes. Horace quietly slipped off through the arbor. Ethel turned to Pike violently.

"What have you to say to me?" she demanded. "What explanations have you to make?"

"None," he answered.

"Because you don't care what I think of you. You were willing to give me up to these people, to let me romanticize about honor and duty, about my efforts to make that creature a man, and you knew all the time it was only the money they were after!"

"I shouldn't wonder," he replied.

"Didn't you know that would horrify me? Didn't you see that your consenting, leaving me free to give it to them, would release me?"

"I shouldn't be surprised."

"You mean you've been saving me again from myself? You let me make a fool of myself and then show it to me, and after that you'll deny it! It's like you. Do you think any girl could love a man like that? Go back to your dream girl, your lady of the picture!"

"She won't be there," said Daniel disconsolately.

"There ain't any chance of that. The house will be empty still," he said.

"You might be wrong—for once," she replied, and there were tears in her voice—"just for once!"

With a quick look at him she ran from the terrace and into the hotel. A moment later, while he was staring moodily at the pavement, a piano began to tinkle, and a moment later Ethel's voice came to him. His face lit up, and he stepped closer to the window. Then his arms went out.

She was playing "Sweet Genevieve!"

LETTERS OF MRS. SUTTON

Lawyers Clash Over Them In the Naval Board of Inquiry

CHARGES AGAINST OFFICERS

They Are Declared to Be of Serious and Delicate Nature—Judge Advocate Wanted to Submit Them as Evidence, to Which Woman's Counsel Strenuously Objected—Decision to Read Them In Star Chamber

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 7.—The appearance on the witness stand of Mrs. James N. Sutton, the mother of Lieutenant Sutton of the Marine Corps, whose death is being re-investigated by the naval board of inquiry here, was the occasion of a heated controversy between the lawyers on all sides, which ended in a prolonged conference of the members of the board behind closed doors and brought the day's proceedings to an abrupt end.

MRS. SUTTON.

Several witnesses had been disposed of during the day when Judge Advocate Leonard called Mrs. Sutton to the stand. Before proceeding with her examination Leonard offered for identification and to be read in evidence several letters which he said Mrs. Sutton had written, containing serious and delicate charges against the young officers of the Marine Corps who appeared as defendants.

"The United States has been put to a large expense in bringing witnesses here from all parts of the world," said Leonard, "and it becomes my painful duty to offer these letters in evidence in order to enlighten this court as fully as possible on all matters pertaining to this inquiry."

Henry E. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton, made strenuous objection on the ground that the letters in question were irrelevant to the inquiry and of a personal and incompetent nature as evidence.

"It is inconceivable that the judge advocate should attempt to force Mrs. Sutton into such a position before this board of inquiry," said Davis. "These letters are not offered to assist the court in finding out how Lieutenant Sutton met his death. They have nothing to do with the precept.

"That these letters, containing perhaps the extravagant statements of a mother with a stricken heart over the death of her son, should be read before a curious world, is indeed unique and cruel."

Mrs. Sutton broke down and buried her face in her handkerchief during Davis' remarks.

Major Leonard declared that Davis had misconstrued the judge advocate's position in the matter and asked that the lawyer's remarks implying bad faith on his part be stricken from the record. "The hallowed grave of a dead son," said Leonard, "is no more sacred than the reputation of a living officer, and there are many such reputations at stake here."

The judge advocate said the court had the right to inquire upon what grounds Mrs. Sutton had made the statements in the letters.

Mr. Birney, counsel for Lieutenant Adams, protested that Mrs. Sutton had consistently tried to avoid her true position in the proceedings and urged that the letters be read in evidence.

At this point President Hood of the board ordered court closed and went into conference with his associates on the board and the judge advocate. Upon returning Hood announced that the letters would be read in closed court to the interested parties and their counsel.

TESTIMONY IS ALL SUBMITTED

Court Will Render Decision In Thaw Case Next Week

DEFENDANT SEEMS HOPEFUL

Confronted by Several Possibilities Because of Wide Discretionary Powers of Justice Mills—Dramatic Outburst by Mrs. Thaw, Who Appears as Last Witness In Behalf of Her Son—Jerome Grills Alienists

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Harry K. Thaw's latest struggle for release from the Matteawan asylum for insane will end today. The submission of testimony in his habeas corpus proceedings before Justice Mills closed yesterday afternoon and all that remains is the final arguments of the attorneys. Justice Mills will file his decision with the county clerk here on Aug. 12.

Several possibilities confront Thaw. The court may grant his plea and may make him absolutely free. It may decide that he has not established his sanity and refuse to interfere, in which case the state authorities will probably send him straight back to Matteawan.

But Mills has further discretionary powers. He may feel that Thaw's mental condition is still in doubt and for that reason delay a final order, meanwhile paroling Thaw in custody of some officer or possibly on his own recognizance in the care of his family. Or he may declare Thaw insane, but, moved by his mother's complaint regarding his surroundings at Matteawan, send him to some other state hospital not peopled by criminals.

At no time during the proceedings has Thaw expressed anything but satisfaction with the results and confidence in the success of his cause. He is now as hopeful as ever. "I am sure," he said, "that I shall be free."

The evidence presented in behalf of Thaw closed yesterday with a dramatic outburst by his mother, who was the final witness. Her last words were a denunciation of District Attorney Jerome. Earlier in the day she had read a list of names distinguished in New York society. They were guests, she said, at a dinner she gave in New York which Harry attended before his marriage. In concluding her testimony, she referred to this list of names.

"I brought in the names of those who attended that dinner to my son," she said, "because of the statements of Mr. Jerome regarding the company Harry was accustomed to keep. Mr. Jerome always talked about Harry's being a frequenter of the Tenderloin, when he knows as well as any one that my boy never went to the Tenderloin until he met a certain person who dropped him down."

"That," said Attorney Morschauser, "ends our case."

On the stand Mrs. Thaw's testimony was again frequently interrupted by sobbing, as she described Harry's surroundings at Matteawan. "That place seemed to me like the vestibule to the infernal regions," she said solemnly.

The principal new witness yesterday was Roger O'Mara, employed by the Thaws as a detective in Harry's case. He testified in corroboration of the stories about Stanford White. The greater part of the day was devoted to a re-examination of Thaw's alienists. Jerome attacked these experts with every device of the skilled cross-examiner.

He roused the ire of Dr. Evans by asking if he was the object of the denunciation of medical expert witnesses delivered by Governor Fort of New Jersey. Evans is superintendent of the New Jersey state insane hospital at Morris Plains. The expert replied that he declined to go into personalities.

Dr. Harris of the Poughkeepsie state asylum also received a grilling. But both alienists stuck to their assertion that whatever Thaw's mental condition might have been when he shot Stanford White, he was now sane. They left the stand unshaken.

SQUANTUM HISTORY.

Interesting Traditions One Authentic, Other Legendary.

Many an unknown spot in New England is woven about with history and tradition and only awaits the pen of a modern Washington Irving to place it in the class with Sleepy Hollow, Tarrytown, Spuyten Duyvil and all other places on the Hudson which have become immortalized in American literature.

One such spot lies in that part of Quincy, known as Squantum, Mass., where a long promontory juts out into the ocean and at the end of this promontory is a huge bluff.

Of the two best known stories connected with this Indian rock, or Squanto's Chappell, as it was called in Revolutionary times, one is historically authentic and the other is presumably legendary.

In September, 1621, the renowned Myles Standish, accompanied by nine other white men, among whom were Winslow and Bradford, both governors of Plymouth colony at a later date, sailed into Boston harbor on one of their famous exploring expeditions. They were guided by a faithful old Indian named Squanto.

It was twilight when they entered the harbor, so they landed on an island, which was close at hand. This was Thompson's island, on which is now located a farm school for boys. They found plenty of lobsters and an abundance of the succulent clam, so they were contented to remain where they were for the remainder of the night.

The next morning they started to cross the narrow channel which separates the island from the mainland. As they approached they noticed the peculiar formation of the rock on the end of the promontory. They could plainly trace the bold outline of an Indian's head looking impassively and stoically out over the sparkling waters of the bay. At once Standish gave orders to land beside that rock and nowhere else. "For," said he, "it is an omen. The whites will always be successful against the Indians."

So Squanto drove the boat ashore there and the party landed. And then before that great stone face he knelt down and prayed that the Great Father would not allow his people to be exterminated by the whites. And the white men, who loved Squanto, called the name of the place "Squanto's Chappell."

That part of Quincy in which the promonotory lies is also named for this faithful Indian guide, although the name in this case has been corrupted to Squantum.

Then there is another story connected with the rock, which also attempts to explain how it got its name.

About 1630, the story runs, there lived on the end of the promontory an old Indian woman. Her age had passed beyond the computation of any of her tribe, and all the Indians held her in great awe, believing she held supernatural powers at her command. Certain it was that she could heal bruises, wounds, sprains and minor afflictions in a miraculous manner. She lived alone in a little hut and never had she been known to molest or annoy any of her neighbors.

But finally the eyes of the white men began to turn toward the promontory, for it was a most desirable spot for a settlement, being easily defended. It was not long before they came to Squanto, for that was said to have been the old woman's name, and asked her to move to another spot. Any place, they said, would be all right for her. Squanto, however, listened to their requests with stoical indifference and refused to move.

The whites were very angry and resolved to take possession of the land in question by force. So one day five whites, armed to the teeth, advanced upon the promontory to wrest the land from old Squanto. They attempted to induce her to leave peaceably, but she fled before them to the extreme end of the promontory. There she turned, faced them, and hurled curses upon their heads. Then she cast herself headlong from the cliff.

The party ran forward to look for her. One of the men lost his footing, fell with a scream and dashed out his brains upon the rocks below. His body lay across Squanto's. Within two months the remaining four men met violant deaths. So says tradition.—Boston Courier.

SAVINGS INSURANCE LEAGUE.

The combination of savings bank facilities and life insurance, which is to such an extent a subject of discussion at the present time, is by no means a new idea, although it is now being put into practice for the first time.

It was proposed, as a matter of fact, in a celebrated speech which the Whig reformer, Samuel Whitbread, made in the House of Common in 1807—an address which is generally considered to be the starting point of the savings bank system. Whitbread in his "Poor Law Amendments Bill" outlined a plan for an institution, philanthropically managed, which should serve as a general financial clearing house for the benefit of persons of moderate means, offering them the advantages of various kinds of insurance on the most favorable terms possible.

It is interesting, incidentally, to note that Whitbread was also the first to propose the postal savings scheme which has been fruitful of large accumulations in Great Britain and many continental countries and which has been seriously proposed for adoption in this country.

In these and other respects Whitbread was ahead of his time. It was necessary for the new institutions, the savings banks to learn to handle ordinary savings in a safe and conservative way.

But the conception of life insurance as something having a very direct relationship to savings did not disappear. A very interesting little book, of which copies may be found in some of the Massachusetts public libraries, is a report submitted in December, 1874, by a committee appointed by the Boston board of trade on the subject of "the union of savings bank and life insurances."

This committee consisted of Nathaniel C. Nash, Robert O. Fuller, Edward Whitney, John Botume, Jr., and Elizur Wright. The last named was, of course, the father of modern life insurance.

On this subject the committee reported in general terms:

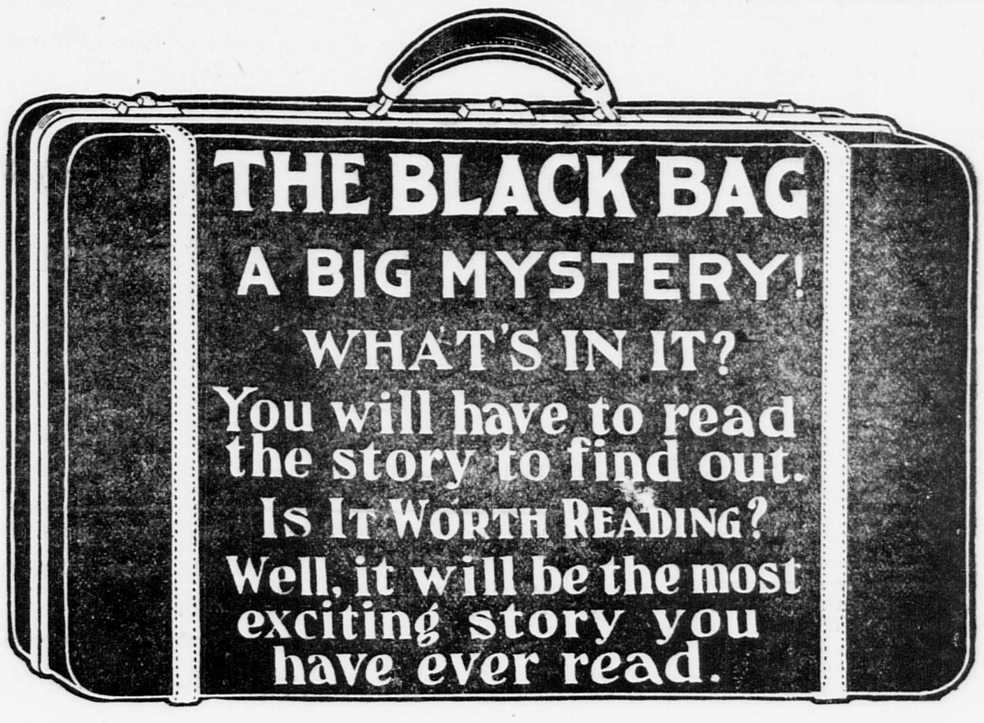

"Both the savings banks and the life insurance company are of modern origin. The latter, in an effective form, cannot be said to be much more than a century old, and its career has been checkered with many reverses. The former started from a Scotch manse, in 1810, and has established itself in almost every civilized country, collecting and investing an inconceivable amount of capital. Its history has been magnificent, but not such as to prove that no further safeguard or utility can be added to it. In Massachusetts, life insurance is almost wholly included within the last thirty years, and nearly the same may be said of the savings bank business. The deposits in all our savings banks, in 1843, were less than $7,000,000. In 1873 they were $202,000,000. While our population has very little more than doubled in thirty years, the savings bank deposits have multiplied nearly twenty-nine fold. They cannot now lack much of equalling the whole industrial and commercial capital of the Commonwealth. If comparatively little of this vast capital is directly available for manufactures and commerce, it all is indirectly. It is the backbone of Massachusetts, and the reason why her commercial fingers can reach so far and have so good a grip. It proves that the capitalists of society and commerce are not the rich only, but the men and women of monthly and weekly wages also. It develops a function, the cultivation and security of which are worthy of all the thought and statesmanship that can be bestowed upon it."

After some discussion of the nature of savings banks and of life insurance business this report, including an admission that the smaller insurance policies were too expensive on account of the cost of solicitation and collection, expressed a hope that the experiment of "an American Family Bank" should be tried in Boston. In conclusion it was stated:

"In relation to the combination of savings bank and insurance functions in the same institution, it is by no means an untried experiment, since every permanent and successful life insurance company embraces the two. The only novelties consist in keeping these two functions distinctly defined in regard to every year of every policy, doing savings bank business to some extent without any insurance, just as now life insurance companies may and do transact insurance for the single year without any savings bank deposit, and stipulating distinctly in every policy the terms of cash surrender at the end of every year within its term.

"The people who most need life insurance cannot well afford the luxury of the agency expenses of the existing system. The untried experiment is to relieve them of these expenses. If it fails, it will be because they will not spontaneously apply for insurance. In that case, the Family Bank will be a success as a simple depository for savings, with the security for good management of a paid-up capital. If people do spontaneously apply for insurance, whether in large or small numbers, the premiums being more than sufficient and the capital ample, the insurance business cannot in any degree diminish the security of the independent savings bank deposits."

Even in the seventies the conditions were not ripe for savings bank insurance. The practical working out of the proposition had to be delayed until June 22, 1908, when the Whitman Savings Bank led the way in opening an insurance department.

This is the day that Beverly changes the city name to IT.

Do you hear the corn grow since the rain? The sweet corn season is here.

As between the Red Sox and the White Sox, red seemed the faster color yesterday.

One won't know what to eat soon. The other day several people were made ill by eating blueberries which had been poisoned from stuff used to spray trees.

Massachusetts never looked so good to anybody as it did today to President Taft and nobody ever looked better to Massachusetts than President Taft.

The suggestion that Charles F. Harper, former headmaster of the Quincy High school be asked to come back and accept the superintendency of the Quincy schools is a good one, but doubtful of accomplishment as Mr. Harper is much better situated where he is as to work and remuneration and is in line for greater advancement. Nothing would please Quincy people at large better than to have Mr. Harper in Quincy again.

That is not a very creditable state of affairs in Gloucester—plenty of money for entertaining the President and for pageants but not enough to care decently for its paupers, who are huddled together like animals in old and inadequate buildings. The key to the situation can probably be found in the remark of one of the city officials, "The paupers can't vote." Quincy has a clean record and takes good care of its unfortunates, the Quincy Home being creditable to the city inside and out.

Now that the permanent sidewalk men are in the city it would be a good idea to have them patch up some of the places in the tar walks that need looking after badly. There is a place on Franklin street, just across from School street, where a hollow has been worn in the walk and every time it rains there is a pool of water there which compels pedestrians to leave the sidewalk and walk in the street.

President Taft admits the new tariff bill is not as satisfactory as he had hoped for but the fact remains that the tariff bill is much more satisfactory than it otherwise would have been if the President did not interfere and lay down a bit of the law governing moral rectitude in politics. It was a case where President Taft was a bigger man than his party.

The work of the police department in attemptng to ferret out the guilty parties who assaulted George Germaine Wednesday night is to be commended. Such a brutal assault has rarely been recorded in the police annals of this city and the motive seems to be lacking unless it was a downright case of revenge with malice aforethought. It is to be sincerely hoped that the crime may be fastened upon the right parties for it would be as criminal as the assault itself to have an innocent man suffer but, once the guilt is established, the court should make a thorough example of any and all who took part in the assault. A long jail sentence is the only adequate punishment that can be meted out. Men who will go to the house of a peaceable citizen, be it George Germaine or anybody else, and call him to the door only to subject him to a terrifically arutal punishment such as was given in this case, are a menace to any community in which they live. A man's home is supposed to be sacred, be it a cabin or a costly apartment. That right is guaranteed under the constitution and the bill of rights and it is to be hoped that no more mercy will be shown the assailants of George Germaine than they showed to him.

SUMMER UNSELFISHNESS.

In the midst of the hot summer weather most of us turn our thoughts to the supplying of such necessities and even luxuries as will add to our comforts and that of our families. And perhaps we study the alluring booklets of the summer resorts or make ready to move into our cottages on the lake or at the seashore. But seldom do we permit ourselves to give a moment's thought to our less fortunate neighbors. We realize that the long, hot days of midsummer may mean discomfort to us and sickness to our children unless we take precautions which our means will permit. So we concentrate our minds on our ownselves, and fail to look across the street or to other sections of the town or city. For we know that there we would see the pitiful shack or the stuffy tenement containing the children of the poor, whose lives are bounded by the blazing sun above and the hot, dusty streets beneath. Just there our responsibility arises; just there we must look beyond our own little circles and help save the baby across the street. —Framingham Tribune.

ABATE THE NUISANCES.

Ward One as well as many other sections of the city has nuisances which should be abated before the city gets much larger. There are several stables private and public that are not only a nuisance but a menace to people living in their vicinity. A private stable should not be allowed to exist on the boundary line of neighboring property but still stricter should be the rule for livery and boarding stables.

City Hall officials and clerks found the one near the depot offensive and it has been abandoned.

Hall's and Penniman's are back of business blocks and on vacant land so are not offensive but the one on Washington street is in the midst of dwelling houses. The occupant is neat and careful, particularly so, but the location makes it almost impossible not to be anything but a nuisance. There is no cellar; the building is of wood and some forty horses are kept in lean-to sheds which are entirely ventilated by windows in the horses' stalls and skylights, the odors flooding neighboring houses and yards.

What other city or town would allow forty horses kept in sheds? The law in most places requires that animals be kept in barns with ventilators in the roof. Also that there shall be a cellar under the building for the manure.

The accumulation from forty horses keeps the odors pretty well stirred up as constant carting is necessary. At night time when the horses are bedded down the odors in surrounding bedrooms is not only offensive to the smell but endangers health as do the flies in the day time. The floor of the sheds being some three or four feet above ground makes a mucky breeding place for flies and mosquitoes underneath, and the ground is saturated by matter which has dripped through for years. Constant appeals for relief are made to the Board of Health but they have not gone into the matter thoroughly yet although the state board says it is up to them.

TODAY'S COURT.

Margaret J. Flaherty was arraigned for unlawfully selling of butter and was fined $10.

A. Ernest Mills of Brookline was fined $20 for overspeeding his automobile in the Blue Hill Reservation.

John B. Johnson was arraigned for larceny from Edward B. Dahlquist, and was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Lorenzo Brugnoli was arraigned on the charge of breaking and entering on two counts. Held in $3,000 on each count for the grand jury.

BATES FAMILY.

Frank A. Bates of Braintree was reelected president of the Bates Family Association at the annual reunion at Weymouth on Thursday. Mr. Bates was in charge of the program and delivered an address of welcome.

Addresses were also made by Rev. L. B. Bates of East Boston, Henry A. Whitney of Bellingham, William E. Gould of Brookline, John J. Loud of Weymouth, Louis A. Cook of Weymouth, Rev. N. W. Bates and Albert C. Bates of Connecticut. A poem on "The Bates Tree" was read by Mrs. Charlotte Fiske Bates. Grace S. Putnam of Braintree was one of the descendants present.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MARRIED IN EUROPE.

News comes from Europe of the marriage of two people well known in Braintree, the bride being Miss Emma French, the daughter of the late Asa French, and the groom Prof. J. B. Sewall, formerly master of Thayer Academy. Prof. Sewall resigned this position about twelve years ago, and of late has made his residence in apartments at Brookline. He was master of the academy when the bride was graduated about 30 years ago. Mrs. Sewall is a sister of the Hon. Asa P. French of Randolph, the United States district attorney.

Prof. Sewall went to Europe early in the spring and Miss French crossed in June. Prof. and Mrs. Sewall will remain abroad the coming winter.

—Resolutions adopted by the C. F. U. ask that the price of ice be lowered. If it were simply a matter of resolving, we would have the cost of living scaled down to the vanishing point in a short while.—Wall Street Journal.

SEE MONDAY'S LEDGER.

—In two to three years Boston hopes to have a channel wide and deep enough to accommodate at low water, ships as large as the Mauretania. Half of the work of dredging is done and probably the hardest part as a great number of ledges had to be blasted.

The Health of Your Horse

will be best promoted—best preserved—if you are ready to give the proper remedy at the proper time. The proper remedy for all strains, sprains, or colic is Perry Davis' Painkiller. The proper time to use it is when trouble first shows itself. Be prompt and you'll not only save the horse suffering, but you'll spare yourself trouble and expense—maybe save a long time waiting. You ought to have a bottle ready. The new size bottle costs 35 cents; one larger, 50 cents. Be sure your druggist gives you Perry Davis'.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

Medford's new superintendent of schools, Fred H. Nickerson, was elected from among 33 applicants for the position. His successor in the Melrose superintendency, Albert L. Barbour, of Natick, was elected Monday night from among 34 applicants. Somerville's new superintendent, Charles S. Clark, of Washington, D. C., was selected last year from 50 or more candidates, and Cambridge has just elected Frank F. Parlin, of Quincy, from more than a dozen candidates.

Several things are evident. The superintendency of schools is a position that does not go begging. There are plenty of candidates everywhere and most cities go outside their own limits in making their selection.—Medford Mercury.

—Summer is a busy time for institutions like the Animal Rescue League, which, during the months of June and July, entertained 4830 stray cats and 957 homeless dogs. Many of these were gathered up in the city, after being deserted by persons who were going to the beaches. The autumn crop of vagrant animals will be largely contributed by the beaches, when people leave to return to the city. Somehow, the Animal Rescue League is the only factor in this annual round-up that seems to play a very creditable part.—Transcript.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

The Militant Suffragettes Are on the Warpath—Western Writer Receives $12.98 a Word—Popular Organization in Danger of Being Mobbed—No Hope of Salvation on the Charles this Summer—A Word for the Faithful Postman.

Goodby to rats and puffs! The latest creation in millinery demands the sacrifice of these ornamental accessories, in place of which one's own hair must be drawn tight and smooth to the top of the head and there twisted into a firm knob, in order that the eighteen inch drum major's hats, or Russian toques from Paris may be securely fastened. There is one military organization in Boston which will do well to keep behind barred doors until this craze has passed, else they will find themselves mobbed and relieved of their time-honored headpieces. The shopping district will look like a perpetual dress parade if fashionable femininity adopts the threatened style.

There is no hope for salvation on the Charles. The project advanced by a well intentioned Congregational minister to hold evangelistic meetings on the popular rendezvous between Waltham and Riverside has been dashed by the park commission. No one questions his assertion that there is a field for gospel work on the river, but the rules and regulations of the Commission specifically forbid anyone to pray aloud, or make an oration or harangue, within the confines of the reservation. The mission boat will be missing therefore, and the phonographists and others may continue to enjoy their day of recreation and rest according to their own sweet will.

Westward, Ho! is again the cry. With four hours clipped off the running time between Chicago and Boston and the promise of an hour between New York and Boston, we may yet be making afternoon calls in Chicago or running over to Coney Island and gay Manhattan for an evening with our Gotham friends. It makes the busy Bostonian feel as if his friends in the metropolitan centres to the west and east are not so far away, after all.

Bwara Tumbo outdone—and to the tune of about 13 to 11. Writing at the price of $12.98 and a fraction per word is not common hereabouts and authors and poets of New England should take notice. The editor of the Rocky Mountain Celt at least is sure of not finding himself in the predicament which he describes in the appealing literary gem which made him richer by $1,000, and there may be a chance for others. The seventy-five words which brought this fabulous price were as follows:

"Lives of poor men oft remind us honest men don't stand no chance. The more we work there grow behind us bigger patches on our pants. On our pants, once new and glossy, now are stripes of different hue, all because subscribers linger and don't pay us what is due. Then let us be up and doing, send in your mite, however small, or when the snow of winter strikes us we shall have no pants at all."

"Quo vadis?" will doubtless be the most popular question in the modern Athens in the near future. The artistically inclined Hubbite is delighted to know that before long the street cars of the Boston Elevated Company will appear in beautiful coats of soothing green with harmonious white signs and trimmings. The citizen who depends upon the color of an approaching car to indicate its destination will be obliged either to purchase new spectacles or develop a speaking acquaintance with all the conductors of the system. The familiar bright red of the City Point car, the appropriate Harvard crimson which signalizes the vehicle bound for the university city, and the seven other more or less harmonious colors by which we have recognized the various lines, will be a thing of the past.

Hail the conquering heroine comes! Boston women of suffrage ambitions are watching with keen interest the progress of the trolley tour which four of their leaders are making throughout the state. These energetic ladies are stopping en route to tell the citizens of the commonwealth why they should allow women to vote. Needless to say, they are obtaining many additions to that petition which is to have one million signatures when it is presented to the legislature next winter, and at the same time are enjoying quite a triumphal march across country, waving their banners and distributing suffrage buttons along the way. Even the defenseless car conductors who collect their fares must face the volley of arguments and persuasive wiles. They are having some interesting experiences ranging from that of having to make their speeches in the street in order that the entrance to a hotel bar may be left clear to that of receiving flowers and many small gifts from women sympathizers at the meetings.

Miss Boston has always had a soft spot for the faithful postman, who in warm weather and cold weather, walks briskly through the corridor into the office, hands out his contributions with a smile and a pleasant greeting and goes his lengthy way. Some people think that working for Uncle Sam is all play, but those who watch the letter carriers are aware that no class of employees work harder in earning their modest stipend. It was a pleasure to hear the other day of the efforts that are being made by a national association with local branches to influence Congress to establish a retirement scheme for the benefit of government employees—presumably one of those projects that do not involve making men and women recipients of a charitable dole but that need a little practical help in getting a contributory plan into operation. There is a movement among the clerks at the post office in Boston and among other civil service employees here and elsewhere in New England to organize an association to cooperate with the United States Civil Service Retirement Association which from its headquarters in Washington has been agitating this important subject for a number of years past. Theirs has evidently been an up hill fight, as our Massachusetts Representative, Mr. Gillett, has found, for he wrote recently "As you know I feel deeply the necessity of a retirement law, and personally am willing to saddle a good deal of the initial expense on the Government for the providing for present aged employees, because I believe it would in the long run be economy for the Government, but I have not been able to find much sentiment in the House for that, and so can only go as fast as opinion there will allow which to me has been very discouraging."

It is a fight, however, that is certain to continue until something is accomplished. It is part of the larger campaign for wage earner's insurance against such casualities as superannuation, premature death, accident and invalidity—contingencies that can be adequately guarded against only by application of insurance principles such as those prevailing in the contributory pension schemes of Germany or Denmark or the voluntary pension scheme that has been authorized by the Massachusetts legislature. POETESS PRAISES FAIR.

Edna Dean Proctor, Revered by Literary Men, Sees the A. Y. P. E.

Edna Dean Proctor, the New England poetess whose works have covered two generations, and who is now revered by literary men as a surviving representative of America's greatest literary period, visited the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle in July, and declared the Exposition the most beautiful she had seen in her long lifetime. She came across the country from Boston that she might see the exposition, the Northwest and Alaska, and was one of a party which included Joe Mitchell Chapple, of the National Magazine, and Mrs. Chapple. The friend of Holmes, Whittier, Greeley, Henry Ward Beecher, and many other celebrities, spoke of her trip as follows:

"Spokane first took my breath away. I found it a wonderful city, but now I find Seattle still more wonderful. There is none of the crudity I expected to find in the West, and it is almost impossible to believe that such astonishing development has taken place since I made the journey to the Coast on one of the first Union Pacific trains in 1869. Not only do I find the scenery of unsurpassed beauty, but the cities are as progressive and attractive as the cities of the East. The things that impress me most at the Exposition are its compactness, its scenic location, and its floral display. The first makes it easy to get about without wearing oneself out, and is, I think, a great improvement in the arrangement of the fair.

"The mountains and lakes seem a part of the Exposition, and conspire with the stately firs that are everywhere about the grounds to make the site the most pisturesque and remarkable any Exposition has had, either here or in Europe, that it has been my good fortune to see.

"The floral display is marvelious. Even Windsor castle's geranium beds fall short of having the beauty of those lining the ways at the Seattle fair. The formal gardens are the most striking thing of their kind which I have seen. The grounds everywhere are a maze of beauty."

The poetess was especially interested in the Hawaiian exhibit. She made friends with one of the pretty Kanaka girls there, and after eating Hawaiian pineapple, and hearing Hawaiian minstrels sing Queen Lil's plaintive "Aloha Oe," she left the building wearing a "lei," the garland which the natives throw over the shoulders of those saying farewell to the "Islands of the Blessed."

FIREMEN IN PERIL

Twenty-Two Rendered Unconscious by Gas In New York Fire

New York, Aug. 7.—Twenty-two firemen were dragged out unconscious and three others received serious injuries in the course of a forty-minute blaze which destroyed 4000 men's hats and did other damage in a shop near Madison Square last night.

An explosion of illuminating gas which occurred soon after the fire was discovered threw a dozen firemen unconscious into the street. The explosion so wrecked the front of the building that it became necessary to tunnel an opening for the fire fighters through a three-foot brick wall at the side of the store. Into this opening a dozen heavy streams of water were poured, quickly drenching out the blaze.

After the fire was conquered several firemen working among the debris were overcome by escaping gas, or hurt by falling timbers.

CLARKSON IS FOUND

Former Judge Wandered Away During a Lapse of Memory

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 7.—Former Judge Joseph R. Clarkson, who disappeared from his home here on July 14, was found safe and well at Sabula, Ia. Clarkson was working in a pearl button factory.

It was only a few miles from Sabula that Clarkson was found eighteen years ago after he disappeared from Omaha, where he then lived, under circumstances similar to the present case. He could remember nothing of the weeks during which he was walking about the country.

It is said that on various occasions Clarkson has had lapses of memory, but only twice has he left home for any length of time.

TURKEY AND GREEGE MAY SOON CLASH

Situation In Macedonia and Crete Considered Very Grave

Constantinople, Aug. 7.—The porte has sent a note to Greece demanding a formal declaration by that country of non-interference in Cretan affairs.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Apprehension of serious trouble between Turkey and Greece is conveyed in telegrams received by the state department from Athens.

The Macedonian and Cretan situation is referred to in these communications as very grave.

MANY STRIKERS TO RETURN

Government Unlikely to Mediate In Strike of Swedish Workmen

Stockholm, Aug. 7.—The tense situation arising from the general strike proclaimed a few days ago seems to be relaxing. The employers of some of the largest plants in Stockholm announce that their men will return to work Monday.

It is reported that the central federation of trades unions has requested the government to mediate in the present crisis, but this is denied by the chairman of the federation. The president of the employers' federation declares that intervention by the government would be without result, as the differences between the men and the employers is too great to be settled in such a manner.

CHINA IS WAKING UP

Tinkle of American Telephone Will Be Heard In Her Capital City

New York, Aug. 7.—Word has just been received here by cable that the Chinese government has signed a contract with a New York company for the installation of a complete telephone system in Pekin, at a cost of $150,000. The plant will have an ultimate capacity of 20,000 lines, but only 2500 will be set up at first.

The contract was awarded after two years of sharp European competition and is regarded as significant of China's attitude toward western civilization in general. There are now said to be not more than 2000 telephones in the entire empire, largely in the foreign settlements.

TRIED TO KILL HERSELF

"Rat" Stopped Progress of Bullet In a Young Woman's Head

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 7.—A "rat" in her hair saved the life of Bertha Delina, a young woman who shot herself in the head in an attempt at suicide here.

When the physicians at the hospital pulled the hair from the wound the bullet came out with the mass of false adornment. The woman will recover.

Ahearn Loses World's Record

New York, Aug. 7.—The world's record in the hop-step-and-jump, made by Daniel F. Ahearn, has been disallowed on a technicality. The distance—50 feet, 6½ inches, half a foot better than the best previous record—was carefully measured, but Ahearn had failed to file his entry blank properly and is accordingly ineligible.

For the Ledger.

FASHIONABLE BAR HARBOR.

This summer at Bar Harbor one needs every sort of gown, coat and wrap except those pertaining to the automobile for the town authorities have voted to entirely exclude the "devil wagon" from the place. A large majority of the summer residents concur with the natives in this decision for the roads here are so narrow, winding and picturesque, that though delightful for driving, they become positive death traps if motors are allowed to run over them.

COLORED COATS FOR THIN DRESSES.

Colored coats for thin dresses add novelty to the summer's color schemes. A very chic coat lately worn by a fashionable woman with a white frock was made of Chartreuse green taffeta veiled with marine blue chiffon. The use of quite vivid colors veiled with a neutral tone is one of Fashion's latest caprices for such wraps. To wear with light dresses white, cream color, pale green, pale blue, gray, etc., are among the colors chosen for these silk coats. In spite of its fragility chiffon is decidedly the season's fad and coats and frocks are both veiled lavishly with the diaphanous fabric.

FROCKS FOR BALLS AND DANCES.

Evening gowns are gorgeous. At the Wednesday evening hops, at the Malvern the women are superbly gowned. Some of the loveliest costumes are of satin. A handsome woman who has lately joined the cottage colony appeared in a costume of white satin that had a certain resemblance to a Greek robe as the waist was draped around the decolletage and embroidered in gold. There was a tunic effect over the skirt richly embroidered in gold around the bottom and up each side. Oriental colors are modish for trimmings. A pale blue silk mousseline worn at a dinner party last week had an odd trimming of braiding done in Oriental colors put on in cuirasse style.

INEXPENSIVE COTTONS SMART.

More and more one sees inexpensive cotton dresses that are smartly designed and neatly made worn "cheek by jowl" with more costly imported materials. The American printed wash fabrics now come in such attractive fast colors, and in up to date checks and plaids in new crepe effects that they make ideal school and home dresses for use the year round. People to whom cost is not of importance prefer to clothe their children in cotton for hygienic reasons, long warm coats worn out of doors furnishing the needed protection in cold weather.

LINGERIE AND LINEN PARASOLS.

Every morning or afternoon costume is completed by a parasol, hat, gloves, shoes and stockings to match. Lingerie and linen parasols are especially successful at the sea shore. They may be rather plain or elaborated with embroidery or lace. Dainty sunshades of sheer lawn are pintucked all over and made up with a deep hemstitch around the edge. These are mounted on colored silk linings to match various costumes and the effect is chic in the extreme. The fashionable parasol handle is rather long and extreme Directoire handles are sometimes seen but a more moderate length is generally favored.

AIRY HEADGEAR.

The lingerie hats are especially becoming to young girls but rather trying to older women. All the most successful are on the Charlotte Corday order with a lace frill around the edge. An especially charming creation favored by a young girl who was introduced into society in Washington last winter has a full draped crown across which run lines of delicately embroidered linen alternating with lines of lace. A deep frill falls over the hair and forehead. This hat is trimmed with a flat wreath of crushed pink roses and a big bow of black velvet ribbon on one side.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

Keith's Theatre.

There was a time when such an organization as the Fadettes was considered a whole show in itself at highest prices, but B. F. Keith evidently believes in double shows, judging by the program he is announcing for the week of August 9th. Besides the Fadettes there is a list of vaudeville attractions such as one would expect to find only at the height of the season, for every act is without exception a star feature. Ben Welch, the Hebrew and Italian impersonator is now conceded to be one of the foremost in this class of work, and he is on the bill. Then there is Fred St. Onge, the old time champion bicyclist, who with his company of experts, gives one of the most difficult and amusing wheel acts that has ever been put forth. Then there is Sadie Jansen, the musical comedy star, the Flying Martins, who have one of the swiftest acrobatic acts; Clinton and Jermon in a sketch called "Back to Louisville," and Estelle Wordette and Company in a sketch.

Orpheum Theatre.

Lindsay Morison will next week depart from the beaten track of stock producers and will enter the class of original producers when he will present for the first time on any stage, the beautiful romantic Scotch comedy drama "Annie Laurie." The production of this piece has a double interest for Bostonians because it is the work of one of the Hub's own dramatists, Mr. M. Douglass Flattery. Mr. Flattery has received many offers from New York managers to produce this piece, and Manager Morison considers himself very lucky in being able to present it before it was taken over by an outside producer. The scenes of the play are laid during the period centering around the year 1738 just before the invasion of William of Orange. Historically the action is as correct as it is possible to make a drama, and all the characters from Annie Laurie down are real living characters of Scotch history, but it is not in this historical accuracy in which lies the chief charm of this beautiful play. It is in the love story which runs through it, and the delightfully humorous situations that mark the action of the piece.

Manager Morison has in preparation for the week of August 16 a mammoth production of that greatest of all rural plays "Quincy Adams Sawyer." This piece has touched the hearts of thousands of people throughout the country, but it is peculiarly charming to people of Boston and vicinity. No detail of the original production which appeared a short while ago at the Boston theatre will be missing, and the lines will be admirably handled by the members of the Morison Stock company. This will be the first time that "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has ever been released for stock in this country.

Paragon Park.

The regular Saturday night fireworks feature at Paragon Park has proven such a big hit that Manager Dodge has gone more elaborately into his pyrotechnic program and by arrangement with the American Fireworks Company he has a display which is made exclusively for this resort. In fact, the manufacturers have installed a branch plant at Nantasket especially for making an exhibition at Paragon Saturday nights which may not be seen anywhere else. It amounts to a regular 4th of July event every Saturday night, and not only do the boats go down from Boston on Saturday evening loaded to their capacity, but the automobilists turn out in extraordinary numbers, the trolleys from nearby cities and towns are filled to the limit and the summer residents all along the South Shore make Paragon Park their sightseeing place that night. To please the ear there are the free band concerts by the All American band and the singing of Johnny Maguire and the Paragon quartet. They also sing with the Hungarian orchestra in the palm garden. Down at Monkeyland and the Jungle there is still another series of free concerts by the Filipino

WAR GAME IN MASSACHUSETTS

The Expense Not Nearly So Great as Many Believed

IT IS ESTIMATED AT $165,000

Farmers and Town Selectmen Get Busy In Anticipation of Strenuous Time—Preparing to Avoid Losses at Hands of Either Friend or Foe—Close Fighting Forbidden During Maneuvers to Prevent Loss of Life

Boston, Aug. 7.—At the state house it was learned that the coming maneuvers of the Massachusetts state militia will cost approximately $165,000 and not $500,000, as some believed.

The pay of the Massachusetts defending force will not exceed $140,000, including the pay of the officers, which is upon a per diem basis. To this amount has been added $15,000 for subsistence and $10,000 for transportation, both of the estimates being considered conservative.

Fences inclosing the farms have suddenly been resurrected and repaired and barns and outhouses secured to prevent either the loss of cattle or poultry during the invasion.

In the towns, too, the selectmen have been busy preparing for the safety and comfort of both residents and visitors by appointing special policemen, and they will see that the laws are not transgressed by either friend or foe during the war maneuvers of the week.

It has also been learned that there will be no close fighting in the coming war game. The sham fighting will be done at a distance. Fearing that loss of life might result, the officials have given warning to officers, noncommissioned officers and umpires that the hostile forces must not come close enough to each other to get injured by blank cartridge fire. The umpires have been ordered to rule one side out in the skirmishes before it comes into the danger zone.

Hundreds of umpires will be scattered over the fields to see that this order is strictly carried out.

The non-commissioned officers have received special orders that on no account must they hold their ground if the other side loses control of itself through mistakes and charges.

In former years at maneuvers men have been killed from the effects of blank cartridges which were fired at too close range.

Orders concerning rations and what is to be taken by the men have also been issued.

NO BOOZE IN ALABAMA

One and a Half Percent the Limit For Alcohol In Drinks

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 7.—The drastic Carmichael prohibition bill was passed by the senate, 28 to 2, and now awaits the signature of Alabama's prohibition governor to become a law. The bill forbids the sale of drinks containing more than 1½ percent of alcohol.

From all parts of the state come reports that near-beer saloons, as well as clubs wherein liquors have been dispensed to members under the locker system, are dismantling, and the state is almost as "dry" as it can be.

MUST RETURN TO RUSSIA

Woman Immigrant In Male Attire Failed to Fool Inspectors

New York, Aug. 7.—Among the steerage passengers on the Red Star liner Kroonland was one registered as David Kovatz, 38 years old, a Russian, who was taken to Ellis Island with the other immigrants.

"David," when questioned, spoke in decidedly feminine tones and the inspectors referred the matter to their superiors, who reported that Kovatz was a woman. She had assumed male attire, she said, in the hope that she could enter the country more readily.

She will be deported on the ground that she is likely to become a public charge.

Russia Plans Big Navy

St. Petersburg, Aug. 7.—Russia's naval program for the next few years, according to plans just completed by the navy department, includes the construction of eight battleships, a division of armored cruisers and thirty-six torpedo boats.

Wild Boars For Griscom

Washington, Aug. 7.—Rather a "lively" gift is in store for Lloyd Griscom, formerly the ambassador to Italy, as a token from the king of that country. It consists of six young wild boars. They will arrive at New York on Aug. 8.

Anti-Chinese Feeling In Chile

Valparaiso, Aug. 7.—Antagonism against the Chinese at Iquique has reached a dangerous stage and Chinamen there have telegraphed the Pekin government to stop the emigration of their countrymen to Chile.

A YEAR'S JOB AHEAD

Work on Battleship Maine Will Amount to General Rebuilding

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 7.—Work towards placing the battleship Maine in condition to go out of commission for the purpose of installing new boilers has begun at the navy yard.

Around the work of installing the new boilers there will be effected a series of repairs which will amount nearly to a general rebuilding. For this purpose almost $500,000 is available. It is estimated that it will take at least a year to fit the Maine for commission.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The battleships Alabama and Maine were yesterday placed out of commission in order that extensive repairs may be made upon them. The battleships Kentucky and Kearsarge also will undergo repairs shortly.

FIVE HUNDRED KILLED

Spaniards Meet With Another Severe Reverse In War With Moors

Lisbon, Aug. 7.—The Secolis' Melilla correspondent says that the Spaniards have lost 500 men killed and 1200 wounded in the last three days, 1200 wounded in the last three days' fighting with the Moorish tribesmen, and that 35 officers and 150 men have fallen into the hands of the Moors, who tortured them before putting them to death.

Madrid, Aug. 7.—Official dispatches from Melilla says that the Moors, in increased numbers, again attacked the advance posts of the Spaniards. Artillery shelled the plain of Nader, where horsemen were seen to be assembling. The reports also say that another convoy has been attacked by the Moors.

TAFT'S CAR WILL BE WHITE HOUSE

President Will Live In It During Two Months' Tour

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Taft has decided in general on the route of his 13,000-mile trip through the west and south. He will start from Boston Sept. 15, that day being his 52d birthday.

In his special car will be Secretary Carpenter, Captain Butt, his military aide, and several White House attaches.

During his tour the president will traverse the Royal Gorge of the Rocky Mountains, will visit the Alaska-Yukon exposition at Seattle, will spend three days in the famous Yosemite valley, will stop off at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and follow the trail down into the depth of that giant abyss, will greet the president of Mexico on the international bridge over the Rio Grande at El Paso on Oct. 16, will take a four days' sail down the Mississippi river, from St. Louis to New Orleans, with various stops en route, and will spend four days on the ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft, near Corpus Christi, Tex.

The tour will be one of the longest ever made by a president. For nearly two months the White House of the United States will be a railway car. The president returns to Washington Nov. 10.

BECOMES FIELD MARSHAL

Kitchener Has Supervision Over Vast Number of British Troops

London, Aug. 7.—Lord Kitchener, commander of the British forces in India, has been appointed to succeed the Duke of Connaught as inspector-general of the Mediterranean forces, which post the duke recently resigned on the ground of "the ineffective nature of the work and the useless expense to the nation involved therein."

Lord Kitchener will take the rank of field marshal and also become a member of the committee of imperial defense. He has command of the garrisons at Malta and Gibraltar, and all the British troops in Egypt, the Soudan and Cyprus.

VACATION IS BEGUN

President Taft Reaches His Summer Home on the "North Shore"

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 7.—President Taft's special car arrived at the South statalon, Boston, at 7 o'clock this morning, and the president reached Beverly at 8:57.

In Mr. Taft's car were Frederick Carpenter, his secretary, and Captain Butt, besides two secret service men.

Beekman Winthrop, acting secretary of the navy, and Mrs. Winthrop traveled on the same train en route for Boston.

Cotton Fires Become Numerous

Liverpool, Aug. 7.—Fire broke out in steamer Cuthbert while she was discharging her cargo of cotton here. The damage to the cargo was considerable. There have been numerous cotton fires in Liverpool recently and it is suspected they were of incendiary origin.

Woman Cuts Intruder's Throat

Gainesville, Ga., Aug. 7.—Edwin Matthews, a negro night porter at a local hotel, had his throat cut by Mrs. Mamie Lawson because he entered her room through a window. The negro is in a serious condition.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grand-father of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Birthplaces of Presidents.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

Abigail Adams Cairn.

Penns Hill, erecteld June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Burial Place of Presidents.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple street. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

Hancock Cemetery.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744, and many other notable people.

John Hancock Birthplace.

Adams street, junction of Dimmick and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

Presidents Adams Mansion.

BRIEFS

Club run of the Quincy Yacht club is to be on Sunday to Marblehead.

State inspectors have been samp-ing milk from various milk wagons this week.

Herbert Hines and Roy Coombs of Wollaston have returned from the summer school at Hyannis.

The past week has been very quiet at the public bath house at Quincy Point, the east wind and the rain keeping the crowd away.

John A. Welch, the Atlantic letter carrier returned to his duties Friday morning after a two weeks' vacation.

The Tuberculosis Relief committee will meet at the home of Mrs. C. A. Howland, 1150 Hancock street, Monday, August 9 at three o'clock.

Cyril F. Randall of Winter street has returned from the summer school at Hyannis, where he has been studying for the past few weeks. He expects to return in the fall to Middleboro where he is teaching school.

An ideal day for a ladies' day and the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht clubs are in great luck and the boats will carry many of the fair sex.

THREE MORE ARRESTS.

Fostello, Gourlin and McDermott Held on Charge of Assault.

Inspector Goodhue made three arrests in the Quincy Point assault case last night, taking Edward Fostello, James McDermott and Gostin Gourlin, on the charge of assault and battery on George Germaine of Quincy Point. These three with Fred Blacklock, who was arrested yesterday morning on the same charge, were arraigned in the district court this morning before Judge Avery, and after hearing the case, continued it until August 16. The four men were let out on $500 bail.

George Germaine, who has recovered sufficiently to be about, appeared in court this morning, and identified the four men. There is one more to come yet, but he has left the city and has not been located by the police.

LAW NOT ENFORCED.

A good many Wollaston people are wondering why the Quincy police officials do not enforce the motor boat muffler law which is applicable to many boats which rendezvous off the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht clubs. Several of the boats make a racket which would put a stone crusher to shame. It is known that several complaints have been filed with the police department but as yet no visible effort has been made to abate the nuisance, which under the Statutes is liable to a fine of not over $25.

BIRTHS.

WILLIAMS—In South Braintree, Aug. 1, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Williams of Pear street.

CASS—In Braintree, Aug. 2, a daughter to Mr and Mrs. Arthur W. Cass.

DEATHS.

ELLIS—At Wollaston, Aug. 6, Carrie B., wife of Stephen I. Ellis.

ARAWAK WINS IN HULL RACES

Ellen, Quincy Challenge Cup Winner, Wins Sonder Race

With weather conditions exactly opposite to those of Thursday, the second of the annual midsummer series of open races of the Boston yacht club, sailed yesterday off the club's station at Hull. Thursday the wind was blowing a gale, the sea was choppy and there was a continual drizzle all the afternoon, but yesterday the air was light, the sky clear and the water smooth, making yachting a very enjoyable sport.

The course was the same as Thursday, only the boats were sent around in the opposite direction. With the wind north-northeast the boats had a run from the starting buoy to the mark off Peddock's island then a broad reach to the Quincy Great Hill mark, a beat to Strawberry Hill, another run to the flag mark at the start, another reach to Sheep island, a boat to Strawberry hill, ending with a run to the finish, a distance of 9-1-2 miles. Some of the starters of the first day did not race, but there were others to take their places, making a total of 54 boats that were sent away in the eight classes.

The winners in the various classes were: Class P, Wianno, first rating Marie L; cats, Arawak; second rating, Gringo; sonders, Ellen; 18-footers, Reina; Hull one-design, Bonifor; dories, Barbara. All the classes provided good exciting races, the result in two not being decided until the last leg of the course.

The first class to get away was the 31-raters, and the others followed at five minute intervals. In the 31-rater class, the Wianno took the lead at the start, followed in order by the Timandra, Onda II, and the Essex. They held the same positions at the first turn at Peddocks. On the reach across to Quincy Great Hill, the Timandra pulled up on the Wianno and both luffed well outside their course. When nearly abeam of the turning mark, both squared about for the turn, and it was here that the Wianno and the Timandra fowled. The Timandra, on the outside called for room to make the turn, but hte Wianno failed to give way and the Timandra hit the Wianno just about at the main shrouds. This little delay allowed the Onda to catch up and the three had a fine race to the finish. The Wianno won, with the Essex and her time allowance second. The Onda was third and the Timandra last. The Wianno was protested by the Timandra at the finish.

In the sonder race the conditions of wind and water were just suited to the Ellen, the winner of the Quincy challenge cup. The Crooner, which had her mast carried away Thursday, did not race, but the starting of the Ellen made the same number of boats. It was Ellen weather, and she showed it, too. She ran away from the bunch and finished 11 minutes ahead of the Wolf, which in turn was several minutes ahead of the others.

The Massachusetts dories again had it all their own way, finishing one-two-three, with a New York boat in fourth place, and the Barbara in first place. In the 18-foot knockabout class, the Dorchen II led the class until the last run home from Strawberry Hill to the finish, when she was outrun and beaten by the Reina, which finished 1 minute 9 seconds to the good.

In class D, cape cats, the Arawak came home the winner about nine minutes ahead of the Busy Bee, which was second. The Almira was third, Iris fourth, Josephine fifth, Emeline sixth, and the Hustler last.

FIRE LOSSES THIS YEAR.

Smallest Total Loss In Several Years For Half Year.

That Quincy has been very lucky in the fire line this year will be seen when it is known that in the first six months of this year the total loss from fire has amounted to only $8000. These are the figures given to a Ledger representative this morning by Chief Williams of the fire department, and go to show that Quincy is not only lucky, but that it also has a very efficient fire department and also a "For a city the size of Quincy, a total loss from fire of only $8,000, is very efficient chief. The chief said, very good. The biggest fire we have had was the house in Atlantic, the night before the Fourth. As the worst part of the year for fires is over, it can readily be seen that the total loss for the whole year will be the smallest in many years."

WOLLASTON Y. C. LADIES' DAY

Sail, Review, Supper and Dance in Evening Features

One of the most successful ladies' days in its history was held by the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday afternoon and evening. It was early in the afternoon when the guests began to arrive and shortly after three the yachts started to take on their loads. Weather conditions were ideal and as a result the many boats which took out guests were well filled.

At 4.25 the starting gun was fired and after passing in review before Commodore F. E. Dawes, who with a large party was on the flagship Anona, a course was laid to Squantum, Houghs Neck and back to the club. The regatta committee was composed of the following, George H. Stebbins, H. K. Ellis, R. C. Crocker and G. S. Sherman.

At six, members and guests sat down to a supper of ham, potato salad, baked beans, rolls, pickles, doughnuts, cheese and coffee. The men served a record crowd of over 300.

Towers orchestra of Hingham furnished instrumental selections during the afternoon and played for the dancers in the evening. The entertainment committee consisted of F. E. Dawes, Frank F. Taylor, A. J. Podbury and George Winslow. The dance in the evening, which was attended by a crowd that filled the floor, brought to a close one of the most auspicious social events that the club has ever seen.

Following is a list of the boats and commanders taking part in the review, together with the guests:

Flagship Anona, Commodore F. E. Dawes—Ex-Commodore W. M. Chase, Captain and Mrs. M. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Johnson of Lowell, Miss Annabelle Marr, Mr. Stanley L. MacMillan, Miss Alice W. L. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Needham of Dorchester, Miss Cassie G. Gardner, Miss Ramah Baker, Miss Hattie Hayward of Hingham, Mrs. C. C. Hayward of Hingham, Mrs. E. G. Whiting of Brockton, Miss E. Lorane Gates, Miss Lillian Hendrickson, Mrs. Rice Southwick, Mr. Charles E. Crofoot, Miss Marcia L. Whiting and Miss Marion Whiting of Brockton and Mr. Albert Taylor.

Creole, Captain George D. Elmer—Miss Mary Gardiner, Miss Marion Cousins, Mrs. A. N. Potterton, Miss Irene Potterton, Miss Annie Thomas, Mr. A. N. Potterton, Mr. George D. Elmer, Jr., Mr. Elbert H. R. Gardiner.

Comus, Captain C. F. Austin—Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Polk, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Barlow, Mrs. John O'Neil, Master Clarence O'Neil, Miss Alice English, Miss Bertha Polk, Miss Lidia O'Neil, Miss Caroline O'Neil.

ASSAULTED AN OFFICER.

Peter Malaford of West Quincy was arraigned in the district court this morning charged with drunkenness and assault on officer Edward J. Curtin. The officer said he was attracted to the man at 3.30 Sunday morning by a disturbance on Cross street. Malaford had been put out of a house and was making a fuss because he claimed parties in the house had kept a quart of whisky from him. The officer made inquiries at the house and was told that there was nothing there that belonged to Malaford.

The officer then advised Malaford to go home but the latter refused and the officer arrested him for drunkenness. Malaford thereupon grabbed the officer by the throat and kicked him, tearing his uniform. A park police officer heard the noise and ran to officer Curtin's assistance. In court today Malaford was fined $5 for drunkennes and $15 for assault on the officer.

DEWEYS BEAT SPEED BOYS

Thompson Holds Locals to Four Hits. Other Games

Before a crowd of over 1,000 enthusiastic fans, the Quincy Old Colony leaguers were defeated by the Deweys Saturday at the Water street grounds, the score at the end of nine long drawn out innings being 3 to 2 in favor of the Admirals. There were several disagreeable incidents connected with the game. In the first place the work of Umpire Minnis was about as bad as anything seen on the local field this year. He was away off color, but did not confine his bad work to any one team or to any one department of the game. He was bad on balls and strikes and bad on the bases, and the Deweys suffered as much as the local team.

Another thing happened that went a long way towards hurting the chances of the team in this league and the support in this city, and that was the little argument that Burke and Duggan had in the sixth inning of the game. Burke had received a base on balls, stole second and got to third on an out. He was working hard for a run and as there were no out at the time, things looked pretty rosy for a score. Burke, who is very daring on the bases, was playing off, when a quick snap throw from Giroux caught him napping. Then came the trouble that ended in Burke leaving the field and declaring that he was through with Quincy team. As soon as the umpire called Burke out, Captain Duggan of the Quincy team ambled down the third base line and by the looks of things and by the result, gave Burke a severe call-down. Joe, after a few minutes came in to the players' bench took his bat and left the field, saying that he was through. This caused a lot of excitement, for there was no one on the bench, but Dresser a pitcher, to take Burke's place in the outfield. Sid Patterson then came to the rescue, and as he and Burke are old friends, he succeeded in inducing Joe to come back. In the rest of the game Burke proved to be the star, hitting, fielding and running the bases in a phenomenal way.

Such a thing as this is very bad for the success of any team and if it happened in the big leagues the offender would get a severe call from the management of the team and would probably be fined. Duggan should have let Burke alone, for although Joe is very reckless on the bases, it is natural for him and he has scored a lot of runs in this way. And besides Duggan had no license to call him the way he did for it was only a short while before that he was caught off first in the same way, and even easier than Burke. Billy is too hot-headed, and while it is perfectly right and proper to fight for everything and to reprimand his players if they do wrong, still it is not well to lose one's head and drive one of his men off the field. It would be much better to tell the offender to be a little more careful the next time and let it go at that.

Sid Patterson was in the box for the locals and pitched in his usual hard luck. It would be hard to find a more hard luck pitcher than the same Sid, for it seems that when he

LAWN PARTY.

The estate of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jones of Grandview avenue, Wollaston, was the scene of a largely attended society event on Saturday evening, the occasion being a lawn party in honor of their daughter, Miss Gertrude T. Jones. The younger set of Wollaston and many from Quincy to the number of over sixty were present and an exceedingly merry time was enjoyed by all. Myriads of lanterns decorated the lawn and piazzas and the pretty costumes of the fair sex flitting here and there with their escorts formed an attractive picture.

A specially-constructed platform, decorated with flags and Japanese lanterns, was the scene of dancing through the evening and nearly all took part in this popular pastime to the music of an orchestra. Refreshments were served.

Following the dancing the guests adjourned to the house where the remainder of the evening was taken up with popular songs, Mr. William Weston presiding at the piano.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Many friends of Mastor Harry Brundage of Quincy avenue assembled at his home Friday afternoon and presented him with a beautiful signet ring in behalf of their friendship. Harry was a much surprised lad and showed his appreciation in a very enthusiastic manner. The presentation was made by Beatrice Fenby. The afternoon was spent playing games and later refreshments were served. The party was chaperoned by Miss Myrtle Brundage and Miss Louise Moyle.

With her new mast, the Crooner was the "big stick" on Saturday, beating everything in sight at Hull.

The Quincy-Dewey game of Saturday was one of those games which go to show that a championship team can lose once in awhile.

The garden produce just beginning to come into the market looks inviting enough to tempt most anybody to become a vegetarian.

Nearly everybody was glad that yesterday was Sunday on account of the excessive heat and yet from the tremendous travel that passed through Quincy thousands of people who would have fretted at the heat on a working day, didn't seem to mind the day hardly any.

People who do not live in the vicinity of Wollaston beach but who went there Saturday to attend the ladies' day celebrations of the Wollaston and Squantum yacht clubs, appreciated the lack of street railway accomodations for that section, especially in the summer time. It does seem that this section, with its handsome water front and metropolitan boulevard, is entitled to something better than cars every hour.

This state will be in a state of seige beginning next Sunday and for a week state militia and regular troops will combine to attack and defend Boston. Some of the troops of the regular army are expected to appear in this vicinity somewhere and all property damaged by the troops of either side will be paid for. If the regulation red tape methods of the government are followed in this matter, the grandchildren of the present owners of damaged property may be reimbursed.

The fire department of this city has had some peculiar fires to handle but it is doubtful if it ever was called to a power boat 100 yards from shore until early Sunday morning. As the tide was out it was impossible to reach the boat but there was no need of the service of the firemen as the fire had practically spent itself when the department reached the beach. The increase in power boats only goes to show that the firemen of the present and future have got to be prepared to fight fires on land and sea if not among airships of the clouds.

The reported losses by fire of $8000 during the first six months of the year is the lowest recorded in Quincy in many years and speaks well for the promptness and efficiency of the fire department. As most of the fires to which the firemen are called, can be extinguished with a strong chemical stream if the apparatus gets there quickly enough, it would be an excellent idea to equip the city with an auto chemical. This apparatus has been tried in other cities with excellent results.

Congratulations to Special officer Thomas Malone who captured a house breaker Saturday after he was obliged to use fist and gun. It was a good piece of work and the thanks of every citizen is due such a faithful and efficient officer. A few lessons like this and the would-be house breakers will give Quincy a wide berth. It was a pity that some of the shots fired by the officer did not find their mark. There has been a little more than the average ratio of crime in this city during the past week but the police work has kept pace and there have been no embarrassing question marks left behind.

FOOD SCARCE IN STOCKHOLM

Strike Situation Complicated by Mutiny of Soldiers

KING GUSTAVE INTERVENES

His Efforts to Bring About a Compromise Between Employers and Strikers, However, Appear to Have but Slight Effect—Printers, Drivers, Telephone and Telegraph Operators to Be Called Out

Stockholm, Aug. 9.—The strike movement in Sweden has almost the entire country in its grip. Stockholm is suffering from lack of food and practically all the foreign tourists have left the city. But the most serious complication is the mutiny of two Swedish regiments in the north of the country, whose sympathies are with the workmen.

The tie-up of business as a result of the general strike is so serious that King Gustave has intervened in an endeavor to secure a compromise. The king on Sunday sent a message to the parties at conflict urging an early agreement and advising arbitration for the disputed questions.

After the king's message had been read and aprpoved at a cabinet meeting, he summoned to the palace the two leaders of the warring factions, Director VonSydow of the employes and Senator Lindquist, president of the Federation of Trades Unions, for a conference.

Apparently the king's efforts were of slight effect, for it is announced that the printers will strike today and the National Labor union issued a proclamation that, beginning today, every dray or other wagon whose driver who is not wearing a union permit badge will be stopped by the strikers. No exceptions, it is stated, will be made for owners driving their wagons.

The union further threatens to frustrate the attempts of the Stockholm street car company to start its cars today on the important line with the aid of the company's officials and the strike breakers. Over 1000 telephone and telegraph employes will strike Wednesday.

The Employers' association is paying out $40,000 daily to support its weaker members. The cash in the association's treasury is sufficient to keep up this support for three weeks, and when the funds in the treasury are exhausted the association has a reserve fund of $4,500,000 which may be used. The strikers daily are receiving large contributions from Denmark, Norway. Finland, Roumania and Bulgaria.

SENSE OF HUMAN GUILT

English Preacher Says It Is Lacking In Eliot's Religious Views

East Brookfield, Mass., Aug. 9.—Four thousand people attended the Northfield conference for Christian workers Sunday.

An attack on the religious doctrines recently brought forward by President (emeritus) Eliot of Harvard university marked the address by Dr. J. H. Jowett of Birmingham, Eng., who spoke on the "Conquering Christian."

Dr. Jowell assailed Eliot's views because he said "they lack all sense of human guilt, which is absolutely essential to any religious doctrine and which has been the motif of every great drama in history."

KING'S UNIQUE PRESENT

Half a Dozen Wild Boars For Diplomat Griscom's Hunting Camp

New York, Aug. 9.—Six wild boars, a present from the king of Italy to Lloyd C. Griscom, the former United States ambassador to Italy, who recently returned to this country from Rome, arrived here by steamer Duca Degli Abruzzi.

King Victor, knowing that Griscom had a hunting camp in Canada, sent the tuskers as a token of his appreciation of the ambassador's work in relieving the sufferers of the Messina earthquake. They will be shipped to Canada at once.

Family Suspect Foul Play

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 9.—The body of Martin McCarthy, 35 years old, a stableman, was found in Leverett pond. Death was due to drowning, although the body laid in only two feet of water. A medical examiner pronounced death to be accidental.

Heavy Shipments of Lumber

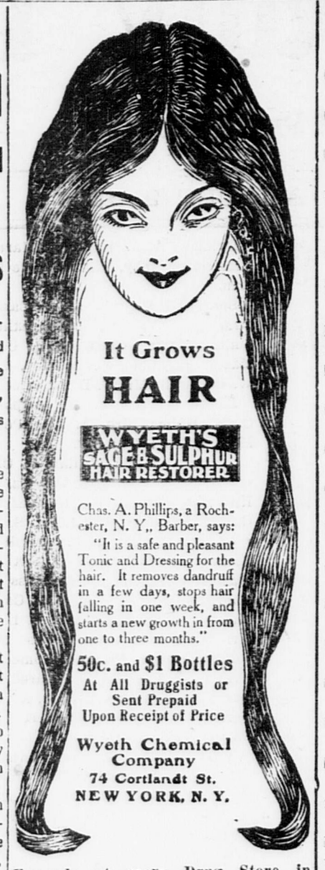

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 9.—The outward movement of lumber and timber from this port during the past week reached 18,000,000 feet, the largest in the past two years.

BONES SHATTERED BY FALL

Burglar Falls Through an Air-Shaft While Fleeing From Police

New York, Aug. 9.—The body of a young burglar dressed in stolen clothes was found lying limp at the bottom of an apartment house air-shaft, his skull crushed, his spine snapped and nearly every bone in his body broken. The police, who had chased the man hot foot up stairs and over the roof tops, had lost him in the darkness and supposed that he had escaped.

In falling, the man's feet, as he whirled through the air, shattered the glass of an area window and so frightened a widow, who lived with her children within, that a second burglar hunt was started which resulted in the discovery of the body. Beside it lay two suits of clothes, three umbrellas, three silk handkerchiefs and a pile of cheap jewelry.

The body was identified at the morgue by the man's mother as Patrick Healy, 24 years old.

SERVICES ONCE A YEAR

Ancient Rites Performed by Remnant of Once Powerful Narragansetts

Charlestown, R. I., Aug. 9.—The annual custom, long maintained, of assembling in the old Indian meeting house here for service and prayer, was fulfilled Sunday by the few remaining members of the depleted Narragansett tribes of Indians, residents of this state.

The little group in the church was much smaller than in other years, when tribal members from New York, Connecticut and Long Island came religiously to carry out the rites of their honored fathers.

The little church is opened but once a year. Two services were held. At each of the gatherings the ancient and peculiar rites which have been handed down from past generations of warriors were observed. Although lacking the raiment of their forefathers, these latter day members of the tribe retain their impressiveness even to the smallest detail.

TURKEY HAS NOT ISSUED ULTIMATUM

Her Protests to Greece Have Been Verbal Thus Far

London, Aug. 9.—The acute stage reached in the dispute between Turkey and Greece over Crete is causing anxiety in the European capitals such as always accompanies any diplomatic difficulty in that quarter of Europe. If there is any awkward development in the situation Europe will see that no mischevious effects result therefrom.

From the latest reports it appears that Turkey has confined herself to verbal protests, while the four protecting powers are making energetic representatives both to Constantinople and Athens to secure an amicable arrangement of the dispute.

The four powers insist that under no circumstances shall the Greek flag be hoisted over any public building in Crete, and the foreign consuls at Canea have been instructed to impress this fact upon the Cretan authorities.

DAMACES OF $100,000

Sought by Politician For Alleged Defamation of Character

Buffalo, Aug. 9.—Papers were filed here today with the county clerk by attorneys for William J. Conners, chairman of the Democratic state committee, in a suit against the owners of Collier's Weekly for $100,000 damages because of an article published July 11, 1908, in which Conners alleges he is charged with various crimes, including "assault, secret murder, riot and conspiracy."

An attorney has filed an answer to Collier's in which he denies there was any intention to bring the plaintiff into disgrace or that he has been injured.

Strikers Predict Trouble

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—Trouble is predicted by the striking employes of the Pressed Steel Car company's plant at Schoenville if any attempt is made to force forty-seven of their number, with their families, who have been served with eviction notices, to leave the company houses.

Trolley Car and Buggy Collide

Framingham, Mass., Aug. 9.—Maurice Bronstein of Roxbury and his 4-year-old son are dying here as the result of injuries received when a trolley car smashed a buggy in which they were riding. At the hospital is also Mrs. Grossman, who was badly shaken up.

Amicable Settlement In Sight

Chicago, Aug. 9.—According to present signs there will be no strike of the street car employes of Chicago. It is said that an offer of a wage increase based on length of service of employes will be made by the Chicago City Railway company.

Bad Season For Fishermen

St. John's, Aug. 9.—Advices from Labrador report the failure of the fisheries off that coast, owing to the ice blockade. Unless this barrier is removed soon a serious situation to 25,000 men and their families is inevitable.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

My Lady Romance has many attendants. Mainly they are clad in hauberk and helm, or they carry rapiers at their sides and swear strange oaths. But sometimes we encounter in the pages of a novel a genuine knight in modern broadcloth or in tweed, who speaks the language of our own day and may be met on Broadway or State street. Such is Philip Kirkwood, artist painter, whose adventures in pursuit of the mysterious black bag and whose heroic deeds in the service of his beautiful lady-love are worth the staying up late o' nights to read. To descend to the idiom of the day, "The Black Bag" is "the real thing" in the story line, thrilling, mysterious—but not too mysterious—and most interesting.

CHAPTER I.

UPON a certain dreary April afternoon in the year of grace 1906 the apprehensions of Philip Kirkwood, Esq., painter, were enlivened by the discovery that he was occupying that singularly distressing social position which may be summed up succinctly in a phrase through long usage grown proverbial, "alone in London." Inevitably an extremist because of his youth (he had just turned twenty-five), he took no count of mitigating matters and would hotly have resented the suggestion that his case was anything but altogether deplorable and forlorn.

That he was not actually at the end of his resources went for nothing. He held the distinction a quibble, mockingly immaterial, like the store of guineas in his pocket, too insignificant for mention when contrasted with his needs. And his base of supplies, the American city of his nativity, whence, and not without a glow of pride in his secret heart, he was wont to register at foreign hostelries, had been arbitrarily cut off from him by one of those accidents sardonically classified by insurance and express corporations as acts of God.

Now, to one who has lived all his days serenely in accord with the dictates of his own sweet will, taking no thought for the morrow, such a situation naturally seems both appalling and intolerable, at the first blush. It must be confessed that, to begin with, Kirkwood drew a long and disconsolate face over his fix.

Then he resolutely shrugged it off and went in search of man's most faithful dumb friend—to wit, his pipe, the which, when found and filled, he lighted with a spill twisted from the envelope of a cable message.

"It's about time," he announced, watching the paper blacken and burn in the grate fire, "that I was doing something to prove my title to a living." And this was all his valedictory to a vanished competence. "Anyway, I'm a sight better off than those poor devils over there. I really have a great deal to be thankful for now that my attention's drawn to it."

For the ensuing few minutes he thought it all over, soberly, but with a stout heart, standing at a window of his bedroom in the Hotel Pless, hands deep in trousers pockets, pipe fuming voluminously, his gaze wandering out over a blurred infinitude of wet, shining roofs and sooty chimney pots.

There came a rapping at the door.

The knob was turned, and the door opened. Kirkwood, swinging on one heel, beheld, hesitant upon the threshold, a diminutive figure in the livery of the Pless pages.

"Mr. Kirkwood?"

Kirkwood nodded.

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

Kirkwood nodded again, smiling.

"Show him up, please," he said, but before the words were fairly out of his mouth a man stepped into the room.

"Mr. Brentwick!" Kirkwood almost shouted, jumping forward to seize his visitor's hand.

"My dear boy!" replied the latter, "I'm delighted to see you. Got your note not an hour ago and came at once—you see."

"It was mighty good of you. Sit down, please. Here are cigars. Why, a moment ago I was the most miserable and lonely mortal on the footstool."

"I can fancy." The elder man looked up, smiling, at Kirkwood. "The management knows me," he offered explanation of his unceremonious appearance, "so I took the liberty of following on the heels of the bell hop, dear boy. And how are you? Why the anxious undertone I detected in your note?"

He continued to stare curiously into Kirkwood's face. At a glance this Mr. Brentwick was a man of tallish figure and rather slender, with a countenance thin and flushed a sensitive pink, out of which his eyes shone, keen, alert, humorous and a trace wistful behind his glasses. His years were indeterminate, with the aspect of fifty, the spirit and the verve of thirty assorted oddly. But his hands were old, delicate, fine and fragile, and the lips beneath the drooping white mustache at times trembled, almost imperceptibly, with the generous sentiments that come with mellow age. He held his back straight and his head with an air—an air that was not a swagger, but the sign token of seasoned experience in the world. The most carping could have found no flaw in the quiet taste of his attire. To sum up, Kirkwood's very good friend, and his only one then in London, Mr. Brentwick, looked and was an English gentleman.

"Why?" he persisted as the younger man hesitated. "I am here to find out. Tonight I leave for the continent. In the meantime"—

"And at midnight I sail for the States," added Kirkwood. "That is mainly why I wished to see you—to say goodby for the time."

"To fight it out, shoulder to shoulder, with my brethren in adversity."

The cloud lifted. "That is the spirit!" declared the elder man. "For the moment I did you the injustice to believe that you were running away. But now I understand. Forgive me. Pardon, too, the stupidity which I must lay at the door of my advancing years. To me the thought of you as a Parisian fixture has become such a commonplace, Philip, that the news of the disaster hardly stirred me. Now I remember that you are a Californian."

"I was born in San Francisco," affirmed Kirkwood, a bit sadly. "My father and mother were buried there."

"And your fortune?"

"I inherited my father's interest in the firm of Kirkwood & Vanderlip. When I came over to study painting I left everything in Vanderlip's hands. The business afforded me a handsome living."

"You have heard from Mr. Vanderlip?"

"Fifteen minutes ago." Kirkwood took a cablegram, still damp, from his pocket and handed it to his guest. Unfolding it the latter read:

Kirkwood, Pless, London:
Stay where you are. No good coming back. Everything gone. No insurance. Letter follows. VANDERLIP.

"When I got the news in Paris," Kirkwood volunteered, "I tried the banks. They refused to honor my drafts. I had a little money in hand, enough to see me home, so I closed the studio and came across. I'm booked on the Minneapolis, sailing from Tilbury at daybreak. The boat train leaves at 11:30. I had hoped you might be able to dine with me and see me off."

In silence Brentwick returned the cable message. Then, with a thoughtful look, "You are sure this is wise?" he queried.

"It's the only thing I can see."

"But your partner says"—

"Naturally he thinks that by this time I should have learned to paint well enough to support myself for a few months until he can get things running again. Perhaps I might." Brentwick supported the presumption with a decided gesture. "But have I a right to leave Vanderlip to fight it out alone? For Vanderlip has a wife and kiddies to support. I"—

"Everything gone. No insurance."

"Your genius!"

"My ability, such as it is, and that only. It can wait. No; this means simply that I must come down from the clouds, plant my feet on solid earth and get to work."

"The sentiment is sound," admitted Brentwick, "the practice of it folly. Have you stopped to think what part a rising young portrait painter can contribute toward the rebuilding of a devastated city?"

"You can do yourself and your genius grave injustice, and I fear me you will, dear boy. It's in keeping with your heritage of American obstinacy. Now, if it were a question of money"—

"Mr. Brentwick," Kirkwood protested vehemently, "I've ample for my present needs," he added.

"Of course," conceded Brentwick, with a sigh. "I didn't really hope you would avail yourself of our friendship. Now, there's my home in Aspen Villas. You have seen it?"

"In your absence this afternoon your estimable butler, with commendable discretion, kept me without the doors," laughed the young man.

"It's a comfortable home. You would not consent to share it with me until"—

"You are more than good; but, honestly, I must sail tonight. I wanted only this chance to see you before I left. You'll dine with me, won't you?"

"If you would stay in London, Philip, we would dine together not once, but many times. As it is, I myself am booked for Munich, to be gone a week, on business. I have many affairs needing attention between now and the 9:10 train from Victoria. If you will be my guest at Aspen Villas"—

Dennen's restaurant and Dr. H. C. Hallowell summoned. The doctor found a very bad sprain and, after giving aid, had Calabro sent home in a depot carriage. Calabro said he hurt his ankle at Revere beach and had suffered agony all the way to Quincy.

LADIES' DAY OF SQUANTUM CLUB

Sail Around the Bay Followed By a Dance in Evening

Ladies' day was observed at the Squantum Yacht club Saturday afternoon and evening, many of the fair sex being in attendance. The sail and review which occupied a large part of the afternoon, although it was not as great a success as in former years owing to the large number of yachts absent at the Winthrop regatta, was however enjoyed by many.

Rear Commodore Eleazer F. Drew, in the absence of Commodore Charles M. Bryant was in command and was accompanied by a large party on his roomy yacht.

Returning a dainty luncheon was served on the broad piazzas of the club. Music by a competent orchestra was enjoyed by the guests throughout the afternoon and evening. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Alex F. Tobin, William A. Field and Walter S. Flander.

In the evening dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served by a group of young ladies consisting of Miss Marion Smith, Miss Gertrude Sass, Miss Hazel Jones, Miss Clara Mansfield and Miss Thompson. The floor was in charge of William A. Field.

Among the boats which took out parties were;

Flagship, Rear Commodore Eleazer F. Drew—Miss Jones, Mrs. E. F. Drew, Mrs. O. B. Millberry, Mrs. A. L. Brittan, Mrs. W. J. Croucher, Miss Helen L Croucher, Miss Lillian M. Town, Miss Bessie M. SLOW DAY'S SPORT.

Quincy Yacht Club Holds Annual Run To Marblehead.

The annual run of the Quincy yacht club to Marblehead was held Sunday, the boats getting from the club float shortly after 9 in the morning. Power boats and sailing sloops were the boats that went on the run, but owing to the light wind the sailing fleet had rather a slow time of it. Only the power craft reached the North Shore resort in any kind of season, they getting in about noon. The first of the sailboats did not arrive until dusk, and then only four put in an appearance.

In the power boats the Lottie, W. W. Gay, was the first in, and in Class A. the honors went to the Water Lily. Only four of the Class B. boats arrived, these being the Arawak, the Iris, the Almira, and the Hustler. The summary of the boats that arrived before dark was as follows:

Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	5 5 55
Iris, F. F. Crane	5 07 23
Almira, L. M. Whittemore	5 10 33

is in the box, the team behind him goes to pieces. They become dead on the bases and in the field, while at the bat they seem to be like a bunch of kids. Patterson twirled a fairly good game, but in the face of such batting as the team did behind him, it would be hard for any pitcher to win his game.

Thompson, the former Randolph box artist, was on the slab for Dewey, and he had the locals buffaloed all through the game. Four hits was the extent of the damage done, and these were so scattered that they did not amount to much of anything.

Quincy's two runs came as the result of errors, one coming in the seventh and the other in the following inning. In the seventh, Briggs doubled to left, with one out, and went to third on a passed ball. Duggan then went out Orcutt to Butman, and when Murray hit to Orcutt, the latter allowed the ball to get away, and Briggs scored. Murray died stealing. Joe Burke scored the other run in the next session. He started with a stinging single to left centre, and stole second on the first ball pitched. He immediately started in to try and draw a throw from the pitcher or the catcher and succeeded in getting Giroux to try his wing to second. The husky backstop of the visitors threw wild and by some fast running and a pretty slide at the plate, Burke scored. This ended the run getting for Quincy, for the next two were easy outs and there was one down at the time.

Dewey scored two runs in the second round. Giroux started the trouble with a single, and a wild pitch sent him to second. Then after Rudderham had fanned, Orcutt, who by the way, is a Quincy cast-off, came to time with a slashing drive to left field, that put Giroux across the pan. Orcutt went to second on the throw in to catch Giroux. Murray, seeing he could not get Giroux, threw to second to head off Orcutt. His throw was good, but Orcutt was on his way to third. So Donaher threw to third to catch him, and Dean let the ball get away, allowing Orcutt to tally.

It was not until the seventh that Dewey got her third run, and again Orcutt was the man who started the trouble, assisted very materially by a juicy error by Briggs, who dropped Courtney's throw of Orcutt's grounder. Ryan sacrificed Orcutt to second and Thompson and O'Dowd followed with singles that tallied Orcutt. Nash also came to time with a hit, but no one was allowed to score. With Redgate up and Butman on deck, and only one out, things certainly looked bad for Quincy. The crowd was yelling for Bobbie Dresser to go into the box, but Patterson was allowed to stay on the job. He showed his class, too, by causing Redgate to pop to Murray, Johnny not moving out of his tracks to catch the ball. This made the crowd breathe easier, but Butman was still to come. Sid then put on steam and the lanky first sacker of the Admirals took three swings at the air and sat down. Patterson was given a great hand when he came, for it was a good piece of work.

Quincy looked pretty weak Saturday, but all teams have their off days, and can not win all the time, so what is the use of knocking. The boys will do better next Saturday and they are still in the running. The score:

THE LEAGUE STANDING.

As Taunton and Quincy lost Saturday, they remain in the same relative standing, while Dewey by winning, climbs back into a tie with Quincy and Taunton for first place. Stoughton's defeat and wins by Rockland and Randolph, bring the latter up to an equal foting with Stoughton, making a triple tie for second place, as well as for first. The standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
QUINCY	7	6	.538
Taunton	7	6	.538
Dewey	7	6	.538
Stoughton	6	7	.461
Rockland	6	7	.461
Randolph	6	7	.461

MAKARIA LOSE AGAIN.

Unable to shake the hoodoo which has been following them for the past few weeks, the Makaria were defeated again Saturday by the Malden Athletics, the score being 13 to 2. Morey, the crack pitcher of the Malden high school team, was in the box for the visitors and allowed the Makarias but one hit, while his teamates hit Stan Bates for nine and played a fast game in the field. On the other hand, besides being unable to hit the ball, the home team played a wretched game in the field, making no less than 13 errors during the afternoon. The Makarias seem to be completely demoralized and a good shakeup in the team is what is needed to wake up the boys. The score by innings:

Makaria	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	—2	1	10

RED SOX WIN.

The Quincy Red Sox defeated the strong Milton Saturday at Milton town field, by the score of 8 to 7. Rice pitched a strong game for the Sox striking out 13 men. With the bases full and no one out in the second, Rice pulled himself together and fanned the next three batters. The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Milton A. A.	3	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	2	7	7	3

Batteries—Rice and McLeod. Carson and Cross.

ATLANTIC "PROS" DEFEATED.

The Atlantic Professionals were defeated Saturday 10 to 5, by the strong Ipswich team, at the laters' field. Both pitchers, Houghton for Ipswich and Driscoll for Atlantic, were hit hard, but the former received better support. Armstrong, Fay and Murphy made seven errors in the infield, which was too great a handicap for Driscoll to overcome. The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

HARDY WINS FIRST

The Hardy A. A. won the first game of a series with the Bryant, A. C. for the championship of West Quincy, the final score being 9 to 7. The game was hard fought all through and brought out several spectacular plays. The big feature of the game was the batting of Babe Badger, the first baseman of the Hardys. He hit for a triple, a double and a single.

The Hardy A. A. also wishes to say they are ready to meet the Copelands at any time and at any place.

OTHER LEAGUE GAMES.

Rockland defeated Stoughton Saturday and thereby went into a tie for second place. Fred Smith of this city was the star of the game, fielding and batting in a manner bordering on the phenomenal. He got three singles out of four times up, and the fourth time he laced a hummer down the third base line, that the umpire called foul. This robbed Fred of another hit. He knocked in five runs with his hits and scored one run himself. Good boy, Fred.

Randolph beat the Taunton champs 8 to 3, thus taking their straight game and bearing out Manager Hoye's prophecy that he would beat Taunton . The Randolph team is now out of last place and if it keeps up its present gait will soon be leading the bunch.

JENNIE FIRST OVER.

Quincy Yacht Club Power Boat Race Closest of The Season.

A race for power boats was held Saturday by the Quincy Yacht club and was one of the closest on record. The Jennie won on actual and elapsed time, being but five seconds ahead of the Mahdeen III who was second. The judges were John O. Hall, George S. Morse and W. H. Hudson. The summary:

MOTOR BOAT EXPLODED.

Man Aboard Burned and Fire Department Asked for Help.

L. A. Ogden of D. street, South Boston, was badly burned by an explosion of gasoline fumes on his power boat, the Dot, off the club house of the Quincy yacht club at Houghs Neck early Sunday morning. His boat was burned almost to the water's edge as a result of the fire which followed the explosion and the fire department was summoned by an alarm from box 17 which was rung in at 12.17.

The Dot was moored about 100 yards from shore not far from the end of the float of the Quincy yacht club. It is said Mr. Ogden was looking over the engine by the light of a lantern and that escaping gasoline fumes ignited. In an instant there was a flash and Mr. Ogden was thrown to the forward part of the boat. The boat became a mass of flames and Mr. Ogden with his head, face and hands badly burned, was obliged to jump overboard as did a companion who was with him.

The janitor of the yacht club house and friends, who were on the lower piazza, saw the flames and ran to the end of the float and pulled the two men up. The water was very low, fortunately, so the men were able to wade to the float. Dr. Fred E. Jones, who was visiting a patient in Houghs Neck, was summoned to the club house and dressed Mr. Ogden's burns. Somebody on shore who saw the fire, rang in an alarm from box 17, which brought combination 3 of Houghs Neck, relief hose 1 of the central fire station, Chief Williams and District Chief Packard. There was nothing for the firemen to do as the boat was too far out to reach and it had practically burned itself out by the time the firemen reached the place.

After Mr. Ogden's burns were attended to he was taken to his home. The Dot was badly burned, her machinery being a twisted mass of wreckage. She sank at high tide but was later towed onto the beach and bailed out.

ACCIDENT AVERTED.

Quick Work of Motorman Abbott Stops Car Just in Time.

It was reported about town Sunday evening that the 8 o'clock elevated car from Quincy square, Motorman William Abbott in charge, struck an obstruction just as the car turned the curve about 50 feet from Presidents bridge. But for the quick work of Motorman Abbott, it was said, a serious accident might have happened and several people killed. Constable Hultman heard of the trouble and went to the scene of the accident to look into the matter. He stated that he saw a big rock, weighing nearly 35 pounds in the vicinity of the accident, and upon further inquiry found that the car had very nearly struck the stone and would have done so but for the quick action of the motorman. He said the passengers received a severe shaking up, but further than that there was no damage done.

MEETS DEATH WHILE AT PLAY

South Quincy Boy Buried Beneath Tons of Sands

The two and one half year old son of Murdock Lamont of 71 Trafford street met with death in a very queer way about 11.30 this morning. While playing in the sand pits up on the Plains, between Centre street and hte railroad tracks, the banks caved in and buried the little boy. He was smothered to death before aid could be summoned. The banks were caused to cave in by boys who were playing at the time. Dr. Sargent was driving up Liberty street about that time and was told of the accident. Hurrying to the scene he found the little boy buried under the sand. He said the boy had been dead about 20 minutes when he found him.

BRIEFS

John T. Larkin, the Atlantic officer, returned to his duties Saturday after spending an enjoyable two weeks' vacation in the western part of the state. All are glad to see him back again.

Ernest Bates and family of Hunt street left Saturday for a few weeks' vacation in Greenbush, Mass.

The Reverend Samuel Irwin of Hope Chapel, Boston, returned Saturday night to his summer quarters at Mr. George Burrs' on Billings street, from a five weeks' trip through the West.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. K. Ruppel of Prospect street returned Sunday evening from their two weeks' vacation spent in New Hampshire.

Harry Oliver and his sister May, of Souther place, left Saturday for Newark, N. J. May will spend two weeks there with relatives while Harry, who has accepted a very desirable position there, will remain.

Sunday was about the busiest day of the season at the bath house at Quincy Point, it being estimated that over 500 people took a dip in the briny at that place. About 25 of the brownies swam across the river and back, a distance of about a mile.

One of the largest crowds of the season was at Houghs Neck Sunday, the cars to and from that resort being crowded all day. All the amusement places did a big business all day. The boat from Boston also carried large loads of passengers to and from the beach.

SANDSLIDE BURIES BOY

Little Lamont Boy Suffocated When Found By Neighbors

One of the saddest accidents ever occurring in this city happened Monday, just before noon, when little Peter W. Lamont, only 13 months old, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murdock Lamont of 71 Trafford street, was buried beneath tons of sand and suffocated before it was possible to rescue him. Seated in his go-cart, happy in the thought that he was out with the other children and feeling safe because his older sister was near, the little boy never thought of the danger. He was the baby of the home and the pride of the family. When his 9-year-old sister Beatrice took him out for a ride in his go-cart Monday morning, there was no happier human being on earth. Brother and sister made their way to a favorite playstead for South Quincy children, the sand pits between the Liberty street extension and the Granite branch of New Haven railroad.

Here every day dozens of children can be found enjoying themselves in the sand, making tunnels, houses and other things of like nature. The parents of the dead boy say that their children were never known to go there before, but it is thought that Beatrice was coaxed into it by some of her playmates.

On one side of the pit workmen had scooped out a large hole and this left the bank above in a very dangerous condition. The little children, however, did not think of danger at that time, thinking that they were perfectly safe in the place where they had played so many times before. Right beneath this overhanging bank stood the go-cart, with the thoughtless Peter sitting in it contentedly. Several of the children saw sand trickling down the bank, but not realizing the danger, it passed out of their minds without a thought. Suddenly and without the least warning the entire bank gave way and started to slide out from beneath the now excited children playing there. Some of them dashed from the place to places of safety, but others were not quite as successful and were buried up to their necks in the sand.

Quick to think of the baby boy, little Beatrice at once made an attempt to pull the go-cart from beneath the sand, but the wheels sank, and before she was able to rescue the child, the big landslide came down and buried the go-cart and the little boy. Two other boys were then seen to be buried to their necks in the sand, while the go-cart was lost to view altogether.

Beatrice Lamont and some of the other children, who had escaped the slide, did not know what to do and ran crying to the street while some of the more thoughtful ones, tried to dig out the two boys, whose heads were just visible above the sand. These boys were Joseph Tite and Fred DiBola, both 10 years old. The two boys were doing all in their power to extricate themselves, but it was hard work, as the sand was packed all round them in great masses. The rest of the children struggled with might and main to free their two companions and had just succeeded when Mrs. Marguerite Walore, who had been attracted by the cries of the children, arrived on the scene. She was closely followed by Mrs. Peter Savoie, who lives nearby.

The excited children immediately tried to tell the now frantic women the location of the go-cart, but they could not seem to remember the right spot. Twice they misdirected the women, but the third time the right spot was found, and with hopes of saving the babe, the women dug and dug. While the two women were engaged in their heroic struggles, calls were sent out for physicians, and Dr. W. L. Sargent, who happened to be in the vicinity, rushed to the spot with all possible haste, arriving just in time to see the go-cart being pulled from the sand. Shortly after Dr. Roderick McClellan arrived on the scene.

The two physicians tried all their skill on the little boy, but he had been dead about 20 minutes then. The crowd of children who had been playing there, were now sad and sick at heart, as they saw the little Lamont boy lying dead before them. Sympathetic friends went to the Lamont home and broke the news to the family, the members of which are heartbroken over the affair.

STOLEN PLAYTHINGS RECOVERED.

Officer Murray of the City square beat yesterday recovered the horse and carriage that were stolen from the yard of W. E. Blanchard on Presidents hill about three weeks ago. The horse and carriage were, in reality, only play things but their loss caused no end of heart-burnings on the part of the child from whom they were stolen. The playthings were stolen from Mr. Blanchard's yard and from the size of the playthings it was very evident to the police that they were taken by a large person. Investigations shows that there were two boys in the stealing and both were large boys; too large in fact to play with such toys.

These boys had run away from their home in North Weymouth, it is said, and were in this city several days before they were found. Officer Murray says they left the playthings with a family on Irving place. Anyhow the officer recovered the horse and carriage in this house yesterday and returned them to their little owner who was overjoyed at their recovery.

RED SOX AT ADAMS SHORE.

"Doc" Gessler, "Jake" Stahl, "Tris" Speaker, and "Joe" Wood, of the Boston American league baseball team, spent Sunday at Adams shore, as the guests of Benjamin Johnson, who has a beautiful bungalow at that place. During the day the boys went fishing and enjoyed the trip thoroughly. The boys showed that fly balls are not the only things they can catch, for each one succeeded in pulling in a good string of fish.

TIMELY TALK OF BASEBALL

Old Colony League Notes of Interest to All the Fans

Quincy kept up its reputation as a good baseball town Saturday by turning out over 1000 people to the Dewey-Quincy Old Colony league game. It was by far the biggest attendance of any city on the circuit and shows how this city will support a winning team. The team is now fighting for first place and the fans are watching the boys with interest.

It is certainly a close race in this little league, three teams tied for first place and three tied for second. No one team can seem to get the lead and hold it for any length of time. Taunton held it for a week at one time, but for the past three or four weeks there have been either two or three teams tied for first. There is bound to be a shakeup next Saturday, for Dewey and Taunton clash at Weymouth, and one or the other must drop from first place. Quincy meets Stoughton in this city, and if Stoughton wins she will be tied with Quincy and the loser of the Taunton-Dewey game, for second place. Rockland and Randolph cross bats at Randolph, and this means one hot game. If Randolph wins, the team jumps out of last place, as they are playing fast ball at present, it looks like Rockland for the cellar next Saturday. But you never can tell. At any rate there will be some fine sport next Saturday.

Arbie Dam pitched for Randolph Saturday and beat the Taunton champs 8 to 3. Besides pitching a good game he hit the ball hard, connecting for two pretty singles that drove in some runs.

"Buster" Burrill, the old time National and New England league player, was on first base for the Stoughton team Saturday, and played a great game. He accepted 18 chances without an error, and got one pretty hit.

Stoughton has got a new catcher in the person of Dunbar, the former Rockport backstop. Dunbar is a clever workman and has been with Rockport team for a number of seasons.

Fred Smith of this city, who is catching a star game for the Rockland team, had a big day Saturday. He got three slashing singles which drove in five runs and he scored one himself. Jimmy Mansfield, the former Rockland high school and Holy Cross star, played right field for Rockland and played a good game. Jimmy might be used to fill in, in case Martin got knocked out of the box.

Capt. "Pop" Mahar of the Rockland team was out of the game Saturday, but was on the coaching lines in uniform. Pop met with an accident to his hand in a recent game and this was the cause of his inability to play.

Delmar Orcutt, who was for a time, a member of the local team, played third base for the Deweys and proved to be Quincy's biggest stumbling block, outside of Thompson. He drove in the first run with a single to centre and cut off several by excellent stops.

Raftery, the former Rockland third baseman, is now playing the third bag for the York beach team, and is playing a great game. He was fast when in the Old Colony, but was a little too light for the teams of this league. He formerly played with championship interscholastic team from Mercersburg academy.

Manager Nash of the Deweys is to take a month's vacation and in his absence the team will be piloted by John Hurley of Neponset. Hurley has had a whole lot of experience with teams, having managed the old Wellingtons, Dorchester, Neponset-Dorchesters and other teams. Hurley says there are several places in the Dewey team that could be strengthened and he says he will have the men to fill in next Saturday against Taunton. Good luck, Hurley, but look out when you come to Quincy.

A week ago Saturday Quincy got eighteen hits and twelve runs. Last Saturday the local team got four hits and two runs, both the runs coming on errors. There is baseball for you.

A good example of the fickleness of baseball fans was seen Saturday at the Old Colony league grounds in this city. When Burke was caught napping off third by Giroux, there was murmur in the bleachers, wondering why he did not hold the base and something about throwing the game away. When Burke got the call from Duggan and started to leave the field, the crowd changed and when he came back into the game, he was a hero.

HAVERHILL ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

The plan of organization in Haverhill aims at centralized and co-operative work. One of the chief purposes of the board is to promote systematized co-operation and co-ordination and inaugurate a systematic exchange of information. Charity is a noble impulse for humanity that recoils from the cold spirit of calculation in the bestowal of its bounty. Figuring out in a business way the needs and deserts of claimants and striking balances with net results, may seem to detract somewhat from the grace of cheerful giving; but the harm done by misdirected and indiscriminate charity is a commonplace of social economies.

The administration of charity in a great city is a large business proposition calling for the constant attention of specialists in this work and Associated Charities are on the right track in working towards a metropolitan system on scientific lines of proved value.—Haverhill Gazette.

—A collection of souvenir postcards showing views of other libraries and library buildings will soon be on exhibition in the new public library at Wakefield if the plan of the librarian, Mrs. Harriet A. Shepard, is realized. The idea was started a fortnight ago, says the Transcript, when a local paper asked tourists to send such cards from whatever town or city they may be visiting to the librarian and the cards have been pouring in by every mail.

WILL START WORK AT ONCE

Plans for State Road on Quincy Avenue Nearly Completed

Division Engineer Farrington of the Massachusetts Highway commission visited this city Monday afternoon to close up the final details in connection with the plan to build part of Quincy avenue as a state highway. The commissioners have notified the city that this work will be taken up at once although no formal contract between the state and city has as yet been signed. Arrangements have progressed so far, though, that work can be commenced almost at any time from now on.

At present Quincy avenue from Newcomb square to a point nearly opposite the Kelliher and Keenan estates is a state highway and was built in good shape several years ago. Early in the winter Mayor Shea had several conferences with the state highway comissioners relative to building the rest of the street as a state highway and argued that most of the teaming that went beyond Scammell street on Quincy avenue was by people who lived outside of Quincy. This matter was investigated and was found to be in accordance with facts.

Mayor Shea tried to get the commissioners to build the avenue from where it now ends as a state highway to the corner of Water street but the commissioners declined to go as far as that on the ground that it was against their policy to take over and build a street where the car tracks were in the middle of the street. It was suggested that the car tracks might be moved to the westerly side of Quincy avenue as is the case from Scammell street to Newcomb square, but this was thought to be a dangerous move and it was practically decided to build the street from its present terminus opposite the Kelliher and Keenan estates, to Scammell street.

According to the understanding reached by the state and city authorities, the work of building the street will be done by the city and the cost will be paid by the state. This will mean a fine piece of street all the way from Newcomb square to Scammell street. The remainder of the avenue to School and Elm streets is in bad condition at present and may be built over by the city so that Quincy avenue throughout its entire length in this city may be one, continuous piece of good street.

CAMPING AT MEDWAY.

Mrs. E. A. Williams, Mrs. Newell and Mrs. Gould of North Adams, Mass., chaperoned a party of six young people on a two week's visit at Popolatic pond, Medway. During their visit Mr. Byam Bean celebrated his twenty-first birthday and in honor of the occasion, the cottage was very daintily decorated with cat-briar and flowers. The party which included Miss Cherry Newell, Mr. Byam Bean, Miss Ida I. Williams and Mr. George P. Smith of Somerville, Miss Isabella S. Mitchell and Mr. George H. Stebbins left on the Sunday evening train for Boston after a very enjoyable two weeks together.

Why not give the President a rest? It is for that he came to Massachusetts.

With a few more such accidents as were recorded over Sunday, the automobile "joy rider" will solve his own problem.

State house reports in the Boston papers suggest that Judge Avery is being mentioned as a candidate for the superior bench to succeed the late Judge Gaskill. Evidently the governor is looking for good material.

Considering the large number of automobiles that are dashing through the streets of cities and towns during the hours of darkness, it won't be long before carriages and wagons of all sorts will have to carry a red light behind in order to insure protection to themselves. Every day the newspapers are full of accidents to farmers' wagons and milk teams struck by rapidly moving automobiles. On a dark, unlighted street it is hard to distinguish an ordinary wagon and most automobiles get so close before such a team is seen that escapes from accidents are almost impossible.

The tragedy at South Quincy Monday where a baby boy, sitting in his little go-cart, was caught beneath an avalanche of sand and smothered to death, was a sad lesson that ought to come home to the parents of all little ones. There is nothing more attractive to a child than a big sand bank and yet there is nothing more menacing. Children love to burrow, make caves and play houses in the sand and the deeper they can scoop out a hole beneath a bank of this kind the better the fun for them but right there comes the element of danger. Little ones should be kept away from so dangerous a place as the fatality of Monday proves all too conclusively.

Engineers from the state highway commission were in this city yesterday afternoon looking over the part of Quincy avenue which the city wants the state to build as a highway of the commonwealth. Already that part of Quincy avenue from Newcomb square to a point opposite the Keenan property is a state highway and for some time past Mayor Shea has been trying to get the commissioners to build the remainder of the street from this point to Scammell street as a highway. It was the original idea of the mayor to have the street built by the state as far as Water street but the commissioners refused to consider any part of the street where street railway tracks were in the middle of the road and so a compromise to Scammell street was agreed upon It looks as if the commissioners were inclined to grant the city's petition and they ought to for Quincy avenue, beyond Scammell street, is used as much by out-of-town wagons and other vehicles as by Quincy citizens. If the state commissioners build the highway as far as Scammell street, the city should complete the street to Elm street and thus complete one long thoroughfare in an up-to-date manner.

Notwithstanding it is midsummer and warm at that the political pot has begun to simmer and it looks like a lively campaign this fall in several cities. Mayor Kent of Brockton is out with a statement that he does not care for a fourth term. In Quincy the talk is not loud but the whispers grow in strength. It is though by those cognizant with affairs at City Hall that a change is wanted and if the Republicans put up a strong man they will march to victory.

SHORTER STORE HOURS.

A movement is being pushed all over the country for shorter hours in retail stores, particularly in the country towns and smaller cities. In the early days of the country town the stores used to be open nearly every evening. The grangers used to call in to get their mail and talk the state of the crops and the latest prices on butter, while the yawning storekeeper tried to look cheerful on sales of a paper of pins or two.

Now-a-days the country stores are closing a good many evenings, and in time will get down to hours not unlike those in the large cities. Efforts are being made in many places for half holidays in summer. Many of the merchants oppose the idea, on the ground that it gives a place the look of a dead town. If the clerks would organize to get half holidays in neighboring places with which they compete, they would find their own merchants would make less objection. There is an old saying that the man who gets no vacation takes one all the time, which merchants might as well realize.—Beverly Times.

PLAYGROUNDS.

What Lynn Residents Think of Public Playgrounds.

"One of the best things Lynn ever did," is the verdict sent out by residents of East Lynn in the vicinity of Meadow park in answer to the question of what they think of the new playgrounds. When the playground question was first placed before them they had dire forebodings, but since the first two weeks have passed the success of the project has entirely altered sentiment.

No accidents have happened to mar the pleasures of the little ones in the girls' section, and but one accident has happened to the boys. This was one of a minor character, and could have been easily avoided. The attendance for the two weeks in the girls' section totals 9644.

Some of the benefits derived from the playgrounds are shown in sickly children improved mothers' minds relieved from anxiety for the safety of the little ones, and the saving of clothing, as the majority of the children are attired in rompers or jumpers. Property owners report an improvement in conduct of refractory boys of the neighborhood. Another advantage is that the children can picnic at the park every day with no expense to parents.

Politeness, unselfishness and economy and care with sand in the sand pits are impressed upon the children's minds. The teeter boards or tilts are in charge of four girls, who help the little children on and off. They place an older child on the ends to care for the younger ones and also to work the tilt. The new swings are in charge of girls not under 14 years of age. They place the children on the swings and start them on their aerial flights. Each child is given 30 of these flights. No child is permitted to stand on the swings. The "Giants' Stride," which the children term the merry-go-round, is one of the most popular attractions. This is supervised by girls of 12 years or over. The shute is in constant demand. The ascent is made by climbing up a ladder of 12 steps. The shute is not very long, but high enough to provide an exhilarating slide for the tots who maintain a continuous line throughout the day. The Golden Rule has been emphasized here.

No dogs are permitted in the park, and only very small boys have been allowed to enjoy the amusements of the girls' section. The older boys have permission to use the swings and tilts one hour in the early morning, one at noon and another at the close of the day. Generally the boys have been content to remain in their own portion of the playgrounds, but very little trouble has ensued.

Some good work in modeling has been done in the sand pits by the young people. Other work accomplished was the sewing of numerous bean bags which were afterwards used by the manufacturers.

The biggest day since the opening was on Monday, July 26, when 552 children enjoyed amusements at the playground. The weather has been of the best since the opening of the new portion, and each day the attendance has been over the century mark. On several days mothers with their children have gathered at the park in the early morning and have remained there until the evening. These gatherings came from all sections of the city. The value of the spot as a place of recreation for mothers and children is increasing every day.

GRAND ARMY POLITICS

Claimants For Honors Already Busy In Salt Lake City

Salt Lake City, Aug. 10.—The first day of the forty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic found 30,000 veterans and visitors quartered in Salt Lake City, with the prospect of an increase to 50,000 by tomorrow. Of the fourteen past commanders-in-chief now living, five are in attendance.

SAMUEL R. VAN SANT.

The political side of the encampment was made prominent through the opening of headquarters of the rival claimants for honors. The fight between St. Louis and Atlantic City for the encampment of 1910 is to be warmly contested.

For commander-in-chief, former Governor VanSant of Minnesota and W. L. Ketcham of Indiana continue to be active candidates.

COLD, HOT AND DRY.

July Weather Remarkable in Several Respects.

The weather during the greater part of July was cooler than usual and drought conditions prevailed throughout the month. The last week was the warmest period, and during the first 27 days the temperature did not exceed 90 degrees. The highest reached was 96 degrees on the 30th, while the minimum was 47 on the 9th which is the lowest temperature recorded in July since 1890. The total rainfall of 1.28 inches was only one third of the usual amount and the smallest for July on record at Blue Hill. More than one half the total fell on the evening of the 18th when .71 inch was recorded, and there were light falls on nine other days.

Other dry Julys occurred in 1885, 1890 and 1907, while the greatest rainfall for the month was 8.47 inches in 1889. There was less relative humidity than usual and about the customary amount of cloudiness, and the total amount of sunshine of 317 hours was 19 percent more than the average and the greatest in July since 1899 . The mean wind velocity was the highest since 1903 and the maximum velocity was 50 miles per hour from the north on the 8th. The predominating wind direction was west. Thunder-storms occurred on six days.—Report of L. A. Wells, Blue Hill Observatory in the Milton Record.

BURNS' GRAND-DAUGHTER.

Th death is reported from Cheltenham of Mrs. Sarah Eliza Maitland Tombs Burns-Hutchinson, the eldest direct descendant of the poet Burns. She had attained the age of 87 years.

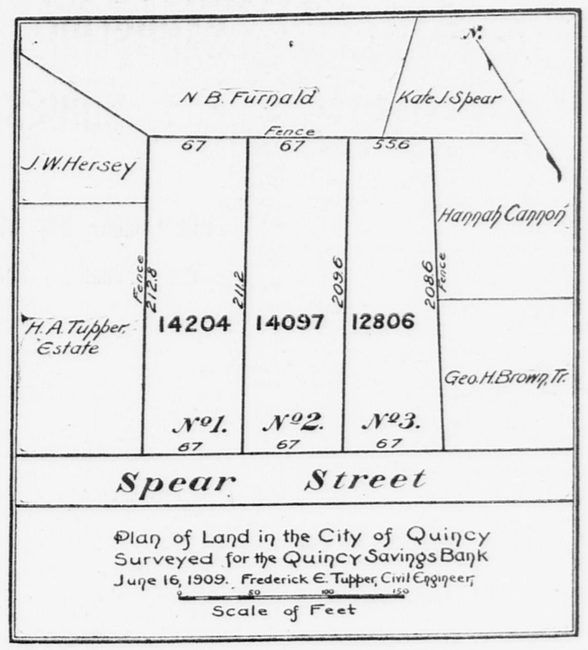

Mrs. Burns-Hutchinson was the daughter of James Glencairn, fourth son of the poet, who was in the East India Campany's service, in which he rose to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. He was twice married. Mrs. Burns-Hutchinson was daughter by his first wife, Sarah Robson. She was born in Bengal in November, 1821. On his retirement from the East India Company's service Lieutenant-Col. Glencairn Burns went to London where he resided for several years, afterwards removing to Cheltenham. The mother of Mrs. Burns-Hutchinson did not survive the birth of her child, who was sent home to be brought up at Dumfries by her grandmother, Jean Armour ("Bonnie Jean") with whom she spent about 12 years, and with whom she appears in the well-known portrait of "Jean Armour and grand-daughter." After her grandmother's death she removed to Cheltenham and joined her father, and when 25 years of age she was married to Dr. Berkley Westropp Hutchinson, a native of Ballinasloe, Island. They emigrated to Australia, and of their family one son and three daughters still survive. On the death of her husband Mrs. Burns-Hutchinson returned to Scotland in 1862 and lived with her father at Cheltenham till his death three years later.

Mrs. Burns-Hutchinson was possessed of many Burns relics. Among the most important of these were her grandfather's desk or escritoire on which he wrote his poems and letters; the family Bible in which the poet entered the births of his children, and in which he also entered the date of his own birth and that of his wife, Jean Armour; the eight-day clock which he bought when he went to Ellisland; and a water-colour painting of the "Cottar's Saturday Night," given to Burns by David Allen, the artist, about a year before the poet's death. Some of these relics were seen in the Burns exhibit in Glasgow. A few years ago the Bible was acquired for the Burns Cottage at Ayr.—The Weekly Scotsman.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TRAGEDY IN A CEMETERY

Shocking Brutality Shown In Murder of Young Woman

WAS CHOKED AND BEATEN

Waylaid and Criminally Assaulted by Some One Evidently Familiar With the Locality—Body of Victim Is Dragged Some Distance and Placed In Trench Dug For the Occasion—No Arrests Yet Made

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 10.—That Anna Schumacher, 17 years old, whose body was found crudely buried in Holy Sepulcher cemetery, was choked and beaten to death after being criminally assaulted, is the conclusion based on the autopsy held by the coroner, but many of the circumstances of the crime, even to the exact place where it was committed, can still be only guessed at.

A broken spade which is relied on to give some indication of the murderer was found near the lonely spot where the victim's body was hidden. The shovel was taken from a shed at St. Bernard's seminary, which is near the cemetery, and its use leads plausibility to the belief that the murderer was not unfamiliar with the locality. Having secured the spade, he must have dragged the body into the shrubbery, and with such care as was possible in the darkness, dug a shallow trench, into which he later placed the corpse, covering it with earth and leaves. This work must have consumed considerable time.

The autopsy emphasizes the brutality of the crime. The body was in a pitiable condition—head, face, chest, arms and hands were covered with bruises and scratches; the bone that supports the tongue, the hyoid, was fractured in the choking and the hair was full of dirt and leaves, indicating that the body was dragged some distance, probably by the feet.

It would seem that the girl, who was of vigorous physique, made a desperate struggle to save her honor and her life. On account of the condition of the body it was buried today.

The inquest into the death begun today. In the meantime the city, county and town authirities are bending every effort to apprehend the murderer.

The young woman left her home Saturday morning to place flowers in the cemetery, which is that of the Catholic church, and when she did not return at night her family was greatly alarmed, as her absence was quite unusual.

A search was instituted, which was kept up nearly all of Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, until the finding of the body Monday by two police officers. Their search led them about a hundred feet outside of the cemetery limits, and they were attracted to the grave by the freshly disturbed earth and a piece of white cloth protruding from it.

The spot where the body was found was well chosen for concealment. It is back of an old icehouse, and is surrounded by wild undergrowth and trees. The murderer probably believed that the crime would not be discovered for some time, if at all.

DODSON IS CAUGHT AGAIN

Arrested In California After Jumping Bail In Boston

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 10.—On information from Boston, Constable Allen of Fruitville, after a fight, captured Charles W. Dodson, indicted for forgery and embezzlement.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Charles W. Dodson, arrested in Fruitville, is a lawyer of Boston and Malden. He was formerly the official head of the Massachusetts law bureau, with an office in this city. He was indicted for the alleged larceny of $3500 and forgery on a release for $150. He was under $5000 cash bail.

MAN AND WIFE IN DUEL

Locked Up Their Children While They Fought to the Death

Chicago, Aug. 10.—After locking their two children in a bedroom and fastening all the doors of their home, Antonio Spirezirri and his wife went into the darkened parlor and tried to kill each other.

The woman was shot twice and stabbed twice with a stiletto and died before the police arrived. The husband was shot twice and may also die.

Menocal Is Exonerated

Washington, Aug. 10.—Civil Engineer Menocal, U. S. N., has been exonerated by the court of inquiry which met at Boston to investigate criticism of his administration while assigned to duty at the Pensacola navy yard.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Please!" begged Kirkwood, with a little laugh of pleasure because of the other's insistence. "I only wish I could. Another day"—

"Oh, you will make your million in a year and return scandalously independent. It's in your American blood." Frail white fingers tapped an arm of the chair as their owner stared gravely into the fire. "I confess I envy you," he observed.

"The opportunity to make a million in a year?" chuckled Kirkwood.

"No. I envy you your romance. You have youth, unconquerable youth, and the world before you. I must go."

He rose stiffly, as though suddenly made conscious of his age. The old eyes peered more than a trifle wistfully now into Kirkwood's. "You will not fail to call on me by cable, dear boy, if you need—anything? I ask it as a favor. I'm glad you wished to see me before going out of my life. One learns to value the friendship of youth, Philip. Goodby, and good luck attend you."

Alone once more, Kirkwood returned to his window. The disappointment he felt at being robbed of his anticipated pleasure in Brentwick's company at dinner colored his mood unpleasantly. His musings merged into vacuity, into a dull gray mist of hopelessness comparable only to the dismal skies then lowering over London town.

Brentwick was good, but Brentwick was mistaken. There was really nothing for Kirkwood to do but to go ahead. But one steamer trunk remained to be packed. The boat train would leave before midnight, the steamer with the morning tide. By the morrow's noon he would be upon the high seas, within ten days in New York and among friends, and then—

The problem of that afterward perplexed Kirkwood more than he cared to own. Brentwick had opened his eyes to the fact that he would be practically useless in San Francisco. He could not harbor the thought of going back only to become a charge upon Vanderlip. No; he was resolved that thenceforward he must rely upon himself, carve out his own destiny. But—would the art that he had cultivated with such assiduity yield him a livelihood if sincerely practiced with that end in view? Would the mental and physical equipment of a painter, heretofore dilettante, enable him to become self supporting?

There came a rapping at the door.

"Mr. Kirkwood?"

Kirkwood nodded.

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

Kirkwood nodded again, smiling, if somewhat perplexed. Encouraged, the child advanced, proffering a silver card tray at the end of an unnaturally rigid forearm. Kirkwood took the card dubiously between thumb and forefinger and inspected it without prejudice.

The close cropped, bullet shaped British head was agitated in vigorous negation, and "Card for Mr. Kirkwood!" was mumbled in dispassionate accents appropriate to a recitation by rote.

"Very well. But before you show him up ask this Mr. Calendar if he is quite sure he wants to see Philip Kirkwood."

"Yessir."

The child marched out, punctiliously closing the door. Kirkwood tamped down the tobacco in his pipe and puffed energetically, dismissing the interruption to his reverie as a matter of no consequence—an obvious mistake to be rectified by two words with this Mr. Calendar whom he did not know. At the knock he had almost hoped it might be Brentwick, returning with a changed mind about the bid to dinner.

He regretted Brentwick sincerely. Theirs was a curious sort of friendship, extraordinarily close in view of the meagerness of either's information about the other, to say nothing of the disparity between their ages. Concerning the elder man Kirkwood knew little more than that they had met on shipboard, "coming over;" that Brentwick had spent some years in America; that he was an Englishman by birth, a cosmopolitan by habit, by profession a gentleman (employing that term in its most uncompromisingly British significance) and by inclination a collector of "articles of virtu and bigotry," in pursuit of which he made frequent excursions to the continent from his residence in a quaint, quiet street of Old Brompton. It had been during his not infrequent, but ordinarily abbreviated, sojourns in Paris that their steamer acquaintance had ripened into an affection almost filial on the one hand, almost paternal on the other.

There came a rapping at the door.

The knob was turned; the door opened. Kirkwood, swinging on one heel, beheld, hesitant upon the threshold, a rather rotund figure of medium height, clad in an expressionless gray lounge suit, with a brown "bowler" hat held tentatively in one hand, an umbrella weeping in the other. A voice which was unctuous and insinuative, emanated from the figure.

"Mr. Kirkwood?"

Kirkwood nodded, with some effort recalling the name, so detached had been his thoughts since the disappearance of the page.

"Yes, Mr. Calendar?"

"Are you—ah—busy, Mr. Kirkwood?"

Encouraged, the man entered, premising that he would detain his host but a moment and readily surrendering hat and umbrella. Kirkwood, putting the latter aside, invited his caller to the easy chair which Brentwick had occupied by the fireplace.

"It takes the edge off the dampness," Kirkwood explained in deference to the other's look of pleased surprise at the cheerful bed of coals. "I'm afraid I could never get acclimated to life in a cold, damp room—or a damp, cold room—such as you Britishers prefer."

"It is grateful," Mr. Calendar agreed, spreading plump and well cared for hands to the warmth. "But you are mistaken. I am as much an American as yourself."

"Yes?" Kirkwood looked the man over with more interest, less matter of course courtesy.

He proved not unprepossessing, this unclassifiable Mr. Calendar. He was dressed with some care, his complexion was good, and the fullness of his girth, emphasized as it was by a notable lack of inches, bespoke a nature genial, easy going and sybaritic. His dark eyes, heavy lidded, were active, curiously at times with a subdued glitter, in a face large, round, pink, of which the other most remarkable features were a mustache, close trimmed and showing streaks of gray; a chubby nose and duplicate chins. Mr. Calendar was, furthermore, possessed of a polished bald spot, girdled with a tonsure of silvered hair—circumstances which lent some factitious distinction to a personality otherwise commonplace.

His manner might be best described as uneasy, with assurance, as though he frequently found it necessary to make up for his unimpressive stature by assuming an unnatural habit of authority.

"So you knew I was an American, Mr. Calendar?" suggested Kirkwood.

"Saw your name on the register. We both hail from the same neck of the woods, you know."

"I didn't know it, and"—

"Yes; I'm from Frisco too."

"And I'm sorry."

Mr. Calendar passed five fat fingers nervously over his mustache, glanced alertly up at Kirkwood, as if momentarily inclined to question his tone, then again stared glumly into the fire, for Kirkwood had maintained an attitude purposefully colorless. Not to put too fine a point upon it, he believed that his caller was lying. The man's appearance, his mannerisms, his voice and enunciation, while they might have been American, seemed all un-Californian. To one born and bred in that state, as Kirkwood had been, her sons are unmistakably hall marked.

Now, no man lies without motive. This one chose to reaffirm, with a show of deep feeling: "Yes, I'm from Frisco too. We're companions in misfortune."

"I hope not altogether," said Kirkwood politely.

Mr. Calendar drew his own inferences from the response and mustered up a show of cheerfulness. "Then you're not completely wiped out?"

"To the contrary, I was hoping you were less unhappy."

"Oh, then you are?"

Kirkwood lifted the cable message from the mantel. "I have just heard from my partner at home," he said, with a faint smile, and quoted: "'Everything gone. No insurance.'"

Mr. Calendar pursed his plump lips, whistling inaudibly. "Too bad, too bad!" he murmured sympathetically. "We're all hard hit, more or less." He lapsed into dejected apathy, from which Kirkwood, growing at length impatient, found it necessary to rouse him.

"You wished to see me about something else, I'm sure."

Mr. Calendar started from his reverie. "Eh? I was dreaming. I beg pardon. It seems hard to realize, Mr. Kirkwood, that this awful catastrophe has overtaken our beloved metropolis."

The canting phrases wearied Kirkwood. Abruptly he cut in: "Would a sovereign help you out, Mr. Calendar? I don't mind telling you that's about the limit of my present resources."

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, living at 85 North St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement, or if I attempted to stoop sent sharp pains, through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. I had known so many people who had used them with beneficial results that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Three boxes convinced me that Doan's Kidney Pills were the best kidney remedy to be had and I am now in perfect health."

LETTERS SHY OF POSTAGE.

Postmasters are troubled with big batches of letters addressed to foreign countries on which postage is shy. The public seems to possess a very hazy knowledge of the countries to which letters can be sent at the domestic rate.

The only countries to which letters can be sent at the two cent rate are Great Britain and Ireland, Germany, Newfoundland, Canada, Cuba, Mexico and Panama. The rate to all other countries is five cents. While the letter rate from New Zealand and the Bahamas to the United States is two cents the rate from here to those countries is five cents.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, the hand of Divine Providence, has removed from our midst our esteemed associate and sister, Gertrude McDevitt, and Whereas we humbly bow to His supreme will in all things; therefore be it

RESOLVED that we, members of St. Ambrose Court 172, M. C. O. F. tender our heartfelt sympathy to the family of our departed sister in this the hour of their bereavement, and we earnestly pray Almighty God to help them bear their sorrow with Christian patience and fortitude.

RESOLVED that these resolutions be spread upon the record of the Court and a copy be sent to the family of the deceased sister and printed in the Daily Ledger.

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Amanda S. Ripley of Quincy, who prays that letters of administration with the will annexed may be issued to her, or some other suitable person, the executrix named in said will having declined to serve.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County on the first day of September A. D. 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in said Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this ninth day of August, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine.

CAMPBELL FINED IN BROOKLINE.

Young Man Wanted In Quincy Still Held By Brookline Police.

Leo Campbell, who is wanted by the local police on the charge of larceny from Mrs. Catherine Sennott of Wollaston, was not in court this morning as was expected. He has been in the custody of the Brookline police for the past week, held on a similar charge and it was thought that he would be released from that place and appear here today. However, the case there was unexpectedly pushed against him and he was fined $15. The warrants for his arrest are in Brookline, and as soon as he is released there, he will be arrested again and brought to Quincy. The jewelry that Campbell is alleged to have stolen in Quincy was worth about $150 ,and the last of it was not found until Monday. Campbell will probably get a pretty stiff sentence in the local court when he is arraigned here.

JEWELRY LOCATED.

Inspector Goodhue Finds Two Watches and a Locket in Boston.

Inspector Goodhue on Monday located the rest of the jewelry that was stolen from the house of Mrs. Catherine Sennott of Wollaston some time ago. After searching through the pawn shops of Boston, the inspector found $75 worth of jewelry about a week ago and since then he has been hunting for the rest. The jewelry found Monday was in different pawn shops in Boston and is worth $75. In the lot are two gold watches and a gold locket.

JOURNAL'S FLOWER DAY.

So tremendous was the response to the Boston Journal's request for flowers that nearly a million were received and given away, while 2500 potted plants went forth also to put more lasting cheer into sad hearts. Nearly two hundred thousand children were made happy by Journal readers.

So prompt was the response to the call for flowers from all over Greater Boston and so carefully planned the arrangements for distribution that every flower was given away before nightfall and the flower day of the Boston Journal passed into history as the most successful enterprise ever fostered by a newspaper.

Interested In Ballooning

New York, Aug. 10.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., temporarily abandoning the carpet manufacturing business in Connecticut, came to New York to make arrangements for learning more about aeronautics. He will file an application for membership in the Aero Club of America this week.

Joy Riders Held on Auto Larceny

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 10.—The four "joy riders" who were with Stanley Taylor, who was killed by striking the shaft of a milk wagon in Shrewsbury, were arraigned in the district court here, charged with larceny of an automobile, and were held for a trial in $300 each.

Record Cargo of Lumber

Boston, Aug. 10.—Schooner Medford brought from Tampa, Fla., 1,037,000 feet of pitch pine lumber, constituting the largest cargo of lumber ever brought into Boston by a sailing vessel. It is also the largest cargo of lumber which ever left the port of Tampa.

—The Green Mountain state is suffering from an overdose of grasshoppers. Sections at the north and middle of the state are infested by swarms which have caused much damage. A few hours after their arrival fields of grass and grain are devasted and they move on to pastures green. The farmers are helpless and the growth of months disappears in a few hours.

☞Advance notes on the new serial running in the Ledger say "Turn this page, begin reading the story and the midnight oil will sputter a protest ere you lay it down." It is a thrilling story of romance and mystery. Readers are kept in a whirl of plot and intrigue. Through love of a beautiful heiress a young American residing in London falls in with a band of swindlers scheming against the girl. Adventure follows adventure and "the Black Bag" is conspicuous in them all.

TODAY'S COURT.

Reuben V. Hudon of Boston was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. Appealed.

William G. Renwick of Boston was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. Sentence suspended.

Daniel McKay was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

CROONER WINS RACE AT LAST

Easily Defeats Sonders at Hull Arawak Wins Again

The last of the annual series of midsummer races of the Boston Y. C. was held Saturday off the club's station at Hull, and was the biggest success of the series. There were 64 yachts in the races all together, the largest number that have raced in Hull bay for a number of years. The wind was practically the same as it was the other three days of the races and therefore the course was the same, over the large and small triangles. This gave the boats, a run from the starting to the bouy at Peddocks, a reach to Quincy Great Hill, a beat to Strawberry Hill, a run to the flag mark at the start, a reach to Sheep island, another beat to Strawberry Hill, ending with a run to the finish.

One feature of the last day's races that was pleasing to Quincy yachtsmen was the win of the Crooner in the sonder class. It was the first time the Crooner has won a race in local waters and she showed that she was a swell boat in light weather as well as the Ellen. She had a new sail that peaked up so high that it looked like a leg-o'-mutton sail, but the boat certainly sailed a fine race, and seems to be getting tuned up to its right place now. The Ellen was second, the Wolf third, Vim fourth, Sally fifth, with Joyette, Corinthian and Wendy bringing up the rear in the order named.

As on the other days the first boats to be sent away were the 31-raters, the Onda taking the lead at the start. She held it all the way over the course, although the Wionna pushed her rather hard at times. She was not quite fast enough however to catch her. For the first time in the series, the three 31-raters covered their time over the 25-rater Essex.

The New York dories were again left behind by the speedy Massachusetts boats, although the former made the best start they have made in the series. The local boats, however, finished one, two, three, four, with the visitors strung out in the rear.

In the cape cat class, the Arawak won her second race of the series, finishing about two minutes to the good on elapsed time. F. F. Crane's Iris was second, and the Busy Bee third. The others finished as follows: Hustler, Strideaway, Almira, Josephine, Emeline, Dolly H.

The eighteen footers did not race, as they went to Winthrop to take in the regatta there. The Hingham and Cohasset one-designers took their place, however, and made up the big number of boats.

QUINCY BOATS AT MARBLEHEAD

Busy Bee Wins in Cape Cat Class, Wolf in Sonder Class

The Boston yacht club held its annual open regatta at Marblehead Station Tuesday, and the races proved to be some of the best of the season. There were 56 racers in the 10 classes sent away and in the strong north-north-west wind that was blowing they made the sailing pretty exciting. The wind was blowing so strong that all but the larger boats had two reefs in, and not one of the racers carried full sail.

After considering the wind, the judges decided on a course that gave the boats a reach to the Pigs Rock bell buoy, then a run to the south-east mark and a beat home, for the larger classes, and for the 15-footers, dories and one design class, a run to the southeast mark and a beat home.

The class P boats were the first to be sent away, there being seven boats in the class. At the start the Timandra took the lead and held it all through the race. She was closely pressed at times by the Nutmeg, which proved to be very fast before the wind. On beating, the Timandra showed her heels to the class and left the Nutmeg behind. She was sailed by her designer, George Owen, and never sailed in better form. On the last leg home, the Onda II came up fast and made the best time of any boat, except the Timandra, on this leg. She came up from fifth place into second. Essex was third, Little Rhody II fourth, Wianno fifth, Nutmeg sixth Tabasco III seventh.

There was too much wind for the sonders, and only six of the score or more freaks at Marblehead, dared to take a chance. These were the Wolf, Spokane III, Lady, Sally X, Sumatra and Manchester, and they finished in the order named. On the reach and the run, the first two legs of the race, the Lady was leading the Wolf 35 seconds, with the Spokane III, Sally X, Sumatra and Manchester following in order. On the beat, however, things changed, for when the sails were trimmed away in, the Wolf began to show her speed, pointing up higher and footing fully as well as the Lady, and standing up under the puffs better than the others. This soon enabled her to take the lead and once ahead, she was never caught, finishing about two minutes to good.

Five of the six boats in the Cape cat class were Quincy boats, the Busy Bee proving the fastest of the bunch and finishing four minutes to the good, with her time allowance. The Iris led the class in, but the time allowance of the Busy Bee gave the latter the race, she being but 25 seconds behind on actual time. The Hustler was third, the Almira fourth, the Arawak fifth, and the Strideaway last.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Friends of George Savoie assembled at his home 11 Barry street on Saturday evening on the occasion of his twenty-first birthday and presented him with a beautiful signet ring. The ring was presented in a few well chosen words by Miss Josie Savoie. The chaperons of the party were Mrs. Ella Bertrand and Mrs. M. Savoie.

—There is rejoicing in Salem over the fact that the "house of Seven gables" has been found to have had originally seven gables. The house is to be renovated and the four missing gables restored. It has also been found that the house originally had an overhanging second story, which at some time was walled up, leaving the old wall with its narrow clapboarding still in place. This will also to be restored. A large addition will be built on the northerly side to fit the house for settlement work.

ANOTHER HOUSE ROBBED.

Boarder Engages Room and Gets Away With Jewelry.

The old-time boarding house trick was successfully manipulated again yesterday afternoon. A young man called at the house of John Anderson, 141 Elm street, and engaged a room saying he was going to work in the Fore River ship yards. The young man was assigned to a room and a little later left.

Shortly afterwards when Frederick Neilson, another boarder, went to his room, he found his trunk forced open and a gold watch, chain, charm and a gold ring were missing. The value of the property was $60. The young man who is thought to have gone off with the articles was about 26 years old, of light complexion, about 5 feet 9 inches in height and wore a light suit and a dark derby hat. From the manner in which he talked it was thought by the people in the boarding house that he was a Swede. The police were notified of the case and a sharp watch is being kept on other boarding houses to see if the fellow engages a room in any of them.

The robbery is almost identical with the one at Wollaston beach one night last week and for which a young man giving his name as Leo Campbell will be brought to this city tomorrow for trial.

SEEK ADVICE OF SKIPPERS

Committee at Loss as to Best Method of Starting Trials

With the first of the trials of American sonders for the races with the German boats, only a few days away, the special German-American race committee of the Eastern yacht club are at a loss to know how to start the races, and have appealed to the skippers for advice. The idea is to have everything fair for everyone, in order that the best boats will be picked to represent the country in the races.

A letter has been sent to each of the skippers and each has been asked to answer certain questions relating to two plans, which the committee has drawn up, and to express his own personal opinion on the best way to start the races. On the answers of the skippers will depend the manner of starting the 19 contestants for the American team.

Seeking advice from the skippers in regard to the manner of starting the races, is something new, and only goes to show that the committee is living up to its policy to give all a fair show.

Plan 1 is described as follows:

Divide the boats into three divisions, so that fast, slow and medium boats should be about equally represented in each division. Then race these divisions for perhaps five or six races, after which eliminate the three poorest boats from each division. Next race the remaining boats together as one division for two or three races. Then reduce the boats to six, and race these together until the final selection is made.

Plan 2—Assuming that the ultimate selection is to rest on the fundamental principle of the choice of one boat suited to heavy winds, one to light, and one to average conditions, a division should be made in the trials of all the heavy weather boats, another of all the light weather boats, and another of the medium boats. These divisions to be raced to a finish, and one boat selected from each.

INSURANCE AT SHIPYARD.

Applications for savings bank life insurance and old age pensions to the amount of $7,888 were received at the Fore River Ship Building Company during the week ending August 7. The progress of this movement is steady and very promising at this agency, a large number of the employees having already taken out policies and many more having the matter under consideration. The total of insurance applied for under the savings bank law amounted to over forty thousand dollars for the week.

APPOINTED INSPECTOR.

John A. Avery of This City Selected Out of a Large Number.

John A. Avery of 6 Mill street has been appointed inspector of shoes and leather in the quartermasters department of the United States Army, and will assume his duties at once. Mr. Avery is receiving the congratulations of a large circle of friends on his appointment, as it is quite an honor. The position was secured through civil service examination, there being 312 competitors. Mr. Avery was ninth in the whole number and may well be congratulated on his success.

His first assignment will be to Millis, where the government is having a large contract filled . It is Mr. Avery's duty to inspect the shoes and the leather used in them and see that it is all right.

Mr. Avery is more than capable of filling the position for the shoe business has been his life work. He was born in Boston 51 years ago and was educated in the Quincy grammar school on Tyler street. At the age of 17 his parents came to Quincy and the youthful John then began his career in the shoe business, by entering the employ of the John R. Graham company. Five years later he became superintendent of the Graham Factory and held this position for 22 years, until Mr. Graham gave up the shoe business. Since that time Mr. Avery has been in the employ of the French-Shriner shoe company of South Boston.

PENNY SUPPLY EXHAUSTED.

The supply of the new Lincoln pennies bearing the three initials of the designer was exhausted Tuesday so far as distribution at the treasury department is concerned. The word that they were "all gone" was issued shortly before the treasury building was closed Tuesday. Sec. MacVeagh decided last week that the designer of the new penny, had given too much prominence to his initials and ordered that the coinage should cease until the die could be recut. Coinage with the first two initials of Victor D. Brenner's name removed, will be resumed the latter part of the week in the Philadelphia mint.

The Spring Hill mines in Nova Scotia have run dry of help.

"Tell it to the marines" can no longer be said with levity since the Sutton trial.

That crime in New York, where a young girl was killed while kneeling on the grave of her father, was the most ghoulish of them all.

Some of these young men who engage rooms in Quincy seem to be possessed of Orpheus-like powers to make inanimate things follow them. It seems that every time they hire a room watches and jewelry go after them.

The "rock" that was said to have come near wrecking an electric car in this city on Sunday has diminished appreciably in size since then. It is rather tough on the quality of the rolling stock of the company to suggest that such a stone could derail a car.

It will be the duty of the School Committee to elect a superintendent of schools this evening and the job is no easy one either. Quincy has had such exceptionally good men in this position in past years that it will take more than the ordinary teacher to measure up to the standard.

ARMY OF TRAMP CATS.

Did you ever stop to consider why it is that so many cats, and even kittens, all of them apparently homeless, are seen about at this season of the year? The reason, however, is apparent and is found in the following from the Boston Journal, which aptly says: "Families have gone to the country and beaches, leaving their pets to roam, starve and die by slow and painful stages, and to this number, pitifully large at this time of year, must be added those cats that come into the world without human welcome, stay in it without refuge and depart hence without even knowing the meaning of human friendship for dumb animals. Is it too much to urge those who have pet cats to see that they are taken care of during the vacation season? It seems almost incredible that high-bred, intelligent women who are often times engaged in good work among their fellow humans will close their houses for the summer and leave behind them "pet" members of the feline race to hunt for themselves and to starve while hunting. Don't help to recruit the army of tramp cats. Chloroform is better than murder by starvation.—Framingham Tribune.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Man Who Owns Largest Boston Terrier Kennels in World.

Dr. W. G. Kendall of Atlantic, famous for his Boston terriers, is in the city. He has been a fancier of the breed for more than twenty-five years. He owns the largest Boston terrier kennels in the world and has won more first and special prizes for his breed than all other like kennels in the United States put together.

Dr. Kendall was called West by the serious illness of his brother, Harrison T. Kendall, a mining man of Kendall, Mont.

"I am very proud of my hobby," said he yesterday. "I love my dogs in the same way that Burbank loves his flowers. Not that I claim any fame in my study of terriers," he added quickly. "Burbank is a great, a wonderful man; he has no peer in his line, but in a way, I would not trade places with him. He deals with the mysteries of nature; I deal with the human in an animal; just a dog, a dog that would speak to me, that knows and understands and would be the last creature on earth to desert me."

Dr. Kendall is a man of means and a keen sportsman. His big kennels, covering more than an acre and equipped with a neat two-story dog house, are his happiest playground. He said: "Today the dog as a pet is taking a more and more important place in the household and I may say that this fact is undoubtedly largely due to the advent of the automobile. Another point it that women are more crazy about dogs now than men and this is because dogs are no longer sought for their fighting qualities, and all brutish tendencies are being eliminated as far as possible, and the affection of the animal increased. The dog in demand today is an animal that will keep itself as clean as a human being, understand and obey, and an animal small enough to never be in the way. The French bulldog is gaining in popularity among the smart set and is hard pressing the Boston terrier. It has all the advantages of the Boston breed and an added recommendation, that of being few in number, and consequently so high in price that the fortunate possessor of a specimen is on sight set down as a person of wealth."

Dr. Kendall paid $1000 for "Rico," winner of first prize for French bulldogs at Madison Square Gardens. Offsetting this, however, it is interesting to note that he sold two Boston terriers, "Squanto" and "His Nibs," to J. Pierpont Morgan for $2000 and $1000, respectively. Thomas W. Lawson paid $1000 for "Puck," and R. H. Plant, Jr., of Georgia wrote the same sixed check for "Squantum Punch." Locally, A. Kingsley Macomber and Freeman Ford have paid big prices for dogs from the Kendall kennels, and Graham E. Babcock of Coronado has a Squantum prize winner. Dr. Kendall says that Freeman Ford, one of the wealthiest young men of Pasadena, is the only real fancier of Boston terriers on the western coast. Ford recently made a trip East to attend bench shows and is an active supporter of the Pacadena Kennel Club.

Asked just what the Boston terrier is, Dr. Kendall explained that 200 years ago in England bulldogs were fought as a leading fad. The bulldogs were vicious, but slow, often locking their teeth in each other's bodies and lying for hours. To get a dog of quicker action the fighters were bred with white English terriers and rebred again and again. Once in a while a dog would be born that looked more like the original stock. In dogdom such an offspring is known as a sport or throwback. By breeding the sports and adhering to an undeviating policy of the survival of the fittest, an animal was produced that was finally named the Boston terrier. Today it is a breed of itself and is no longer a cross, as is attested by the litters, which show no miture. In the pure white Boston Dr. Kendall has produced a new winner, and the specimen weights less than fifteen pounds. Lesser weight is his present aim, "for they want dog babies," he says.—Pasadena Cal. THOUSAND MEN FIGHTING FLAMES

Sweeping Through Valuable Woods In New Hampshire

Candia, N. H., Aug. 11.—A small blaze in the southern section of the town, evidently set by berry pickers, developed into such a fierce forest fire that the shoe factories and other industries of the town were temporarily suspended that the men might fight the fire.

About 1000 men are using all manner of tactics to prevent the flames from spreading to the buildings in the vicinity. The fire has already destroyed more than thirty acres of valuable pine woods and seems to be gaining renewed force.

The fire-fighters are badly handicapped by lack of water, many of the wells and streams having dried up with the long drought.

Discarded Trousers Found Near Scene of the Schumacher Murder

Rochester, Aug. 11.—The murder case of Anna Schumacher, who was brutally killed near Holy Sepulcher cemetery, developed a slight clue last night when it was learned that a man called at a farmhouse near the cemetery Sunday morning and asked for a pair of trousers, saying that his had been torn.

A pair was given to him and last evening the discarded trousers were found near the cemetery. There is a report that these trousers are stained with blood. The matter will be probed at the continuation of the inquest today.

Now there is another form of investment coming to the fore that is classed among the public service corporations. We refer particularly to the stock of telephone companies. Yet the use of the plural is not to the point, as there is really but one telephone company practically speaking, in the country. This concern, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, controls, it might be said, the whole telephone situation. It has secured and retained that control in the nature of things. That is that one telephone company and one telephone management is essentially a sine que non. Independent telephone companies are frowned upon by the public and are started in the main as stock jobbing operations. Who wants to be compelled to have two telephones or three telephones, for instance, representing that number of different systems? It is a sort of Mormonizing the voice.

CHILDREN OUT OF DOORS.

There seems to be no doubt among sensible people that fresh air is the sovereign panacea for all ills, and particularly is this true in regard to children. Little people need to be developed; they need lungs full of good, sweet air, and they need the wide area of a garden so they may get sufficient exercise and grow up to be strong and well. They must not be started in life with a handicap. Each organ should be kept in perfect trim during all the period of growing, and this end may be attained only when the most healthful life is led. A walk in the park now and then will not bring roses to any one's cheeks, least of all to a child's. A short, hurried walk on the hard city pavement will not prove sufficient exercise to one who grows taller and heavier each day. Children need the country, and when it is not possible to have them live there, parents should at least choose houses with yards as spacious as possible, so the little ones may be shooed outdoors in the early morning and left there all day long.

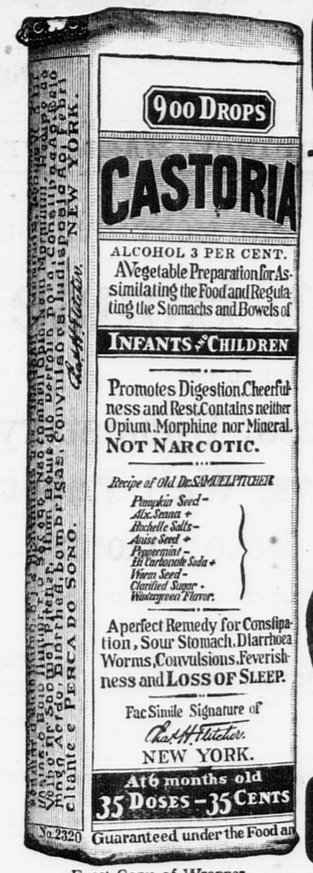

But to expect to keep the children in the open air without amusement of some kind is surely to court failure and disappointment. They can not be expected at an early age to take any interest in the miracles of nature, nor can they pass whole days looking at the clouds. Games must be provided, and with a few of these on hand mother may spend much of her time caring for the house; if the garden is safe, the children will need little personal supervision.

The nicest games for the open air are those which teach something, and among those that may be so classed we find quoits, bow and arrow, the improved slingshot, and even the modern seesaw. The first of these teaches accuracy of aim and poise for the body. It is an interesting game, too, and it might be played as well with small wooden rings and a peg driven in the ground. The system of counting the children will devise for themselves.

The bow and arrow teaches a child to focus on some distant point, and is in itself a lesson in grace. The game is so old that it needs no elaborate explanation.

The improved slingshot is made with a wooden ring and several elastic bands, which form a basket, with a round piece of leather in the bottom. To use it, a small rubber ball is dropped inside and the rubber is drawn taut, so that when the ball is released it will soar upward. The object is to catch it in the net on its return.

The seesaw is only slightly different from those used long ago, but it is less dangerous, for it can not drop so far and the rider can not get her foot caught between the board and the ground. Neither can the littlest rider easily tumble off. As for the advantage of the game, who can forget the fun that seesawing was, and did it not teach one to balance under difficult circumstances? — Woman's National Daily.

ADAMS' STORY OF DEATH FIGHT

Beat Sutton Until Pulled Off by Brother Officers

SO DECLARES MRS. PARKER

She Testifies as to Six-Hour Interview With Accused Man, During Which, She Says, He Admitted Hatred For Her Brother—Testimony Offered to Show That Sutton Was Given Terrific Beating Before Death

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, whose testimony has been looked forward to as of surpassing interest in the investigation of the death of her brother, Lieutenant James N. Sutton, Jr., on Oct. 13, 1907, was the center of attraction at the sessions of the court of inquiry Tuesday.

MRS. PARKER.

She took the stand smilingly, was a willing witness and demonstrated clearly that her memory of an interview with Lieutenant Adams shortly after her brother's death was much better than was the recollection on the same points of Adams. His testimony as to what was said during this six-hour interview was very largely of the "I do not remember" character.

Mrs. Parker swore that Colonel Doyen advised her not to view the body of her brother when she came east from Oregon to bury it, telling her that the forehead was bandaged, the nose out of place, a big lump under the jaw, and that there were other bruises.

Her brother as a suicide could not be buried in consecrated ground, she said, for the Sutton family was Catholic. This was an insight into one reason for the fight to clear Sutton's name.

In Mrs. Parker's recital of the interviews she had with the officers at Carvel Hall hotel when she began to fight to clear "Jimmy's" name she said emphatically that Adams had confessed to her that he hated Lieutenant Sutton; that he would have beaten Sutton still longer on the night of the fight had he not been pulled off and that he told her that everybody in Annapolis seemed to believe that he (Adams) had killed Sutton. Adams, when on the stand, had denied all this.

For more than four hours, she said, she questioned Adams and when it was over she had told him, almost appealingly, if he would assist her in proving that her brother died by accident, anything but suicide, she and her mother would never seek a reopening of the case.

"Mrs. Parker," asked Mr. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton, "can you remember just what Adams said about hating your brother?"

"He said, 'Personally, Mrs. Parker, I hate your brother.' He told me when he came to Annapolis that he went with him some, but was told by other men that if he associated with Sutton he would be cut by them. He also told me that when Jimmy was down, he (Adams) caught him by the throat with his left hand and beat him with his right. He was still beating him, Adams said, when somebody kicked him (Adams) in the ribs, and he then got up. They wouldn't let him get back at my brother, he said, although he hated him so, and was so infuriated that he tried to. He told me how he caught my brother's arms and threw him to the ground, with his arms under his body."

Mrs. Parker was positive in her statements as to what was said and done. It was remarked that Mr. Birney, counsel for Adams, did not press Mrs. Parker to any extent on cross-examination. Indeed, it may be said that this feature of the day was a distinct disappointment, and Mrs. Parker expressed herself afterwards as having been one of the most keenly disappointed. She said that she had expected to be able to say a great many things to Birney that her own counsel could not bring out on direct examination.

Lieutenant Adams was mercilessly grilled for a time by Davis. He was made to lie on the big table about which the court sits and pantomime the firing of the fatal shot.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Pardon me." Mr. Calendar's moon-like countenance darkened. He assumed a transparent dignity. "You misconstrue my motive, sir."

"Then I'm sorry."

"I am not here to borrow. On the other hand, quite by accident I discovered your name upon the register downstairs, a good old Frisco name, if you will permit me to say so. I thought to myself that here was a chance to help a fellow countryman?" Calendar paused interrogatively. Kirkwood remained interested, but silent. "If a passage across would help you, I—I think it might be arranged," stammered Calendar, ill at ease.

"It might," admitted Kirkwood speculatively.

"I could fix it so that you could go over—first class, of course—and pay your way, so to speak, by rendering us, me and my partner, a trifling service."

"Ah!"

"In fact," continued Calendar, warming up to his theme, "there might be something more in it for you than the passage if—if you're the right man, the man I'm looking for."

"That, of course, is the question."

Kirkwood eyed him steadily. "I said that it is a question, Mr. Calendar, whether or not I am the man you're looking for. Between you and me and the firedogs, I don't believe I am. Now, if you wish to name your quid pro quo, this trifling service I'm to render in recognition of your benevolence, you may."

"I was looking for some one to serve me in a certain capacity."

"Ye-es," slowly. But the speaker delayed his reply until he had surveyed his host from head to foot with a glance both critical and appreciative.

He saw a man in height rather less than the stock size six feet so much in demand by the manufacturers of modern heroes of fiction—a man a bit round shouldered, too, but otherwise sturdily built, self contained, well groomed.

Kirkwood wears a boy's honest face. No one has ever called him handsome. A few prejudiced persons have decided that he has an interesting countenance. The propounders of this verdict have been, for the most part, feminine. Kirkwood himself has been heard to declare that his features do not fit. In its essence the statement is true, but there is a very real, if undefinable, engaging quality in their very irregularity. His eyes are brown, pleasant, set wide apart, straightforward of expression.

Now, it appeared that, whatever his motive, Mr. Calendar had acted upon impulse in sending his card up to Kirkwood. At all events, this Calendar proved not lacking in penetration. Men of his stamp are commonly endowed with that quality to an eminent degree. Not slow to reckon the caliber of the man before him, the leaven of intuition began to work in his adipose intelligence. He owned himself baffled.

"Thanks," he concluded pensively; "I reckon you're right. You won't do, after all. I've wasted your time—mine too."

"Don't mention it."

Calendar got heavily out of his chair, reaching for his hat and umbrella. "Permit me to apologize for an unwarrantable intrusion, Mr. Kirkwood." He faltered. A worried and calculating look shadowed his small eyes. "I was looking for some one to serve me in a certain capacity"—

"Certain or questionable?" propounded Kirkwood blandly, opening the door.

"Goodby, Mr. Calendar." A smile twitched the corners of Kirkwood's too wide mouth.

Calendar stepped hastily out into the hall. Kirkwood closed the door and the incident simultaneously with a smart bang of finality. Laughing quietly, he went back to the window, with its dreary outlook, now the drearier for lengthening evening shadows.

"I wonder what his game is, anyway. An adventurer, of course. The woods are full of 'em. A queer fish, even of his kind. And with a trick up his sleeve as queer and fishy as himself, no doubt."

CHAPTER II.

THE assumption seems not unwarrantable that Mr. Calendar figuratively washed his hands of Mr. Kirkwood. Unquestionably Mr. Kirkwood considered himself well rid of Mr. Calendar. When the latter had gone his way, Kirkwood, mindful of the fact that his boat train would leave St. Pancras at 11:30, set about his packing and dismissed from his thoughts the incident created by the fat adventurer and at 6 o'clock or thereabouts let himself out of his room, dressed for the evening, a light raincoat over one arm, in the other hand a cane, the drizzle having ceased.

A stolid British lift carried him down to the ground floor of the establishment in something short of five minutes. Pausing in the office long enough to settle his bill and leave instructions to have his luggage conveyed to the boat train, he received with entire equanimity the affable benediction of the clerk, in whose eyes he still figured as that radiant creature, an American millionaire, and passed on to the lobby, where he surrendered hat, coat and stick to the cloakroom attendant ere entering the dining room.

The hour was a trifle early for a London dinner, the handsome room but moderately filled with patrons. Kirkwood absorbed the fact unconsciously and without displeasure. The earlier the better, he was determined to consume his last civilized meal (as he chose to consider it) at his serene leisure, to live fully his ebbing moments in the world to which he was born, to drink to its cloying dregs one ultimate draft of luxury.

With a deferential flourish the waiter brought him the menu card. He had served in his time many an American millionaire; he had also served this Mr. Kirkwood, and respected him as one exalted above the run of his kind in that he comprehended the art of dining.

To distract a conscience whispering of extravagance Kirkwood lighted a cigarette.

The room was gradually filling with later arrivals. It was the most favored restaurant in London, and despite the radiant costumes of the women its atmosphere remained sedate and restful.

A cab clattered down the side street on which the window opened.

At a nearby table a woman laughed, quietly happy. Incuriously Kirkwood glanced her way. She was bending forward, smiling, flattering her escort with the adoration of her eyes. They were lovers alone in the wilderness of the crowded restaurant. They seemed very happy.

Kirkwood was conscious of a strange pang of emotion. It took him some time to comprehend that it was envy.

He was alone and lonely. For the first time he realized that no woman had ever looked upon him as the woman at the adjoining table looked upon her lover. He had found time to worship but one mistress—his art.

And he was renouncing her.

He was painfully conscious of what he had missed, had lost or had not yet found—the love of woman.

The sensation was curious, new, unique in his experience.

His cigarette burned down to his fingers as he sat pondering. Abstractedly he ground its fire out in an ash tray.

He sat up and began to consume his soup, scarce doing it justice. His dream troubled him—his dream of the love of woman.

From a little distance his waiter regarded him with an air of disappointment. In the course of an hour and a half he awoke to discover the attendant in the act of pouring very hot and black coffee from a bright silver pot into a demitasse of fragile porcelain. Kirkwood slipped a single lump of sugar into the cup, gave over his cigar case to be filled, then leaned back, deliberately lighting a long and slender panetela as a preliminary to a last lingering appreciation of the scene of which he was a part.

He reviewed it through narrowed eyelids lazily, yet with some slight surprise, seeming to see it with new vision, with eyes from which scales of ignorance had dropped.

This long and brilliant dining hall, with its quiet perfection of proportion and appointment, had always gratified his love of the beautiful. Tonight it pleased him to an unusual degree. Yet it was the same as ever. Its walls, tinted a deep rose, with their hangings of dull cloth of gold; its lights discriminatingly clustered and discreetly shaded, redoubled in half a hundred mirrors; its subdued shimmer of plate and glass, its soberly festive assemblage of circumspect men and women splendidly gowned, its decorously muted murmur of voices penetrated and interwoven by the strains of a hidden string orchestra, caressed his senses as always, yet with a difference. Tonight he saw it a room populous with lovers, lovers insensibly paired, man unto woman attentive, woman of man regardful.

He had never understood this before. This much he had missed in life.

Presently he found himself acutely self conscious. The sensation puzzled him, and without appearing to do so he traced it from effect to cause and found the cause in a woman—a girl, rather—seated at a table the third removed from him, near the farther wall of the room.

John H. Gillis of Pleasant street, left Monday for Prince Edward Island where he is to spend a short vacation.

Miss Louise Nash of Abington, who formerly lived on Arlington street, Wollaston, is in town on a visit to friends.

Mrs. Ella Bertrand and family are to spend the rest of August with friends at Marblehead.

Miss Lillian Savoie has returned to her home in South Quincy after a pleasant two weeks outing spent at Newport.

Miss Mildred Dunham who has been visiting friends in Brookline the past week has returned to her home at Wollaston beach.

William Raye, purchasing agent for the Keith Paper Co., of Turners Falls, spent the past week with his brother-in-law, Rev. C. H. Raupach of Hall place.

Mr. Hiram Campbell of Copeland street who has been spending the past few weeks at Hallowell, Maine, returned this week.

People sending letters containing news items or advertising to be inserted in the Quincy Daily Ledger should address same to the paper or firm rather than to individuals, to insure prompt attention.

Mr. Kennedy of Fairbanks, Maine, is visiting his daughter Mrs. Ellis McTear of Beach street. Mr. Kennedy who is seventy-two years of age has not been in Boston for over forty years.

Clara B. Buzzell and Elsie E. Kirby are spending their two weeks' vacation at the Morton house, Round pond, Maine. On their return they will cruise.

Capt. Thomas E. Raye of the Barkentine who spent Tuesday with his brother-in-law Rev. C. H. Raupach of Hall place, left on Wednesday to join his ship at Providence, R. I., from whence he sails in a few days for Texas to load lumber for New York.

The W. H. Soleys of Edgemere road are leaving Quincy this week, making a short visit with relatives in Malden, before sailing for England. Many good wishes from Quincy friends go with them to their new home in Northampton.

Warren S. Dame of Dame, Stoddard & Co., of Boston, has assigned for the benefit of his creditors to Samuel E. Winslow of Worcester, Charles B. Blinn, Jr., of Boston and Charles W. Bailey of Quincy.

A young woman, holding a watch while a young man, fantastically garbed in running apparel, trotted up and down the road, was observed on a quiet street in Wollaston, says the Boston Record. How interesting.

BRIEFS

Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook of Holbrook road has been appointed assistant instructor in music in the Western school for girls at Roxbury.

Mrs. Horace Howard Johnson, formerly of Hamilton street, Norfolk Downs, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Perry Z. Whiting of Holliston, prior to going to Seattle, Washington, where she will make her future home.

Mrs. Sadie Orr and two children of Division street, Montclair, left for Rockland, Maine, on Tuesday, where they will spend the rest of the summer.

Mr. Creedon has been foreman of the O. T. Rogers quarry the past five years, and is well liked by his men. Much regret is felt among his friends at his leaving town. He is president of the A. O. H. Div. 4 and well known in West Quincy.

RUNAWAY AT THE POINT.

A horse attached to one of the Abbott & Miller express company's teams and driven by Daniel Fitzgerald, ran away Tuesday afternoon about 1.30 and for a time it looked as if a serious accident might result. The team was going down Washington street at the time and suddenly the breeching broke . The horse became frightened and started down the street on the run. The driver was just getting the horse under control, when the reins broke and it was then impossible to stop the horse. On kept the infuriated animal, the driver now utterly helpless to stop his wild dash. As he passed the end of Mill street, the driver managed in some way to induce the horse to swerve and he struck the curbing and fell, overturning the wagon and stopping. Fitzgerald jumped as the team turned turtle and escaped with a good shaking up. The cross bar of the wagon was broken and the load on the team was tipped into the street. Outside of this there was no damage done.

THE MORNING FIRE.

The local fire department ran up against one of the toughest forest fires in the history of the city about 9.30 this morning, and had a hard time putting it out. The fire was in the woods on the westerly side of Quincy avenue and Box 175 notified the firemen that there was something doing. When the department arrived the woods were all ablaze and the smoke was so dense that it was almost impossible to see the way through the woods. After a hard fight of about a half an hour with chemicals and brooms, the fire was put out.

CRUISER SALEM.

The scout cruiser Salem, which has had her turbines over-hauled since the speed races with her sister cruisers, Birmingham and Chester, off Newport, R. I., underwent new standardization tests for her propellers today on a measured mile course off Rockland, Maine.

While the Salem's showing in the official races was disappointing to her officers and builders it is said that she is now very speedy and will be able to give a good account of herself in another contest of the sea scouts.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Miller, Joseph H. McLaughlin and John O'Neil were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Attilio Beverino of Quincy was arraigned for assault with dangerous weapon on Emily Abratie of Quincy. Fined $10 each.

Vagaries of a Cold.

You can never be quite sure where a cold is going to hit you. In the fall and winter it may settle in the bowels, producing severe pain. In the summer it may give you colic with diarrhoea or summer complaint. Do not be alarmed nor torment yourself with fears of appendicitis or inflammation of the bowels. At the first sign of the pain or cramp take Perry Davis' Painkiller in warm, sweetened water and relief will come at once. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis' It is now put up in a large 35c. size as well as the regular 50c. size.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o. classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY. will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

SEVEN DROWN IN MID-OCEAN

Capt. Evans and others Rescued by Torpedo Boats

A very serious drowning accident occurred early this morning about 20 miles east of Rockport, Mass., in which Capt. Edward Evans, well known in this city as port commander at the Fore River Shipbuilding company, was one of the chief actors. The captain, with his wife and child, and a crew of about fifteen men were on board the big army tug Nezinscott, and were bound from Portsmouth navy yard to Boston. On board the tug was a big cargo of anchors, chains and searchlight for the battleship Missouri, now in Boston. There was a terriffic gale blowing all night and the tug was under water all through the trip. She was so heavily laden that she would not ride the waves that were kicked up by the gale, and at a point east of Rockport at about 5.30 this morning, the tug was swamped and sunk.

Three of the crew were drowned immediately after the tug went down. Mrs. Evans and her child and some of the crew managed to get into a small boat and after a row of 20 miles in foaming surf, they arrived safely at Lanesville, Gloucester. It was indeed a miracle how the little boat and its heavy load ever remained on the surface through that perilous trip, but the party stuck and landed safely.

When the little life boat started on its trip for the shore, its occupants saw Capt. Evans and six of the crew on a life raft, and seeing them rapidly drifting out to sea, gave them up as lost. However, when they landed at Lanesville, they immediately notified the Portsmouth and Charlestown navy yards, and torpedo boats and revenue cutters were at once dispatched to see if any trace of them could be found. Just after noon, the boats found the men, but instead of the seven that had started, there were now only three, the other four having been washed off the raft. When found the three men were in an exhausted condition and were many miles out of sight of land.

Capt. Edward Evans was formerly port commander at the local shipyard ,but a few months ago was transferred to the Portsmouth navy yard to do similar work. While at the Fore River he had charge of the trial trips of all the large battleships and cruisers that were launched here. His last charge here was the scout cruiser Salem.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

MOTOR BOAT MUFFLERS.

Wollaston, Aug. 10.

Editor Daily Ledger:

I wished that our Chief of Police lived within ear-shot of the numerous noisy power boats which are so industriously defying the new anti-muffler law in Quincy Bay, off the Wollaston beach. If he did I think that he would put an end to the gatling gun racket in short order. It is a nuisance to the beach front of Wollaston and Atlantic and a detriment to all beach property.

I do not understand why the police are so backward about enforcing this anti- muffler law which the last Legislature passed for the express purpose of protecting owners of shore property from this growing nuisance.

It has been enforced at Houghs Neck. Why not at Wollaston?

WRIGHT IS OFF FOR BERLIN

Orville to Teach Germans How to Navigate In Air

TRIPS OF THOUSAND MILES

Aviator Declares That They Can Be Made by His Aeroplane Because of Its Fuel Capacity and Speed—Considers It the Best Flying Machine In the World and Is Willing to Demonstrate the Fact

New York, Aug. 11.—Before sailing for Europe, where he will make air flights near Berlin, Orville Wright declared his belief that the Wright aeroplane can fly 1000 miles.

"At the present time we can carry enough fuel to stay in the air for twenty-five hours. This cannot be duplicated by anyone else, so far as we know," he said. The average rate of speed of a Wright machine is forty miles an hour.

Mr. Wright admitted that he and his brother had received an invitation to give an exhibition during the Hudson-Fulton celebration, coupled with the remark: "The people of New York will soon have an opportunity."

Miss Katherine Wright accompanied her brother on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecile. They will spend a full month in Berlin, where Orville will teach the members of the German Aero club how to fly.

Asked if the Wright brothers would be willing to challenge the world for speed and endurance, provided any exigency should arise that would make such action desirable to themselves, Orville answered unhesitatingly: "We consider that we have the best machine in the world."

GOES BEFORE NAVAL BOARD

State Authorities Have Nothing to Do With Case of Boxer Williams

Boston, Aug. 11.—The Massachusetts state authorities having failed to avail themselves of the government's offer to surrender David W. Williams, the negro mess hand on the battleship Vermont who was one of the parties to a boxing bout in which Harrison H. Foster was killed at Provincetown on July 29, the naval officials last night sent him to Hampton Roads, Va. There Williams will stand trial before the naval board of inquiry.

The matter is thus entirely out of the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts authorities, as Williams, if found not guilty, will be returned to his station on the Vermont, while if proven culpable he will undergo naval punishment.

COLONEL POPE DEAD

Noted Bicycle Maker Also Gained Distinction as a Soldier

Boston, Aug. 11.—Colonel Albert A. Pope, pioneer bicycle manufacturer of the United States and one of the first advocates of the existing good roads system, died at his summer home at Cohasset.

Mr. Pope had been in ill health for months, due to the breaking down of his nervous system, following the financial embarrassment of his bicycle company, the largest concern of the kind in the country.

Pope was born in Boston in 1843. He served in the Civil war and was brevetted lieutenant colonel for gallant conduct. He was a director in many banks and other corporations.

Mary Mannering Decides to Drop Proceedings For Divorce

New York, Aug. 11.—Mary Mannering, the actress, who brought suit here last summer for divorce from her husband, James K. Hackett, the actor, has dropped the proceedings. She has instructed her attorneys to withdraw the suit, according to reliable information obtained in New York, although the reason for her action was not disclosed.

Miss Mannering and Hackett were married in 1897. They have one child, a girl, about 5 years old. She is with the mother

Farm Buildings Burned

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 11.—Only the vigorous efforts of a large number of volunteer firemen, together with firemen and apparatus from Lowell, prevented the destruction of the town farm buildings at North Tewksbury, when two adjoining sets of farm buildings were burned. The loss is about $10,000.

Taft's Vacation Program

WILL SUCCEED SUPT. PARLIN

Albert L. Barbour of Natick Elected Supt. of Schools

At a special meeting of the School Committee Wednesday night Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of the public schools of Natick, was unanimously chosen superintendent of the Quincy schools to succeed Frank E. Parlin who was elected superintendent of the schools of Cambridge two weeks ago.

Mr. Barbour was unanimously selected by a special committee appointed last week to consider applicants for the position. The selection was made from a list of 25 candidates and Mr. Barbour will begin on a salary of $2,400. He will assume his new duties on Sept. 1.

Mr. Barbour is a graduate of Brown University, receiving his A. B. in 1892 and his A. M. in 1894. After leaving Brown he studied at Harvard and Clark universities and the Larsen manual training school, taking special courses in pedagogy and special work for superintendents. While studying at Brown university Mr. Barbour was principal of an evening school in Providence. After finishing his studies at the university Mr. Barbour went to Cumberland, R. I., where he was principal of a grammar school, principal of a high school and superintendent of schools successively, remaining two years in each office.

In 1898 Mr. Barbour accepted the position of superintendent of schools at Princeton and Sterling, Mass., and in the following year he became superintendent of the schools of South Hadley and Granby. In 1900 he succeeded Supt. Parlin of this city as superintendent of the schools of Natick and has remained there since and now comes to Quincy to succeed Mr. Parlin as he succeeded him in Natick. On Jan. 18, 1906 the town of Hyde Park made a flattering offer to Mr. Barbour to become superintendent of the schools there at a salary in excess of what he was getting in Natick but public sentiment insisted so on his remaining in Natick that the school board there increased his salary to a figure higher than that offered by Hyde Park.

On Aug. 2 of this year, only a few days ago, the city of Melrose elected Mr. Barbour as superintendent of the schools there but he had not accepted at the time his name was first mentioned in connection with the superintendency of the schools of Quincy. Mr. Barbour is a past president of the Massachusetts superintendents' association and is a leading member of the Massachusetts teachers' institute. He is 38 years old and is married and has a wife and two children.

In addition to electing a superintendent of schools, the committee elected George W. Hoyt of Williamsport, Penn., to be head of the commercial department of the High school to take the place made vacant by the resignation of Herbert B. Cole, who went to the English High school in Boston.

A special committee was appointed to consider the matter of readjustment of janitors' salaries and another special committee was appointed to consider a testimonial to Mr. Parlin, the retiring superintendent of schools. It was voted to ask the Commissioner of Public Works to suitably light the entrance to the High school building.

After considering these matters the committee went into a consideration of plans for the proposed school house building at Houghs Neck.

—Cambridge is to fight the elm tree beetle. An order calling for $7500 to be used by the park commission was adopted by the board of aldermen at a special meeting Monday night. Of this amount $2000 is to be used for the removal of trees already killed by the ravages of the elm tree beetles and the various moths and for the care of such trees as have been lately attacked.

RODE FICTITIOUS MASONIC GOAT

Opinion of Newark Man Who Was Initiated at Cut Rate

Newark, N. J., Aug. 12.—A partriachal old man with a white goatee and an air of importance, who says he is organizing lodges of the Ancient Egyptian rite of Free Masonry throughout the country, was arrested here on complaint of Morris Desser, one of the new "members," charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. He gave his name as Darius Wilson, 73 years old. His son, James P. D. Wilson, 33 years of age, was arrested with him on the same charge.

Desser grew suspicious when, after having invested $7.50 in a black and white cotton apron, a printed catechism and a collection of high signs, his neighbor, Henry Reynolds, a sure-enough Mason, stared at him in amazement while he rattled off the patter he says was taught him the night before.

MANY OVERCOME BY HEAT

Six Thousand Men In Line In Grand Army Parade

Salt Lake City, Aug. 12.—Midsummer heat thinned the annual parade of the Grand Army of the Republic and wrought suffering among the hundreds of children who participated in the formation of the living flag. At least 100 children and 20 veterans were taken from the street. There were no fatalities.

When the parade started the thermometer registered 85 degrees, but the parade was a great success. The 6000 veterans wrought patriotic emotions in the breasts of more than 100,000 spectators. Arkansas had only four veterans in line, while Illinois had the largest number marching.

TO HOLD OPEN AIR MEETING

Campaign for Woman's Suffrage to be Made in Quincy

Quincy is to be the scene of one of the newly-instituted open air meetings in favor of Woman's Suffrage, which have recently been undertaken through active workers of the Suffrage Association and are certain to attract more and more attention as time goes on. This is the first time, at least in the lives of the present generation, that such open-air active campaigning has been undertaken and it is already proving its value and interest. Twenty-three meetings have already been held, and at each of these places, the audiences, numbering from 75 to 1000 persons have been found closely attentive to the speeches.

The Committee has realized that open air gatherings demand a somewhat varied program and have wisely divided the speaking among five different persons, so that there may be the interest of a variety of speakers and methods. The speakers take different topics and after each has made her initial speech, discussion is invited and the speakers in turn answer any question proposed by the audience. The audiences have shown a very real interest in the issue, even where as has often been evident, they have gathered out of curiosity more than from any previous interest. And this is precisely what the committee wishes. It is always easy to collect sympathizers to listen to the doctrine but, as the cause of equal suffrage is no longer an academic issue, but is rapidly becoming a part of practical politics, it has become essential to interest the general public in the cause. Such a public is most likely to be reached through informal meetings that can be attended with little effort. The audiences gathered at the meetings have been very varied in their make-up, much more so than would be the audiences at the indoor meetings; but the committee appreciate fully the value of such indoor meetings and will undoubtedly organize them when the season becomes more favorable.

The willingness of members to give their help to this work is most striking, as they are mostly busy women and many of them would usually be out of the city at this season.

The speakers are Mrs. Theresa A. Crowley of Brookline, who is an incisive and telling speaker, a lawyer by profession, is known to suffragists and anti-suffragists alike as the one who conducted the legislative hearing on behalf of the Association at the State House in February last and Mrs. Mary Kenny O'Sullivan, a great labor leader, Miss Rosa Heinzen, a Radcliffe graduate and president of the College Equal Suffrage League of Mass., and Miss Alice Craig sister of Mrs. Marion Craig Wentworth, the well known reader, and Miss Adeline Murphy, a public school teacher of Boston.

The object of these meetings is to arouse interest and discussion of the question of equal suffrage, which must before long come before the voters of the State for action. A meeting will be held in Quincy Square Saturday evening at 7 o'clock which all are invited to attend.

IRIS WINS AT MARBLEHEAD

First Race of the Midsummer Series Has 118 Starters

Many Quincy boats participated in the first of the midsummer series of races Wednesday, under the auspices of the Corinthian Yacht club off Marblehead. There were eighteen starters in the Sonder class the Lady Foss finishing first and beating the Crooner which was thirteenth in the list by over seven minutes.

In class A of the interclub class the honors went to the Thordis of Commodore Dawes of the Wollaston club who beat the Mistral, the second boat by 37 seconds.

It was in the cape cat class however that the Quincy boats were in evidence. There were eight starters in this class and the Iris had the best of the race from start to finish leading the fleet over the entire course.

She beat the Strideaway over two minutes on actual time and over one minute on corrected time.

While the breeze was not as brisk as the fleet would have liked there was a good sailing breeze. The summary of the cape cat class was.

Keep your eye on the new and unknown boarder.

Naval prisoners think that Secretary Von Meyer has a crust to order pie stricken from their bill of fare.

Col. Albert A. Pope who died in Cohasset Tuesday night, certainly did more than his share to "make the wheels go 'round."

Perhaps you have noticed that the Quincy-Stoughton game in the Old Colony league series on Saturday, originally scheduled for Stoughton, is to be transferred to Quincy. There's a reason.

It is somewhat of a coincidence that the new superintendent of schools should have succeeded Supt. Parlin in Natick and gain in Quincy. There is nothing like having a good leader to follow.

Capt. Ned Evans was always counted a lucky pilot but never more so than yesterday. By the way how could they expect a tug with the name of Nezinscott to weather a howling gale off Halibut point? Better give the boat a smoother-sounding name.

During the last few days an unusual number of Quincy young men have been in court for drunkenness. It is a rather miserable crime to own up to and is about the most foolish way a young man can spend his hard-earned money.

Mr. Avery, the Quincy man appointed inspector of boots and leather for the U. S. army, is eminently well qualified for the position and Uncle Sam's soldier boys ought to be sure of some good footwear. Being the official boot and shoe inspector for the army, Mr. Avery would be a good man to officially sound "taps."

W. J. McGee of Washington, secretary of the Inland waterways commission, figures that Rockefeller is a philanthropist because he charges less per gallon for oil than do spring water concerns, despite the increase in the cost of refining the oil. How many people, Mr. McGee, drink this bottled spring water in comparison to the number who use oil?

The treasurer of the United States rises to remark, apropos the new Lincoln cent, that we have no pennies in this country, the lowest coin being a plain cent and nothing more. If that is so what kind of a thingamajig is a penny-in-the-slot machine.

Residents of this city witnessed a beautiful rainbow in the northern and eastern skies just before sunset last night. There had not been a drop of rain here during the day but from the appearance of the clouds which were pierced by the arch of colored light, there was a heavy rain storm off the coast somewhere. The rainbow was one of the clearest and most vivid ever seen in this city and held the gaze of hundreds for a long time.

Wollaston beach people are howling out loud because the chief of police does not enforce the anti-muffler law on motor boats. Perhaps the delay may be due to the fact that the chief and his lieutenant have been away out to the middle west for a prisoner and got home only last Thursday just in time to go to Virginia for another prisoner. Perhaps now that the chief is back there may be some relief. The nuisance, at all events, is a nerve-racking one and since the statutes give the police the power to stop it why—the only thing to do is to stop it.

It is a pity to see new tar walks used the minute they are put down. Those made lately by the city are pretty well chewed up in places and will make rough walking when hard.

So long as the buying power is not reduced one-quarter Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh's plan of reducing about one-quarter the size of the paper money of the country will not receive much unfavorable comment.

The death of a little child by suffocation in a sand pit the first of the week would not have happened perhaps if there had been public playgrounds established. Children now have to play on private land or in the streets and often wander far from home. The only wonder is that there are not more accidents. Well equipped playgrounds would gather in the children in safe places and also give them safe amusements.

STATE FORESTRY.

Reclamation of Sand Dunes and Marshes in France.

From her state forests France derives an annual income of approximately five million dollars, or $1.75 per acre. Eighteen per cent of the entire area of the country, or 23,500,000 acres is forest land. Approximately six million acres are managed by the State, the annual cost of management being ninety-five cents per acre.

The great achievement of France in forestry has been the establishment of protective forests where alien destruction has been caused by floods. Toward the close of the eighteenth century about 2,500,000 acres comprised in the Department of the Landes were little more than shifting sand dunes and disease breeding marshes This section is now one of the richest, most productive and healthful in France.

This marvellous change has been brought about by the intelligent cultivation of pine forests. Immense forests now cover the country, the sand dunes and marshes have long since disappeared, and the wood, charcoal, turpentine, rosin, and kindred industries have brought wonderful prosperity to the entire department, which was formerly the most barren and miasmatic in France. The climate is now mild and balmy, the great change being wrought by the forests. The thin layer of clay beneath the sandy surface, formerly impervious to water, has been so pierced by the roots of the pine that there is now thorough drainage to the spongy earth below.

The manufacture of rosin, tar, turpentine, pitch, pyroligreous acid and wood vinegar is conducted about the same as in Georgia and the Carolinas. The trees destined for "short life" are bled as soon as they are big enough to stand the bleeding, when they have a circumference of a foot or fifteen inches, the sapping of young trees being the only production of a new forest for a time, and when the "thinning out" time comes they are "bled to death," and the timber used largely for pit props, the English demand guaranteeing a steady and profitable market. The "standing trees," those giving promise of most vigor, are never tapped until they are about three feet in circumference. When these have reached the age of fifty or sixty years they are cut down, and utilized for telegraph poles and railway ties.

To prevent the spread of forest fires, wide trenches are dug about limited areas, and the space kept clear.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OUR IMMIGRANT "AID" SOCIETIES

Many Said to Have Perverted Their Avowed Purposes

CONGRESS MAY INVESTIGATE

Agents For Disreputable Resorts Have Obtained From New York "Homes" Girls Newly Arrived From Foreign Countries, According to Congressman Bennett—Crusade Likely to Extend to Several American Ports

New York, Aug. 12.—The crusade against evils in the management of immigration aid societies in this city, which began with the barring of two societies from Ellis Island, has shown conditions which officials declare will be called to the attention of congress at its next session.

In an interview here Congressman William Bennett, a member of the commission appointed by congress in 1907 to investigate immigration problems, says that an inquiry by the commission has shown that 75 percent of the so-called homes in New York have perverted the avowed purposes for which they were organized.

The most serious charge made by Bennett is that agents for disreputable resorts have been able in the past to go to these homes and obtain girls, newly arrived from foreign countries, who believed that they were about to find employment in desirable places. The agents have paid from $1 to $5 apiece for the girls thus secured, he says.

The commission, in getting at the facts of the situation here and in other cities, employed detectives who posed as agents for questionable resorts. They had no difficulty, it is said, in obtaining girls from the officials of certain homes.

Similar evils have been found by the commission to exist in other American cities, and the crusade against them is likely to extend to several ports where large numbers of immigrants arrive. The commission will report to congress early in March of next year.

A CAP COD "SNORTER"

Proves Too Much For Most of New York Yacht Club's Racers

Portland, Me., Aug. 12.—Of twenty-two yachts of the New York Yacht club fleet which left Vineyard Haven Tuesday morning on the run of 152 miles to Cape Elizabeth lightship, but three had arrived at sunset last night. The fleet will not proceed to the eastward until Friday morning and possibly the cruise will end here instead of Bar Harbor, as originally planned. All the craft have been accounted for.

Anticipating soft, southerly winds, but encountering a hard, head blow, the yachtsmen had a thrilling experience in crossing Massachusetts bay and the southern part of the gulf of Maine.

The fleet is well scattered, a half dozen or more being anchored in Provincetown harbor, while others sought safe harbors at other points.

DARIENS WITH COLOMBIA

Indians Who Have Been Running Their Country on Their Own Hook

The Darien Indians inhabit a strip on the Caribbean sea that became Panama territory with the independence of that republic. The recognition of Colombian sovereignty in the past was only nominal, and they have continued the same attitude toward Panama. They have never paid taxes to either state, and because of their active opposition to the presence of outsiders, their country today is practically unknown.

Indications That Steamer Is Lost With All on Board

Simonstown, Cape Colony, Aug. 12.—The British cruiser Forte returned here after an unsuccessful search for the steamer Waratah, during which a distance of 1320 miles was covered.

The Waratah, a British steamer, has been missing since July 26, when she sailed from Port Natal. She had on board 93 passengers and a crew of 207 men.

Equador Celebrates Independence

Guayquil, Aug. 12.—The government of Equador has received telegraphic congratulations from all parts of the world on the 100th anniversary of the first movement on the part of the people of Equador to secure their independence of Spain. The exposition that was opened yesterday to commemorate this event will continue until the end of December.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

IF YOU RESIGN, WHO CARES?

Whoever you are who may read these words, this question is one that you should ask yourself most seriously:

If I were to resign, would I be re-elected?

This is the kind of question which it does you good to ask and answer with unsparing frankness. It is one of the questions which make you search your heart, look into all the secrets of your life, and bring you face to face with what is real—perhaps most brutally real.

Whatever talent you may have, whatever gifts you may possess—these have not been the only factors in your advancement. They have helped you much or little, as the case may be; yet what you are and what you have, you owe very largely to the good will and the good opinion of others. They have accepted you, smoothed your path.

But if you were to resign, would they do the same thing over again?

Would your wife choose you again?

Examine yourself closely and see whether you are still the lover, striving to please, thinking of all the little things that go to make up a woman's happiness. If you have made your wife dread and fear you, so that she shudders at your very touch, would she again select you, if once the legal bond between you could be severed?

Put, then, this question sharply to yourself in all the relations of your life. It is a grim task, but nothing is better for you as a man than to ask yourself this question, and answer it with perfect frankness:

If I resigned, would I be reelected?

HEINZE IS NOT THE ONLY LOSER

Many Others Perhaps Suffered In Stock-Shifting Game

HUNT FOR MEN "HIGHER UP"

Broker Persch, Against Whom an Additional Charge Is Lodged, Did Not Work Alone—Hypothecated Stocks Sold In Boston and Philadelphia Markets as Well as In New York—One Presiding Genius of Affair

New York, Aug. 12.—With a second charge lodged against him, Donald L. Persch, the young note broker who was charged with larceny of copper stocks belonging to F. A. Heinze, is still a prisoner, and while there were no additional arrests the district attorney's office has ascertained that he was not alone in the transaction.

The case will be placed before the grand jury today and the evidence at hand, it is said, will reveal a systematic scheme worked not only in this city, but in Philadelphia and Boston, whereby stocks supposed to be tucked safely in the vaults have in reality been relinquished to individuals who placed them on the market at a profit.

Though Heinze, according to Wall street's analysis of the affair, was at first thought to be a particular victim, it has come out through the district attorney's office that other men suffered likewise.

One other man at least was thus nipped. He is J. M. Everett of Boston, whose New York brokers, Cram, Milliken & Co., made the additional charge against Persch. According to that firm, Persch negotiated a loan of $7000 on stock owned by Everett. The stock in question was 100,000 shares of the Eclipse Oil company and the name of Henry F. Risborough of Philadelphia appears as the man who furnished the money. Coincidentally one of Mr. Risborough's references was Charles Katz, the Brooklyn brewer, who has been mentioned in the Heinze loan.

This method in the Everett case, according to the charge made yesterday, was similar to that through which the Heinze copper stocks were put on the curb—that is, the stocks were hypothecated after having been put up as security.

Carlos Warfield, vice president of one of the Heinze copper companies, is also said to have lost considerable money through the same stock shifting game. Witness after witness was questioned at the district attorney's office yesterday and further developments are expected today. The "men higher up," whom Persch intimated were associated with him, have not been pinned down definitely as yet, for Persch, acting on the advice of counsel, has kept his mouth shut.

The young broker tried hard to obtain his release through habeas corpus proceedings, but after a lengthy argument in the superior court decision was reserved and with his bail still standing at $50,000 he was forced to go back to the Tombs.

About the most important fact unearthed is the existence of twelve checks, all of which were signed by Persch shortly after he had put the Heinze stock on the market, for which he realized $95,000. On the basis of the checks signed by Persch the district attorney's office estimates that the profits from the sale of Heinze's stock was approximately $52,000.

One indictment at least will be returned by the grand jury, according to Assistant District Attorney Nott. But he intimates that there is a presiding genius behind the whole affair, although he will not say who the man is.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel.

Too considerate and too embarrassed to return her scrutiny openly, look for look, he yet felt sure that, however temporarily, he was become the object of her intent interest.

Idly employed with his cigar, he sipped his coffee. In time aware that she had turned her attention elsewhere, he looked up.

At first he was conscious of an effect of disappointment. She was nobody that he knew, even by reputation. She was simply a young girl, barely out of her teens—if as old as that phrase would signify. He wondered what she had found in him to make her think him worth so long a study and looked again, more keenly curious.

With this second glance appreciation stirred the artistic side of his nature, that was already grown impatient of his fretted mood. The slender and girlish figure, posed with such absolute lack of intrusion against a screen of rose and gilt, moved him to critical admiration. The tinted glow of shaded randles caught glistening on the spun gold of her fair hair enhanced the fine pallor of her young shoulders.

In the sheer youth of her (he realized) more than in aught else lay her chiefest charm. She could be little more than a child, indeed, if he were to judge her by the purity of her shadowed eyes and the absence of emotion in the calm and direct look which presently she turned upon him who sat wondering at the level, pencilled darkness of her brows.

At length, aware that she had surprised his interest, Kirkwood glanced aside coolly deliberate lest she should detect in his attitude anything more than impersonal approval.

After awhile she drew his gaze again imperiously, herself all unaware of the havoc she was wreaking on his temperament.

"Eighteen," he hazarded—"eighteen or possibly nineteen dining at the Piess in a ravishing dinner gown and unhappy? Oh, hardly—not she!"

Yet the impression haunted him, and ere long he was fain to seek confirmation or denial of it in the manner of her escort.

The latter sat with back to Kirkwood, cutting a figure as negative as his snug evening clothes. One could surmise little from a fleshy thick neck, a round glazed bald spot, a fringe of grizzled hair and two bright red ears.

Calendar!

Somehow the fellow did suggest Kirkwood's caller of the afternoon. The young man could not have said precisely how, for he was unfamiliar with the aspect of that gentleman's back. None the less, the suggestion persisted.

By now a few of the guests, theater bound for the most part, were leaving. Here and there a table stood vacant that had been filled, cloth tarnished, chairs disarranged, in another moment to be transformed into its pristine brilliance under the deft attentions of the servitors.

Down an aisle, past the table at which the girl was sitting, came two, making toward the lobby, the man, a slight and meager young personality, in the lead. Their party had attracted Kirkwood's notice as they entered—why, he did not remember, but it was in his mind that then they had been three. Instinctively he looked at the table they had left, one placed at some distance from the girl and hidden from her by an angle in the wall. It appeared that the third member had chosen to dally a few moments over his tobacco and a liqueur brandy. Kirkwood could see him plainly lounging in his chair and fumbling the stem of a glass, a heavy man of somber habit, his black and sullen brows lowering and thoughtful above a face boldly handsome.

The woman of the trio was worthy of closer attention. Some paces in the wake of her lackluster esquire she was making a leisurely progress, trailing the skirts of a gown magnificent beyond dispute, half concealed though it was by the opera cloak whose soft folds draped her shoulders. Slowly, carrying her head high, she approached, insolent eyes reviewing the room from beneath their heavy lids, a metallic and mature type of dark beauty supremely self confident and self possessed.

In the act of passing behind the putative Calendar she paused momentarily, bending as if to gather up her train. Presumably the action disturbed her balance. She swayed a little and in the effort to recover rested the tips of her gloved fingers upon the edge of the table. Simultaneously (Kirkwood could have sworn) a single word left her lips, a word evidently pitched for the ear of the hypothetical Calendar alone. Then she swept on, imperturbable, assured.

To the perplexed observer it was indubitably evident that some communication had passed from the woman to the man. Kirkwood saw the fat shoulders of the girl's companion stiffen suddenly as the woman's hand rested at his elbow. As she moved away a little rippling shiver was plainly visible in the muscles of his back beneath his coat, mute token of relaxing tension. An instant later one plump and mottled hand was carelessly placed where the woman's had been and was at once removed with fingers closed.

To the girl, watching her face covertly, Kirkwood turned for a clew to the incident. He made no doubt that she had observed the passage. Proof of that one found in her sudden startling pallor (of indignation?) and in her eyes, briefly alight with some inscrutable emotion, though quickly veiled by lowered lashes. Slowly enough she regained color and composure, while her vis-a-vis sat motionless, head inclined, as if in thought.

Abruptly the man turned in his chair to summon a waiter and exposed his profile. Kirkwood was in nowise amazed to recognize Calendar—a badly frightened Calendar now, however, and hardly to be identified with the sleek, glib fellow who had interviewed Kirkwood in the afternoon. His flabby cheeks were ashen and trembling, and upon the back of his chair the fat white fingers were drumming incessantly an inaudible tattoo of shattered nerves.

"Scared silly!" commented Kirkwood. "Why?"

Having spoken to his waiter, Calendar for some seconds raked the room with quick glances, as if seeking an acquaintance. Presumably disappointed, he swung back to face the girl, bending forward to reach her ears with accents low pitched and confidential. She on her part fell at once attentive, grave and responsive. Perhaps a dozen sentences passed between them. At the outset her brows contracted, and she shook her head in gentle dissent, whereupon Calendar's manner became more imperative. Gradually, unwillingly, she seemed to yield consent. Once she caught her breath sharply and, infected by her companion's agitation, sat back, color fading again in the round young cheeks.

Kirkwood's waiter put in an inopportune appearance with the bill. The young man paid it. When he looked up again Calendar had swung squarely about in his chair. His eye encountered Kirkwood's. He nodded pleasantly. Temporarily confused, Kirkwood returned the nod.

In a twinkling he had repented. Calendar had left his chair and was wending his way through the tables toward Kirkwood's. Reaching it, he paused, offering the hand of genial fellowship. Kirkwood accepted it half heartedly (what else was he to do?), remarking at the same time that Calendar had recovered much of his composure. There was now a normal coloring in the heavily jowled countenance, with less glint of fear in the quick, dark eyes, and Calendar's hand, even if moist and cold, no longer trembled. Furthermore, it was immediately demonstrated that his impudence had not deserted him.

"Why, Kirkwood, my dear fellow!" he crowed, not so loudly as to attract attention, but in a tone assumed to divert suspicion, should he be overheard. "This is great luck, you know, to find you here."

"Is it?" returned Kirkwood coolly. He disengaged his fingers.

The pink plump face was contorted in a furtive grimace of deprecation. Without waiting for permission Calendar dropped into the vacant chair.

"My dear sir," he proceeded, unabashed, "I throw myself upon your mercy."

"The devil you do!"

"I must. I'm in the deuce of a hole, and there's no one I know here besides yourself. I—I"—

Kirkwood saw fit to lead him on, partly because out of the corner of his eye he was aware of the girl's unconcealed suspense. "Go on, please, Mr. Calendar. You throw yourself on a total stranger's mercy because you're in the deuce of a hole, and"—

"It's this way. I'm called away on urgent business—imperative business. I must go at once. My daughter is with me—my daughter! Think of my embarrassment. I cannot leave her here alone, nor can I permit her to go home unprotected."

Calendar paused in anxiety.

"That's easily remedied then," suggested Kirkwood.

"How?"

"No. The devil! I couldn't think of it. You won't understand. I"—

"I do not understand," amended the younger man politely.

Calendar compressed his lips nervously. It was plain that the man was quivering with impatience and half mad with excitement. He held quiet only long enough to regain his self control and take counsel with his prudence.

"It is impossible, Mr. Kirkwood. I must ask you to be generous and believe me."

"Very well. For the sake of the argument I do believe you, Mr. Calendar."

Swiftly, stammering in his haste: "I can't let Dorothy accompany me to the door," declared Calendar. "She—I—I throw myself upon your mercy!"

"What, again?"

"The truth—the truth is, if you will have it, that I am in danger of arrest the moment I leave here. If my daughter is with me she will have to endure the shame and humiliation"—

"Then why place her in such a position?" Kirkwood demanded sharply.

Calendar's eyes burned, incandescent with resentment. Offended, he offered to rise and go, but changed his mind and sat tight in hope.

Ex-Mayor Bryant's fine horse has been purchased by M. A. Boynton, the Beale street grocer.

Mrs. Charels Maxwell of Hampden Circle has returned from a several days' vacation in N. H.

Miss Flora Brown and Miss Miriam Chase of Beach street are spending a few weeks at Hardwick, Mass.

E. B. Bird of Beach street has returned from New York City, where he has been spending a few days on business.

Miss Sadie Walsh, who has been spending the last three weeks with relatives on South street, has returned to her home in Brockton.

Friends of Mrs. Dinsmore of Rawson road are pleased to learn that she is convalescent from her recent illness caused by a broken arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Huntington, nee Elizabeth Thayer, go Saturday to The Weirs, N. H., for a two weeks' visit with Mr. Huntington's relatives.

Night swimming at the bathhouse this week. The rise in temperature towards evening Wednesday, brought quite a crowd to this popular resort at the Point.

Manuel Perry, Jr., one of the men sent to Japan by the Fore River company to install the turbines in the Japanese war vessels, is on his way home. He will probobly arrive here in about a month.

Miss Julia Moynihan, formerly of Quincy, but now making her home in Roxbury, is spending her vacation in St. Louis, Mo., where her nephew, Richard O'Toole, also formerly of Quincy, holds a position of trust.

Miss Ruth Hardy entertained several friends at her home on Wollaston avenue Wednesday evening. Refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed by the guests and hostess. Those present were: Miss Lillian Sutherburg, Miss Edna Thomas, Chester Gurney, Franz Marceau and Corliss Perry.

That is quite a transformation going on in the house at the corner of Hancock street and Saville avenue. It looks very different, the style now being square colonial. Dimock & Patten have the contract and when the owner, J. S. Swingle, moves in he will certainly have a commodious and attractive home.

There was a spectacular illumination in Atlantic Tuesday evening caused by a short circuit in the electric light wires. At the Atlantic station the switch board seemed on fire with the flashes and left the office full of smoke but all the damage done was the burning out of a couple of bulbs. Up through Sagamore street could be seen electric flashes among the trees. Several citizens seeing this and fearing a conflagration, sent in a still alarm to the fire department.

—The new Gretna Green at Bath, Maine, has been discovered by Massachusetts couples and may prove as popular as Providence, R. I., has been in the past. The new law went into effect July 2 whereby out of the state residents can go to Maine, file intentions get a certificate and have the marriage ceremony performed.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness they have shown us in our time of trouble, for their expressions of sorrow and sympathy with us for the loss of our dear child: also for the beautiful flowers which they sent.

MISMANAGEMENT OF FUNDS

Charge Against a Broker Who Has Disappeared From Boston

Boston, Aug. 12.—By the filing of a bill in equity against Robert Martin, a broker, in which he is charged with the mismanagement of funds of Blake, Martin & Co., brokers, it was learned that he had left the city and could not be found.

Martin was living at the Hotel Commonwealth up to two weeks ago, when he left there, telling the clerk that he was going to New Hampshire.

Since the filing of the bill in equity the firm partnership of Blake, Martin & Co. has been dissolved, Charles B. Blake continuing the business.

Gloomy Labor Situation

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The street car situation in Chicago is darker than at any time since the union men voted to strike. The conference between the union leaders and the railway companies' officials have failed to result in any tangible offer that the union officials think they can take to their men.

Senator Lodge In Seclusion

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 12.—Senator Lodge went in a power boat from here to Tuckernuck Island, where he will spend several weeks in seclusion at the private reservation of Dr. Bigelow of Boston. Lodge's health is not of the best and he is seeking rest and quiet.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
LAND COURT

To Marion A. Knight, of Lynn, in the County of Essex; Hattie H. Merrill, Frank A. Gordon and John G. Whitman, of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk; Marietta C. Fernald, of Watertown, Sarah G. Gooch, Emma A. Bearse, Louise P. Brown, Abbie D. Coolidge, Joseph A. Coolidge and Arthur F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex, all in said Commonwealth; William H. Brown, of New York, in the County and State of New York; Rachel Coolidge, Frances Coolidge and Alice Irene Williams Coolidge Merriam, of Pasadena, in the State of California, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Susan A. Peirce, of Melrose, in said County of Middlesex, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

Two certain parcels of land situate in said Quincy, bounded and described as follows:

The first:—Southwesterly on Harvard Street 125 feet; northwesterly on Granger Street 75 feet; northeasterly on land now or late of Marion A. Knight 125 feet, and southeasterly on other land now or late of said Knight 75 feet.

The second:—Northeasterly on Fayette Street 25 feet; southeasterly on land now or late of Hattie H. Merrill 100 feet; southwesterly on land now or late of Frank A. Gordon 25 feet, and northwesterly on land now or late of John G. Whitman 100 feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirteenth day of September A. D., 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of August in the year nineteen hundred and nine.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

BEATS CHESTER BY ONE KNOT

New Test Puts Salem Ahead. Best Mile Made in 26.82

For the third time since her completion the scout cruiser Salem was given a standardization trial on the Rockland course Wednesday. In spite of the fact that her displacement is now several hundred tons greater than when she had her builder's trial, her performance Wednesday was an improvement over the last standardization trial which the government gave her.

With the wind and tide in her favor, she made one mile at the rate of 26.81 knots per hour. The average of her three highest runs on which comparisons are based was 25.-7 knots. The latter figures are for corrected speed and are very pleasing to the government representatives who conducted the trial.

The Salem spent the entire day at sea, making 21 runs over the measured mile course and supplementing them with a three hours' cruise in the outer bay. Eight of the runs were made at top speed. Today she leaves for Boston and will continue her coal and water consumption tests, which were interrupted by Wednesday's trial.

It was learned Wednesday that the scout cruiser Chester's turbines are not working satisfactorily and that craft may also be brought here for a restandardization trial.

At the conclusion of the tests a statement was given out as follows:

"The Salem was standardized successfully. Her performance exceeds that of the Chester by one knot. She developed 2000 more horse power than on her builders' trials. All machinery worked with unparalleled perfection. Officers and men of the Salem are anxious for the Chester to get into condition for the 24-hour competitious confidence."

TAX RATES.

Lynn $20 per $1000 the same as in 1908.

Everett $19.10 per $1000 an increase of $5 from 1908.

Reading $21 per $1000 an increase of $1 over 1908.

REACHING THE SPOT.

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Quincy Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.
In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Jas. C. Dunn, living at 508 Washington street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time I was afflicted with lumbago. My back ached constantly and I could hardly get about the house. The constant aching gave me so much trouble that my nervous system became all unstrung and I had about dispaired of ever getting anything that would cure me when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store, began their use and after a short time, I received more belief than from all the other remedies combined. I can say my trouble has vanished and I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

DEFENDERS ON WAY TO "WAR"

Part of Defending Army May be Encamped in Quincy

It is probable that Quincy will see more or less of the war game next week between the blue and red armies. The former defending Boston and the latter seeking to capture it. The headquarters of the blue army is at Middleboro but company's of the defending army will be scattered all along the way to Boston.

Although war will not be officially declared until Saturday morning both armies began to move toward their stations Thursday night and today they will be busy getting into camp as all companyies must be at their stations by Saturday. Sunday by mutual agreement will be devoid of active war fare, but the war will commence in earnest early Monday morning.

There seems to be no general knowledge as to what company if any will be located in Quincy but residents in certain sections have been called upon and requested not to give out any information as to the locations of any company that may come to their knowledge.

Battery A Boston's crack field artillery are at camp in Braintree arriving late Thursday afternoon . The company came over the road from South Boston going through Milton and West Quincy, thence under Capen's bridge to the Braintree line.

Shortly before 7 o'clock this morning another artillery company passed through West Quincy headed toward Braintree or Middleboro.

Eight camp equipment wagons of Co. D. 2d C. C. M. V. M. arrived in Quincy before 6 o'clock this morning and were drawn up in front of City Hall. Just what the designation of this company is has not been made public.

The South Boston company camped Thursday night near the old Quincy reservoir in Braintree and this morning bright and early broke camp and started on toward Middleboro.

The cadets will go to Hingham tonight, probably by train although it is possible that they may go through Quincy over the road. Shortly before noon a small army of newspaper photographers arrived in town and from them it was learned that one company was expected to camp here sometime today. Just where they will camp, however, is not known.

In addition to this, there were many automobiles, containing soldiers and newspaper men, that passed through Quincy this morning, and that they were unfamiliar with the route was shown by the inquiries they made in City Square as to the roads leading to towns south of this city.

The plans of the invading army are secret. No one knows where they will land. Their plans are known only to their commanding officer, General Bliss.

This army will try with all its strength, using every means known to modern warfare, balloons, wireless, searchlights, to break through the line of defence put up by the Blue Army and capture Boston. The problem is simple. Seven thousand Massachusetts soldiers will try to beat back the invaders. This war game will show just this. Can Boston be captured by a foreign army which has landed on Massachusetts soil ?

Just what will the armies do? Shoot at each other ? Charge and rush and force each other back ? The armies will do just these things. There will be day and night battles. The umpires will decide each skirmish, and for instance, when a similar force of the Blue Army is on hand to oppose an attack by a great section of the Red Army, the Reds will be credited with a victory. If the whole Red Army breaks through the line of defence and marches toward Boston unopposed, then Boston will be considered captured.

NEW GAS COMPANY.

Will Supply South Shore Towns. Plant to be Located in Braintree.

A corporation has been formed for the construction of a gas plant to supply Rockland, Abington, Whitman and Weymouth and eventually Hingham, Randolph, Holbrook, Cohasset and Nantasket.

Franchises have already been secured in some of these towns and negotiations are in progress for the purchase of the municipal plant at Braintree.

The company proposes to locate its plant at East Braintree and will lay more than 100 miles of pipe. The total population of the towns which it is contemplated to supply with gas is 66,000.

CITY RECEIPTS.

THE SATURDAY BALL GAMES

Two Interesting Games on Local Diamonds Scheduled

There will be two interesting games in town tomorrow, one at the Water street grounds between Quincy and Stoughton, in the Old Colony league series, and the other at the Ward Two playgrounds, where the Bigelows and Quincy Red Sox will cross bats in the first of a series of three games for the 18-19 year old championship of the city. Both are important contests and as they are about the only games to be played in this city tomorrow, big crowds should be at both places.

The Quincy team will line up almost the same as usual, with one or two exceptions. Murray will still hold the backstop berth, while Briggs at first, Courtney at short, Dean at third, and Duggan and Lonergan in the field, will be the same as last Saturday. In the box another new man will be found, in the person of Curnane. Curnane is a southpaw and has made a good record for himself with various teams. This season he was with the Biddeford team of the Main State league at the same time Lou Courtney of the local team was there, and he made a big hit there. He also received a try-out with the Lowell team of the New England league. With good support he ought to make good here.

Donaher will be moved from the pivot sack to the outfield to replace Burke, who left the team after the trouble in last Saturday's game. As Donaher is a fine hitter and can also play the garden he ought to fill Burke's shoes in a very acceptable way. A new man has been secured to play the second bag in place of Donaher.

A whole lot depends on the game tomorrow as victory for Quincy means that the local team will still stay in first place tied with the winner of the Dewey-Taunton game, which will be played in Weymouth. But if Quincy loses she will be in second place tied with the loser of the aforesaid game, while the winner of the same will be at the top of the heap all alone. Go get 'em, Speed Boys, for the season is fast drawing to a close and every game counts these days. Also remember that the other teams are closing up too, and it will not take much to send them to the top. If Quincy is beaten tomorrow Stoughton will be tied with her for second place, together with the losers in the Dewey-Taunton and Rockland-Randolph games. This will make one team in the lead, one in last place and the other four tied for second place. So get busy, boys, and bring home the money, and, fans, go up there tomorrow and root hard for the team.

At the Ward Two playground the game will be very interesting as there is considerable rivalry between the two teams. Both will put their strongest combinations on the field, and both claim that they are going to win. Jep Saunders will be in the box for the Bigelows, with Bill Avery behind the bat. If Jep pitches in his old time form it will be easy money for the Bigelows, for one or two years ago, he was considered one of the best amateur pitchers in Greater Boston. If the Red Sox get to him, the battery can shift, for Bill Avery can pitch as well as catch and so can Saunders.

Clark will probably pitch for the Red Sox, and he will be ably supported behind the bat by Eddie Gisburn. If Clark fails to hold the Bigelows safe, Rice will be sent in, and with him probably his regular catcher, McLeod. The Sox are out to take the first game although they realize that they are up against a stiff proposition.

Atlantic Professionals will play the strong Everett City team at the Everett high school field. This team is one of the strongest in the state and has lost only one game this season, that being last Saturday to the Houghton and Dutton team. They have beaten Salem, Wakefield and all the strong teams on the North Shore. Atlantic was originally scheduled to play Joe Ford's Quincy team, but the game was called off because the Old Colony league team is playing in town. Mueller and Banks, two Roxbury boys, will do the battery work for Everett, while Johnny Driscoll and Dan Fitzgerald will be in the points for Atlantic. These two players are down at Marblehead at present, on a fishing trip, and reports say that they are catching about everything in the harbor. Both ought to be in condition for the game tomorrow.

Makaria, in the midst of a terrible slump, will go to Norwell tomorrow, to play the strong team representing that town. Norwell beat the local team once this year in a ten-inning game, and the Makaria say they are going to get back and win. Here's hoping they will pull off the victory, for the boys must be pretty well discouraged after such a string of defeats, especially when they started the season with eight wins in a row.

THE IRIS AND THORDIS WIN

President Taft Sees Some Fine Racing at Marblehead

The fast cape cat Iris of Ex-Commodore Crane was a winner again in Thursday's races under the auspices of the Corinthian Yacht club at Marblehead. The race was one of the largest ever held in Marblehead waters 122 boats participating.

Unusual interest was centered in the race as it was closely watched by President Taft and Miss Helen Taft who were aboard a launch.

There were nine starters in the cape cat class and the Iris had the best of it from the start. The breeze was from the southeast and gave the yachts good racing.

This was the last of the midsummer series and as a result of Thursday's race the Iris wins the cape cat series.

She beat the Busy Bee the second boat over 11 minutes actual time and over 6 minutes on corrected time. The C. C. withdrew before the race was finished.

The Crooner did a little better than on Wednesday but she could not finish better than in fifth position.

In the class A of the interclub boats the Thordis of Commodore Dawes of the Wollaston club secured another win and she also wins the series in her class.

The summary of the cape cat class.

"Johnny, get you gun!"

It ought to be a comforting thought to the Granite Manufacturers, who are to have an outing tomorrow, that they have been able to go through one spring without a labor upheaval. That's something to be thankful for.

The threatened attack of the labor interests against Gov. Draper's re-election lacks the most important feature of any such a movement. They don't provide the opposition with a man at least as able and honest-minded as the present chief executive of the commonwealth.

It is something to be thankful for that the Thaw stench is out of the public nostrils again. Young Thaw and his family have imagined from the first that because he and they had unlimited money they were beyond the pale of the law. There is such a class growing up in this country today and it is well they should have the delusion knocked out of their heads. These suddenly-get-rich youngsters who think they can ride rough-shod over people in general and the courts as well by simply flashing their money in the public eye, have been taught a much-need lesson in the Thaw case. Incidentally, the case again proves that sin gets paid same old wages.

What is the reason the police do not enforce the laws regarding the overspeeding of automobiles or reckless driving of the same? The citizens in general and the newspapers have time and again emphasized the necessity of some action in this regard but so far the police powers of the city have remained dormant. It is no unusual thing to see automobiles not only going at a reckless rate of speed on the main streets but the drivers even racing with each other. This can be seen almost any day on Washington street or on that part of Hancock street north of City square. Such indifference to the rights and safety of the public is something that passeth all human understanding.

The Salem's new record, 26.82 knots an hour or a knot better than the best record of the Chester is goin' some by chowder! And, incidentally, it was quite a record for modest Mr. Curtis, the inventor of the American turbines. Mr. Curtis has stood a lot of gaffing and maliciously pointed ridicule since the Creole "fell down" but he has never said a word in reply. The apparent failures of the Salem on her first trials added to the chorus of critics but never a word came back from the man who had brains enough to place the turbine in commission. He can afford to let the hollering go on but you won't hear it any more. A man is railed at only when he is apparently making a failure; when he succeeds everybody wants to be his friend.

It looks as if the judge of the local court was getting tired of trying to temper justice with mercy. Yesterday four "drunks" were soaked with big fines. Usually a "drunk" gets several weeks to pay up his fine but in the case of the four yesterday no time limit was allowed. There have been cases of late, and a good many of them, where the arrested parties looked on the court as a sort of joke because of the easy methods that prevail there. Perhaps these undeserving few will make it hard for some worthy ones. That is generally the way the game goes. There have been an unusually large number of "drunks" before the court during the past week. It may be that the sudden shutting down on this class of offenders will bring some of them to a realization of the fact that they cannot go on eternally getting drunk and get off easily every time.

A "hostile" army will strike the Massachusetts coast tomorrow morning and some 10,000 men will try and capture Boston from the land side. It may be that some of the fighting will occur in Quincy. Last night Battery A of Boston passed through Quincy and camped on the shores of the Quincy reservoir in Braintree for the night. They moved on to meet the enemy today. When you go to sleep tonight try and imagine a real state of war existing but don't imagine too hard. The war game is all very well in its way and no doubt will give a lot of experience to the officers and men of the militia but let's hope they will never be confronted by a real war game—for that would be a very different kind of play.

An open air meeting in the interest of the woman's suffrage movement will be held in City square tomorrow night. The meeting ought to be interesting at least, if not instructive, for it is the first open air meeting of its kind that has been held in this city. The speakers who will be here have spoken in other places and know their subject thoroughly. The woman's suffrage movement is growing, despite the avowed hostility of a certain class. There doesn't seem to be any good reason why the women shouldn't have a voice in the making of the laws to which they must be subject. As between giving the ballot to the woman who brings children into the world and tries by her own example and teaching to make her sons good citizens and the drunken loafer who is willing to sell his vote for a bottle of whiskey—better give the vote to the woman every time. The argument has been made that the granting of the franchise to women will bring them down to the level of the man who sells his vote. Fortunately, that class of women do not take any interest in matters of this kind. The women who have been exercising their influence in this movement are women of education and discernment. The professional politicians will be opposed to woman's suffrage but the thinking citizens who work for a living and do not depend for an existence on politics, will not begrudge the vote to decent, self-respecting women. We doubt if the other class of women will ever exercise the right once it is given.

NEW GAS COMPANY

Plans to Construct a Plant Which Will Cost a Million Dollars

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 13.—An outlay of $1,000,000 will be made in the construction of a gas plant to supply the towns of Braintree, Rockland, Abington, Whitman and Weymouth, and eventually Hingham, Randolph, Holbrook, Cohasset and Nantasket Beach. The plant is to be located on the water front at East Braintre and it is planned to lay 100 miles of pipe to furnish gas to the various towns.

Contracts for the construction of the plant are expected to be placed within the next ten days and the state gas commission will hold a hearing on Sept. 8 on the petition for the capital stock of the company.

Worried Over Wife's Sickness

Winchendon, Mass., Aug. 13.—After kissing his wife of but six months as she lay in her sick-bed of many weeks, Philip Grenier, aged 25, went upstairs and committed suicide by drinking poison. He was strong and an able worker, but fretted over his wife's condition so much as to lead up to his act.

Navy Department Clerk Missing

Washington, Aug. 13.—Police are searching for Herbert E. Fleishchner, a clerk in the navy department and son of the state librarian of Massachusetts, who mysteriously disappeared from his home, leaving a message which seemed to indicate his intention to end his life.

VanSant Heads Grand Army

Salt Lake City, Aug. 13.—Samuel E. VanSant of Minnesota was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic by a vote of 587 to 156 for William I. Ketcham of Indiana.

Fire of Peculiar Origin

Leominster, Mass., Aug. 13.—Fire broke out in a storehouse of the Viscoloid company and three one-story houses of the company were destroyed with their contents. The loss is $45,000. A large auto truck was the direct cause of the fire. A spark from the engine of the machine shot through a door of one of the storehouses and alighted on inflammable materials.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LED A MISERABLE LIFE AS A HERMIT

Supposed Destitute Man Has a Comfortable Fortune

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—By actual count it was found that Peter Leibauch, an aged German hermit who was arrested for his queer actions, had hoarded in his shanty home in small change $13,168, not including 56 bags of uncounted coins or bank deposits in eight savings institutions. It is thought that before the search is ended Leibauch's fortune will total over $50,000.

For years Leibauch has posed as a destitute charge upon the bounty of citizens of the North Side. He eked out a miserable existence selling herbs and mint to saloon keepers, who in turn partly fed him. Two years ago August Leibauch, a brother, committed suicide in the hermit's home. For years the brothers lived together in the shanty. It is said they chose their solitary existence after they had been refused the hand of twin daughters of a wealthy resident of Millvale.

COMPROM SE REACHED

Will Be No Strike of Chicago's Ten Thousand Railway Employes

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The crucial point in the wage dispute between the officials of the street railway lines of Chicago and their 10,000 employes has passed. With the offer of a maximum scale of 30 cents an hour to be paid by Aug. 1, 1911, which was made by President Roach of the North and West lines, and the prompt acceptance of the same by President Quinlan of the North and West Side Street Car Men's union, all possibility of a strike appears to be over.

President Mitten of the South Side lines has allowed it to be understood that he would follow Roach in any agreement he might make with the union men.

Hon. John F. Dryden, President,
The Prudential Ins. Co. of America,
Newark, N. J.

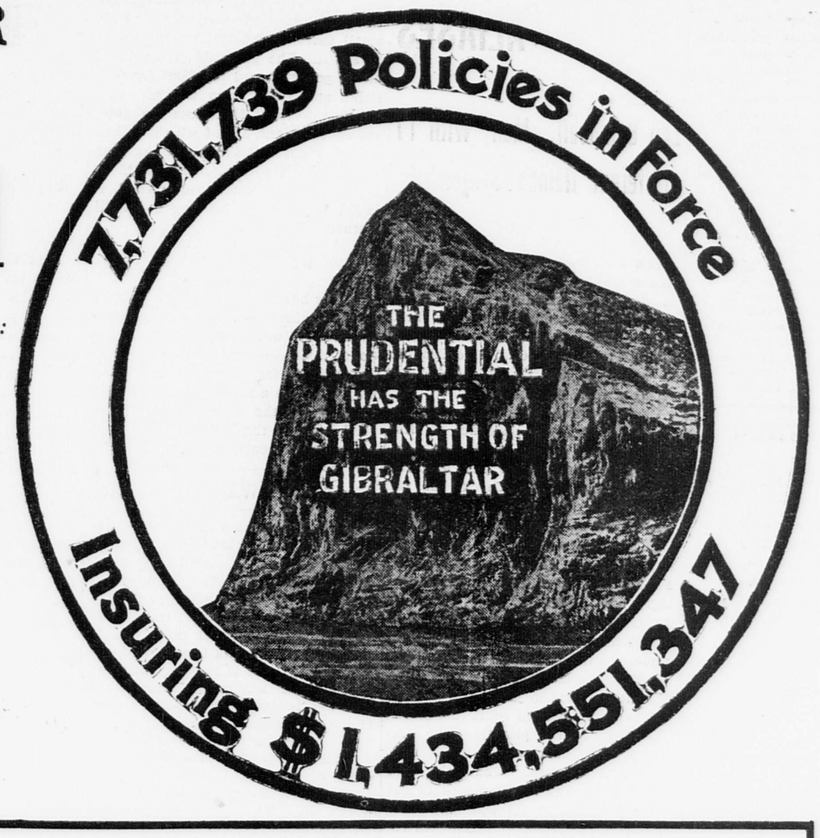

My Dear Sir:

Permit me to thank you, and through you The Prudential Insurance Company of America, for the very prompt receipt of checks for $50,000, in full cash settlement of claim on the life of my father, Peter Fenelon Collier, who demonstrated his belief in Life Insurance in The Prudential by carrying policies in your Company for several years.

Proofs were completed and checks delivered the same day, and your Company did everything possible to effect a quick payment of claim.

Assuring you of my appreciation,
I remain,
Yours very truly,

Robert J. Collier

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel.

"I beg of you, sir"—

"One moment, Mr. Calendar."

Abruptly Kirkwood's weathercock humor shifted, amusement yielding to intrigued interest. After all, why not oblige the fellow? What did anything matter now? What harm could visit him if he yielded to this corpulent adventurer's insistence? Besides, there was the girl to be considered.

Kirkwood considered her forthwith. In the process thereof his eyes sought her, perturbed. Their glances clashed. She looked away hastily, crimson to her temples.

Instantly the conflict between curiosity and caution, inclination and distrust, was at an end. With sudden compliance the young man rose.

"I shall be most happy to be of service to your daughter, Mr. Calendar," he said, placing the emphasis with becoming gravity. And then, the fat adventurer leading the way, Kirkwood strode across the room, wondering somewhat at himself, if the whole truth is to be disclosed.

CHAPTER III.

"Dorothy, my dear, permit me to introduce an old friend, Mr. Kirkwood. Kirkwood, this is my daughter."

"Miss Calendar," acknowledged Kirkwood.

The girl bowed, her eyes steady upon his own. "Mr. Kirkwood is very kind," she said gravely.

"That's right!" Calendar exclaimed blandly. "He's promised to see you home. Now, both of you will pardon my running away, I know."

"Yes," assented Kirkwood agreeably.

The elder man turned and hurried toward the main entrance.

Kirkwood took the chair he had vacated. To his disgust, he found himself temporarily dumb. No flicker of thought illuminated the darkness of his confusion. How was he to open a diverting conversation with a young woman whom he had met under auspices so extraordinary? Any attempt to gloze the situation, he felt, would be futile. And somehow he did not care to render himself ridiculous in her eyes, little as he knew her.

Inanely dumb, he sat watching her, smiling fatuously, until it was borne in on him that he was staring like a boor and grinning like an idiot. Convinced, he blushed for himself, something which served to make him more tongue tied than ever.

As for his involuntary protegee, she exhibited such sweet composure that he caught himself wondering if she really appreciated the seriousness of her parent's predicament—if, for that matter, its true nature were known to her at all. Calendar, he believed, was capable of prevarication, polite and impolite. Had he lied to his daughter or to Kirkwood? To both possibly, to the former alone not improbably. That the adventurer had told him the desperate truth Kirkwood was quite convinced, but he now began to believe that the girl had been put off with some fictitious explanation. Her tranquillity and self control were remarkable otherwise. She seemed very young to possess those qualities in such eminent degree.

She was looking wearily past him, her gaze probing some unguessed abyss of thought. Kirkwood felt himself privileged to stare in wonder. Her naive aloofness of poise gripped his imagination powerfully—the more so perhaps since it seemed eloquent of her intention to remain enigmatic—but by no means more powerfully than the unaided appeal of her loveliness.

Presently the girl herself relieved the tension of the situation, fairly startling the young man by going straight to the heart of things. Without preface or warning, lifting her gaze to his, "My name is really Dorothy Calendar," she observed. And then, noting his astonishment, "You would be privileged to doubt under the circumstances," she added. "Please let us be frank."

"Since it is to be confidences" (this she questioned with an all but imperceptible lifting of the eyebrows), "I don't mind telling you my own name is really Philip Kirkwood."

"And you are an old friend of my father's?"

He opened his lips, but only to close them without speaking. The girl moved her shoulders with a shiver of disdain.

"I knew it wasn't so."

"You know it would be hard for a young man like myself to be a very old friend," he countered lamely.

"How long, then, have you known each other?"

"Must I answer?"

"Please."

"Between three and four hours."

"I thought as much." She stared past him, troubled. Abruptly she said, "Please smoke."

"Shall I? If you wish it, of course"—

She repeated, "Please."

He produced his cigarette case.

"If you care to smoke it will seem an excuse." He lighted his cigarette. "And then you may talk to me," she concluded calmly.

"I would gladly if I could guess what would interest you."

"Yourself. Tell me about yourself," she commanded.

"It would bore you," he responded tritely, confused.

"No. You interest me very much." She made the statement quietly, contemptuous of coquetry.

"Very well, then. I am Philip Kirkwood, an American."

"Nothing more?"

"Little worth retailing."

"I'm sorry."

"Why?" he demanded, piqued.

"Because you have merely indicated that you are a wealthy American."

"Why wealthy?"

"If not you would have some aim in life, a calling or profession."

"And you think I have none?"

"Unless you consider it your vocation to be a wealthy American."

"I don't. Besides, I'm not wealthy. In point of fact, I"— He pulled up short on the verge of declaring himself a pauper. "I am a painter."

Her eyes lightened with interest. "An artist?"

"I hope so. I don't paint signs—or houses," he remarked.

Amused, she laughed softly. "I suspected it," she declared.

"Not really?"

"It was your way of looking at—things that made me guess it—the painter's way. I have often noticed it."

Leo Campbell, Man With 17 Different Names Sentenced.

Leo Campbell, who has something like seventeen aliases, was arraigned in court this morning before Judge Avery on two complaints. The first was for the larceny of jewelry valued at $133 from Mrs. Catherine Sennott at Wollaston and the second for uttering a forged check for $3.

Campbell is the young man who engaged board at the residence of Mrs. Sennott, July 28, for three weeks. On the day in question he paid his first weeks board with a check for $3 which later proved to be worthless. He was shown his room and shortly after left. A visit to the upper part of the house after his departure showed that a large amount of jewelry was missing.

Campbell was located at Brookline where he was arrested for the same game. In the Brookline court he was fined $15 and unable to pay he is serving out the time in jail.

When arraigned in court this morning he entered a plea of guilty and told a hard luck story of a sick mother in Kansas. That she had tuberculosis and if she heard of his actions that it would kill her. He pleaded to be let off promising to reform.

It appeared however that Campbell was wanted in Boston, Charlestown, Portland, Me., and other places for doing the same kind of business and that in every place he gave a different name. Up to the present time he has given seventeen different names and the police have been unable to obtain from him what his right name is.

Judge Avery sentenced him to six months in the house of correction on the larceny complaint. He appealed and was ordered to recognize in $300. On the complaint for uttering a forged check he was held in $300 for the grand jury.

Practically all of the jewelry stolen at Wollaston has been recovered in Boston pawnshops.

That Campbell is a sharp one is shown by the fact that he always chose his victims among women, posing as a son of a wealthy man with a good education. In some places he claimed to be a cousin of Gov. Hughes of New York and then he claimed to be the son of Colt, the revolver manufacturer. In another place he gave the name of Jose M. Blance and said he represented a Broadway, N. Y., banking house. Investigation has shown no such banking firm as he claimed.

WARD ONE PLAYGROUND.

Great interest is being shown by the children on the Ward 1 playground conducted by the Quincy Women's club and Quincy Young Men's Christian association. Every morning from eighty to a hundred children gather there to enjoy the swings, teters, sand boxes and games. The mornings are taken up with story telling, story reading, games, drills, folk dancing, athletics, basket ball and baseball. The program for Saturday morning for girls is, games for all ages, one half hour on swings and teters, folk dancing, drills and story telling. For the boys, baseball game, basket ball games, quoits, games, (bull in the ring, duck on the rock, whip tag) and a shower bath for every boy on the playground. This is a rare treat and will be greatly appreciated by the boys of the city. A noticeable feature is that children from all sections of the city are taking part in the first playground of Quincy.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

A competitive examination of applicants for the position of Clerk in the service of the State Board of Agriculture is to be held August 31. There is one vacancy in this position to be filled; salary, $1,400 per year. An applicant must be a graduate of an agricultural college. The examination will embrace the following subjects: letter-writing, spelling, handwriting, arithmetic, scientific agriculture and rural sociology. Applicants must have resided in the Commonwealth one year next previous to filing applications. Men desiring to take this examination may secure application blanks by applying in person or by letter at the office of the Civil Service Commission, Room 152, State House, Boston, Mass.

HANDSOME PLANT.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newcomb of Hall Place are the owners of a "Night Blooming Cereus", which blossomed Thursday night. There has been but one flower this year but the plant still bears several buds. Last year Mr. and Mrs. Newcomb loaned this plant to the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church, who placed the plant on exhibition, charging a small entrance fee to all who wished to see it. The proceeds of the exhibition going toward the fund for new lights and a neat sum was netted.

There were at that time ten flowers on the plant, six of which opened on one night and the remaining four the following night. Although there has been but one flower opened, it is hoped that the remaining buds will mature.

WISH DONATIONS.

Ladies having in charge the welfare of the Quincy Day Nursery on Garfield street would appreciate donations of outdoor games such as horizontal bar, ring toss, chair swing, etc. There is a large yard at the Day Nursery but the only equipment is a sand box and the little children need other amusements.

TURKEY IN WARLIKE MOOD

Diplomacy Fails to Satisfactorily Settle the Cretan Trouble

London, Aug. 13.—The Daily Telegraph's Constantinople correspondent says it is difficult to discoved the influences under which the Turkish government is acting, but that in military quarters the talk is wholly of war with Greece. It is asserted that the ministers of war and marine insist that war is the only possible solution of the difficulty.

"War Is Unavoidable"

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Tageblatt says that Turkey's answer to the Greek note will have the character of an ultimatum. He adds that the opinion now is that war between Turkey and Greece is unavoidable and that an outbreak is near at hand. The forts around Saloniki, the correspondent declares, are ready for war.

Greek Note Unsatisfactory

Constantinople, Aug. 13.—The porte has decided to address a more energetic note to Greece, in which it will be stated that Greece's reply to the Turkish note concerning Crete is unsatisfactory.

MAY BE RIGHT MAN

Police Think They Have Slayer of Anna Schumacher In Custody

Rochester, Aug. 13.—Circumstances are somewhat against Edward E. Ewaldt, a farmhand and a former employe of Holy Sepulcher cemetery, who was arrested at his brother's home in North Rose and brought here last night, suspected of being the murderer of Anna Schumacher.

Ewaldt has scratches on his face and it is said that he has told contradictory stories about his movements. He left his job near the cemetery Saturday afternoon and he maintains that he went at once to his brother's home. His brother corroborates this, but the police officers say they have wisnesses who will testify to the contrary. It is also charged that Ewaldt was in the habit of acosting women whom he did not know and that his reputation is not good.

PANTOMIME OF SHOOTING

Doctor Reasserts That It Shows Sutton Was Not a Suicide

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13.—After an investigation lasting more than three weeks, the naval court of inquiry into the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, U. S. M. C., here on Oct. 13, 1907, finished the taking of testimony.

In the closing hours Dr. A. M. Schaffer, called as expert in gunshot wounds, was cross-examined. Hypothetical and technical questions figured largely in his examination by counsel for Lieutenant Adams, and although Adams was again called upon to illustrate the movements of Sutton as he lay prostrate on the ground on the fatal night, Schaeffer's conclusion was that, under the conditions given, Sutton could not have shot himself.

THE AIRSHIP IN WARFARE

Prediction That It Will Be a Factor of Great Importance

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—Thursday's session of the convention of the Army of the Philippines was marked by a speech delivered by Major General Grant, commander of the department of the lakes, who said:

"I candidly believe that airships will be the deciding factor in future warfare. The war department is watching with intense interest the development of the aeroplane. To my mind, these air craft will play the important part in war times to come."

Lusitania Betters Her Record

New York, Aug. 13.—The Cunard liner Lusitania crossed by the long course in 4 days, 16 hours and 40 minutes, nearly three hours better than her best previous performance. Her average speed was 25.65 knots. The Lusitania is still 45 minutes behind the best time made by the Mauretania.

Burglar Gets Away With Jewelry

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 13.—While the members of Garrard Comely's family were playing croquet on the lawn in front of their cottage at Manchester Cove a burglar entered the house and got away with jewelry valued at nearly $1000.

THAT DUGGAN BURKE AFFAIR

Rightfielder's Call Down By Capt. Cause of Much Talk

That Burke-Duggan affair at the recent Quincy-Dewey game has been the cause of a whole lot of talk during the past week, and many are undecided whom to uphold. It might be well to consider a few of the different ways in which the matter can be viewed. In the first place the writer wishes to state that he still stands by what appeared in Monday's Ledger.

The matter brought many things to a head that probably would not have been righted all through the season had this thing not happened. In the first place it brings to light the fact that the team has no head, that there is no one in direct and complete control, from whom the players will take a call and let it go at that. This is surely a thing that can not be tolerated on any team, for without discipline, no team will be successful. The members of any team should be under control all the time. These players are getting to play for the Quincy club, in other words they are working for the Quincy directors, and are therefore under orders from them or from some one appointed by them to look after the business, namely the manager. Unless this state of affairs exists, there will be no harmony or order o nthe team, and hence the team will not be a consistent winner.

But this does not let Duggan out of the matter, nor does it free him from criticism for his action of Saturday. Grant the Burke needed a call down for his reckless playing. Did Billy Duggan have a right to give it? And was the third base line the proper place for a call down, especially one that drove a man from the field and the team? Any fair-minded man will agree that a negative answer must be given to both these questions, at least to the last one. In regard to the former question, Duggan might have had the right to give the players a call, but it is usually the duty of the manager to give all the calls that are coming. The captain has charge of the team on the field and directs the play, but when the men come to the bench, then the manager usually has charge. Even though Duggan had a perfect right to give the man a call down, was it right to call him in such a way as to drive him from the field and cause him to say that he was through with the team? No one knows, outside of Burke and Duggan, just what was said, but the call must have been pretty severe or Burke would not have left the field, for anyone that knows Burke, knows that he is not a quitter.

Now it is up to Manager Guston to get busy and show his authority. He ought to get the players together before Saturday's game and tell them who is who, and who to take orders from, and tell them that they must obey orders or find another place to play ball.

A little story that is told of Muggsy McGraw, the fighting manager of the New York Giants, may serve to illustrate the discipline that is had on a big league team. New York was playing on the Polo grounds over in Gotham and the game was very close. McGraw thought he would try a bunting game and so he ordered the next batter to dump the ball in the front yard. The score was tied at the time and one run would win the game. The batter went up to the plate and the first ball pitched was right in the groove. Bang went the bat, and the ball sailed over the fence for a home run, winning the game. When the player came into the bench McGraw said, "You're fined $25." "What for," said the player, "Didn't I win the game?" "Yes," answered Muggsy, "you won the game, but I told you to bunt the ball, and when I give an order I want it obeyed."

This only goes to show the discipline required on the major league teams, and if this order was not required, then the players would be running their own game, doing what they pleased and in fact running wild, with the result that the team would soon be a loser both in the financial and in the games won column.

It is to be hoped now, both for the good of the team and the good of the game in this city, that there will be no more such happenings as that of last Saturday. Let us hope that it will blow over and be forgotten, for undoubtedly both players were pretty sore at the time and both probably lost their heads for the time being.

Miss Edna A. Thomas and Miss Lillian Sutherburg of Norfolk Downs left this morning for Cheever, N. H., where they are to teach school during the fall term, from Aug to Nov. Both graduated from Quincy High school, class 1909 where they were very popular in school affairs. Miss Sutherburg was in the cast at the senior dramatics, acting a very important part while Miss Thomas was prominent on many committees, noteably on the reception committee where she was chairman. The reception, was a grand success. Miss Thomas graduated as an honor student. Their friends wish them much success in their future work.

THE IRIS WINS ANOTHER RACE

Quincy Boat Doing Great Work at Marblehead

There were 110 starters in the 23 classes in the third of the midsummer races of the Corinthian Yacht club at Marblehead Friday and the Iris of Ex-Commodore Crane was again the winner in the cape cat class while the Thordis of Commodore Dawes got second position in the class A of the interclub classes.

The Crooner of Ex-Commodore Adams did a little better than in the last two races, but third place was the best that she could do.

Friday was also ladies' day and with the band concerts and hundreds of yachts the scene was an animated one.

Today's race is an open event and will wind up the week at Marblehead. The summary of the cape cat class.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents.

"As if mentally blending colors all the time?"

"Yes; that and—seeing flaws."

"I have discovered none," he told her brazenly.

But again her secret cares were claiming her thoughts, and the gay, inconsequential banter died upon her scarlet lips as a second time her glance ranged away, sounding mysterious depths of anxiety.

Provoked, he would have continued the chatter. "I have confessed," he persisted. "You know everything of material interest about me. And yourself?"

"I am merely Dorothy Calendar," she answered.

"Nothing more?" He laughed.

"That is all, if you please, for the present."

"I am to content myself with the promise of the future?"

"The future," she told him seriously, "is tomorrow, and tomorrow"— She moved restlessly in her chair, eyes and lips pathetic in their distress. "Please, we will go now, if you are ready."

"I am quite ready, Miss Calendar."

He rose. A waiter brought the girl's cloak and put it in Kirkwood's hands. He held it until, smoothing the wrists of her long white gloves, she stood up, then placed the garment upon her white young shoulders, troubled by the indefinable sense of intimacy imparted by the privilege. She permitted him this personal service. He felt that she trusted him; that out of her gratitude had grown a simple and almost childish faith in his generosity and considerateness.

As she turned to go her eyes thanked him with an unfathomable glance. He was again conscious of that esoteric disturbance in his temples. Puzzled, hazily analyzing the sensation, he followed her to the lobby.

A page brought him his topcoat, hat and stick. Tipping the child from sheer force of habit, he desired a gigantic porter, impressively ornate in hotel livery, to call a hansom. Together they passed out into the night, he and the girl.

Beneath a permanent awning of steel and glass she waited patiently, slender, erect, heedless of the attention she attracted from wayfarers.

A cab drew in at the block. The porter clapped an arc of wickerwork over its wheel to protect the girl's skirts. She ascended to the seat.

Kirkwood, dropping sixpence in the porter's palm, prepared to follow. But a hand fell upon his arm, peremptory, inexorable. He faced about, frowning, to confront a slight, hatchet faced man, somewhat under medium height, dressed in a sack suit and wearing a derby well forward over his eyes, that were hard and bright.

"Mr. Calendar?" said the man tensely. "I presume I needn't name my business. I'm from the Yard"—

"My name is not Calendar."

The detective smiled wearily. "Don't be a fool, Calendar," he began. But the porter's hand fell upon his shoulder, and the giant bent low to bring his mouth close to the other's ear. Kirkwood heard indistinctly his own name, followed by Calendar's, and the words: "Never fear. I'll point him out."

"But the woman?" argued the detective, unconvinced, staring into the cab.

"Am I not at liberty to have a lady dine with me in a public restaurant?" interposed Kirkwood without raising his voice.

The hard eyes looked him up and down without favor. Then: "Beg pardon, sir. I see my mistake," said the detective brusquely.

"I am glad you do," returned Kirkwood grimly. "I fancy it will bear investigation."

He mounted the step. "Imperial theater," he told the driver, giving the first address that occurred to him. It could be changed. For the moment the main issue was to get the girl out of the range of the detective's interest.

He slipped into his place as the hansom wheeled into the turgid tide of westbound traffic.

So Calendar had escaped, after all! Moreover, he had told the truth to Kirkwood.

By his side the girl moved uneasily. "Who was that man?" she inquired.

Kirkwood sought her eyes and found them wholly ingenuous. It seemed that Calendar had not taken her into his confidence, after all. She was therefore in no way implicated in her father's affairs. Inexplicably the young man's heart felt lighter. "A mistake. The fellow took me for some one he knew," he told her carelessly.

The assurance satisfied her. She rested quietly, wrapped up in personal concerns. Suddenly Kirkwood was recalled to a sense of duty by a glimpse of Hyde Park Corner. He turned to the girl. "I didn't know where you wished to go."

She seemed to realize his meaning with surprise, as one whose thoughts have strayed afar recalled to an imperative world.

"Oh, did I forget? Tell him, please, to drive to No. 9 Frognall street Bloomsbury."

Constraint hung like a curtain between the two, a silence which the young man forbore to moderate, finding more delight than he had cared (or dared) confess to in contemplation of the pure girlish profile so close to him.

She seemed quite unaware of him, lost in thought, large eyes sober, lips serious that were fashioned for laughter, round little chin firm with some occult resolution. It was not hard to fancy her nerves keyed to a high pitch of courage and determination nor easy to guess for what reason. Watching always, keenly sensitive to the beauty of each salient line betrayed by the flying lights, Kirkwood's own consciousness lost itself in a profitless, even a perilous, labyrinth of conjecture.

The cab stopped. Both occupants came to their senses with a little start. The girl leaned out over the apron, recognized the house she sought in one swift glance, testified to the recognition with a hushed exclamation and began to arrange her skirts. Kirkwood, unheeding her faint hearted protests, jumped out, interposing his cane between her skirts and the wheel. Simultaneously he received a vivid mental photograph of the locality.

Frognall street proved to be one of those byways a short block in length which, hemmed in on all sides by a meaner purlieu, have (even in Bloomsbury) escaped the sordid commercial eye of the keeper of furnished lodgings, retaining jealously something of the old time dignity and reserve that were their pride in the days before society swarmed upon Mayfair and Belgravia.

Its houses loomed tall, with many windows, mostly lightless, materially aggravating that air of isolate, cold dignity which distinguishes the Englishman's castle. Here and there stood one less bedraggled than its neighbors, though all, without exception, spoke assuredly of respectability down at the heel, but fighting tenaciously for existence. Some, vanguards of that imminent day when the boarding house should reign supreme, wore with shamefaced air placards of estate agents advertising their susceptibility to sale or lease. In the company of the latter was No. 9.

"Good night," she said.

The American noted the circumstance subconsciously at a moment when Miss Calendar's hand, small as a child's, warm and compact in its white glove, lay in his own. And then she was on the sidewalk, her face, upturned to his, vivacious with excitement.

"You have been so kind," she told him warmly, "that one hardly knows how to thank you, Mr. Kirkwood."

"I have done nothing—nothing at all," he mumbled, disturbed by a sudden unreasoning alarm for her.

She passed quickly to the shelter of the pillared portico. He followed clumsily. On the doorstep she turned, offering her hand. He took and retained it.

"Good night," she said.

"I'm to understand that I'm dismissed, then?" he stammered ruefully.

She evaded his eyes. "I—thank you. I have no further need"—

"You are quite sure? Won't you believe me at your service?"

She laughed uneasily. "I'm all right now."

"I can no nothing more—sure?"

"Nothing. But you—you make me almost sorry I can't impose still further upon your good nature."

"Please don't hesitate."

"Aren't you very persistent, Mr. Kirkwood?" Her fingers moved in his. Burning with the repressed, he released them and turned to her so woebegone a countenance that she repented of her severity. "Don't worry about me, please. I am truly safe now. Some day I hope to be able to thank you adequately. Good night."

Her pass key grated in the lock. Opening the door disclosed a dark and uninviting entry hall, through which there breathed an air heavy with the dank and dusty odor of untenanted rooms. Hesitating on the threshold, over her shoulder the girl smiled kindly upon her commandeered esquire and stepped within.

He lifted his hat automatically. The door closed with an echoing slam. He turned to the waiting cab, fumbling for change.

"I'll walk," he told the cabby, paying him off.

The hansom swept away to a tune of hammering hoofs, and quiet rested upon the street as Kirkwood turned the nearest corner in an unpleasant temper, puzzled and discontented. It seemed hardly fair that he should have been dragged into so promising an adventure by his ears (so to put it) only to be thus summarily called upon to write "Finis" beneath the incident.

He rounded the corner and walked halfway to the next street, coming to an abrupt and rebellious pause by the entrance to a covered alleyway, of two minds as to his proper course of action.

In the background of his thoughts No. 9 Frognall street reared its five story facade, sinister and forbidding. He reminded himself of its unlighted windows, of its sign "To Be Let," of the effluvia of desolation that had saluted him when the door swung wide. A deserted house, and the girl alone in it—was it right for him to leave her so?

CHAPTER IV.

THE covered alleyway gave upon Quadrant mews, or so declared a notice painted on the dead wall of the passage.

Overhead, complaining as it swayed in the wind, hung the smirched and weather worn signboard of the Hog-in-the-Pound public house, wherefrom escaped sounds of such revelry by night as is indulged in by the British workingman in hours of ease. At the curb in front of the house of entertainment, dejected animals drooping between their shafts, two hansoms stood in waiting until such time as the lords of their destinies should see fit to sally forth and inflict themselves upon a cab hungry populace. As Kirkwood turned a third vehicle rumbled up out of the mews.

For between his curiosity about and

—When children say "Let's make believe," and commence their play it is a pleasure to watch the development of their imaginations. The national guard is about to engage in a "make believe" war, and it will be interesting to watch its progress. The Massachusetts volunteer militia will make believe that they are defending the State from an invasion of enemies. They will throw up make believe entrenchments and imaginary shots will be fired and whole regiments will be declared dead. Fortunately there will be no burial of the dead, either known or unknown, though they may go through the motions of that tragic ceremonial. The whole campaign will be of the nature of the diversion which children so much enjoy, ends as it is of benefit to the little ones, so will it be to the soldiers. It will give them training in marching and in care of themselves in the field, of making camp and going through all the motions of actual warfare, and so preparing them for the more serious duties that they must be ready to perform whenever called upon. There may be some who will consider the campaign as silly and not worth the money it will cost, but the education it will give the soldiers and the assurance it will afford to the government, that there is an armed force on which it can implicitly rely, will compensate for the outlay and satisfy all objections that we are safe against any or all invaders.—Lynn Item.

Keep Trace of Progress of an Alleged Kipnapper

IS FINALLY LANDED IN JAIL

New Hampshire Man From Whom Wife Obtained Divorce After He Had Eloped With Her Mother Returns to Former Home and Makes Off With His Young Son In a Buggy, but Is Soon Caught

Laconia, N. H., Aug. 14.—An exciting chase for an alleged kidnapper, which led through three towns, ended in the arrest at Tilton of Fred Sargent, formerly of this town, who is accused of having spirited away his young son from the custody of his former wife.

The child, Clarence, aged 3½ years, was returned to the home of its mother in Laconia and Sargent was brought here and locked up pending proceedings which County Attorney Tilton will institute in court. Mrs. Sargent obtained a divorce from her husband on statutory grounds about a year ago and the custody of the child was given to her by the court at that time.

Sargent is 30 years old, and has recently been living in Norfolk, Va. He was married here five years ago to Rose F. Gordon, daughter of a farmer, and two children were born, Clarence, and a younger one, named Lester. A year and a half ago Sargent disappeared, taking the older boy with him, and at the same time Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Sargent's mother, departed mysteriously.

After Mrs. Sargent obtained her divorce she learned last January that her husband and mother were living in Norfolk, and going to that city she secured their arrest. Sargent was in jail a month. The mother, who was out on bail, disappeared, and her whereabouts have since been unknown to her husband here or her daughter. After securing Clarence, Mrs. Sargent returned to Laconia and has since been living with her father.

It was while the two children were playing on the lawn and the other members of the family were at dinner that the elder boy suddenly vanished. Gordon immediately notified the local officers and the county authorities. By the aid of farm telephones the progress of the buggy through Belmont and East Tilton was traced, and when it was driven by Sargent to the livery stable in Tilton from which he had hired the rig, he was placed in custody by Deputy Sheriff Plummer. Chief of Police Tarbell went to Tilton and brought Sargent and the child back here, restoring the boy to its mother and locking Sargent up.

ROBBERS' FATAL ASSAULT

Caught In the Act of Drawing Knife Across a Man's Throat

Port Chester, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Lewis Lavini, an elderly second hand clothes dealer, who was known to keep considerable cash about him, had his throat cut by robbers last evening within ten feet of the passing crowds on the sidewalk. He will die.

Pietro Fallico and Antonio Birzi were surrounded in the building and caught before they could escape. An up-stairs tenant entered the shop just as one of the men was drawing a knife across the old man's throat and gave the alarm.

The victim cannot talk, but before he lost consciousness he indicated by signs that the prisoners were his assailants.

LEWIS WHIPS BURKE

Four Rounds Clipped Off Their Bout When Sailor Is Put to Sleep

New York, Aug. 14.—Willie Lewis definitely halted the championship aspirations of Sailor Burke last night in the sixth round of what was to have been a ten round bout here.

Burke, who is really a light heavyweight, just got under the middleweight limit of 158 pounds and had the advantage of some ten pounds over his opponent. The early rounds were in his favor, but Lewis fought faster each time he arose from his chair and won on his merits with a knockout.

Lowell Druggist a Suicide

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 14.—The body of Charles E. Carter, a druggist, was found in his home with a tube from a gas cock in his mouth and a nearly empty chloroform bottle by his side. Temporary insanity over business affairs is though to have been the cause of the suicide.

Wrights' Flight Record Beaten

Mineola, N. Y., Aug. 14.—What is believed to be a record for cross-country distance flight for an aeroplane in this country was made by C. F. Willard when he covered 12 miles in 19½ minutes. This exceeds the 10-mile flight made by the Wright brothers.

Electrical Problem Solved

Christiana, Aug. 14.—An inventor named Gross, living here, claims to have constructed an electric storage battery. Experts consider Gross' invention of high importance.

SOUTHERNERS ARE GROWLING

Do Not Want Democrats to Share Census Patronage

LONG LIST OF SUPERVISORS

Prepared at Washington and Brought to Beverly, Where President Records His Approval—National Committeeman Journeys From Texas to Register Protest Against Distribution of Plums In Solid South to Others Than Republicans

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 14.—At an extended conference last night with Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor, Postmaster General Hitchcock and L. D. Durand, director of the census, President Taft approved the appointment of 330 supervisors of the thirteenth census.

The list had been prepared at Washington for the president and the qualifications of every man inquired into. There were some districts in Kentucky, however, when these men arrived in Beverly, which were put up to the president for settlement.

There has been marked discontent among some southern Republicans over the decision of the president to divide the census patronage in the states of the solid south. Cecil Lyon, Republican national committeeman, came all the way from Texas to tell the president that he would rather have the state put in charge of one supervisor—a good Republican of course—than to have to divide the congressional districts with the Democrats.

Colonel Lyon said the declaration of his policy on his part held good for all of the states. Oklahoma, he declared, had been included with Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and Missouri in the list of nearly-doubtful states that had been set apart from the other southern states for a full list of Republican supervisors.

"If Oklahoma is a northern state," declared Lyon, "I am in favor of moving Mason and Dixon's line still further south to let Texas in."

When it is considered that each census supervisor will have a tremendous field force of enumerators under him, the extent of the census patronage may be readily realized. Each of the supervisors will receive a salary of $2000 and their work will extend over eight or ten months. The enumerators will not have so long a service.

The states where the supervisors are divided equally between the Democrats and Republicans are Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas.

In most of the states supervisors are appointed in each congressional district. This system does not prevail in New England. Maine, for instance, has but two supervisors, while Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island have but one each.

Director Durand said that he hoped to have the supervisors actively at work by the middle of October. He said that today many of the supervisors appointed by the president have been selected more for their capabilities as officials than for any active part they have played in politics. Durand has personally inquired into the standing of every candidate recommended for office and has prepared a little biographical sketch of each supervisor named by the president to show exactly what the man has done to deserve his place in the public service.

SOLDIERS PATROL STREETS

Ball Cartridges Ready For Trouble Makers at Fort Williams

Fort William, Ont., Aug. 14.—The only developments in the Canadian Pacific dock strike are the vigorous steps taken by the military in the disarming of strikers. Those who resist put in jail. The strikers are cowed by the glitter of bayonets and the sight of men loading rifles with ball cartridges.

The 300 soldiers patrolling the streets near the wharfs are keeping close watch to avoid any outbreak, as it is feared that weapons are hidden away by the foreigners on strike.

Close to Drifting Match

Rockland, Me., Aug. 14.—Overdue one day, the New York Yacht club fleet arrived here last night. In contrast to the batterings and velocity of Tuesday's gale, by which the fleet was depleted, the run from Portland was marked by an almost dead calm.

Prisoner Shot by Jailer

Newark, N. J., Aug. 14.—After a murderous attack on two keepers in the county jail here, Angelo Caprio, awaiting trial on a charge of murder, was shot and instantly killed by a third keeper, who had come to the rescue of his comrades.

Country Jay Breaks a Record

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—At the Randall track Country Jay, ridden by Ramsey Macey, broke the world's record for trotters under saddle, making the mile in 2:10½. The former record, 2:13¾, was made by Charley Mack.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

Keith's Theatre.

"The coolest head in the world." This distinction has been given to Harry De Coe, the Englishman, who startled London by his wonderful feats of balancing. De Coe places four tables, one on top of the other, and on top of this he places two chairs. Then with two more chairs he climbs to the top of this rickety heap and in the most incredibable manner manages to put a third chair on top of the two already there. Then climbing up on the tables he balances a fourth chair, and not only that but he sits on it and smokes a cigarette. During most of the operations the entire pyramid of tables and chairs seems to sway, but De Coe accomplishes the feat in the most matter of fact manner. He comes to Keith's next week as a feature of one of the big bills that has been making the summer season a memorable one. The Fadettes continue to give their popular concerts before the regular vaudeville bill begins, and Mrs. Nichols and her forty players are more popular than ever. James K. Murray and Clara Lane, the opera singers will present a new sketch said to be better than anything that they have previously presented.

Boston Theatre.

"Three Twins," the most successful musical comedy America has ever known will be the opening attraction at the Boston theatre during the week of August 23d. The original company with an entire new scenic and costume production will be shown to Boston theatre-goers at that time. This is the company that ran all last year at the Herald Square theatre, New York, to the largest business ever played to at that theatre. Clifton Crawford and Bessie McCoy are the two principal players in a cast that is unusually strong. "Three Twins" was made into a musical piece by Charles Dickson and was originally a farce called "Incog" by Mrs. Pacheo, the lyrics are by O. A. Hauerbach and the music by Karl Hoschna. The principal features that have made "Three Twins" the great success that it has achieved are its comedy and novel effects. The laughs are continuous from the time the curtain goes up until the finale of the first act, while there are novelties in music, stage settings, electrical effects, mechanical effects and in chorus ensembles.

Wonderland.

The beautiful fairy spectacle "Cinderella" is now given at Wonderland at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon as well as at 8.30 o'clock at night. This great show, the big free show of the season at this popular park, engages the services of sixty boys and girls, and from beginning to ending is a most fascinating, brilliant entertainment, characterized by daintiness and refinement in every costume, movement and color scheme. The music by Teel's band is of the best. There are new incidentals every week. The big new number is the "Florodora" sextette, sung and danced by twenty young lads and lasses, and it made an instantaneous and popular hit. Every evening, previous to the performance on the stage, there is a parade on the great board walk which encircles the lagoon, of all the members of the "Cinderella" company, headed by Teel's band. The Prince and Cinderella appear in a beautiful chariot drawn by six little fairies, and about everything in the way of electrical and costume effects has been done to make a glittering and fascinating pageant. Children under twelve years of age, if accompanied by adults, will be freely admitted to Wonderland for the rest of the season.

Highland Park.

Contracts have been made by the Old Colony St. Ry. Co. management for the greatest free special attraction that has ever been seen at this company's popular Highland Park, at Brockton, the marvellous Prof. Holloway's European diving horses. These horses will give exhibitions every afternoon and evening of next week commencing Monday afternoon. These horses are the original diving horses which have appeared at all the great capitals of Europe. They have won the admiration of King Edward of England who personally was so interested in their performance that he insisted on visiting them at their stalls and petting them. They have appeared in New England but a few times not having been here since they appeared in Boston some ten years ago. They have never been seen in this immediate section. The horses are two splendid milk white steeds of pure Arabian blood and are descendants of horses given President Grant by the Khedive of Egypt. They stand 17 hands high and weigh about 1200 pounds. They were the first horses ever trained to do this wonderful diving act. A large pit has been dug at the park. This will contain water 14 feet in depth into which the horses will dive from a height of 38 feet. One of the specially interesting features of the act is that the horses themselves seem to enjoy it. They do not have to be whipped or coaxed to go up the shute or to mae their dive, but do it all with a willingness that leaves no doubt in the mind but that it is a genuine pleasure. Since colts these horses have been doing this dive and have never been broke to harness. They have also never worn shoes. They will give their exhibition dives at 2.45 and 8 P. M., but will be quartered at the park where they may be seen at any time.

Paragon Park.

The automobile patronage at Paragon park has assumed such proportions since Manager Dodge opened up a special auto gate entrance and a reservation for free parking for automobiles that he is already announcing the Palm Garden open for automobilists through the month of September after the regular season of the Park closes on Labor day. It is a great boon to automobile parties to have such a place as the Palm Garden famous for its cuisine and elaborate wine list, and the run to Nantasket is made all the more with the anticipation of the amusements and sights of Paragon park and dinner in the Palm Garden while enjoying the band concerts and watching the festive amusement seekers about the lagoon. And until the Park closes its season as usual on Labor day the same delights of the Palm Garden and the great variety of entertainment offered within the park are open to all visitors, whether they arrive by steamboat, by trolley, third rail or on foot. The scheme of giving for the fireworks display on Saturday nights a pyrotechnic exhibit made exclusively for Paragon Park has made a decided hit and this plan will be followed at all the Saturday night fireworks shows for the balance of the season. No one feature at this resort has aroused so much favorable comment or attracted such tremendous crowds.

—The Massachusetts Masonic Home at Charlton will not be opened until next spring.

BOSTON LETTER

Re-election of Senator Lodge Is Apparently Certain

IS NO ONE TO OPPOSE HIM

Democrats Prepare to Accept Vahey For Governor Nominee—Second Councillor District Has a Contest

The adjournment of congress has diverted attention from the tariff bill to state politics. Notwithstanding the hot weather the political pot seems to be fairly active in its boiling.

There appears to be no longer any doubt in regard to the re-election of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. As a matter of fact, there does not appear to have been any doubt at any time, although a number of people have anticipated that ex-Governor Bates might be a candidate. However, Mr. Bates has declined to enter the lists and it is extremely unlikely that anybody else will undertake to displace the senior senator.

There are many people who regard Governor Bates as one of the most popular men in the Republican party in this commonwealth. There is no doubt that his hold upon the party is extremely strong. At the proper time he will undoubtedly make a strong candidate for the senatorship, although there is not a shred of evidence that he has had any intention of opposing Mr. Lodge for re-election.

Mr. Lodge will undoubtedly have a clear field for another six years in the senate and his splendid work on the Payne tariff bill, aided by the silent but masterful Senator Crane, has made him even stronger with the party than he was before. His term does not expire until March, 1911, but the legislature which is elected next year will choose his successor.

Vahey For Governor

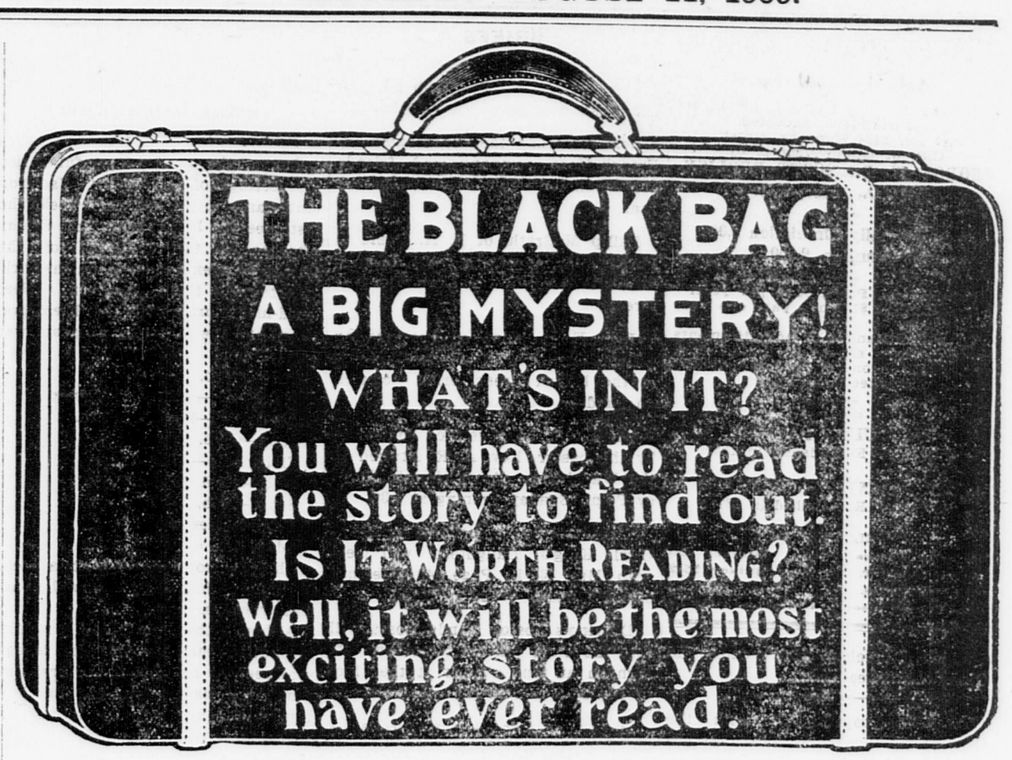

Leading Democrats in the state have settled down to the conviction that it will be impossible this year to draft any prominent party man to accept the gubernatorial nomination. Consequently ex-Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown will undoubtedly be given the opportunity to canvass the state at the head of the party ticket. The hope that Colonel William A. Gaston would run has evaporated, notwithstanding the liberal contribution which he recently made to the Democratic state committee. It does not look, at the present time, as if the state campaign would be a very strenuous affair. Mr. Vahey is not regarded as a dangerous candidate by the Republicans, and Democrats feel that if nominated, defeat will be certain. There does not seem to be any confidence in the Democratic party that any other candidate would fare much better this year.

Of course it is an off year and a much smaller vote is likely to be cast than last year, when the presidency of the United States was at issue. The Democrats, who expected that they might make some capital out of the tariff bill, have concluded that there are no votes in that issue. They are free to confess that the Payne bill is as satisfactory as any tariff bill is likely to be and that no considerable number of people has been aggrieved by its passage.

Three For Councillor

There are several small contests on in various districts of the state for nominations. One of these is in the second councillor district, where the present incumbent, Hon. Albion F. Bemis, is not a candidate for another term, having already served three. The district comprises Attleboro, Berkley, Dighton, Easton, Mansfield, North Attleboro, Norton, Raynham, Reheboth, Seekonk and Taunton, Avon, Bellingham, Braintree, Brookline, Canton, Dedham, Dover, Foxboro, Hyde Park, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Needham, Franklin, Holbrook, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Quincy, Randolph, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Wellesley, Westwood, Weymouth and Wrentham; also wards 20, 21, 23 and 25. There are already in the field J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood, manager of the Norwood Press, Representative Herbert W. Burr of ward 24, Boston, and ex-Representative Arthur P. Russell of Quincy, who at one time represented ward 16 in the house. There are other possible candidates, but they have not taken an open stand as yet. Each one has his elements of strength.

There has been some newspaper talk regarding a new candidate for state auditor, but nothing is likely to come of it. There is no candidate in the field. Since Auditor Turner has been in that position he has revolutionized the methods of business in the office of state auditor, and has won golden opinions from all quarters by the reforms he has inaugurated. He was an expert accountant by profession, and his experience in that line has suggested to him methods for saving money and for preventing waste in the departments which have saved the commonwealth thousands of dollars, and received the highest praise from state officials who were deeply interested in his work. If a candidate for the position were to appear it would be likely to be a fruitless task for him to attempt to displace Mr. Turner, in view of the facts which have been stated.

The New Serial Now Running in the Ledger

Parker Wants Another Term

There is a rather interesting situation in the eighth Suffolk senate district, where Senator W. Prentiss Parker is a candidate for renomination. Mr. Parker has not been on the best of terms with either the Republican state or city machine, and it is possible that they may not favor his candidacy, but on the contrary may be glad to see some other candidate go into the contest and win. Mr. Parker is a recent convert to Republicanism. He was serving as a Democrat on one of the boards of the city of Boston during the term of Mayor Fitzgerald, when the mayor removed him. Since that time he has been acting with the Republicans, having served last year in the board of aldermen, and this year in the senate. He is regarded as a very honest, conservative legislator, but as a diplomat not a success, giving offense to many by reason of his brusque manners. However, he is quite likely to be renominated.

WOOD WASTE DECREASING.

The waste wood heap continues to dimish and pass away. A Massachusetts manufacturer of brushes recently made a discovery in Maine which supplied him with material exactly suited to his purpose. He went to the Pine Tree States to buy wood for the backs of hair brushes and the handles of shaving brushes, and chanced to visit the yards of a spool maker who was using white birch. The spool man took the white part of the wood only, and was throwing away the red hearts. Thousands of cords had been burned or dumped in the lake to be rid of it.

The red hearts were exactly what the brush maker wanted, and at little more than the expense of freight he supplied his factory. This is typical of the trend of manufacturing. Waste of wood is still great, but it is decreasing. What one factory can not use, another turns to profit. Formerly mills threw away half the forest—tops left in the woods, sawdust dumped in streams to pollute them and destroy fish, slabs burned in perpetual bon-fires, and defective logs and low grade lumber abandoned as not worth moving. This policy does not generally prevail now. Some mills have put in machinery to work up their own by products, others sell their waste to manufacturers who can use it, as in the case cited in Maine. The properties and uses of woods are now subjects of careful investigation, and the problem of turning to account the odds and ends and by-products is brought more to the front now than formerly.

The United States Forest Service has taken up this study in a comprehensive and systematic way. Investigations of the woods of particular states are being conducted, usually in cooperation with the states concerned. The plan, when fully carried out, will include every commercial wood in the United States, not fewer than 200 species. The properties of each will be investigated, its hardness, toughness, elasticity, durability, weight, fuel value, size of tree, regions where grown, the common names by which it is known in different localities, and other matters of this kind. A history of the wood's uses in the past will be given, and an account of present uses; together with suggestions for a wider range of usefulness in the future by pointing out in what capacities it will serve best and be most valuable.

Do your sympathies lie with the Reds or the Blues? Perhaps they are with the red, white and blue.

If you can't pick a ball game to interest you today in Quincy you must be hard to suit.

If Greek meets Turk there may be a conCrete example of what is likely to be expected in such an eventuality.

The young man sentenced in court yesterday for larceny in this city, had 17 aliases. If he had been given rope enough he might have tripped up on his own name.

Familiarity allays curiosity. How many Quincy people ever stop to watch the street watering car as it goes its daily rounds or thinks it anything out of the ordinary? Every outsider who comes to Quincy, though, stops in amazement every time the car goes by and everyone has comments to make. Judging from remarks such a car is a rarity in most cities and towns.

Aren't there enough men in this town to furnish some playthings for the children at the Day Nursery? The cigar money of lots of men for one day would buy a lot of things. The children at this place are there because their mothers are out working to get a living for them. There ought to be men big-hearted enough to give a little change for such a worthy project. A big yard, with no playthings in it, is a mighty lonely place for a healthy youngster.

Probably very few people thought of the historical significance when they saw the army transport wagons halted in City Square yesterday morning while the men and horses breakfasted. City square, in the old days when Quincy was Braintree and for a good many years afterwards, too, was a training field for soldiers and is recorded on the old deeds, we believe, as "ye olde training field." On this field were trained and assembled troops for the French and Indian wars, for the Revolutionary war and the war of 1812 and also for the civil war. The appearance of army wagons and troops bivouacked in the square yesterday made a very suggestive picture.

Many firemen are in favor of having a parade and exhibition of the various pieces of the city's fire apparatus when the new stream fire engine comes to town. Many remember the "blowout" that was held at the playout of the old engine. We doubt if another engine will ever stand up so well for so many years under such hard conditions as did old engine 1. She was one of the best engines ever put on the market and rendered good service not only to Quincy but to surrounding cities and towns. Her last out-of-town service was at the memorable Chelsea fire and the fire was stopped at the point where she was stationed. It was a mistake to let engine 1 go out of the city. At a relatively small expense she could have been made almost as good as new. In fact, at the present time, she is doing duty at Gloucester as a relief engine.

A Hurry-up Medicine.

Every housekeeper recognizes the need of effective remedies to be used in emergencies—when something must be done right away. Such a remedy is Perry Davis' Painkiller, for sprains and bruises, for strained muscles and for the aches and pains resulting from blows and falls. Burns and cuts are instantly relieved by it and helped to healing. Its mission of mercy began seventy years ago. It is used in all countries and millions of bottles are sold annually. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Have you seen the new large 35c. size?

BRIEFS

Next Saturday the Washington M. French Hose company and friends hold a reunion at Lee's New Squantum Inn.

Philip McGrath, of E. H. Doble & Co.'s store, has moved from Reardon street to his old home on Douglas street.

John E. B. Munn of Presbyterian college, Montreal, Canada, will preach at the United Presbyterian church on Sunday.

There will be a service conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. R. Atwood at the Washington Street church, Quincy Point, Sunday evening at 7.30.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox S. Ruggles have the sympathy of friends and neighbors for their sad loss in the death of their little daughter Louise, a child of three years, which occurred at their home on South Central avenue Wednesday. Prayers were read by Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, rector of St. Chrysostom's church Friday afternoon and the burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Mrs. Carrie B. Ellis, the wife of Stephen I. Ellis, passed away on Aug. 6, at Wollaston, funeral services being held on Tuesday from her late residence, 158 Taylor street. She leaves a husband and four children. Mr. Ellis is the son of Mrs. Louise Ellis of Braintree, and the family have the sympathy of friends in Wollaston Dorchester and Braintree. There were many beautiful floral tributes at the funeral.

ENGINEERS HOLD SOCIAL.

Harry Marr of I. A. of S. Presides at Meeting of Local Society.

The Amalgamated Society of Engineers held a social last evening in Protection hall, Johnson building, about 200 of the members being present. Harry Marr, honorary vice-president of the International association of shipwrights, was the chairman, and made a brief address on the good work and progress of the local society. He was heartily received by those present.

During the evening there were songs and dances by those present, among the most prominent being George McDougall, in some clever dancing specialties, George Elliot, songs, and James Neil, who gave the members "20 minutes with Harry Lauder," singing all the famous songs of the clever Scotch comedian. He made a big hit. Theodore Myers presided at the piano and gave several solos, besides accompanying the singers in excellent style.

The committee in charge of the affair was Henry Geddes, David Smith, George McDougall, James Moore and John Temple.

GIRLS' VACATION CLUB.

One of the most successful series of meetings of the Girls' Vacation club came to an end this week, the last meeting being held on Friday afternoon at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club, when the girls entertained their mothers. Neat hand-made programs had been prepared and the following program was carried out:

Song—Club.
Piano solo—Lillian DeYoung.
Recitation—Phyllis Smith.
Song—Club.
Violin solo—Alice Barry.
Solo—Ethel Sutermeister.
Song—Club.
Virginia Reel.
Addresses.

The afternoon closed with a social during which the girls served punch and crackers.

Although the club is now a regular institution each summer and is several seasons old this is the first time that every ward in the city has been represented and also the largest enrollment, seventy-five girls attending the sessions.

Mrs. Charles R. Safford of Atlantic for two years chairman of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's club which has the Vacation club in charge, looked after the details of the club until Mrs. John D. Mackay the present chairman could assume the duties. Mrs. Mackay has been much interested in the work, ably assisted by her committee. One of the most faithful who for years has given every aid and encouragement is Miss Eliza Sheahan. The committee and girls are both enthusiastic in praise of her constant attendance and helpfulness.

Those contributing entertainment were Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Mrs. Otho A. Hayward, Mrs. Seth Ellis Pope and also D. King, his being a morning frolic which the girls enjoyed.

The sewing this summer has been in charge of Miss Florence Faxon, and Miss Helen Curtin has had charge of the games and singing. Many old friends and club members have been interested attendants at the meetings. An exhibition of the sewing is to be held at City Hall on Wednesday Aug. 18.

HOLDS ANNUAL REUNION.

Class of 1906 Quincy High School Meets at Home of Mrs. Morrill.

Quincy High school, class of 1906 held a reunion last evening at the home of Mrs. Lucy Morrill of Grove street, West Quincy. Nearly all the members of the class were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent. During the evening there were vocal and instrumental selections. Miss Mary Collins, Miss Katherine Spain, Miss Elizabeth McDonnell, Charles Knight and George McKeon favored the company with songs, while Theresa Murphy, Walter McIntosh and Louise Morrill presided at the piano. Whist was also played during the evening, and refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake were served.

AT BASS POINT.

Granite Manufacturers' Association are Holding Annual Outing Today.

Things in the granite world are very quiet today for the Manufacturers' Association is holding its annual summer outing. When the yards closed Friday night it was until Monday morning and a visitor to the granite district today would get the idea that this branch of Quincy's industries was a thing of the past.

For a number of years these outings have been held at Nantasket beach but the experience of two years ago has settled that place for Quincy men. Today they are at Bass Point, the famous summer resort on the north shore. The main party left Quincy at 8.10 and took the 9.30 boat. Others took a later train and the boat leaving Boston at 11 o'clock. This was in time for the dinner which was served at the Bass Point house. After dinner there was bathing, boating and numerous other sports.

Monday's Daily Ledger will tell you how the manufacturers spent the day.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Snow of Hancock street spent Sunday with relatives in Chatham.

Mrs. Ethel Cain of North Weymouth was the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cain of Randall avenue.

Mrs. Alice B. Richards of Wollaston spent several days this week with friends and relatives in town.

Mrs. Towle of the Hampton House has returned from a visit to relatives at Woods Hole.

Misses May and Clara Shay returned this week from Old Orchard, leaving Mrs. Mansfield and Miss Helen Moran.

A. D. Atkinson is enjoying a well-earned vacation, and is spending several weeks with relatives in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Frank A. Bates of Union street left Tuesday for an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Fred David of Damariscotta, Me.

Mrs. Charles Brown of Washington street left Thursday for Hillsboro, N. H., where she will visit with relatives for two weeks.

Mrs. Marina Potter and Miss Nellie Potter of Tremont street are spending the month with Mrs. Wilbur Rhodes of Portland, Maine.

Percy W. Holbrook, who has been engaged in the electrical business the past two months in Bangor, Maine, spent Sunday with his family on Hancock street.

An open air concert by the Wollaston band made South Braintree square lively last evening. A good program was well rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas R. Hayden accompanied by Mrs. Azel R. French and Mrs. J. Ross Hayden of South Natick are spending a few weeks at Boothbay Harbor, Maine.

Word has been received from Miss Bessie Tirrell, who is enjoying a month's vacation that she is having a most enjoyable visit with friends in Westerly, R. I.

Harrison Perkins and Dudley Howland went to their camp this week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mansfield are spending their vacation at Brant Rock.

Mrs. David Thayer of Thayer place is making an extended visit in New York state.

Mrs. William J. Keating of Washington street is the guest of relatives in Claremont, N. H.

Dr. F. W. Brett has returned from his auto trip to Maine, leaving his family at Damariscotta.

Miss Gertrude Allen, who is employed in the office of the Fore River Shipbuilding company, leaves Sunday night for Sebago lake, where she will spend two weeks.

The latest plan for the abolition of the Union street crossing does not propose a new street from the railroad to Washington street, but after crossing the track at the north of the present location to turn south and re-enter Union street near French avenue. It will make nearly a right angle of Union street.

—Mayor Trowt of Beverly is out for a second term. It has been the custom to give mayors the second term but in this case there is likely to be a contest. Former Mayor S. Harvey Dow, who served two years and was defeated last December for a third term, is a strong possibility as a candidate for another year. Former Alderman Frederick A. Dodge, who was a candidate in the five cornered contest last year will probably be a candidate and President Jeremiah F. Desmond of the Board of Aldermen is also mentioned as among those who will seek the honor and there are others.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

GOSSIP FROM HOUGHS NECK

Some Things of Interest From Quincy's Summer Resort

There have been a number of complaints from Houghs Neck this summer of small boats being stolen. In most of the cases the boats have been recovered on one of the islands in the bay, and the owners have been called upon to pay salvage. These complaints have been made to the police but as yet no one has been apprehended for stealing boats.

There are certain residents at Houghs Neck however who scout the idea that boats are stolen. Their opinion is that the loss of boats is due to children. One gentleman, who has watched things, says that every day when the children go in bathing, along the beach, they play about the row boats and have a grand time. He further says that it not infrequently happens that in their frolic the boat parts her moorings and the tide and wind soon take it out of the reach of the children. Away goes the boat down stream and the next thing is a report at the police station that another boat has been stolen. If this version is true owners of boats would do well to have them securely fastened.

The season at the beach is fast drawing to a close and the first of Sept. will see many of the residents fold their tents and away to their winter homes. While there has been a large number of transcient visitors at the beach this year, the season has not been a success financially, for the property owners and lunch houses. There have been many vacant cottages, and good ones at that, that have been idle all summer. Houghs Neck is not alone however for there is the same complaint at all summer resorts. All through Maine and New Hampshire the hotel proprietors are complaining for the lack of guests.

One of the pleasing weekly events is the Sunday night concerts given by the Pastime club who have a cottage on Bay View avenue. The club numbers among its members many fine vocalists and every Sunday night the avenue is thronged with people who gather to hear the music.

The next social event of the Quincy Yacht club is scheduled for Tuesday evening. It is the annual ladies' night of the club and a fine program for their entertainment is being arranged by the entertainment committee.

The Sunday afternoon and evening band concerts draw a large crowd. The concerts are given at the expense of the local merchants.

The annual barn dance, the one event of the year that draws people from all sections south of Boston, will be held this year on Aug. 20. It was hoped that John E. Fitzgerald, the former Mayor of Boston would lead the grand march. If he is unable to be present Congressman O'Connell will be invited to start the ball rolling.

What a falling off of oratory there has been since school lot question was settled. The School Committee now have a number of plans for the building under consideration and they will probably report their findings to the City Council early in September.

The fleet of Quincy boats that have been at Marblehead this week will return today and Sunday. A few may stay over to see the sonder class races however. Next Saturday they will be in attendance at the open race of the Wollaston yacht club.

Houghs Neck has been fortunate in having its garbage collected while the residents of Wollaston continue to kick, at the non appearance of the wagon.

One thing is certain and that is the Houghs Neck line of street cars has paid this season.

It is hoped that sometime the top of the Metropolitan sewer may be made into a boulevard drive. It would make an ideal carriage drive from Sea street across the field and thence along for a mile or more south of the street until it again intersects Sea street near the engine house.

If the Associates have accomplished nothing else they deserve the thanks of every visitor for their successful efforts in having the streets lighted.

—The smallest deposit that was ever made in the Rockland Trust company was made recently. It was only five cents and treasurer James H. Hunt was much surprised when the deposit was handed to him. It seems that this was the balance of an account of one of the lodges in town and had been turned over to the new treasurer, and it was deposited by him.—Hingham Journal.

BRAINTREE

Mr. and Mrs. Atherton N. Hunt are at Tilton, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Hastings of Maple street, have been at Westboro.

F. A. Smith of Maple street went to Cliff Island, Maine, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Roberts of Hollis avenue are at Green Harbor.

F. A. Bates took his mother to Lemoine, Maine, last week, making the trip successfully by auto.

Charles H. French of New York has been spending the week with his parents on Charles street.

Miss Almira Fuller of Middle street has been spending the week in Marlboro.

Miss Addie May McKean of Ash street is visiting relatives at Salem Willows.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harrigan are at the Milford cottage on the Weymouth shore.

Richard Small of Hollis avenue returned Thursday from a six weeks' vacation at Peak's Island, Maine.

Mrs. Arthur Cobb of Hollis avenue and Miss Muriel Cobb are at Eastham, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike, who were burned out at Lenox, are now at Braintree.

Miss Olive Carson of Hollis avenue has been spending three weeks at Nyack, New York, and is now visiting relatives in Rhode Island.

Mrs. Florence A. Jones has filed a suit for divorce from her husband Dr. Horace A. Jones formerly of Braintree.

Many friends of Carl Waldecker received souvenir post cards while he was in New Hampshire. He was the guest of his sister at her beautiful home and farm in Hancock.

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Tozier of Middle street are pleasantly located in Bethlehem N. H. From their hotel on clear days they can see the cars go up and down Mt. Washington.

Those who heard the message of Rev. Henry A. Atkinson a year ago will rejoice that he is coming to the First Congregational church again on Sunday . His church is in the South at Atlanta, Georgia.

Two Braintree young men were successful in passing the examination for admittance to the Massachusetts bar, Arthur W. Hoe and Roger Lakin. Only 131 were successful this year, of whom 52 are from Boston, and 10 from Norfolk County. The list includes two women.

Mr. and Mrs. John Delano are at Weld, Maine.

The First Congregational church looks very well in its new coat of paint, a steel grey, but the black trimmings now being added. are thought by many people to be too dark.

MILTON.

Repairs on the High school gymnasium are about completed. The floor has been strengthened by iron supports.

Chairman Baxter of the Board of Selectmen appeared before the Highway commission this week asking that Churchill lane and parts of Forest and Harland streets be closed to motor vehicles as the streets were too narrow, winding and steep. There was some opposition to closing Harland street. The commission took the matter under advisement.

The Milton Cadets drill on the East Milton playground on Squantum street on Tuesday evenings.

Miss Lottie M. Allen and Miss Isabella C. McIntyre of the Tucker school and Miss Carrie S. Allen of the public library have gone to Nova Scotia on a few weeks' outing.

Tree Warden Kidder has discovered that the leopard moth has made its appearance in Milton. It is from an inch to two inches long whether as a grub or moth and has black spots.

Residents in the vicinity of the Neponset river are complaining of the disagreeable odors. The dry weather has caused the water to be much lower than usual.

—The precipitation for Massachusetts the past week has been 145 new lawyers, 73 new doctors, but no new rain.—Weymouth Gazette.

RED AND BLUE MAY FIGHT HERE

Quincy May Witness Pitched Battle Between Two Armies

"All day long through the Quincy streets, sounded the tramp of marching feet," but it was not in a real war march, only the blue army, the defenders of Boston, on their way to begin the sham battle which may end in the "capture" of Boston. There was almost a continual stream of troops passing through here yesterday on their way to the battle line, which will lie between Plymouth and Taunton. For the most part that which passed through here yesterday and last night, were army wagons loaded with supplies for the weeks' war.

Against the defenders of the Hub will be pitted the pick of the national guards of New York, New Jersey and the district of Columbia, in command of the officers of the regular army. These troops will probably be landed somewhere in the vicinity of Buzzards Bay and Cape Cod, but of course nobody but the officer in command knows just where. Where the first clash between the two opposing armies will be is not known to the public, and even the invaders and defenders themselves do not know exactly where the clash will be, for they are sailing under sealed orders. Experts on the war game say that it may be possible to see some of the skirmishes in the vicinity of the Bridgewaters, Middleboro, Plymouth, Kingston, Halifax, Hason, or Taunton. It is not thought that there will be any fighting near Boston, unless the invaders develop greater strength than the officers of the defending troops expect. Then it may be possible that there will be some fighting in this part of the country and as Quincy is next to Boston, there may be a pitched battle right here in this city.

It is thought that the invaders will keep along the coast towns in their way towards Boston and if they do, they can not help striking Quincy, that is if they get by the defenders in blue. There is a possibility of seeing some action right here, but as the invaders are handicapped by a lack of knowledge of the ground in this vicinity, it does not look as though they would get through the blue line. However, the opposing forces are larger than the defenders and such being the case, they may be able to divide and get around in that way.

WILLIAM P. CHERRINGTON.

William P. Cherrington, who died on Thursday at his home in Somerville was the father of the first eight-hour ordinance ever passed by a city government.

He was born in Boston, April 1, 1835. He was graduated from the Hawes grammar school after receiving a Franklin medal for excellence in scholarship. Afterward he attended the Boston English high school.

He was prominent in Boston politics, and was elected to the common council for two terms, in 1885 and 1886, under the administration of Mayor Matthews. He organized the first Knights of Labor assembly in Boston, and was the father of the first eight-hour ordinance ever passed by a city government.

On May 1, 1855, he married Miss Fannie Foster, who survives him. Mr. Cherrington entered the employ of the government in the bureau of animal industry as a stock examiner in 1893, which position he held up to his death. He moved to Somerville in 1897.

Besides his widow, Mr. Cherrington is survived by three sons and two daughters, all of whom are married. The sons are William C. of North Weymouth, Hiram of South Boston, a member of the Boston fire department in the fire alarm service, and Charles Cherrington of Quincy. The daughters are Mrs. W. B. Foster of Lexington and Mrs. D. W. Bennet of Wollaston.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at one o'clock from his late residence, 13 Fremont avenue, Somerville.

COMING TO QUINCY.

Arthur L. Barbour of Natick has withdrawn his acceptance of the superintendency of schools of the city of Melrose that he may accept a similar position in Quincy. The salary attached to the Melrose superintendency is $2250, while that at Quincy is $2400.

EAST BRAINTREE.

Miss Marion Smith of Hayward street, who underwent a successful operation last week is rapidly recovering.

Mrs. A. J. Richards Miss Annie Richards, Miss Hattie Nash and Mrs. W. B. Clapp have returned from a delightful trip through Europe.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Co., has been attached for $600,000 by the Southern Pacific Co., for which the former built the steamship Creole.

Many attended the services at the Union church Sunday morning to greet a former pastor, Rev. Oliver Huckel, whose sermon was enjoyed.

J. N. Rodeheanue of the S. D. State college, preached at the M. E. church on Sunday morning. Rev. R. L. Roberts preached at the Ashby Memorial church, Providence Rhode Island.

The annual boat carnival of the summer residents of North Weymouth was held on the Fore River last evening and was a pretty scene. The committee of arrangements were Capt. Cain, W. A. Evans, T. Roy Blanchard and W. B. Mathewson. Silver cups were awarded as prizes.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the East M. E. church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. T. Johnson. They voted to hold their annual outing at Nantasket beach on Tuesday, Aug. 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Lasson, nee Eva A. Robbins, who were married on Monday evening at East Weymouth are on a wedding trip to Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. On their return they are to reside at 75 Vine street, Weymouth, where they will receive their friends after September first.

A petition is being circulated, which will be presented to the Selectmen, remonstrating against against the location of the gas plant for Braintree and Weymouth on Quincy avenue. From the standpoint of the company it is an excellent location having the benefit of tide water, and probably near enough to the railroad to get a spur track if desired. But will the plant be a detriment to property not only of Quincy avenue, but East Braintree in general? If so, it would offset any revenue which the town might receive in taxes. The location of the plant is one question however, and the granting of a franchise by the Selectmen of Braintree is another.

TAX RATES.

The tax rate of Cambridge as announced Friday is $21 per $1,000 an increase of 90 cents over last year. The total number of assessed polls is 25,896 an increase of 81 over 1908. The total valuation is $106,703,700 an increase of $157, 035 over 1908.

Newton's tax rate this year is the same as last year, namely $18.20 per $1,000.

The increase in valuation was $1,-250,140, making a total of $70,796,890.

Middleboro's tax rate is $20.80 per $1,000, an increase of $2.30 over the rate of 1908.

—At a suffragette meeting in New York, a man who attempted to break up the meeting by shouting to the speakers to "go home and wash the dishes" was promptly seized by one of the militant sisterhood and rushed over to the police. This practical demonstration of equality with the so-called stronger sex proved a most powerful argument. The combination of might with right is one of the few in this unjust world which enable the right to triumph.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage given by Herman F. Burkhardt to Rollin H. Allen dated May 12,1904, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Libro 973, Folio 37, and assigned by mesne assignments to Charles W. H. Frederick of Melrose in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on TUESDAY, September 7, 1909, at one o'clock in the afternoon at Room number 813 in Barrister's Hall, 11-25 Pemberton Square, Boston, such portion of the premises described in said mortgage as now remains subject thereto, such portion being the undivided share and interest of said mortgagor in about one hundred forty acres of land with buildings at Squantum in Quincy in said Commonwealth of which Pauline W. Burkhardt died seized July 16, 1901. The interest of the mortgagor is supposed to be one undivided sixth and will be conveyed subject to any unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments or other encumbrances if any there be. Terms at sale.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Fringe on the Chin and Soiled Collars Must go. Boston Wives and Sweethearts Waiting Anxiously for News from the Field of Battle. Onward the Yellow and Black. Boston's Park System Richer by $150,000. In Memoriam.

"Take me out to the ball game," is the song of the day. The city is baseball mad, the consecutive victories of the Red Sox having nigh unbalanced the entire population of sane, conservative old Boston. The special "car to the ballgrounds" sign is the most conspicuous object in the subway, and though there seems to be an endless chain of them each one is filled to the running board with enthusiastic fans. The feminine population—what portion of it remains in the city—is no less interested, and dainty ladies arrayed in bewitching hats and gowns and packed in among a crowd of masculine attendants are no uncommon sight as the baseball cars scurry along Huntington avenue.

Requiescat in pace! Boston mourns the loss of two well loved men—Colonel Pope and Richard Golden. Their walks in life were widely divergent, but each held a firm place in the regard of the people. Colonel Pope is perhaps best known through his introduction of the bicycle, though he has also had a remarkable career as architect, army officer, business leader and promoter of many movements for the public good. He had an army of friends and will be very widely mourned. Richard Golden is dear to the hearts of the people as "Old Jed Prouty," in which character many have seen him appear several times over. It was his one masterpiece, but few actors have held the sympathies of an audience more successfully than "Dick" Golden.

The beautification of Boston's park system will receive added impetus from the decision that the City Council may appropriate $150,000 from the Parkman fund this year for improvements in a number of the parks and on Boston Common. It is expected that work will speedily be begun on the Charlesbank, in the Fenway, Franklin Park, Arnold Arboretum, Marine Park and Wood Island Park. That Hubbites and visiting friends are becoming increasingly appreciative of the beauties of the metropolitan park system is evident from the great Requiescat in peace! Boston tion grounds this summer. Franklin Park on Sundays alone, roughly estimating, has been visited by over 100,000 people. Marine Park is the mecca of thousands on the days when the sun blisters the city pavements while the cool breezes blow across City Point from off the Arctic current out in Massachusetts Bay. With added improvements and invitations to rest and enjoyment in the park system Bostonians before long will spend their vacations at home, as the most attractive place they can find.

Woe to the cornfields! The war is on in Massachusetts and the Hub is deserted. Our brave soldiers have gone to the front to protect their country and homes, and their wives and sweethears wait with anxious hearts the news of the battle. The wives and sweethearts however do not seem as much disturbed as might be expected in face of impending disaster their chief anxiety apparently being that their soldier boys may be thrown from frisky horses or may not get enough time to sleep during the strenuous campaign. But the boys have resigned themselves to the fortunes of war without flinching. When Johnny comes marching home there will be great rejoicing and gala events, as it is said that at the conclusion of the manoeuvers there will be a grand parade and review of the invading and defending armies combined. It is even hinted that President Taft may relinqnish the golf stick long enough to come up to the Hub and watch the boys march by.

"What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," is evidently the opinion of a New York Judge. Boston wives are reading with glee the decision that an unshaven face and soiled colar worn by one's husband are sufficient grounds for separation. The housewife has for years listened to the story of her carelessness in appearing at the breakfast table in curl papers andmorning wrapper, but little or nothing has been said as to the husband's right to wear his bathrobe to breakfast, his face adorned with the growth of twenty-four hours or more, and to gulp his coffee between newspaper items. Now, however, in New York at least, hubby must sit up and take notice, else he will find himself served with formidable documents which threaten to obliterate the much abused breakfast table along with all the other comforts of home. This worthy Judge deserves a monument erected in his honor, and feminine Boston is looking enviously at her New York sister who is so fortunate in the possession of a great benefactor of womankind.

Three cheers for the yellow and black! The Boston suffragists (they do not call themselves suffragettes) triumphantly are marching onward through the state, adding many good names to their petition and selling suffrage buttons by scores, hundreds and thousands. Much interest is taken by their sisters in the city in the success of the trip, and gratification is felt that cordial receptions almost without exception have been extended to the ladies. They are having some interesting experiences, incidentally. In one of the cities of the western part of the state they were obliged to speak in the street in order that the main entrance to a hotel bar might not be obstructed. In another community they encountered an unsympathetic police official who first directed them to a street lined on both sides with saloons, then ordered them to move on from two other sites, and finally, turned off the electric lights when they had obtained a position in the bandstand. Undaunted by this treatment, however, the party of suffragists delivered their speeches to an interested crowd of several hundred people gathered in the dark around the bandstand. Apart from this experience they have found the city officials sympathetic and accomodating and their audiences interested and respectful. It is reported that the mayor of this offending city has since apologized for the unfortunate occurrence and promised to personally arrange a meeting for the suffragists if they will come again some day. During the last two weeks of their tour they expect to visit the southern part of the state, covering Taunton, New Bedford, Fall River, Brockton, Plymouth and other places of importance in that locality.

TIME TO ACT.

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit by Quincy People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches, and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Quincy prove the effectiveness of the great kidney remedy.

H. A. Vinton, living at 558 Washington street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured me of kidney trouble which had been in my system for at least ten years. Before using this remedy I had severe pains in my back and loins, and they seemed to be of a rheumatic nature, I consulted a doctor and tried many remedies but received only temporary relief. Being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store, and began their use. They quickly banished the pains in my back and my health is better today than for a long time."

SAVINGS INSURANCE LEAGUE.

The combination of savings bank facilities and life insurance, which is to such an extent a subject of discussion at the present time, is by no means a new idea, although it is now being put into practice for the first time.

It was proposed, as a matter of fact, in a celebrated speech which the Whig reformer, Samuel Whitbread, made in the House of Common in 1807—an address which is generally considered to be the starting point of the savings bank system. Whitbread in his "Poor Law Amendments Bill" outlined a plan for an institution, philanthropically managed, which should serve as a general financial clearing house for the benefit of persons of moderate means, offering them the advantages of various kinds of insurance on the most favorable terms possible.

It is interesting, incidentally, to note that Whitbread was also the first to propose the postal savings scheme which has been fruitful of large accumulations in Great Britain and many continental countries and which has been seriously proposed for adoption in this country.

In these and other respects Whitbread was ahead of his time. It was necessary for the new institutions, the savings banks to learn to handle ordinary savings in a safe and conservative way.

But the conception of life insurance as something having a very direct relationship to savings did not disappear. A very interesting little book, of which copies may be found in some of the Massachusetts public libraries, is a report submitted in December, 1874, by a committee appointed by the Boston board of trade on the subject of "the union of savings bank and life insurances."

This committee consisted of Nathaniel C. Nash, Robert O. Fuller, Edward Whitney, John Botume, Jr., and Elizur Wright. The last named was, of course, the father of modern life insurance.

On this subject the committee reported in general terms:

"Both the savings banks and the life insurance company are of modern origin. The latter, in an effective form, cannot be said to be much more than a century old, and its career has been checkered with many reverses. The former started from a Scotch manse, in 1810, and has established itself in almost every civilized country, collecting and investing an inconceivable amount of capital. Its history has been magnificent, but not such as to prove that no further safeguard or utility can be added to it. In Massachusetts, life insurance is almost wholly included within the last thirty years, and nearly the same may be said of the savings bank business. The deposits in all our savings banks, in 1843, were less than $7,000,000. In 1873 they were $202,000,000. While our population has very little more than doubled in thirty years, the savings bank deposits have multiplied nearly twenty-nine fold. They cannot now lack much of equalling the whole industrial and commercial capital of the Commonwealth. If comparatively little of this vast capital is directly available for manufactures and commerce, it all is indirectly. It is the backbone of Massachusetts, and the reason why her commercial fingers can reach so far and have so good a grip. It proves that the capitalists of society and commerce are not the rich only, but the men and women of monthly and weekly wages also. It develops a function, the cultivation and security of which are worthy of all the thought and statesmanship that can be bestowed upon it."

After some discussion of the nature of savings banks and of life insurance business this report, including an admission that the smaller insurance policies were too expensive on account of the cost of solicitation and collection, expressed a hope that the experiment of "an American Family Bank" should be tried in Boston. In conclusion it was stated:

"In relation to the combination of savings bank and insurance functions in the same institution, it is by no means an untried experiment, since every permanent and successful life insurance company embraces the two. The only novelties consist in keeping these two functions distinctly defined in regard to every year of every policy, doing savings bank business to some extent without any insurance, just as now life insurance companies may and do transact insurance for the single year without any savings bank deposit, and stipulating distinctly in every policy the terms of cash surrender at the end of every year within its term.

"The people who most need life insurance cannot well afford the luxury of the agency expenses of the existing system. The untried experiment is to relieve them of these expenses. If it fails, it will be because they will not spontaneously apply for insurance. In that case, the Family Bank will be a success as a simple depository for savings, with the security for good management of a paid-up capital. If people do spontaneously apply for insurance, whether in large or small numbers, the premiums being more than sufficient and the capital ample, the insurance business cannot in any degree diminish the security of the independent savings bank deposits."

Even in the seventies the conditions were not ripe for savings bank insurance. The practical working out of the proposition had to be delayed until June 22, 1908, when the Whitman Savings Bank led the way in opening an insurance department.

A Tiger In Wales.

Some years ago it was reported that a tiger had escaped from a traveling menagerie at Brecon, in Wales. Mangled sheep were said to mark its course across country to Llandrindod Wells, some farmers lost their dogs and on market days at Builth, Brecon, Penybont and Llanmarrach the wild beast was the center of rumor. Country schools were closed because parents feared to let heir children go along the roads, and bands of armed men sought to hunt the tiger down.

This state of terror lasted a week, though no person was found who had actually seen the tiger, but only people who "had heard that some one else," and so forth. Then the truth was hunted down and the origin of the whole affair discovered at the remote hamlet of Eberedw. One night the schoolmaster there, in dismissing the children, playfully had warned them not to loiter in going home lest a tiger should get them.

The scared children accepted the warning as real and hastened home with stories of a savage beast lurking behind hedges or growling in ravines. And so the story grew, as stories do under the culture of imagination.

As Clear as Crystal.

An English firm whose shipment of goods was delayed in reaching Japan received the following communication from its newly appointed Japanese agent: "With regard to the matter of escaping the penalty for nondelivery of this—there is only one way to creep round same—by diplomat. We must make a stir or strike occurring in our factory. Of course big untrue. I place my presense on inclosed form of letter and believe this will avoid the trouble of penalty of same. As Mr. —— is most religious and competent man, also heavily upright and godly, it fears me that useless to apply for his signature. Please therefore attach same at Yokohama office, making forge. But no cause for fear of prison happenings, as this often happens by merchants of high integrity. But if this involves that your honor look mean and excessive awkward for business purpose. I think more better a little serpentlike wisdom of polite manhood and thus found good business edifice." The firm knows as much now about the delay as it did before.

Not Complete.

"Sir," says the sleek looking agent, approaching the desk of the meek, meaching looking man and opening one of those folding thingumajigs showing styles of binding, "I believe I can interest you in this massive set of books containing the speeches of the world's great orators. Seventy volumes, $1 down and $1 a month until the price, $680, has been paid. This set of books gives you the most celebrated speeches of the greatest talkers the world has ever known, and"—

"Let me see the index," says the meek man. The agent hands it to him, and he looks through it carefully and methodically, running his finger along the list of names. Reaching the end, he hands the index back to the agent and says:

"It isn't what you claim it is. I happen to know the greatest talker in the world, and you haven't her in the index."—Chicago Post.

The Turtle's Cunning.

Although not credited with any high degree of intelligence, the turtle when about to deposit its eggs exhibits considerable cunning. It scoops out a hole, as if to prepare a repository for its eggs, but in order to delude the birds and other enemies the turtle throws the sand again into the hole, leaving the surface rough, and waddles off to another spot, where it repeats the process. Sometimes this is done three times, and eventually the eggs are laid in an excavation within a few yards of the sham nest, the surface being smoothed and flattened down. When hunting for the eggs the Queensland blacks probe the sand in the vicinity of one of the sham nests and are usually successful.—London Globe.

When the Dog Was Dressed.

"Oh, mamma," said little Jacky, running into the house, "our dog Tige is dressed awful funny!"

Mamma looked out of the window "Why, there is Tige," she replied, "and he's not dressed at all. How could a dog be dressed?"

Jack's eyes sparkled. "I wanted you to ask me that," he told her, "because I wanted to tell you that a dog is dressed after he's been running—when he wears a collar and pants."

HOSTILITIES HAVE BEGUN

Invaders and Defenders of Bay State Maneuver For Position

EFFORT TO CAPTURE BOSTON

Commander of Blue Army, Which Is Outnumbered by Army of the Red, Employs New Methods to Prevent Boston Falling Into Hands of the Enemy—Regular Rules of Warfare In Bloodless Conflict

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 14.—Today Boston is besieged by an armed "enemy." Landing somewhere on the southern coast of Massachusetts the hostile force will make every effort to "capture" the metropolis of New England.

The hope of the city in the matter of defense and security must lie with Brigadier General Pew, who has been designated by Governor Draper to command the entire force of Massachusetts troops. Despite the fact that in the bloodless war the enemy in fighting strength and numbers will be nearly 40 percent stronger, Pew has no fear that Boston will be "captured." Major General Bliss will command the invading force.

Both generals will follow closely the regular rules of warfare, but as new inventions follow one another to be applied to the assistance of an army in the field, new offsets must be employed. For instance, the automobile is to play an important part in this war game, and as the enemy, or the army of the "Red," will be much stronger in this respect than the defending "Blue" force, Pew must use his wits to combat their effectiveness.

One plan he will adopt is unique. By his orders, Captain Clark, quartermaster of the Eighth infantry, has secured a barrel of giant tacks, two inches in diameter across the head and the same length on the shank. These are to be distributed over the sandy roads of Plymouth and Bristol counties, which may be used by the Red army. Big signs have been prepared, warning all of the presence of the tacks, and the enemy may take the chance of passing on such roads or not, as its commander sees fit.

From a high officer of Pew's family has been learned one of the legitimate military plans which may be followed. It is one always favored by Count Von Moltke, and if Pew should win success it would prove a second battle of Fredericksburg.

Believing that the enemy will land its main force on the shores of Buzzard's bay, and knowing that it will march towards Boston, it will be the plan to let the Red army proceed unmolested, except for some skirmish work to bait the enemy. At the logical time Pew will rush his main body of troops down the south bank of Taunton river, possibly as far as Dighton, and throw all his strength of arms on the enemy's base and attempt to capture that.

By the acknowledged rules of war an army cannot subsist without a base, and this would mean that Bliss must about face and attempt to recapture his base, at the same time fighting Pew in a place of the latter's own choosing. It is also probable that Pew would endeavor to smash the rear guard of the Red army at the same time.

During today and tomorrow there will be no fighting, but both generals will maneuver for position and try to ascertain accurately each other's real location. It is barely possible that Bliss may land a comparatively small force at Plymouth and make a feint on Pew's left flank, hoping to draw his strength to that locality. Following this he would hurl his main strength on the right of the Blue army and break through before Pew could recover.

Enemy Heading For New England

New York, Aug. 14.—For a time it looked to New Yorkers as though war was actually in progress. In armories, on the streets, up-town and down-town, and at the water front there was much military activity, for 3000 militiamen from Manhattan, Brooklyn and New Jersey were embarking in battle array for an attack on the south shore of Massachusetts.

The national guardsmen who sailed last evening constitute the Red army, being so distinguished by flaming red bands about their campaign hats, and they represent a supposed foreign foe which will attack the Blue army, now quartered on the Massachusetts coast.

It is assumed that the great Atlantic battleship fleet, which is safely off the Virginia capes, has been sunk, and that about all that remains to conquer the United States is to make a successful invasion by land forces.

Accompanying the New York troops was a detachment of the first field artillery from Washington—ninety men and four guns. There were also two troops of the First United States cavalry,

Remaining Days of Edward Wemple Will Be Spent In Comfort

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Edward Wemple, a former assemblyman, state senator, congressman from New York and twice comptroller of this state, returned to the world yesterday as from the dead after thirteen years in the Middletown state insane hospital. Friends have subscribed a sum sufficient to keep him in comfort for the remainder of his days.

Wemple was born in Fultonville 66 years ago. His career was one of continued promise until 1895, when his eccentricities grew pronounced and he retired from public life. The following year he was committed to the asylum.

Wemple's mind is now clear and has been for some time, but only recently his recovery was brought to the attention of his friends. A subscription in his behalf was immediately started and well known men throughout the state made generous cotributions.

THE SUTTON INQUIRY

Dead Man's Mother Will Further Fight If Suicide Is Declared

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 14.—The last day of the open sessions of the court of inquiry investigating the death on Oct. 13, 1907, of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, Jr., U. S. M. C., was devoted to the summing up by H. M. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Sutton, and by A. E. Birney, counsel for Lieutenant Adams.

The court will sit today in private for the purpose of discussing the findings, which, when reached, will be forwarded to the navy department at Washington, whence the announcement of the result of the inquiry will be made.

Mrs. Sutton says that if the findings of the court of inquiry declare, as did those of the former board of inquiry, that her son committed suicide, she will carry the case still further, though in just what way she is not now prepared to say.

STRIKE-BREAKERS IN BIG CAR PLANT

Strikers Outwitted by Coup Under Cover of Heavy Fog

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Two trainloads of strikebreakers were placed in the Pressed Steel Car company's plant before the striking employes of that company were aware of the coup. A heavy fog which hung over the Ohio river served to cover the company's men in their operations.

A few hours before the strikebreakers were safely housed a box car loaded with cots and blankets was switched into the company's yards. The car was sealed and the strikers' pickets were unaware of its contents.

The sheriff of Alleghany county has moved the last of the forty-seven evicted strikers from the car company houses. Over eighty loads of furniture and property of the evicted strikers and their families lies unsheltered in Schoenville.

PRINTERS SHOT TO DEATH

Tragedy Growing Out of Strike In a Newspaper Office

Bisbee, Ariz., Aug. 14.—A. T. Hoy and William Bockholtz, compositors for the Bisbee Daily Review, were shot to death while at work. William Pfanucuck entered the composing room and without a word drew a revolver and opened fire. After killing the two men he fired without effect at Miguel Avaveta, a printer, and at a boy helper, and wounded Jay Wilmothi, a special officer.

The slayer then slid down the elevator rope into the pressroom and surrendered. The shooting grew out of a printers' strike in the Review office three weeks ago.

NOVEL WAY TO KILL MOTHS.

A new feature of war upon browntail moths, one that it is possible for most people to follow, was invented by Charles A. Plummer at his cottage on the Scarboro shore in Maine. Mr. Plummer took a large kettle, filled it with sawdust, and then thoroughly saturated the sawdust with kerosene oil. This, when lighted, made a fine torch which showed up in the darkness of the night for a long distance and Mr. Plummer said that it was a sight to behold to see the white-winged moths come fluttering out of the darkness toward the light . He said the air was literally full of them and that it seemed like a snowstorm, with the white wings fluttering downward in the darkness towards the blaze.

For some hours Mr. Plummer watched the moths, in countless numbers, flying about with their curious motion. Finally, leaving the torch burning, the family retired for the night, and upon rising this morning, they found a sight strange enough to behold. Hundreds of thousands of millers had been burned to death in the flame of the kerosene torch and for some feet above the kettle the ground was covered with their bodies, and upon the kettle itself more than a quart of ashes of cremated millers had been gathered.

Mr. Plummer is sure that if towns were to follow the system adopted by him, and establish, in different sections, these torches, they would be able to rid themselves of a great many of the little pests, which are troubling the community so much just at the present time. The expense for a single torch was very small, the purchase money of less than two quarts of kerosene oil, and the supply of a little sawdust.—Boston Courier.

WEDDING BELLS TO RING

But They Will Bring No Music to Ears of Persia's Young Shah

London, Aug. 14.—A special dispatch received here from Teheran says that, despite his protests, Ahmed Mirza, the young shah of Persia, will be officially married soon.

PERSIA'S NEW SHAH.

The dispatch adds that his household is now being arranged. The shah is 11 years old.

WOULD NOT FOLLOW WISHES OF MAYOR

Two Police Commissioners Throw Up Their Jobs

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 14.—Declaring that they can no longer "remain in office subordinate" to Mayor Brown "and maintain self respect," Chairman Harris of the Lowell board of police commissioners and Commissioner MacBrayne have tendered their resignations to the mayor.

This leaves John J. Burns, the most recently appointed member of the board, as the only member. All were appointed a month ago, after the removal of the three former commissioners by Brown.

Within the last few days the mayor has been writing dictatorial and severe letters to the board because they failed to follow his wishes in discharging a police official and reprimanding the deputy superintendent.

HEALTH OF TRUCK DRIVERS

Alfred Vanderbilt Ascertains Why It Is Generally So Good

New York, Aug. 14.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt returned from abroad on the Lusitania just in time to attend the first general meeting of the directors of the reorganized National Horse Show association, of which he is president.

Vanderbilt spent five months in and around London, fourteen weeks of which was devoted to coaching trips between London and Brighton. "I had 100 horses and each day used 71 on the two coaches," he said. "I could have filled two more coaches if I had had them. I never felt better in my life. Now I understand why truck drivers are such a healthy crowd."

AGITATION CONTINUES

Another Batch of Revolutionaries Disposed of at Barcelona

Paris, Aug. 14.—The Matin's correspondent at Cerbero, near the Spanish frontier, says that twenty-five persons were shot yesterday in a fortress at Barcelona for their share in the recent revolt there.

The correspondent adds that the revolutionary agitation continues and that yesterday the gendarmes suffered a loss of five men killed in a fierce fight with revolutionaries in a suburb of Barcelona.

GRAND ARMY ADJOURNS

Atlantic City Is Chosen as Place For the Next Encampment

Salt Lake City, Aug. 14.—The forty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic ended with a fireworks display on Ensign Peak, a mountain rising at the edge of the city.

By a vote of 307 to 293, Atlantic City was chosen over St. Louis as the place for the next encampment after a spirited fight.

Death of Rev. Dr. Thomas

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Rev. Dr. Hiram Thomas, for years a prominent figure in religious circles in Chicago as the head of the People's church, which he founded after his expulsion for heresy from the Methodist Episcopal church, is dead. He had a reputation as an orator and was the author of a number of works on religious subjects.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grand-father of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Birthplaces of Presidents.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

Abigail Adams Cairn.

Penns Hill, erecteld June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Burial Place of Presidents.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple street. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

Hancock Cemetery.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744, and many other notable people.

John Hancock Birthplace.

Adams street, junction of Dimmick and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

Presidents Adams Mansion.

Presidents Lane.

Dorothy Q. House.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M., until 4 P. M. Other days admission charged.

Myles Standish Cairn.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

Myles Standish Spring.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Squaw Rock.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

Miss Delia Burke of West Quincy has returned from a two weeks vacation at Scarboro beach, Maine.

Mrs. Katherine Kelley and family of West Quincy are at their cottage at Houghs Neck for the rest of the season.

Mrs. Ramsdell of Billings street, Atlantic, is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Derby of School street for a few days.

Mr. Walter Carrol of Milwaukee, who has been spending the past few weeks with Leo Elcock of Marsh street, left today for a short trip to New York city.

Alan Arnold of Coddington street left last week for Marlboro, where he has been appointed resident engineer by the government, having passed the civil service examinations most successfully.

Mrs. Jennie Caven and Mrs. William Murphy of Grove street were guests on the U. S. S. New York yesterday at Provincetown. Mrs. Caven's son is a first class engineer on the battleship.

John Driscoll and Daniel Fitzgerald, the star battery of the Atlantic Professionals returned today from a fishing trip down the harbor. They have been at Marblehead for the past few days and have been very successful with the rod and reel.

Visitors to the summer sewing and sloyd classes held under the auspices of the Quincy Women's club will be interested in seeing the completed work of these classes which is to be exhibited Wednesday afternoon at City Hall. The exhibit is free and every one will receive a cordial welcome.

ATLANTIC BY THE SEA.

A large real estate deal in Atlantic has just been transacted whereby the whole water front of Atlantic, composed of four or five old estates, in all about sixty acres of land has been purchased for a quarter of a million dollars. It will be staked off into house lots and sold to home seekers who want a permanent seashore home, an all the year round residence within half an hour from the Boston shopping district and the theatres.

—The people of New York deposited money in the savings banks of that State at the rate of rather more than $1,000,000 a business day during the year ending July 1. Their daily withdrawals averaged nearly as much, so that the figures read, deposited, $375,598,50; withdrawn, $360,932,917. As they deposited $11,256,932 more and withdrew $69,608,799 less than in the preceding year, it looks as if confidence, which is the advance agent of prosperity was returning.—Transcript.

LAWN PARTY.

The Montclair Improvement Association gave a lawn party on the grounds adjoining the property of Mr. Fred Kessler on Friday evening. The lawn was decorated with Japanese lanterns and American flags. A large number were present. Anyone doubting the need of a school house in Montclair should have seen the large number of children present and there were many who were not present.

Mr. Fred Kessler, president of the association, opened the program by an address. He spoke of the purposes of the association and the needs of the section called Montclair. Representative Langelier spoke of the growing needs of Montclair and how this need was being voiced by the organization of this new association. He remarked upon the beauty and convenient location of the place, and said finally, "In my official capacity I shall do all that I can to further the interests of this portion of our city."

Mr. Stephen Brown rendered "Asleep in the deep" with splendid ability. Mr. Ferdinand Kirmmse gave an entertaining reading. The Montclair band led by Mr. McCabe, caused great amusement. Some asked if the Bingville band had come to town. It consisted of a Jew's harp, a harmonica, a pair of rattles and a child's drum, besides several ornamental but silent members. Mr. Fowler showed skill in his mandolin solo. Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook's vocal and piano solos were well received. Mr. Olin A. Holbrook brought down the house with his comic song "Consequences." Miss Gladys Parlee rendered two solos in the violin very acceptably. Mr. Bevis entertained the audience with several accordian solos which gave great pleasure and Mr. O'Brien furnished some splendid music with his phonograph.

AN EXPENSIVE PET.

Is the City Justified In Paying Such Enormous Board and Keep?

Every citizen of New York and particularly every direct taxpayer should read most carefully the speeches of William H. Ivins and Edgar J. Levey on the expenditures of the city of New York. If after perusing those speeches he has any doubt that the question of setting our house in order is urgent, then it is difficult to see what can convince him outside of the actual suspension of payment by the municipal treasury.

It has taken us ten years to find out how little we know about running a city. But yet, short as the time is, the result has been reached gradually. We have passed from one unwarrantable expenditure to another until we have placed ourselves in a position where there is practically no demand which we can logically refuse. As Mr. Levey pointed out, the loss on the Staten Island ferry annually is $750,000, and this is almost exactly the taxation paid by Staten Island toward the administration of the city. It now receives, therefore, its police, lighting, water, roads and administration generally for nothing and is in a position to make a demand for a free ferry on the theory that anybody can walk over the Brooklyn bridge for nothing.

It takes fifty-four men to run one of the Staten Island ferryboats for twenty-four hours against eighteen men on a Lackawanna or a Pennsylvania boat. We simply cannot afford it. We are taxed up to the limit. As Mr. Levey says, manufacturers are moving out beyond the city limits because of taxation. Ultimately rents will come down in consequence. Large districts will deteriorate and their taxable value will be lowered.

Our enormous expenditure and our enormous debt, presumably contracted to help the city, is hurting it. We are doing much which individual effort and pride should do a great deal better, and incidentally we are sapping the self reliance of our people in a way that would cause our grandfathers to turn in their graves.—Wall Street Journal.

SIX OF A KIND.

Experience Is a Great Teacher, and They All Know Better Now.

Ukiah, Cal., installed an electric light plant in 1899 at a cost of $50,000. The generating plant was shut down in 1908, and current is purchased from a private company. The plant was run at a heavy loss.

The municipal electric plant of Edgewood, Ga., installed in 1907 at a cost of $15,000, was shut down in 1908 when Edgewood was annexed to Atlanta, which is satisfactorily served by a private company. The plant will be sold.

The electric plant of Wheaton, Ill., was installed in 1890 at a cost of $18,000. The generating plant was shut down about 1904, since which date current has been purchased.

The electric light and water plants of Columbia, Ala., installed at a cost of $15,000, have been leased to a private party.

The municipal gas plant of Marcus, Ia., was seriously damaged by fire in 1908, a short time before the bonds were due. It had not proved a paying investment, but something had to be done, so it was repaired and leased for five years.

OUTING OF GRANITE MEN

Mnfs. have Good Dinner and Grand Time at Bass Point

The annual outing of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association was held Saturday at Bass Point, and it will go down in history of the association as one of the best, if not the best of the many outings that they have held. The dinner was an unusually fine one. The service was excellent and one and all offered up sighs of regret when their capacity had been reached.

The outing this year was on a little different plan from other years, in-as-much as it was practically confined to members of the association and a few guests. For this reason there were perhaps not as many present as in some other years.

The main party left Quincy on the 8.10 train for Boston taking the 9.30 boat for Bass Point. Others took a later train and boat but all arrived in season for the dinner.

One of the first things done on arriving was to organize two ball teams among the members, the nines being known as the South Quincy's and the West Quincy's. Mayor Shea was appointed umpire and Tom Dunphy official scorer. There was some kick that a West Quincy man was to umpire, but the Mayor said he would be as impartial in rendering his findings as he was in making his appointments, and the kick was withdrawn. At the start he announced that national rules were suspended for this game and it would be played under special rules with which he was more familiar. Birnie was in the box for South Quincy and Elcock for West Quincy, while behind the bat was Smith for South Quincy and Reed for West Quincy.

The other players were South Quincy, Mavers, Prout, Collins, Malnati, McIntosh Bishop and Nicol. West Quincy, White, Thompson, Fallon, Locke, Walker, Burke and Prout. These players were assigned to no particular position but played wherever they desired. At the end of the fifth inning the umpire and scorer got tired and as the score was then a tie the game was called.

The next hour was spent in bowling, pool, billiards, etc., and at 11.30 all were seated in a semi-circle near the dining room where they were photographed. Dinner was then anounced and the hungry men whose appetites had been sharpened by the cool ocean breezes were soon seated about the tables. At the head table was President John C. Murray, the committee who included, the President, Edward Marnock, James White, W. T. Spargo and T. J. Dunphy and the invited guests, who included Mayor Shea, Postmaster C. L. Hammond, A. M. Hunt of Granite, Seward W. Jones of the Governor's council, and president of the National Association, R. D. Smith secretary of the National Association, William J. Parker of Rock Products and George T. Magee of the Daily Ledger.

BALL CLUB OUTING.

The Quincy Old Colony league baseball team held a clambake at Quincy woods Sunday and it proved to be a huge success. There were about 200 present and all voted the bake to be the best ever. One of the directors of the club, Michael Shea, had charge of the bake and he lived up to his reputation of knowing how to get up a clambake. The boys and their friends had a fine time all day and everyone enjoyed himself to the limit.

There came near being a serious accident as a result of the outing, however. One of the directors of the club went to the bake in his carriage and left the horse standing in the woods looking on while he enjoyed himself. Just after dark the horse evidently got tired waiting and started for home. He hit the double rail that runs along at this point from Houghs Neck and started for Quincy on the track. He was tearing along at a good gait when Starter Thomas Devaney who is in charge of the Houghs Neck line on Sundays, saw him coming. Tom was on the track near the Adams farm and noticed the runaway coming down the track. He grabbed him by the bridle and tried to guide him from his course. The horse was going some at this time and carried Tom quite a distance. Finally he got the horse from the track through the bushes into the street, but tipped the carriage over in doing so. Just as the horse was turned into the street a car went tearing by and Tom Devaney realized that he had a close call. The horse and carriage is a familiar one about town and was taken to its home.

SWIM FOR NEARLY AN HOUR.

Bunch of Brownies Swim From Bath House to North Weymouth.

The long distance swimming bee has struck the bath house at Quincy Point, a big bunch of the brownies taking a long swim Sunday, going from the bath house in Town river, down the river and across Fore river to the North Weymouth shore, a distance of about a mile and a half. They made the swim in about 50 minutes. In the party were three girls and six fellows. The girls were Mrs. Brainard of Braintree Miss Minnie Winnick and Miss Eleanor Moriarty of Quincy. The men were James McDonnell, James Sullivan and John Ryan of the bath house life saving crew, James Flaherty, Charles Rogers and E. V. Wickey. William Dean and Thomas Bellingham accompanied the swimmers in boats. James McDonnell was the first to arrive, and he was closely followed by the others. All stuck it out to the finish and felt no ill effects after the swim. The swimmers returned to the bath house in boats. It is planned to swim to Houghs Neck some day before the end of the season.

STOPPED CAR JUST IN TIME.

Motorman Delorey's Quick Work Averts Fatal Accident.

But for the quick action of Motorman Simon Delorey who runs on the East Weymouth line, there would have been a fatal accident near the Weymouth Heights station late Saturday night. The car, driven by Motorman Delorey was on its way to Quincy from East Weymouth when it reached a point at the foot of King Oak hill, the motorman thought he saw something on the tracks. It is very dark at this point and it was not possible to see just what the obstruction was. Motorman Delorey applied his brakes quickly and when he came nearer the object, he noticed that it was a man. The man was stretched out in the street and both his legs were across one of the rails. Motorman Delorey stopped his car just in time, there being but a few inches to spare. A little more and the man would have had both legs cut off.

BIGELOWS WIN FROM THE REDS

First of Series of Three Games For '09 Championship

In a ninth inning rally the Bigelows defeated the Quincy Red Sox Saturday at the Ward Two playground in the first of a series of three games for the 18-19 year old championship of this city. The game, while interesting, was a loosely played contest, errors playing a prominent part in the scoring of both sides. Six errors are recorded against the Bigelows, while the Red Sox were guilty of four misplays. Some idea of the looseness of the game can be gained, when it is seen that the losing team tallied four times on three singles. "Jep" Saunders was in the box for the winners and showed some of his oldtime form, striking out eight and allowing but three hits. He was also there with the bat, getting a pretty two-bagger the first time up, sending in a run. Rice, the opposing box artist, twirled a good game, but the Bigelows seemed to take kindly to his curves at opportune moments. He is a southpaw and has good control and a good head. With practice he ought to make good. His catcher, Eddie Gisburne, also played a fine game, his throwing to second being especially commendable. Only one man was able to pilfer second so true were his throws to that station.

In the third inning the Bigelows broke the ice and when the smoke caused by two singles, a double, a pass and an error had cleared away, there were three runs across the plate. With one out Sweeney hit to center for a base and Costello did likewise. Both scored on Delorey's weak grounder which Conway allowed to get through his legs. Pinel was then passed and Jep Saunders came to time with a double to right center, sending Pinel over the rubber. The next two were easy outs. The fourth run was scored in the fifth on Oliver's double Mahoney's sacrifice and Avery's single. The fifth and winning run came in the ninth, when Cain received a free pass and went all the way to third while Sass was throwing Oliver out at first. He scored on the squeeze play, Mahoney dumping the ball down the first base line in fine style.

For five innings the Sox were shut out, but in the sixth they got one man over the rubber on errors by Oliver and Mahoney, latter's misplay being a wild throw to third on a throw that got by Pinel at second. They got one more in the following session, on a base on balls, a sacrifice and a hit by Billings. They got two more and tied the score in the eighth. With one down Herrick drew a pass and Conway was safe when Saunders tried to get Herrick at second. "Jep" then tried to get the latter napping and the second sacker let the ball get away. Herrick and Conway started for the plate and when Mahoney threw to the plate to get them, Avery let the ball get away and the runs counted. The game was won in the ninth as related above.

QUINCYS LOSE TO STOUGHTON

A Close League Game on the Water Street Diamond

While Taunton was defeating the Deweys over in the little town of Weymouth on Saturday, the local Speed Boys were biting the dust before the pitching of Howard, the new twirler of the hard hitting Stoughton team. The final score in the game on the Water street pasture was 3 to 2, Quincy losing another game by one run. While the game was close, there was nothing to make the fans enthuse, although there were one or two catches in the outfield that brought forth well merited applause from the bleacherites. Joe Burke and Lonergan both made fine running catches of balls that looked like safe hits. This defeat sends the Quincy team down the ladder into second place, where they are tied with Dewey, Stoughton and Rockland, the latter team sending the Randolph boys down to defeat.

With the exception of the pitcher, the Quincy team lined up the same as it did last Saturday. In the box there was a man new to the Old Colony league in the person of Curnane, a southpaw with quite a reputation. He started the season with the Lowell team of the New England league, and was later turned over to the Biddeford team of the Maine State league. He was secured at the recommendation of one of the local players and it was thought that he was a world beater. He had poor control Saturday and passed four men, while six hits were garnered of his delivery. Several good stops by Donaher and Courtney cut off runs and saved the Quincy team from a worse defeat. The former showed some of his oldtime form in the field and at the bat, accepting ten chances without the least semblance of an error and getting one pretty single. Courtney accepted eight out of nine chances in good style.

Several new faces were noticed in the visitors' lineup and the new men seemed to put new life into the team. The most important of the strangers, from a Quincy standpoint, were the battery men. Howard, the former East Boston pitcher, who pitched a no-hit, no-run, no-man-reached first base game last year, was on the mound for the visitors, and he held the locals safe all the time. He did not allow a man to walk to first, while seven hits was the total poled out by the home team. He had a good man behind the bat in Dunbar, the former Rockport star catcher. Both he and Murray caught excellent ball and threw to bases in a very efficient way. On second a new face was seen in Ingalls, who accepted seven chances without an error. "Buster" Burrell, the former Brooklyn National and Lowell New England leaguer, was on the initial sack and played a good game.

BUSY BEE WINS.

Beats the Iris in Saturday's Race by Nearly Three Minutes.

Ten of the cape cat boats took part in the last of the midsummer races at Marblehead Saturday under the auspices of the Corinthian yacht club. Three of the boats, however, withdrew before the finish.

The breeze was a light southeasterly one and in some classes the race was little more than a drifting match.

The race in the cape cat class was captured by the Busy Bee, which beat the Iris nearly three minutes on corrected time.

The Thordis which has been a winner up to Saturday, was also forced into second place by the Kit.

BEAUTIFYING A RAILROAD.

It is stated that the Union Pacific Railway is planning to plant its right of way from the Missouri river to the Pacific with alfalfa. At each edge of the right of way also will be planted a row of pine trees alternating with elms, there being a tree at intervals of every two rods. As the alfalfa becomes green early in the spring and remains so until late in the fall, the ornamental effect should be decidedly pleasing. Furthermore it is claimed that the grass and trees will furnish, in certain localities a decided protection against snowdrifts and washouts . It is stated that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad proposes to do similar planting and grassing between Ottumwa and Kansas City.—Scientific American.

DEFIANCE OF SUNDAY LAWS

Efforts of Atlantic City's Reformers Prove of Little Avail

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 16.—Saloonkeepers and proprietors of amusement places here bade defiance Sunday to the reformers and members of the Lord's Day Alliance, who are trying to enforce the Sunday closing laws in this resort. Extra forces of bartenders were employed to serve what is claimed to be the greatest crowd of visitors ever gathered here.

The baseball game at Inlet park was played, despite the objections of the reformers. City police in uniform were at the game to prevent any attempt at a raid or the breaking up of the game, which was down as a trump card of the alliance.

WOMAN DIES OF PELLAGRA

First Person In New England to Become Victim of the Disease

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 16.—Pellagra, a rare disease in this country, claimed its first New England victim when Mrs. Selima Lattrell of Winchendon, aged 32, died in a hospital here. She was the mother of five living children. Her husband also survives her.

The exact cause leading up to Mrs. Lattrell's contracting of the disease was not determined. One of two reasons is usually responsible. Eating cereals upon which a fungus growth has been attached or unclean habits are these.

After dinner there was a series of field sports for which numerous prizes of china, etc., were given. The first was a fat man's race. There were four starters who included E. J. Sandberg, Frank Morrison, Oscar Djerf and Andrew Johnson. The race was a spirited one and was won by E. J. Sandberg with Oscar Djerf second. Some said the reason Sandberg ran so well was because he had considerable practice in running for political offices.

The second event was a three-legged race which was won by Alex Elcock and Willard Burke. Other races and their winners were:

100 yard dash—John Murray, first; Alex Lark, second.

Potato race—Constant Tikkanen, first and James Walker, second. This race had to be run twice as the first race was a tie.

This was all of the races arranged for, but another race was held as the result of a challenge, between E. J. Sandberg and George Clark. The first heat was a tie but on the second heat Sandberg was an easy winner.

The party then scattered , each seeking what pleasure he desired. Some sat on the rocks watching the moving throng, others visited the moving picture show and still others went in bathing. Quite a few of the party returned home on the 5 o'clock boat and the main party on the 6.45 boat, while some of the younger men remained for the dancing in the evening. The day was an ideal one, as far as the weather was concerned and the sail both going and coming was delightful.

CENSUS MUST NOT MIX WITH POLITICS

President Taft Gives Out a Warning to That Effect

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 16.—In a letter addressed to Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor, President Taft served notice that any man engaged in the taking of the thirteenth census of the United States who engaged in politics in any way will immediately be dismissed from the service. Outside of casting their votes, the president believes that census supervisors and enumerators should keep clear of anything that savors of politics, national, state or local.

The president orders that Nagel and the director of the census embody in the regulations governing the taking of the census the rule so forcibly laid down in his letter.

Mr. Taft says that in appointing census supervisors it has been found necessary to select men recommended by senators and congressmen in their districts. He says he realizes that this method of selection might easily be perverted to political purposes.

PURSUED BY MISFORTUNE

Torpedo Boat Winslow Gets Into Another Bunch of Trouble

Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 16.—The mishaps to the United States torpedo boat Winslow, which accompanied the recent cruise of the Massachusetts militia to Beaufort, N. C., were continued when the Winslow collided with the Boston excursion steamer Betty Alden and Long wharf, and later ran aground upon submerged piles, the foundation of a former wharf, and mud in this harbor.

The Winslow was floated at high tide with her port propeller guard wrecked and her under body badly scraped. She was tied up to a wharf last night and proceeded to Boston this morning.

Fines Himself For Speeding

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 16.—In the police court, Adolphus Williams, police magistrate, judged his own case and fined himself $5 and costs for speeding his automobile. He had just disposed of two cases of speeding when his own name was called.

Tie In Bicycle Championship

Newark, N. J., Aug. 16.—In the contest for the national championship Frank L. Kramer won the three-mile open bicycle race for professionals at the Vailsburg Cycle track, which puts him on even terms with Jack Clark of Australia with 16 points.

KILLS THREE CHILDREN

Woman Then Takes Her Own Life In Room With Her Victims

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Marie Handzell turned on the gas in the bathroom and committed suicide and slew her three boy babies. She had first carefully bathed and dressed her three children, one 4 years old, and twins 2 years old.

The smell of gas awakened her husband, who broke open the door of the bathroom and found their dead bodies.

Mrs. Handzell had been ill for some time. She left four other children.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage of real estate given by James David Flowers and Frank William Flowers to James Nightingale dated Oct. 2, A. D. 1886, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 583, page 208, will be sold at public auction on the premises on THURSDAY, the twenty-sixth day of August A .D., 1909, at three o'clock in the afternoon, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein described substantially as follows:

A certain lot of land with all the buildings thereon, situated in Quincy in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts and being lot No. 7 on a plan of Quincy Place drawn by Francis Jackson, and bounded and described as follows, viz: Northerly on land of Mary F. WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER

Removes Dandruff or Money Refunded

The greatest Hair Tonic and Restorer known. It restores faded and gray hair to natural color, removes dandruff, stops the hair from falling out, and makes it grow.

IT IS NOT A DYE

WYETH CHEMICAL CO.

GENTLEMEN—I wish to tell you of a fact which I regard as very remarkable. All my life I have been troubled with a quantity of dandruff on my head and in my hair. About a year ago I got a bottle of Sage and Sulphur and used it just once, expecting of course to continue the treatment, but neglected it for several days, and before I got around to use it again I found I was completely cured, my scalp remaining clean and smooth with not a trace of dandruff ever since. PROPOSED THOROUGHFARE.

The Metropolitan Improvement Commission authorized by the Legislature of 1907 has just reported and there is much of interest to Boston and vicinity and incidentally to Quincy and Braintree who received some consideration. On Page 219 one may read: "A new cross district road from Braintree to Hyde Park and Norwood via Monatiquot brook and Houghton's pond should be provided in the near future."

On their map of the existing and proposed circumferential thoroughfares of the Metropolitan district, this new route is shown, and would require a new street about three miles long in nearly a straight line from Great Pond in Braintree, at West street, to Houghton's pond in Milton, at the southerly base of Big Blue Hill.

Monatiquot brook is the boundary line between Randolph and Quincy, and also the southerly boundary of the Blue Hills reservation, and the new thoroughfare should be built by the Metropolitan Park Commission or the State Highway Commission.

From Houghtons pond an existing street should be widened out to 60 feet in width not only to Blue Hill avenue in Canton, but to the Neponset River reservation, and thence by a new street directly to the Ellis station in Westwood. From this point there is a direct route through Westwood and Dover to South Natick and Natick.

Thus from Natick there would be a route in almost a straight line to the Blue Hill Reservation and Braintree or South Braintree. Both north and south there would be contributing towns.

Entering Braintree through West street one would have the choice of several routes from Five Corners or Rosedale:

1.—Through Franklin street, Central avenue and Union street, to East Braintree, the Weymouths and Hingham, Nantasket Beach, Cohasset and the South Shore towns.

2.—Continuing on West street to Washington street, thence to Elm and Adams streets to East Braintree and the Fore River district.

3.—By West and Washington streets to Quincy and Boston.

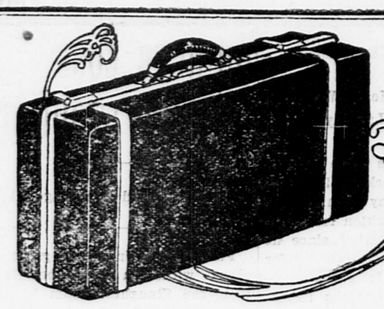

4.—From Rosedale via Granite and Willard streets to West Quincy and the Furnace Brook and Quincy Shore parkways.

5.—From Rosedale via Franklin street, to Washington, to Plain, and Grove streets to South Weymouth and Rockland or South Hingham.

It is quite important and desirable that there should be a thoroughfare connecting Randolph avenue and Blue Hill avenue on the south of the Blue Hills range, and a well-built direct avenue would immediately become popular.

Quincy and Braintree people would greatly appreciate a direct trolley line to Houghton's pond and the Blue Hills reservation via West street and the proposed new street.

And the people in the towns to the south and west of the Blue Hills—Canton, Stoughton, Norwood, Westwood and Dedham—would by the proposed thoroughfare come in touch with the Blue Hills reservation and the seashore of Quincy, Weymouth and Nantasket.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request.

ms concern for the girl he was being led back to No. 9 by the nose, as it were, hardly willingly at best. Profoundly stupefied by the contemplation of his own temerity, he yet returned unfaltering. He who had for so long plumed himself upon his strict supervision of his personal affairs and equally steadfast unconsciousness of his neighbor's business now found himself in the very act of pushing in where he was not wanted, as he had been advised in well nigh as many words.

He turned up Frognall street with the manner of one out for a leisurely evening stroll. Simultaneously from the farther corner another pedestrian debouched into the thoroughfare—a mere moving shadow at that distance, brother to blacker shadows that skulked in the fenced areas and unlively entries of that poorly lighted block. The hush was something beyond belief when one remembered the nearness of blatant Tottenham Court road.

Kirkwood conceived a wholly senseless curiosity about the other wayfarer. The man was walking rapidly, heels ringing with uncouth loudness, cane tapping the flagging at brief intervals. Both sounds ceased abruptly as their cause turned in beneath one of the porticoes. In the emphatic and unnatural quiet that followed Kirkwood, stepping more lightly, fancied that another shadow followed the first, noiselessly and with furtive stealth.

Could it be No. 9 into which they had passed? The American's heart beat a livelier tempo at the suggestion. If it had not been No. 9—he was still too far away to tell—it was certainly one of the dwellings adjacent thereunto. The improbable possibility (but why improbable?) that the girl was being joined by her father or by friends annoyed him with illogical intensity.

Approaching No. 9 with laggard feet, he manufactured a desire to light a cigarette as a cover for his design were he spied upon by unsuspected eyes. Cane under arm, hands cupped to shield a vesta's flame, he stopped directly before the portico, turning his eyes askance to the shadowed doorway, and made a discovery sufficiently startling to hold him spellbound and incidentally to scorch his gloves before he thought to drop the match.

The door of No. 9 stood ajar, a black interval an inch or so in width showing between its edge and the jamb.

Suspicion and alarm set his wits a-tingle. More distinctly he recalled the jarring bang, accompanied by the metallic click of the latch, when the girl had shut herself in—and him out. Now, some person or persons had followed her, neglecting the most obvious precaution of a householder. And why? Why but because the intruders did not wish the sound of closing to be audible to her—or those—within?

He reminded himself that it was all none of his affair, decided to pass on and go his way in peace and, impulsively swinging about, marched straight away for the unclosed door.

"'Old 'ard, guvner!"

Kirkwood halted on the cry, faltering in indecision. Should he take the plunge or withdraw? Synchronously he was conscious that a man's figure had detached itself from the shadows beneath the nearest portico and was drawing nearer, with every indication of haste to intercept him.

"'Ere now, guvner, yer mykin' a mistyke. You don't live 'ere."

"How do you know?" demanded Kirkwood crisply, tightening his grip on his stick.

Was this the second shadow he had seemed to see—the confederate of him who had entered No. 9, a sentry to forestall interruption? If so, the fellow lacked discretion, though his determination that the American should not interfere was undeniable. It was with an ugly and truculent manner, if more warily, that the man closed in.

"I knows. You clear hout or"—

He flung out a hand with the plausible design of grasping Kirkwood by the collar. The latter lifted his stick, deflecting the arm, and incontinently landed his other fist forcibly on the fellow's chest. The man reeled back, cursing. Before he could recover Kirkwood calmly crossed the threshold, closed the door and put his shoulder to it. In another instant, fumbling in the darkness, he found the bolts and drove them home.

And it was done, the transformation accomplished. His inability to refrain from interfering had encompassed his downfall, had changed a peaceable and law abiding alien within British shores into a busybody, a trespasser, a misdemeanant, a—yes, for all he knew to the contrary, in the estimation of the law, a burglar, prime candidate for a convict's stripes.

"The devil!" he whispered "What an ass, what an utter ass, I am!"

Behind him the knob was rattled urgently to an accompaniment of feet shuffling on the stone, and immediately, if he were to make a logical deduction from the rasping and scraping sound within the door casing, the bell pull was violently agitated, without, however, educing any response from the bell itself, wherever that might be situate, after which, as if in despair, the outsider again rattled and jerked the knob.

Be his status what it might, whether servant of the household, its caretaker or a night watchman, the man was palpably determined both to get himself in and Kirkwood out and yet, curious to consider, determined to gain his end without attracting undue attention. Kirkwood had expected to hear the knocker's thunder as soon as the bell failed to give tongue, but it did not sound, although there was a knocker. Kirkwood himself had remarked that antiquated and rusty bit of ironmongery affixed to the middle panel of the door. And it made him feel sure that something surreptitious and lawless was in process within those walls; that the confederate without, having failed to prevent a stranger from entering, left unemployed a means so certain sure to rouse the occupants.

But his inferential analysis of this phase of the proceedings was summarily abrupted by that identical alarm. In a trice the house was filled with dying echoes, wakened to sonorous riot by the crash and clamor of the knocker, and Kirkwood stood fully two yards away, his heart hammering wildly, his nerves a-jingle, much as if the resounding blows had landed upon his own person rather than on stout oaken planking.

Ere he had time to wonder the racket ceased, and from the street filtered voices in altercation. Listening, Kirkwood's pulses quickened, and he laughed uncertainly for pure relief, retreating to the door and putting an ear to a crack.

The accents of one speaker were new in his hearing, stern, crisp, quick with the spirit of authority which animates that most austere and dignified limb of the law to be encountered the world over, a London bobby.

"Now, then, my man, what do you want there? Come, now; speak up and step out into the light where I can see you."

The response came in the sniffling snarl of the London ne'er-do-well, the unemployable rogue whose chief occupation seems to be to march in the ranks of the unemployed on the occasion of its annual demonstrations.

"Le' me alone, carutcher? Ah'm doin' no 'arm, officer."

"Didn't you hear me? Step out here. Ah, that's better. No harm, eh? Perhaps you'll explain how there's no harm breakin' into unoccupied 'ouses?

"Gorblimy, 'ow was I to know? 'Ere's a toff 'ands me sixpence fer hopenin' 'is cab door todye, an', sezee, 'My man,' 'e sez, 'ye've got a 'onest fyce. W'y doncher work?' sezee. ''Ow can I?' sez I. ''Ere 'm I hout of a job these six months, lookin' fer work every dye an' carn't find it.' Sezee, 'Come an' see me this hevenin' at me 'ome, noine, Frognall stryte,' 'e sez, an' ''—

"That'll do for now. You borrow a pencil and paper and write it down, and I'll read it when I've got more time. I never heard the like of it. This 'ouse hasn't been lived in these two years. Move on, and don't let me find you round 'ere again. March, I say!"

There was more of it—more whining explanations artfully tinctured with abuse, more terse commands to depart, the whole concluding with scraping footsteps, diminuendo, and another perfunctory rattle of the knob as the bobby, having shooed the putative evildoer off, assured himself that no damage had actually been done. Then he, too, departed, satisfied and self righteous, leaving a badly frightened but very grateful amateur criminal to pursue his self appointed career of crime.

He had no choice other than to continue. In point of fact, it had been insanity just then to back out and run the risk of apprehension at the hands of that ubiquitous bobby, who, for all he knew, might be lurking not a dozen yards distant, watchful for just such a sequel. Still, Kirkwood hesitated with the best of excuses. Reassuring as he had found the sentinel's extemporized yarn, proof positive that the fellow had had no more right to prohibit a trespass than Kirkwood to commit one, at the same time he found himself pardonably a prey to emotions of the utmost consternation and alarm. If he feared to leave the house he had no warrant whatever to assume that he would be permitted to remain many minutes unharmed within its walls of mystery.

The silence of it discomfited him beyond measure. It was, in a word, uncanny.

Before him, as he lingered at the door, vaguely disclosed by a wan illumination penetrating a dusty and begrimed fanlight, a broad hall stretched indefinitely toward the rear of the building, losing itself in blackness beyond the foot of a flight of stairs. Save for a few articles of furniture—a hall table, an umbrella stand, a tall dumb clock flanked by high backed chairs—it was empty. Other than Kirkwood's own restrained respiration not a sound throughout the house advertised its inhabitation, not a board creaked beneath the pressure of a foot, not a mouse rustled in the wainscoting or beneath the floors, not a breath of air stirred sighing in the stillness.

And yet a tremendous racket had been raised at the front door within the sixty seconds past. And yet within twenty minutes two persons at least had preceded Kirkwood into the building. Had they not heard? The speculation seemed ridiculous. Or had they heard and, alarmed, been too effectually hobbled by the coils of their nefarious designs to dare reveal themselves, to investigate the cause of that thunderous summons? Or were they, perhaps, aware of Kirkwood's entrance and lying hidden in some dark corner to ambush him as he passed?

True, that was hardly like the girl. True, on the other hand, it was possible that she had stolen away while Kirkwood was hanging in irresolution by the passage to Quadrant mews. Again, the space of time between Kirkwood's dismissal and his return had been exceedingly brief. Whatever her errand, she could hardly have fulfilled it and escaped. At that moment she might be in the power and at the mercy of him who had followed her, provided he were not friendly. And in that case what torment and what peril might not be hers!

TURBINES A SUCCESS.

Those Built by Fore River for Japanese Navy Meet All Requirements.

The Fore River officials are very much elated over the success of the Curtis turbine engines built in Quincy and shipped to Japan.

The reports from Japan say: "The success of the Curtis turbine for marine installations has been established beyond a doubt by the trials of the Japanese cruiser Ibuki just completed by the Japanese government, this vessel being equipped with Curtis marine reversible turbines, built by the Fore River Shipbuilding company of Quincy, Mass., and shipped to Japan last year. These turbines were built by the Fore River Shipbuilding company with the rigid guarantees of her power and steam consumption and in every case these guarantees have been handsomely exceeded.

"Three trials were conducted, one under cruising conditions at two-fifths power, one at rated full power guaranteed and one at overload conditions at maximum power. The rate full power of these turbines was guaranteed to be 21,000 brake horse power and the steam consumption not more than 15 pounds of steam for brake horse power per hour. On the trial at this power the steam consumption was 14.1 pounds. On two-fifths power trial the steam consumption was 16.75 pounds, whereas the guarantee was 17 pounds . On the maximum full power trial over 27,000 horse power was developed and the steam consumption was 13.88 pounds.

"The operation of the machinery was excellent under all conditions and congratulatory cablegrams have been received from the Japanese officials."

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage given by Herman F. Burkhardt to Rollin H. Allen dated May 12,1904, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Libro 973, Folio 37, and assigned by mesne assignments to Charles W. H. Frederick of Melrose in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on TUESDAY, September 7, 1909, at one o'clock in the afternoon at Room number 813 in Barrister's Hall, 11-25 Pemberton Square, Boston, such portion of the premises described in said mortgage as now remains subject thereto, such portion being the undivided share and interest of said mortgagor in about one hundred forty acres of land with buildings at Squantum in Quincy in said Commonwealth of which Pauline W. Burkhardt died seized July 16, 1901. The interest of the mortgagor is supposed to be one undivided sixth and will be conveyed subject to any unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments or other encumbrances if any there be. Terms at sale.

CLUB OUTING.

Republicans of Ward 24, Boston, Holds Outing at Squantum.

The Ward 24 Republican club held its annual outing Saturday at Squantum Inn. During the afternoon there was an exciting ball game and a series of athletic events.

Dinner was served at 4 o'clock after which there were a few informal remarks by those present.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

Open-Air Meeting in Aid of Movement Held in City Square.

An open air meeting in aid of the woman's suffrage movement was held in City Square Saturday evening and attracted quite a large gathering. The speakers were Mrs. T. A. Crowley of Brookline, Mrs. Mary Kenny O'Sullivan, Miss Rose Heinzen, Miss F. G. Davenport and Miss Margaret L. Foley.

Previous to coming to Quincy the speakers addressed an open air meeting at Braintree.

In absence of a regular platform the upper basin of the fountain in City Square was used. There was no water in the basin and the speakers had no fear of getting their feet wet.

They were all attentively listened to and when their petition was circulated it was signed by many men.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

QUINCY VS. ATLANTIC.

Manager Joe Ford of the Quincy Independents wishes to state that his team has not played for last two Saturdays and that the team that has been playing under the name of "Quincy" has no right to do so. In the Boston papers the past two weeks games have been reported stating that the Quincys were defeated by so and so while the line-up printed, was not the Quincy line-up, but that of the Atlantic Professionals. The first time such a game appeared, it was thought to be some mistake, but later it was found out that the game had been advertised just that way. Again Sunday it came out in the papers that the Quincy team was defeated by the Everett City team. What the motive of the Atlantic team can be in doing this is not known, but the fact is they have no right to play under that name. Only three of the Professionals live in this city, while every member of the Quincy team is a native of Quincy. It is rather a small thing for the management of the Atlantic team to do, for now the real Quincy team cannot get games with these teams.

Manager Ford wishes the Quincy fans to know that his team is still in the field and that the team that was defeated a week ago by Ipswich and Saturday by Everett City, is not his team and is not the regular Quincy team. He also wishes to state that his team is ready at any time to meet the Atlantic Professionals for one game or for a series of games, for any side bet that can be agreed upon, on a 50 per cent. basis of gate receipts or winner take all. This ought to bring the Professionals to their feet and make them come out with a defi. They have cancelled on the Quincy team three times, and in each instance at short notice. What is the matter Atlantic, are you afraid of the Quincy team? If not it would seem that a game or a series could be arranged with Quincy. The Atlantic team has played good ball all the season but as yet has not played the Quincy team. Now the Quincy boys are ready and anxious to play Atlantic any time and any place, so it seems to be up to the boys from the North Side to come to terms.

Next Saturday the Quincys will play Makaria at Merrymount park. As each team has won a game, this will be the deciding contest and should bring out some good sport.

MAKARIA WINS AT LAST.

Makaria broke its losing streak Saturday by defeating the strong Norwell team at the latter's field, the final score being 8 to 3. The local team got back some of its former dash Saturday and played like a real ball team. They hit Osborne, the crack Norwell twirler, for 13 clean hits, winning the game easily. In the very first inning the Quincy boys got to Osborne for a bunch of hits, scoring five runs and winning the game right there. Michael and Troupe, the former star battery of the Makaria team, were in the box for the Quincy team and pitched great ball. Michael held the heavy hitting Norwell bunch to six hits, one of these being a homer. In the last game played between these teams, Norwell won in a close game that went ten innings. A rubber game will probably be played later in the season. The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Norwell	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	1	0	—3

Two-base hits—Curtis, Kelley. Home run—McDonald. Struck out—By Michael 7, Osborne 4. Bases on balls—By Michael 4. Hit by pitched ball—Ganzel. Umpire—Donovan. Time 2 hrs.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank Wilder was arraigned for drunkenness at Milton, Case continued until Sept. 1.

Francis J. Sheehy was fined $10 for drunkennes at Weymouth.

The continued cases of Fred Blacklock, James McDermott, Edward Fostello and Gustin Gourley for assault on George Germaine at Quincy were called and again continued until Aug. 25. Upon recommendation of the police Gourley was released on his own recognance. The others were held in $200 each.

STABBED TO DEATH

Body of Unknown Man Found by Roadside Wrapped In a Blanket

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 16.—What appears to be a case of murder was disclosed when a small pile of earth was removed from a bundle wrapped in a blanket beside a road in Stearnsville.

Inside the blanket was the body of a man, apparently a laborer and a foreigner, with a stab wound through the right breast and several other cuts. He appeared to be about 25 years old.

There was no money, nor article admitting of identification in the clothing.

EVIDENTLY DEMENTED.

Teague Tells Police He is Wanted in Brockton for Larceny.

A man who gave his name as Benjamin Teague of Brockton informed Officer Hinchon Sunday evening that he was wanted in Brockton for stealing a team. He said that since he stole the team men were looking for him to shoot him. He was sent to the police station where the Brockton police were communicated with. It was learned that the man had been working in Hall's stable in that city and that he left Saturday after receiving his pay. Just where the man's home is, no one seems to know. He is evidently not in his right mind and he is being held by the police until his people are found and if unsuccessful in locating them, he will be examined as to his mental condition.

AFTER SPEEDERS.

Quincy Police Begin Campaign Against Automobile Speeders.

The square deal signs put up in Quincy by the police for automobiles have failed to accomplish the purpose for which they were intended and the impression is that the drivers of many machines are not looking for a square deal. The complaints of the speed at which many automobiles pass through Quincy have become more and more numerous and it was decided by the Chief of Police to get after some of them.

Saturday afternoon Inspector Goodhue and Officers Bishop and George A. McKay put on their war paint and hiked it to Washington street.

They found that the majority of the automobiles that passed were exceeding the limit.

It was decided not to summons all of the drivers into court but only the most serious violators of the speed law.

The officers therefore will summons but nine of the speeders into court and they will be lined Friday morning.

OSWELL RETURNS.

Was Arrested at eNwport News for Breaking and Entering at Quincy.

Chief or Police Burrell and Lieut. McKay returned from Newport News Sunday morning having in custody William Oswell who had been arrested in that city for breaking and entering the office of Gallaghers express on Depot street, Quincy, last month and the larceny of several hundred dollars. He was arraigned in court this morning. He waived examination in the lower court and was held for the grand jury.

HELD OUTING.

Italian-American Society Hold Picnic and Field Day Sunday.

The annual outing of the Italian American Relief Association of Quincy held its annual outing Sunday. One of the features of the day was a three mile run by the younger members of the society, but John D. Sullivan, Joseph Papi and Domenic Ventatty showed their speed when they finished in the order named. Prizes were presented by Arnaldo DeNicola president of the society.

Frank Bruce the well known long distance runner and winner of the Swampscott ten mile race gave a fine exhibition of running doing three miles in 16.17.

HARDY A. A. WINS RUBBER.

In the deciding game for the championship of the West Quincy district, the Hardy A. A. defeated the Bryant A. C. Saturday at the Ward Four playground, the score being 9 to 1. It was easy money for the Hardy boys, the game being too one-sided to be interesting. Hebert and Pettipit were in the points for the winners, while Hunter and Cronin worked for the losers. The Hardy A. A. now wish to play the Adams A. A. and would like to make arrangements to have the game played next Saturday.

ATLANTIC "PROS" LOSE.

Atlantic Professionals, playing under the name of Quincy, were defeated by the Everett City team Saturday at the Everett High school athletic field, the score being 1 to 0. It was one of the most hotly contested games of the season. Mueller, who was on the mound for Everett, was in fine fettle, striking out nine men and allowing but one hit. The only run of the game was scored in the seventh on hits by Chisholm and Mueller. The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Everett	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	—1

Run made, by Chisholm. Two-base hit, Smith. Base on balls, off Driscoll. Struck out, by Mueller 9, by Driscoll 3. Double play, Driscoll to Duggan to Fitzgerald. Hit by pitched ball, Fay. Umpire, McNeish. Time, 1h. 35m.

For four innings the game went along without a score, but in the fifth, the Stoughton team broke the ice and scored one run. With two out Grieves was safe on a fielder's choice and then Howard followed with a slashing double over Burke's head in right, scoring the short stop. In the next round they got two more, on Duggan's error and hits by Coffey and Grieves.

Quincy's two runs were scored in the sixth, when Burke got a fine double and scored on Lonergan's hit of the same distance. Lonergan tallied on Coffey's wild heave of Donaher's grounder. The locals made a final stand in the ninth, and for a time it looked as if there would be a ninth inning victory, but nothing came of it. With two out, Dean doubled to left, but Courtney ended the game with a fly to Reynolds.

BANK OFFICIAL LOSES JOB

One Result Arising From the Arrest of Broker Persch

New York, Aug. 16.—Sterling Birmingham, head of the loan department of the Windsor Trust company of this city, has been discharged from his position, according to an announcement by the board of directors of that institution.

Birmingham is alleged to have accepted a bonus for negotiating a loan of $50,000 to an agent for F. A. Heinze, who believed that the money was being furnished by the trust company. But the collateral was relinquished to Donald L. Persch, a young note broker who is under arrest charged with larceny.

Persch is still held in the Tombs in default of $50,000 bail. He intimates that unless financial aid is forthcoming that he will break his silence and reveal the identity of his associates in the transaction.

MASS. PRESS ASSO. OUTING

Editors and Their Wives Enjoy Day at Mansfield

Brother editors have often wondered what made "Bill" White of the Mansfield News so sweet and jovial, but this change has come about largely since Walter M. Lowney of chocolate bon-bon fame located there. The enterprise of Mr. Lowney has given the town an impetus with his large factory, extensive dairy farm, delightful tavern, restful common, model tenements, etc. It was the pleasure of the members of the Massachusetts Press Association and their ladies to be the guests on Monday of Editor and Mrs. White and also Mr. Lowney, and they flitted about the town in automobiles kindly furnished by the townspeople, and had an outing they will long remember.

From the time the raw cocoa beans start their journey on the sixth story and drop from floor to floor, until they end in the shipping room as finished goods in cases, there does not seem to be one step wasted and no speck of dirt encountered. The cocoa beans are evidently of a choice variety from many parts of the earth to insure, when blended, the finest flavor. The roasting is a careful process with frequent testing of the beans, so as to get just the degree of roasting that will insure the most perfect flavor of the blended beans. The crushing of the beans and removal of the tasteless shell is the next step, followed by the grinding, when the beans, under friction turn unexpectedly into a dark liquid like molasses.

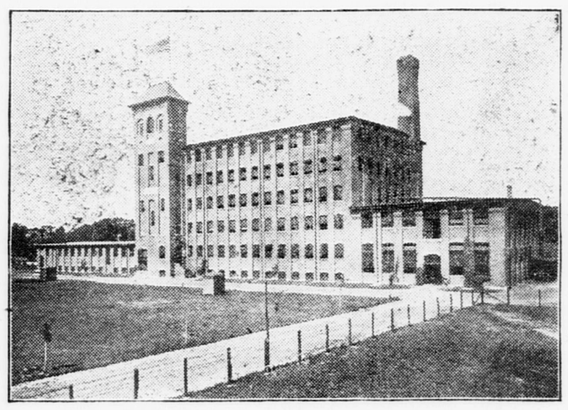

The visitors saw the process of making cocoa and how and why it differs from chocolate, and the making of eating chocolate, flavored either with the dark, oily pods called vanilla beans, or with the cream from the dairy they were to visit later. They saw the interminable grinding under great stone mills which goes on hour after hour and adds so materially to the cost of making high class goods which shall be ground to complete smoothness and solubility.

The battery of pumps and the refrigerating plant were as clean as the engine room, and all three as clean and well ordered as the office itself. It was evident that the head of the business is a born housekeeper, and has the New England hatred of dirt and disorder.

The chocolate factory does not give the impression of being as large as it really is. No doubt the symmetry of its lines helps to diminish its apparent size, but to the visitor inspecting its great rooms full of costly machinery, it is evident that the output of these delicious goods must be very large, and the American public highly appreciative of their high quality.

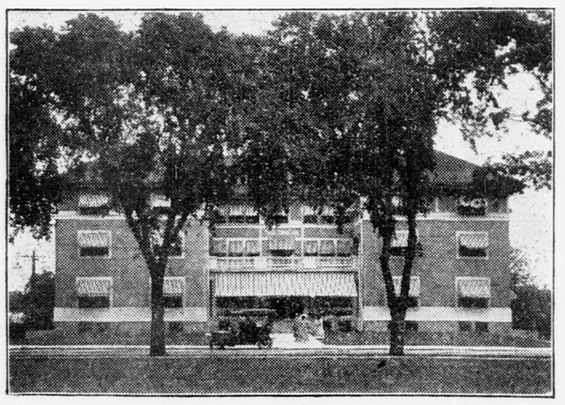

Across from the factory, screened by a growth of oaks, in modest retirement is Mr. Lowney's cottage, where the family spends the summer months, in an unpretentious out-of-door life.

Leaving the factory the party was escorted to the Lowney club house, fitted up with billiard table, bowling alleys, and other helps for the enjoyment of the employees. It is on the base ball field,

THE LOWNEY FACTORY

At the Lowney dairy farm they saw a large herd of sleek Jerseys cheerfully giving streams if not rivers of milk under the most encouraging conditions. Everything is done to make the cows happy, and they make their return in grateful milk. The sanitary conditions are perfect from the clean concrete floors of the cow barn to the elaborate pains taken to sterilize the milking machines, the separators and all receptacles. Perfection seems to be the watchword and they certainly take pains to reach it at this source of supply of cream and milk for the Lowney milk chocolate, and for the soda fountain at the Lowney retail store in Boston.

THE TAVERN

Opposite the railroad station is a square, bordered by graceful elms which Mr. Lowney has bought and laid out with concrete walks and a well kept lawn for the benefit of the town. Facing this park is The Tavern, one of the finest little hotels in New England and one that any town ought to be proud of. The stuccoed exterior gives the impression of dignified simplicity, and adds distinction to the town as seen from the station.

On entering, one rather seems to be in a gentleman's club, than in a country hostelry. The architect, being given carte blanche as to decoration, has achieved a harmonious result, that is not only artistic, but subtly hospitable. The welcome is homelike as you walk in, and while luxurious, is not oppressive. It looks comfortable, restful and scrupulously well ordered and well-kept like all things belonging to Mr. Lowney. The weary traveller feels that here is something nearer a home than other hotels furnish, and that he would like to stay a week and enjoy it.

The newspaper men had one of their periodical dinners in the sumptuous dining room, and not the largest of Boston or New York hotels could have offered a more perfect menu of delicious dishes. The service was as quiet and complete as the decorations of the room, and the hungry scribe felt that good digestion ought to wait on appetite here if anywhere. It is no wonder that the Tavern has become a favorite resort for automobile parties and even trolley parties wanting a superfine cuisine at a not unreasonable rate.

A brief business meeting was held in the dining room at which President Fairbanks presided. Here Mr. Lowney gave his guests a "talk" on the chocolate business that made most of them sit up and take notice. Editor White also told some things which Mr. Lowney had modestly omitted. A committee on resolutions was appointed.

To one remembering Mansfield as chiefly a junction where one hopped off to seize a sandwich or piece of custard pie, and then board another train with as little delay as possible, the thought occurs naturally that it must be a blessing to a town to secure as good a hotel and as good a citizen as Mr. Lowney. How much better for the lasting vitality of a community to secure a citizen who upbuilds permanently, than to secure a mere philanthropist, who may do much and yet do nothing to set a town on its feet in self-supporting activity.

It is the spirit of helping the town to help itself that has induced Mr. Lowney to start a new factory, a new dairy farm, a new bank, a new hotel, and possibly other ventures which the visitors did not have time to see. These productive investments which we hope are profitable and certainly deserve to be, are the most helpful contributions a town can receive, and in Mansfield's case, added to her other industries, have put new life blood into her. These men of affairs, captains of industry, or whatever you choose to call them, have a most beneficient side connected with their natural human ambition to make money. They seem to act like alternate rain and sun to raise crops of opportunity for others as well as themselves.

The editors were also invited to the large manufactory of the C. D. Lyons Company, where they saw the process of manufacturing jewelry. The firm makes a large variety of hat pins, stick pins buckles, etc., in artistic designs, but have recently introduced the Lyon's lock hook cuff buttons, which insure comfort and neatness. They eliminate the forcing of large ovals in and out of starched buttonholes, and enable the wearer by a touch of the finger to turn up the sleeves at will.

Other industries extended invitations to the editors, but time would not permit a visit. They want, however, to go again for the town and The Tavern are very hospitable.

GETS PROMOTION.

West Quincy Man Appointed Chief in Treasury Department at Washington.

A dispatch from Washington announces the appointment of Dr. Chas. W. Miller of West Quincy as chief of the warrant and appropriation division of the treasury department at Washington.

Dr. Miller takes the position made vacant by the recent death of W. F. MacLennan.

Dr. Miller has been the assistant chief of the department for many years. The new position carries a salary of $3,500 and is a substantial increase of his present salary.

HELD FOR VAGRANCY.

Benjamin Teague, the Brockton man picked up by Officer Hinchon at West Quincy, Sunday, and who was thought to be demented was brought into court this morning and arraigned on a charge of vagrancy. He was then held in $100 until Aug. 31. The police have been unable to find any trace of his relatives or his home up to the present time and it was thought advisable to hold him for a few days longer in the hopes that some more information may be obtained of him.

TODAY'S COURT.

John McDonnell was fined $5 for assault at Holbrook.

Thomas Phelan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy. Case suspended until Aug. 31.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR GAME

Reds Land Troops at Gloucester Armies 4 Miles Apart

Things to the lay mind are moving slowly in the war game now in progress in the southern part of the state for about all that has been accomplished by the two armies is to get a little nearer together so that now they are only four miles apart and a battle may be expected sometime today.

Although the army in blue kept searchlights trained on the outer harbor of Boston all last night the red army was able to steal a march on them and land several hundred troops from a transport in Gloucester harbor. Whether it is the plan of the red army to move against Boston from the north shore is something that has not developed as yet.

The landing at Gloucester was made at 12.30 this morning. Word was also received from the life saving station at Scituate beach that they saw a vessel supposed to be the transport Kilpatrick, hovering off shore.

A conductor on a Neponset-Nantasket car also had an experience Monday night. As his car was passing the head of the street leading to Weir river a soldier wearing a red band on his hat came out and boarded the car. The soldier refused to pay any fare on the ground of war. The soldier left the car just before it reached Paragon park. The conclusion of the passengers was that he was a scout that had been landed by the enemy. It may however have been a bit of strategy on the part of the red army officers.

Reports from Buzzards bay and from Marblehead are that strange vessels have been seen. At Marblehead three transports and several launches came into the harbor but no information could be received from the officers of the vessels as to their business. The officers came ashore and several telegrams. It is expected that other boats may join them today.

The blue army having been apprised of the landing of the reds on the north shore, by signal rockets from Winthrop, a garrison of sixty men were in waiting for them at Bass Point. The battle opened at 2.45. The reds divided as the blues poured a galling fire into them, six pounders one pounder and small arms being used in the defence. The reds were taken completely by surprise and were completely annihilated. They then retreated and took beats to the transports.

It appears that the plan of the reds was to land and capture the government signal station at Nahant and then land troops from the ships and attempt to capture Forts Banks and Heath. They were repulsed however and the first victory goes to the blues.

TELLS PITIFUL STORY

Husband of Dying Woman Stole to Furnish Her With Food

New York, Aug. 17.—William L. Bancher, aged 45, who said that he had seen better days and had been driven to desperation by the need of his dying wife for want of nourishing food, which he had been unable to provide for her, was arrested, charged with breaking into a meat shop and stealing a quantity of beef. He had a dress suit case full of beef in his possession when arrested.

The man's story excited Magistrate Breen's sympathies and he detailed a probation officer to investigate the case, instructing the officer to provide Mrs. Bancher with anything she needs at the magistrate's expense. Meanwhile he held Bancher in $1500 bail for further examination.

There won't any of us have to walk next year for it is said over 200,000 automobiles will be made in this country during 1910.

The soldier boys are wearing the same old colors but new ones of olive color have been ordered for the service uniforms of the army. Does the color mean peace?

Beverly was a capital place to live in long before it became the summer capital of the U. S. but for all that some people there will want more capital than usual this summer.

And still there are those who say the corset is injurious. A Fitchburg woman who was stabbed with a hat pin escaped injury because of her corset steel. The implement was wielded with force but broke against the steel.

New England Grand Army veterans are pleased that the next G. A. R. encampment is to be in the east instead of the west. Atlantic City has been selected and many who cannot stand a long trip will be able to enjoy the "board walk" and its attractions.

"Every human being that holds a public office needs a check," says Mayor McClellan. "Ought to bear that in mind and put it up over all public buildings," says the New York Herald. It must be the mayor's knowledge that the check he gets is generally larger than he needs or deserves.

Good results are sure to follow interest in ones work which is shown by the faithfulness of the caretaker at the new post office. He is constantly at work not only inside but outside of the building and has succeeded under difficulties in making a good lawn. Windows, braces and fixtures receive constant attention.

Back to the three R's which Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, recently elected superintendent of schools of Chicago, announces as her main policy strikes a responsive cord in the hearts of many parents as well as that of business men who have to deal with graduates. Even college graduates are disgracefully deficient in spelling while many grammar and high school graduates cannot divide or spell correctly words of three syllables, make out a bill or write a decent letter. Perhaps more women are needed on the boards of education.

The objection of an Englishman to the American use of the word "home" when in his opinion it should be "house" is pretty wide the mark. "My home" means or should mean much more than "my house." A house is a shell or frame for the contents and the contents and family make the home. A boardng house is a house, but is seldom a home. No the word home is all right and a town made up of homes has more influence than a town of houses.

LOSES HIS LICENSE.

Jacob Stone, chauffeur for John L. Sullivan, the pugilist, who was fined $25 in the Quincy court last Friday for reckless driving his automobile through Milton, has had his professional chauffeur's badge and his automobile license revoked by the highway commission.

HEALTH LEAGUE ACTIVE.

The activities of the American Health League in matter affecting the general public health has attracted attention to this somewhat unique organization . The League is the progeny of the "committee of one hundred," which was formed as a section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and which was charged with the investigation of public health conditions and the recommendation of legislation in that connection. The president of the Committee of One Hundred is Dr. Irving Fisher, of Yale, and among its vice-presidents are Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, Miss Jane Addams, Felix Adler, Prof. James B. Angell, of Ann Arbor; Hon. Joseph H. Choate; Dr. Charles W. Elliott, ex-President of Harvard; Archbishop Ireland, ex-President Roosevelt, and others. The list of its membership reads like a roll call of the most distinguished men of the country who are interested in civic advancement.

This committee formed the American Health League to include in its membership all persons who seek to elevate the condition of the public health, it being understood that it was to be an organization of laymen as distinguished from those of physicians or scientists, or of parties who might have a commercial interest in propositions affecting the general health. For the benefit of its members the American Health League issues a periodical called "American Health," and also bulletins from time to time.

The League has several state branches, the strongest of which is in Ohio, where Dr. C. O. Probst, of Columbus, is the state President, and Ben LaBree, of Cincinnati, is secretary-treasurer. Among the vice-presidents are Gov. Judson Harmon, ex-Gov. Myron T. Herrick, Dr. Charles A. Reed, Thomas L. Johnson, Charles P. Taft, Julius Fleishman, M. E. Ingalls, D. B. Gamble, L. E. Holden, Brand Whitlock, Frank J. Jones, Charles W. Dabney, and others equally prominent.

The American Health League has become a great civic movement, including economists and scientists who approach the problem of public health from a broad point of view. It is especially interested in the creation of a department of public health which will do for the men, women and children of the country what the Department of Agriculture is doing for the sheep, hogs and cattle, plants and trees. It recognizes the value of the Pure Food Act and the Ohio branch of the League has been especially active in opposing benzoate of soda, alum, borax and all chemical, artificial preservatives, having recently sent two scientists, Dr. Julius H. Eichberg, of Cincinnati, and Dr. H. A. Webber of Columbus, Ohio, State University, to represent the consumer in a hearing on alum before the Board of Food and Drug Inspection. They appeared in opposition to the use of alum in pickle products and baking powder.

The American Health League will present its views on the creation of a Department of Public Health to President Taft and the latter has promised careful consideration before making the recommendations which he intends to incorporate in his first annual message to Congress next December.

RELIEVED OF $500

Pittsburg Detective Falls Into Trap Set by Clever Robber

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Thomas D. Stewart, the head of a private detective agency in Pittsburg, reported to the police the loss of money and jewelry worth $500.

Stewart came to Chicago with a man who had induced him to come here on a clue to a Pennsylvania dynamiter for whom a $5000 reward is offered.

The detective and his informant took the same room at a hotel, Stewart told the police, and in the morning the man was gone, together with the jewelry and money.

Bloody Coats Cause Arrest

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 17.—Detectives working on the murder of an unknown man who was found with eighteen stab wounds, got much excited when two men with cut and blood-stained coats called at a tailor shop to have the garments put into condition. The two men were detained pending an investigation.

INDICTMENTS IN HEINZE CASE

Grand Jury Finds Bills Against Persch and Another Man

CONTINUES ITS INVESTIGATION

District Atorney's Office Desirous of Finding Actual Source of $50,000 That Formed Basis of Loan Transaction—Similar Operations Probably Conducted With Other Victims—Not Work of "Large Interests"

New York, Aug. 17.—Indictments were returned against Donald L. Persch and another man in connection with the $50,000 Heinze loan swindle.

The district attorney's office is now bending its energies to discover the actual source of the $50,000 that formed the basis of the loan transaction.

It has been said that the purpose was for the "large interests" to get control of the Ohio Copper and David Dailey Copper properties by buying up the stock sold out in connection with such loans as the one under investigation.

That, however, would be a very roundabout way of getting the stock, inasmuch as Heinze and his agents have been bending every effort to the making of a market for it, and if any "large interests" were anxious to absorb it there would have been and would be now ample opportunity to do so without violating the penal code or employing swindlers to handle the detail.

An additional fact confirming the conclusion that has been expressed is that the gang in the Heinze case have been conducting similar operations with other victims. Surely "the large interests" would not be engaged in a general effort to make illicit profits by selling out collateral put up against loans.

The grand jury continued its investigation of the case today and it is possible that other indictments will be returned. Although the name of the man indicted with Persch was not made public, it is understood that the co-defendant in question is a man whose name has not been previously mentioned in the case.

TO MANUFACTURE COTTON

One of Largest Plants In the World to Be Built In Boston

Boston, Aug. 17.—Contracts have been awarded for the piling work of the proposed large cotton mills of East Boston and tomorrow a large force of men will be put to work. The foundation is expected to be completed within three months.

The mills will be constructed by the Maverick Mills company, of which Eugene N. Foss, president of the Burgess mills at Pawtucket and manager of the Sturtevant Blower works at Readville, is at the head.

The site of the buildings is along Chelsea creek, and it is the plan to make them one of the largest cotton manufacturing plants in the country.

TO BE FOREIGN MINISTER

Post Awaiting Takahira Upon His Return to Japan

Seattle, Aug. 17.—That Baron Takahira, Japanese ambassador to the United States, will return no more to this country, but will be made minister of foreign affairs by his government, is stated by well informed Japanese, who name as his successor Kosai Uchifda, now ambassador to Austria.

Baron Takahira sailed for Japan today on the steamer Tango. At a farewell dinner, exclusively Japanese, the ambassador told his countrymen that they were themselves in large measure responsible for the ill-feeling against them in the United States.

KIDNAPPED HIS SON

Sargent Arraigned and Sent to Jail In Default of Bail

Laconia, N. H., Aug. 17.—Fred J. Sargent was before the local police court to answer to the charge of kidnapping his own son, Clarence, from the home of his mother in this city.

The defense offered was that the original decreeof divorce did not show that Mrs. Sargent was granted the custody of the children.

Sargent was held in $2000, which he failed to secure, and was sent to jail.

ULTIMATUM TO STRIKERS

Given Until Friday to Return to Pressed Steel Car Works

Pittsburg, Aug. 17.—Quiet reigns at the plants of the Pressed Steel Car company at Schoenville, where 3500 employes have been on a strike for five weeks. Operations on a reduced scale were started Monday at the works, and it is said that the plant will shortly be running full time. It is claimed that nearly 2500 workmen are now lodged at the plants, prepared to take the places of the strikers.

The company has given its idle employes until Friday to return to work, and it is alleged that if the men refuse, all, with their families, will be evicted at that time from the company's houses.

DISEASED CLAMS IN BOSTON HARBOR

Cause One Person's Death and Sickness of Others

Boston, Aug. 17.—Diseased clams dug by campers on Governor's island in Boston harbor caused the death of Mrs. Susan Blackhall of Cambridge and the serious illness of more than a dozen persons within the past three days.

The police department, which was notified by the medical examiner of the circumstances, will ask the board of health to notify the federal government officials, who have the jurisdiction of the island, to see that no more clams are dug or eaten on the island until they have been tested by a bacteriologist to learn whether they are infected or diseased.

TAX RATES.

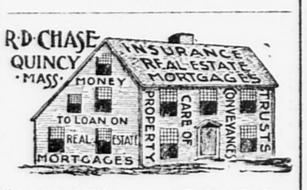

Norwood Looking for a Reduction of $15.60 in its Tax Rate.

Norwood tax payers are feeling joyful over the prospect of a drop in its tax rate from $25.60 in 1908 to $10 for 1909. Last year's rate was the highest in the state and if it should drop to $10 this year as anticipated it will be one of the lowest in the state. The big drop is due to the work of a finance committee appointed last March.

After investigation and a conference with the assessors and other committees a special town meeting was held at which it was voted to assess property at its fair and real value.

—A novel and pathetic funeral was held Monday on lake Michigan. Mrs. Rosa Payton, whose husband was a victim of a wreck on the lake some thirty years ago, requested that on her death she be cremated and the ashes cast into the lake where the wreck occurred. This request was fulfilled on Monday from the deck of an excursion steamer.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request.

Spurred by solicitude, the young man put personal apprehensions in his pocket and forgot them, cautiously picking his way through the gloom to the foot of the stairs. Slowly he began to ascend, a hand following the balusters, the other with his cane exploring the obscurity before him. On the steps a carpet, thick and heavy, muffled his footfalls. He moved noiselessly. Toward the top the staircase curved, and presently a foot that groped for a higher level failed to find it. Again he halted, acutely distrustful.

Nothing happened.

He went on, guided by the balustrade, passing three doors, all open, through which the undefined proportions of a drawing room and boudoir were barely suggested in a ghostly dusk. By each he paused, listening, hearing nothing.

His foot struck with a deadened thud against the bottom step of the second flight, and his pulses fluttered wildly for a moment. Two minutes—three—he waited in suspense. From above came no sound. He went on, as before, save that twice a step yielded, complaining, to his weight.

Again the raised foot found no level higher than its fellows. He stopped and held his breath, oppressed by a conviction that some one was near him. Confirmation of this came startlingly—an eerie whisper in the night, so close to him that he fancied he could feel the disturbed air fanning his face.

"Is it you, Eccles?"

He had no answer ready. The voice was masculine, if he analyzed it correctly. Dumb and stupid, he stood poised upon the point of panic.

"Eccles, is it you?"

The whisper was both shrill and shaky. As it ceased Kirkwood was half blinded by a flash of light striking him squarely in the eyes. Involuntarily he shrank back a pace, to the first step from the top. Instantaneously the light was eclipsed.

Hurled bodily upon him with staggering force and passion.

"Halt or—or I fire!"

By now he realized that he had been scrutinized by the aid of an electric hand lamp. The tremulous whisper told him something else—that the speaker suffered from nerves as high strung as his own. The knowledge gave him inspiration. He cried at a venture, in a guarded voice, "Hands up!" and struck out smartly with his stick. Its ferrule impinged upon something soft, but heavy. Simultaneously he heard a low, frightened cry, the cane was swept aside, a blow landed glancingly on his shoulder, and he was carried fairly off his feet by the weight of a man hurled bodily upon him with staggering force and passion. Reeling, he was borne back and down a step or two and then, choking on an oath, dropped his cane and with one hand caught the balusters, while the other tore ineffectually at wrists of hands that clutched his throat. So, for a space, the two hung, panting and struggling.

Then, endeavoring to swing his shoulders over against the wall, Kirkwood released his grip on the hand rail and stumbled on the stairs, throwing his antagonist out of balance. The latter plunged downward, dragging Kirkwood with him. Clawing, kicking, grappling, they went to the bottom, jolted violently by each step, but long before the last was reached Kirkwood's throat was free.

Throwing himself off, he got to his feet and grasped the railing for support, then waited, panting, trying to get his bearings. Himself painfully shaken and bruised, he shrewdly surmised that his assailant had fared as ill, if not worse. And, in point of fact, the man lay with neither move nor moan, still as death, at the American's feet.

And once more silence had folded its wings over No. 9 Frognall street.

More conscious of that terrifying, motionless presence beneath him than able to distinguish it by power of vision, he endured interminable minutes of trembling horror, in a witless daze, before he thought of his matchbox. Immediately he found it and struck a light. As the wood caught and the bright small flame leaped in the pent air he leaned forward over the body, breathlessly dreading what he must discover.

The man lay quiet, head upon the floor, legs and hips on the stairs. One arm had fallen over his face, hiding the upper half. The hand gleamed white and delicate as a woman's. His chin was smooth and round, his lips thin and petulant. Beneath his topcoat evening dress clothed a short and slender figure. Nothing whatever of his appearance suggested the burly ruffian, the midnight marauder. He seemed little more than a boy old enough to dress for dinner. In his attitude there was something pitifully suggestive of a beaten child thrown into a corner.

Conscience smitten and amazed Kirkwood stared on until, without warning, the match flickered and went out. Then, straightening up with an exclamation at once of annoyance and concern, he rattled the box. It made no sound—was empty. In disgust he swore it was the devil's own luck that he should run out of vestas at a time so critical. He could not even say whether the fellow was dead, unconscious or simply shamming. He had little idea of his looks, and to be able to identify him might save a deal of trouble at some future time since he, Kirkwood, seemed so little able to disengage himself from the clutches of this insane adventure! And the girl—what had become of her? How could he continue to search for her, without lights or guide, through all those silent rooms, whose walls might inclose a hundred hidden dangers in that house of mystery?

But he debated only briefly. His blood was young, and it was hot. It was quite plain to him that he could not withdraw and retain his self respect. If the girl was there to be found, most assuredly he must find her. The hand lamp that had dazzled him at the head of the stairs should be his aid now that he thought of it—and provided he was able to find it.

In the scramble on the stairs he had lost his hat, but he remembered that the vesta's short lived light had discovered this on the floor beyond the man's body. Carefully stepping across the latter, he recovered his headgear and then, kneeling, listened with an ear close to the fellow's face. A softly regular beat of breathing reassured him. Half rising, he caught the body beneath the armpits, lifting and dragging it off the staircase, and knelt again, to feel of each pocket in the man's clothing, partly as an obvious precaution, to relieve him of his advertised revolver against an untimely wakening, partly to see if he had the lamp about him.

The search proved fruitless. Kirkwood suspected that the weapon, like his own, had existed only in his victim's ready imagination. As for the lamp, in the act of rising he struck it with his foot and picked it up.

It felt like a metal tube a couple of inches in diameter, a foot or so in length, passably heavy. He fumbled with it impatiently. "However the dickens," he wondered audibly, "does the infernal machine work?" As it happened, the thing worked with disconcerting abruptness as his untrained fingers fell hapchance on the spring. A sudden glare again smote him in the face, and at the same instant, from a point not a yard away, apparently, an inarticulate cry rang out upon the stillness.

Heart in his mouth, he stepped back, lowering the lamp, which impishly went out, and lifting a protecting forearm.

"Who's that?" he demanded harshly.

A strangled sob of terror answered him, blurred by a swift rush of skirts, and in a breath his shattered nerves quieted and a glimmer of common sense penetrated the murk anger and fear had bred in his brain. He understood and stepped forward, catching blindly at the darkness with eager hands.

"Miss Calendar!" he cried guardedly. "Miss Calendar, it is I—Philip Kirkwood!"

There was a second sob, of another caliber than the first. Timid fingers brushed his, and a hand, warm and fragile, closed upon his own in a passion of relief and gratitude.

"Oh, I am so g-glad!" It was Dorothy Calendar's voice, beyond mistake. "I—I didn't know what t-to t-think. When the light struck your face I was sure it was you, but when I called you answered in a voice so strange—not like yours at all. Tell me," she pleaded, with palpable effort to steady herself, "what has happened?"

"I think, perhaps," said Kirkwood uneasily, again troubled by his racing impulses—"perhaps you can do that better than I."

"Oh!" said the voice guiltily. Her fingers trembled on his and were gently withdrawn. "I was so frightened," she confessed after a little pause, "so frightened that I hardly understand. But you—how did you"—

"I worried about you," he replied in a tone absurdly apologetic. "Somehow it didn't seem right. It was none of my business, of course, but I couldn't help coming back. This fellow, whoever he is—don't worry, he's unconscious—slipped into the house in a manner that seemed to me suspicious. I hardly know why I followed, except that he left the door an open invitation to interference."

"I can't be thankful enough," she told him warmly, "that you did interfere. You have indeed saved me from"—

"Yes?"

"I don't know what. If I knew the man"—

"You don't know him?"

"I can't even guess. The light"—

She paused inquiringly. Kirkwood fumbled with the lamp; but, whether its rude handling had impaired some vital part of the mechanism or whether the batteries through much use were worn out, he was able to elicit only one feeble glow, which was instantly smothered by the darkness.

"It's no use," he confessed. "The thing's gone wrong."

SUTTON FINDINGS SIGNED

Placed In Hands of Navy Department For Review

Washington, Aug. 17.—The Sutton court of inquiry closed Monday after two secret sessions at Annapolis, during which the testimony relative to the death on Oct. 13, 1907, of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, Jr., U. S. M. C., was gone over thoroughly. The findings were reached and signed last night and will now be reviewed by the navy department before being made public.

The findings were signed by the members of the court and by Judge Advocate Leonard. The latter then left for Washington, where he delivered the court's report to the navy department today.

HITS 'PHONE COMPANIES

Lincoln Cents Answer Purpose of Nickel In Making Calls

Washington, Aug. 17.—It has been discovered that the new Lincoln penny is five times as valuable, in one respect at least, as the old Indian-head cent.

Being a trifle larger and heavier than the old 1-cent piece, the new coin, it has been ascertained, to the discomfiture of the telephone companies, will answer the place of a 5-cent piece when making a call.

Already many Lincoln pennies have been found in its pay station boxes by the local telephone company.

They cure every kidney ill.

James P. Daugherty, living on Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass. says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let others know what they have done for me. I suffered constantly from backache and had but little strength or energy to get through with my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kindney Pills which I procured at the Cox, Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to get anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills as I have so much confidence in their merit."

Miss Helen Farrell of Willard street has gone to Lake Sunapee, N. H., for two weeks.

Martha McDonald is spending her two weeks' vacation at the Grand View hotel, Cottage City.

Miss Lillian Manning of Waltham has been the guest of Miss Mae Duggan for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cahill of Silver street have gone to Elizabeth, N. J., for a few weeks.

George McKenzie of the City Engineers department at City hall is enjoying a week's vacation.

Miss Alma LeClair has returned to her home Sunday after a two weeks' vacation in New Hampshire.

The Misses Gagnon of Fall River have been the guests of their sister, Mrs. Frank Dufour of Revere road.

Mrs. Daniel Buckley and family of Dorchester are at their summer cottage at Houghs Neck for the rest of the summer.

The entertainment committee of the Copeland club held a meeting last evening to discuss the plans for their big field day.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Beal of Vane street returned Monday from a pleasant trip, visiting friends in Bedford, Thalma and Onset.

Michael McDonald, a clerk at the N. E. Telephone and Telegraph Co., is spending his two weeks' vacation at Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

Pretty souvenir postals have been received from Mrs. M. C. Garden of Wollaston from Brooklyn, N. H., where she is spending the summer.

Thomas Johnston of South Quincy has been selected as ring master at the Scottish Clans union picnic to be held Labor day. Seventeen clans will participate.

Fifteen members of the Iroquois club were guests of Alfred Bullock Sunday on his launch the "Monitor." The party left Town river at 10 o'clock in the morning and went to Bass Point, where they had dinner. They got back about 7.30 in the evening.

The Clover A. C. of Atlantic defeated the Hemlocks of Quincy Saturday by the score of 6 to 3. The features of the game were the pitching of Stevens and the batting of Bevis for the Clovers. A challenge is also issued to any sixteen-seventeen year old team in the city, the Quincy Red Sox preferred.

The Quincy Tennis club is to hold its second annual handicap tournament, open to all members, Saturday, September 4 and on Labor day. Mr. Charles A. Price has offered a cup which is to become the permanent possession of the winner of this tournament, and the club has offered a consolation prize.

BRIEFS

Miss Elsie Patterson of South Central avenue has gone to Kearsarge, N. H., on her vacation trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McGrath of Pleasant street are on a trip to Deluth, Mich.

Mrs. Otto Gelotte of Glendale road who has been in Sweden all summer, sailed for home last Saturday.

Miss Celia Halloran returned Saturday from Maranocook, Maine, after spending a very enjoyable vacation.

Mrs. John O'Brien and daughter Gertrude of Elm Lawn, Sharon, are spending the week end with Mrs. J. Halloran.

N. H. Savage and H. T. Prario spent the week end at Bucksport, Me., near Bangor, traveling on the turbine steamship, Belfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Steward L. Hirtle of Brook street left Monday for Nova Scotia, expecting to return about the middle of September through Maine and New Hampshire.

Closed street cars were not uncomfortable today and they were run on several of the lines. The rain however, is very welcome and will do much good to gardens that have been suffering for water.

Ex-Councilman Walter E. Piper and son Walter E., Jr., of Centre street left Monday for a trip to Moultonboro, N. H. Before leaving, Mr. Piper saw to it that his friends tasted his sweet corn.

Mrs. Mary D. Mahoney of West Quincy and daughter Louise have returned from a few weeks' visit to Gray, Maine, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lawrence, formerly of Quincy.

Ralph E. Winslow, Wadsworth Winslow and George Thomas have been the guests of Hollis Burgess, owner of the yacht "Marie" for the past ten days on a cruise from Hull to Narragansett Bay, where they participated in the races of the week.

A free exhibit of sewing, sloyd, vegetables and flowers is to be held at City hall tomorrow afternoon under the auspices of the Quincy Women's club. The exhibit is the work of various classes held this summer at the Women's club house and the Y. M. C. A. It is free to the public and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

Dr. W. G. Kendall of Atlantic has returned from the Pacific coast, where he has been taking part in all kinds of sports. He has been playing golf on the San Francisco, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Redlands, Riverside and San Gabriel courses, won a swimming match at Catalina island and brings home with him the pelts of two mountain lions, shot in the mountains of Arizona and the skins of several "rattlers" killed on the Mohawk desert.

STONE SHED IMPROVEMENTS.

The Granite Cutters' Journal for August under granite news in Quincy has a timely article by Charles Osborne, which reads as follows:

"We have quite a number of our members on the sick list, a few of them afflicted with that dread disease "tuberculosis," and when one thinks of their condition and the causes which led up to their sickness, the thought arises that in the future our branches will have to pay more attention to getting better condition in the shed than what has been done for some time past.

"We all admit that the improvements during the past ten years have been all in the right direction, but there is still much to be desired, more particularly in meeting the dust proposition, and when one sizes up the sheds in this city, generally fitted with windows which are nailed into the building, making it practically impossible for a particle of dust to escape when the doors are closed, unless by chance, nature or an obliging carpenter has provided boards to build the sheds which are liberally perforated with knot-holes; it makes one wonder that more of us do not make our "exit" by the tuberculosis route.

"A few hinges fitted into the windows referred to, would enable us to get a little air when the weather was too cold to have the doors open, and if this happens to catch the eye of any one who is in the business or intends to go into business, then I hope he or they will think of some of the poor unfortunates to whom I have referred and as an innovation in the right direction, see that the windows of their sheds are fitted so that they can be opened and closed."

Carders Want Wages Increased

New Bedford, Aug. 17.—At a meeting of the Carders' union last night it was voted to demand an increase of 10 percent in wages. The carders voted to give its delegates full power to act on the question when it comes before the Textile Council for final action.

A HOT RACE FOR HONORS

Impossible to Pick League Winner at Present time

The race for first honors in the Old Colony league still continues to be a hot one, and it is next to impossible to pick a winner now, even though the season is nearly over. At present Taunton, last year's pennant winner, is at the top of the heap, but the others are so close at her heels that the loss of one game while the others are winning will send her down the ladder. Tied for second place are Quincy, Dewey, Stoughton and Rockland, while Randolph is back in the cellar again. It would not take much to shift these teams all around, however. Next Saturday Dewey and Taunton meet again and if the Admirals win they will be tied for first place. Then too, Quincy, Stoughton and Rockland all have a chance to go into a tie for first place. Quincy plays the Randolph tailenders, and if they are defeated Quincy will be tied with Randolph for last place. So it will be seen that the race is still pretty hot and will not be decided until the last game is played. Perhaps it will be necessary to play off a tie for the flag, as was the case last year.

Joe Burke was the star of the game Saturday, making two pretty running catches in the outfield and getting a slashing double at the bat. The crowd appreciated Burke's work, too, and gave a great round of applause after that first catch.

Fred Smith, Rockland's star catcher, is still keeping up his terrific batting. He got two singles Saturday in the Randolph game, five being the whole number of hits registered for his team. Smith would come in handy on the local team and would look mighty good on first base in place of the weak hitting Briggs. The latter is a hitter something on the old Buck Freeman style. When he hits the ball it is usually more than a single, but his hits are few and far between. The singles coming regularly every Saturday are the hits that count.

Orcutt, who played with Quincy the first of the season, is still hanging on with Dewey and is making good, especially with the bat. Saturday against Ryan of Taunton, Orcutt got two hits, the only hits made by the Dewey team. When he was in Quincy his weak point was batting. Such is base ball.

Those Bigelow-Quincy Red Sox games for the 18-19 year old championship of the city, are causing a lot of interest. First blood was drawn by the Bigelows last Saturday at the Ward Two playground in a close and exciting game, the contest not being won until the ninth inning. Then the squeeze play won the game. Jep Saunders was in the box and pitched swell ball. He allowed the Red Sox but three hits and with better support would have shut the Sox out. The next game will be played the coming Saturday, probably in the lower field at Merrymount park.

Makaria has shaken its hoodoo at last and the boys say that now they have got started nothing can stop them. Jimmy Michael and Walter Troupe have returned to the team and will stick for the rest of the year.

Stoughton has arranged to play the North Easton team of the Trolley league after the Old Colony league season is over. North Easton now has a clean lead in the Trolley and has fast bunch of ball tossers. Coose, a Braintree boy, is catching for the North Easton team and is making good with a vengeance.

Why would it not be a good plan to have the Quincy Old Colony league team arrange for some post season games with the other teams of this city. There are two teams here that are playing the best semi-professional teams in the state and a series with the Old Colony league team would be a big drawing card. It would be a big money maker for the teams. There might be triangular series between Quincy Old Colony league, Quincy Independents and Atlantic Professionals. Then there is the Makaria team which will have to be watched now that they have struck their gait. A very interesting series could be played during the month of September by these teams.

Martin O'Toole, the star pitcher of the Brockton New England team, has just been signed by the Boston American club, and will report to that team after the New England league season closes. O'Toole has been pitching great ball for the Shoe City team for some time past and last year was signed by the Cincinnati team of the National league, but was turned loose to get more experience. With the coaching of Fred Lake and the other members of the Red Sox he ought to make a valuable man on the Boston pitching staff. O'Toole comes from a family of ball players having one brother pitching for the Haverhill New England league club, while two other brothers are members of the Dennison house team of South Framingham. O'Toole's home is in South Framingham.

ATLANTIC ANSWERS QUINCY.

Pros. Declare They are Ready to Meet Quincy Any Time.

The little argument over the name of "Quincy" between the Quincy Independents and the Atlantic Professionals seems to be coming to a head. It now seems to be up to Ford's team to make good its defi printed in Monday's Ledger, as the following communication, received this morning from the Atlantic team, would seem to indicate:

In regard to the story published in last night's edition of the Ledger, members of the Atlantic Professional baseball team of this city are somewhat surprised at the action. Atlantic had little difficulty in beating Quincy three straight games last year, and, also by virtue of their defeats of Makaria, are the recognized baseball champions of Quincy, and no team in the city, has a right to dictate to them. Also, would say, that Atlantic beat Ford's team in the only game played this year, June 17, at Atlantic, 6 to 3. Where does the argument of the team come in? Quincy is a free city, and Atlantic has a right to the name "Quincy" as well as any other team in the granite city, and can probably live up to the name better than any other nine, barring the Old Colony league team.

Atlantic has played throughout Rhode Island, this year, and has also been booked with the fastest teams in this state, getting big guarantees for their services. This is probably the only thing that has made the management of the Quincy team sore, and therefore, the only way that the dispute can be settled is to have the two teams get together.

Atlantic has to pay money to several members of its team and could not afford to play at Merrymount park last Saturday with opposition at the Old Colony league grounds. Ford's Quincy team gets paid on a split-up basis and can afford to take a chance any time. If Ford wants to play the Atlantic team again this year, he will have to pay a guarantee of $25, which is somewhat smaller in proportion than the professionals have been receiving this year. Will play him at any time at Merrymount park, Ward 3 grounds, or the Old Colony league grounds, providing he makes good with his end of the guarantee. Will also say that we will make a side bet of $50 to go to the winner. An umpire not interested in the game, can be secured, one of the Boston sporting writers, preferably.

Signed
Atlantic Professionals.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Quincy Club to Hold Open Handicap Tournament Sept. 4 and 6.

The second annual handicap tournament of the Quincy Tennis club will be held on the Whitney road courts Saturday, Sept. 4 and Monday, Sept. 6. Play will begin on Saturday at 2.30 and on Monday at 10. Entries will be received up to the time of the play Saturday.

Charles A. Price has offered a cup to become the permanent possession of the winner and the club will offer a consolation prize.

BRAINTREE MAN CHOSEN.

John C. Anthony, superintendent of schools of Braintree has been chosen as superintendent of the Melrose schools. Two weeks ago the Melrose committee elected Mr. Barbour who was last week elected by the Quincy school board which position he has accepted. Mr. Anthony will be paid a salary of $2200 at Melrose, an increase of $200 from his salary the past six years at Braintree.

SOUTHWEST IS SCORCHED

Human Beings and Crops Suffer From Excessive Heat

Kansas City, Aug. 17.—Unusual heat, officially recorded as high as 110 degrees, caused nearly a dozen deaths, numerous prostrations and much damage to crops Monday in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The day was the hottest Topeka has had for eight years, 102 degrees beofficially recorded.

In Oklahoma City the government thermometer registered 103, while thermometers in the street reached 112. At Muskogee the government thermometer registered 110.

THE CROONER WINS ONE RACE

Elimination Races of Sonder Boats at Marblehead

The first of the three elimination trials of the sonder class boats to select the yachts which will race the German boats next week was held at Marblehead Monday. The elimination races will be held all the week and the three boats selected will defend the trophies offered by President Taft and Gov. Draper.

For the first day's race the boats were divided into three divisions. The Crooner of Charles F. Adams 2d the Quincy cup defender was in the first division. The breeze was a moderate one but the sea was choppy.

The first race started at 10.30 the second at 1.30 and the third at 3.40.

The Crooner was skilfully handled but failed to finish in first position.

In the first race the Joyette was first and Crooner second, nearly two minutes behind the winner.

In the send race she did not do as well for she finished in fifth position while the Joyette was again first with a lead of six minutes of the Crooner.

Better luck fell to the Quincy boat however on the third race for the Crooner won. As the Joyette had won two out of the three races she dropped out after the second race having parted her throat halyards a minute before the start.

This race was sailed in a fine strong breeze. In this race Crooner won with a lead of one minute and five seconds over the Wag.

WOMEN MAKE GREAT CLATTER

Their Nerves Upset When Female Broker Assigns

GRIEVE OVER THEIR LOSSES

Quickly Become Tonguetied When Reporter Makes His Appearance, Fearing That Names Will Be Published—Woman With Whom They Entrusted Their Money Caught Short on Bull Market

Boston, Aug. 17.—When sixteen women speculators in stocks who traded with Mrs. A. E. MacKenzie, who conducted a brokerage office under the firm name of "A. E. MacKenzie & Co." in Rooms 10 and 11, 8 Exchange place, called at the office yesterday they found a notice posted on the door to the effect that Mrs. MacKenzie had assigned.

They stood around and talked excitedly until everybody within hearing distance got tired of the clatter. When a reporter got on the scene they were suffering from grim taciturnity. They grieved over possible losses, but it was nothing to the fear of having their names published and their hubbies finding it out.

Aaron J. Lyman, a lawyer, took the assignment for Mrs. MacKenzie and to him the women flocked with their troubles. Lyman took their names and notified them to meet Friday afternoon to decide what action would be taken.

According to Lyman Mrs. MacKenzie was caught short on the bull market. He says that her liabilities will not amount to over $4000 and her assets consist of the office furniture. Mrs. MacKenzie, it is said, sold her household furniture in her efforts to stave off the crash.

The brokerage firm of "A. E. MacKenzie & Co." has been located on the third floor of 8 Exchange place for about eight months. The directory bulletin in the elevator of the building states that I. W. Pollard accupied the rooms, although the name of A. E. MacKenzie & Co. appears on the door. It is said that Pollard, who was formerly a curb broker, acted in the capacity of bookkeeper for Mrs. MacKenzie.

Attorney Lyman said he didn't know who the "& Co." was. He gave it as his opinion that the woman had no partner.

Mrs. MacKenzie catered to women traders, although it is said that several men lost small amounts in the crash. The men, however, went on their way without a word of complaint when they visited the place and found the office closed and the notice posted.

What Did He Mean?

"Yes; I believe that every intelligent woman should have a vote."

"But, senator, I understand that you were opposed to women's suffrage?"

"I am."—Judge.

THE SCHUMACHER INQUEST

Head of Seminary Testifies as to High Character of Students

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Among those who were examined at the session of the inquest into the murder of Anna Schumacher Monday was Rev. Dr. Hartley of St. Bernard's seminary.

ANNA SCHUMACHER.

At the time of the murer, he said, there were but five students at the seminary and all these were of high character. The Filipino students at the seminary, who were among those remaining during vacation, he described as accomplished and educated gentlemen and members of distinguished families.

The inquest is not believed to have added much of value to the information possessed by the county authorities.

GREEK FLAG STILL WAVES

Protecting Powers Will Again Be Forced to Land Troops In Crete

Canea, Island of Crete, Aug. 17.—The provisional administrative committee, to which the administration of the island was entrusted when the Cretan cabinet resigned Sunday, yesterday took the oath of allegiance to the king and kingdom of Greece.

The action of the provisional administrative committee in Crete in swearing allegiance to Greece apparently indicates that it is not their intention to meet the demands of the protecting powers and haul down the Greek flag, and that, therefore, the powers will again be forced to land troops to insure the autonomy of the island.

FELINE'S JOURNEY THROUGH A SCREEN

It Results In a Cook Bringing Suit For $100,000

New York, Aug. 17.—Ernest W. Smellie, New York manager for a glove manufacturing firm, has been sued for $100,000 by Emily Jones, his cook, because, it is charged, he kicked the family cat through a window. Marjorie, his small daughter, had complained that the cat scratched her.

The cook says her eyes were filled with a shower of small particles of rusty iron wire as the cat sailed skyward, and she estimates the damage to her sight and her lessened chances of matrimony at $100,000.

Voting on Liquor Question

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 17.—Twenty-one counties of South Carolina, now wet, are voting today on the question of retaining the dispensary or having county prohibition. The drys have conducted a vigorous campaign. The wets apparently have made no open efforts to influence votes.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE DROUGHT IS BROKEN

Crops Much Benefited by Tuesday's All Day Rain

Farmers throughout New England are hugging themselves with joy over the heavy rain of Tuesday which came when it was badly needed to save the crops. The total rainfall of Tuesday up to 10 o'clock that night when the storm had reached its zenith was 1 7-8 inches.

The rain started in lightly during the early morning and by 10 o'clock it was raining quite hard. It was not until afternoon however, that the full force of the storm was felt in Quincy. It commenced to rain hard in the middle afternoon and from that time on, it attended strictly to business for the remainder of the day and evening.

The wind, which was east during a greater part of the day veered to the northeast in the evening and varied from 17 miles an hour in the morning to 36 miles in the afternoon. It then decreased slowly and at midnight was blowing 24 miles.

The street railways began hauling off its open cars early in the forenoon and by noon but few open cars were in use and they were on the Nantasket line. During the afternoon the water stood in puddles all over the streets that had been treated with the oil preparation but the crossings were free from water.

As far as known, no damage was done in Quincy by the downpour, but an inestimable amount of good.

It is reported by the weather observers that there is a hot wave travelling our way and while we may feel it in a few days, the severity of the heat will be tempered before it reaches Quincy.

Previous to Tuesday there have been only three rains of any account for ten weeks, the total rain fall during this period being less than four inches.

Tuesday was also the coldest August day with two exceptions, for 38 years. The maximum being 63 degrees.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE NEWS

First Midweek Game of Season Thursday at Rockland

The first midweek game of the Old Colony league season will be played Thursday, when the Taunton champions and present leaders of the league will meet the Rockland team at Hartsuff park, Rockland. This game is the one that was postponed from June 5, when the rain stepped in and stopped nearly every game in the East. As Rockland is now in second place she will have a chance to jump into a tie with the leader by winning the game Thursday.

Kenneth Nash, the star short stop of the Dewey team will not be with the team for the rest of the season, for the Oneonta club of the New York State league has signed him and he will join the team at once. For the past two years Nash has been the star of the Dewey aggregation and his loss will be sorely felt, especially since it comes at this time of the year when the team needs all its strength. Ken's wide circle of friends wish him all possible success for he is a gentleman at all times, both on the field and off. He is a clever and sure fielder and at the bat he has few superiors in the Old Colony league.

Next Saturday at the Ward Four playground the Bigelows and the Quincy Red Sox will meet in the second of their series of three games for the 18-19 year old championship of the city. Last Saturday the first game was played, the Bigelows coming out on the long end list of a 5 to 4 score, in a contest that was not decided until the ninth inning. Both teams are out strong for championship and every fine point of the game will be played to the limit. As the teams wanted to get a neutral field it was necessary to go to the Ward Four playgrounds, as Merrymount park is engaged for Saturday, and the game of last Saturday was played on the Ward Two playground. Saunders will be in the box again for the Bigelows, while Rice, the clever southpaw, will work for the Red Sox.

The controversy between the Quincy Independents and the Atlantic professionals over who has the right to use the name of Quincy, has caused quite a lot of talk about town among the followers of the game. It is claimed by the Quincy management that the Atlantic team used the name intentionally in order that they might arrange games, which they would not otherwise have got, thereby spoiling the chances of the Quincy team's getting games with those teams. This is denied by the Atlantic management, who say that there was no malice in the matter at all. They claim that they have the right to use the name of Quincy as well as any other team in the city, and more so since they are the recognized champions of the city. The only way to settle the matter now seems to be for the two teams to get together and play for the right to use the name. Both teams have signified their willingness to meet each other and so it seems as though there should be no difficulty in arranging a series. Get together now, boys, and arrange a series and play the thing off in a good, clean and sportsmanlike manner.

Tommy Gilroy, who pitched and won a game for the local Old Colony league team against Rockland early this year and later went to New Bedford of the New England league, has been canned by that team, for inability to fool the opposing batters of the league. Billy Hamilton has picked up Gilroy, but he will not play with the Lynn team until Hamilton has some agreement with the Nashville team of the Southern league where Gilroy was early in the season.

It is rumored that John Ganzel, brother of the famous Charlie Ganzel of this city, is to break into the big leagues again as a manager, this time with the Brooklyn team. Ganzel is now at the helm in Rochester and his team is leading the Eastern league. His success has attracted the attention of President Ebbetts and he may soon succeed Harry Lumley as manager of the Dodgers.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITION

Children's Sloyd, Sewing and Garden Work Shown.

The second exhibition of the Educational committee of the Quincy Women's club of the work of the past year in sewing, and sloyd work and in the raising of vegetables and flowers is being held this afternoon in the Council Chamber, City Hall. The exhibition last year was held in the club house but there were so many exhibitors this year that a larger room was necessary. The exhibition is one well worthy of a visit and shows what a large amount of good the club is doing in this line.

The children who engage in this work range from five to sixteen years and besides furnishing them with something, that will be of value in future years, it has the added benefit of keeping the children from the streets.

The garden and flower work has been in charge of Miss Belle Wainwright ,Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Miss Mary Griffin. The sewing in charge of Miss Eliza Sheehan with Miss Florence Faxon as teacher and the sloyd work has been under the direction of Charles Sampson.

Early this morning the children began to appear at City Hall with the product of their labor and a large corps of ladies were kept busy getting them ready for the exhibition.

The sloyd exhibit was located in the rear of the hall ,where the desks of the Councilmen are. There was an unusually large number of articles which the boys had made with their knives. These included knife boxes, towel rollers, clothes racks and several minature yachts.

On tables in the front part of the hall were the flowers and vegetables. Although the season has been a dry one the children have been very successful in their garden work for some very tempting vegetables are shown as well as some very pretty bunches of flowers.

Back of this along the walls is the work of the girls in sewing and is also a very interesting exhibit.

As a stimulant to do good work several prizes were offered. In the raising of flowers William Patterson offered a prize of $3 for the best bunch of six zinias raised from his seed and a lady offered a prize of $1 for the best bunch of wild flowers.

For the work in the sloyd and sewing departments honorary prizes were given. These consisted of red, blue and yellow ribbons for the first, second and third prizes.

The judges were as follows:

In sloyd work, Mrs. W. O. Wellington, Isaac Goddard and Lester H. Clee; in sewing, Mrs. Zenas Arnold, Mrs. George G. Saville and Miss Abbie Wood; in flowers and vegetables James Nicol, William Patterson and John Anderson.

Owing to the large number of exhibitors the judges had a hard time selecting the prize winners. The awards as made by the judges were as follows:

GETS A FIRST AND A THIRD

Crooner Makes Good Showing in Second Day's Racing

The Crooner got one first and one third position at Marblehead Tuesday in the second day's elimination trials of the sonder boats to select the teams that will race the German boats next week. There was a very high sea running and there was a nasty chop and for this reason a cruise in Salem bay was selected.

The boats behaved well in the rough weather which speaks well for their sea-worthiness but the crews were a sorry looking crowd when they returned.

But two races were sailed, the first by divisions and the second by six boats picked by the committee.

The first race started at 11 o'clock and thirteen boats participated in the three divisions.

The Crooner sailed by Charles Adams was in the first division. The fight for the first three miles with the boats hugging the shore as close as possible was between the Crooner and Spokane. At the windward mark the Crooner had a 59 second lead over the Spokane and she held her lead on the run home. The time of finish was:

Crooner	52 min.	45 sec.
Spokane	53 min.	27 sec.
Wag	56 min.	16 sec.
Bandit.	52 min.	22 sec.

After lunch the committee excused all but six of the yachts for the second race.

The Wolf crossed first, Demon, second, and Crooner, third. At this time the breeze was blowing a small hurricane and the rain was descending in torrents.

The Wolf made easier work of the seas than the others and thus kept her place at the head.

,The Manchester IV, which up to Tuesday had done nothing, made a good showing in this race and gave the fleet a surprise. She finished in second position, defeating the Crooner by 56 seconds. The time of finish was:

Wolf	51 min.	36 sec.
Manchester	52 min.	08 sec.
Crooner	52 min.	04 sec.
Demon	53 min.	16 sec.
Spokane	53 min.	36 sec.
Lady	53 min.	37 sec.

NEARLY DROWNED.

E. J. Powers Rescued at Houghs Neck in Exhausted Condition.

Prompt work on the part of William Slaunwhite at Houghs Neck Tuesday afternoon saved E. J. Powers from a watery grave.

Mr. Powers had gone out in a dory to a drifting yacht. After getting aboard the yacht he neglected to fasten the dory and it started to drift away.

Powers made an effort to catch the rope but lost his balance and fell overboard. Mr. Slaunwhite saw the accident from the shore and went to Powers' rescue. With considerable difficulty he pulled the nearly unconscious man into the boat and took him ashore. He was attended by Dr. John H. Ash and later removed to his home.

MAKARIA ANSWERS.

Manager Makes Statement in the Atlantic—Quincy Argument.

In justice to the Makaria team it is only right to correct the statement of Atlantic in last evening's Ledger.. Atlantic did not win the championship of Quincy last year from Makaria. Here is the story of the Makaria—Atlantic games, nine in all.

Makaria won the first game, Atlantic won the second making it one and one, then a series was arranged two out of three Makaria won two straight making it Makaria won 3 games, Atlantic won 1 game. Then as the interest was growing a series of five games was arranged. Makaria won the first two and Atlantic won the last three making it Makaria won 5, Atlantic won 4, Makaria did not play Quincy last season at all and they play their third game of the season next Saturday at Merrymount park, the series stands one and one between Makaria and Quincy.

Makaria also won the first game from Atlantic this season 4 to 1 and Atlantic won the second game 2 to 1 making it 1 and 1 between Makaria and Atlantic.

Those striking tailors in New York have not created much of a panic as this kind of weather does not turn ones thoughts to extra clothing.

Chicago's new school superintendent is not enrolled among the suffragists but is in line to exercise considerable power over a good many growing voters in that city.

Brockton is still very much on the map; another business venture was started there this week—a paper box factory and in the meanwhile preparations are well under way for the Brockton fair, the biggest show this side of Boston.

The more attractive stores a town has the better impression it makes upon the stranger, and the more trade is kept at home. Quincy merchants have kept in line even through the warm weather and have put forth some attractive show windows as well as well stocked stores.

President Taft has divided his mornings, afternoons and evenings so as to devote the least possible time to business and the larger part of his time to his family and recreation. The president has the tact to mix business and pleasure in such proportions that it means real rest. The buttonholers will have to wait.

DOOMED TO FAILURE

Swedish Strike Expected to Soon Be a Thing of the Past

Stockholm, Aug. 18.—What is considered the last card of the strikers, an attempt to get the railroad men to join their movement, failed when a majority of the railroaders voted against the strike. They passed a resolution, however, sympathizing with the strike in the other trades.

Though the general strike continues among the organized men, it seems doomed to death, owing to the complete lack of public sympathy and the apparent incapacity of its leaders to direct and control such a large movement.

All traffic by land and sea again is normal and business generally is reviving.

THERMOMETER UP TO 113

Southwest Experiences Another Day of Almost Unbearable Heat

Kansas City, Aug. 18.—Severe warm weather throughout the southwest gave way to a limited extent last night before cooling breezes. The day was the most trying Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma had experienced for years.

Government thermometers at McAlester, Okla., registered 113. In Kansas City and western Missouri the temperature was near the 100 mark all afternoon.

From Kansas points come reports that the heat is not damaging corn seriously. Recent heavy rains put it in such good shape that the crop is "made."

DECISION IN SUTTON CASE

Naval Board Says Young Lieutenant Was Not Murdered

AGAINST HIS MOTHER'S THEORY

Question as to Whether Death Was Due to Suicide or Accident Is Left Undecided—Conclusion That Sutton Held Revolver From Which Shot Was Fired Into His Head—No Charges Against Others

Washington, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Sutton's theory of murder advanced by her in explanation of the death of her son, Lieutenant James Sutton, has been repudiated by the decision of the naval court of inquiry.

No charges are made against Sutton's companions, and the court leaves undecided whether the young lieutenant of the marine corps killed himself or died by accident. The court says Sutton held the fatal revolver.

The court's decision varies little from the decision of the first board of inquest which investigated Sutton's death the day following the tragedy at Annapolis in October, 1907. Acting Secretary Winthrop expects to give the court's decision his official approval today.

The decision of the court, embodied after careful consideration of the many typewritten pages of testimony taken at the hearings, is on five pages, written by hand and transcribed after the findings of the original board of inquest, are inclosed to guide the secretary of the navy in following the court's recommendations.

Most important among the court's findings is naturally the fact that Sutton held the revolver which fired the fatal shot into his own head. This was the contention of the officers who were with him, and the report made by the first board.

Against it stood out the bold assertion of Mrs. Sutton's attorney, Henry E. Davis, that the wound could not have been self-inflicted, and the claim that Sutton was shot in the back of the head while fleeing from his brother officers after they had beset him and beaten him.

Whatever weight was attached to this claim by persons who heard the testimony, it did not impress the members of the court, and is given little consideration in their summing up.

Why Sutton pulled the trigger while he lay face downward on the ground is taken up, but the evidence on this point is insignficant in determining what passed in the officer's mind when he fired the shot. How far the court's finding on this point will console Mrs. Sutton in her contention that her son did not commit suicide is not known.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop has decided to give the exact wording of the court on this point. He said it was possible that he might change his mind, but said it is likely that exact copies of the decision on all points would be given verbatim to the press.

Rebel Chief Flees to Mountains When His Forces Are Defeated

Tangier, Aug. 18.—Reports received here from the interior confirm the statement that the forces of Roghi, the rebellious chief, have been defeated by the imperial troops, but the capture of Roghi himself has not been confirmed.

Roghi's influence had been weakened by the report that he had sold the Riff region to Spaniards, who desired to exploit the mines there. After the defeat of his men Roghi fled to the mountains.

Fifty heads have been sent to Fez for public exposure.

Loyal Sister Has an Interview With Justice Mills

Big Island, Me., Aug. 18.—A visit by Harry K. Thaw's sister to Justice Mills at the Megantic fish and game preserve, just across the border from here in Quebec, was without the result for which she had hoped when she decided to make the trip, for the judge declined to grant her request that her brother be allowed to remain at White Plains beyond the day when Mills had decreed that he should be taken back to the Matteawan asylum.

The former Countess of Yarmouth walked nearly ten miles through the woods in her anxiety to reach Mills at the earliest possible moment. She had an interview with the justice, but he told her that it would be impossible for him to grant her petition.

NEW ENGLAND DAY.

All arrangements for the elaborate celebration of New England Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition on September 11th are now completed by the New England club of Seattle. A grand ball given at the Washington building last week was the first of a series of social functions which will be in order from week to week, until the grand ball of New England day's evenings brings to a close the festivities.

In the program prepared for September 11th, a series of beautiful spectacular events are scheduled. A reproduction of the pilgrim ship, Mayflower, is in process of construction and this will sail to the landing at the foot of the Pay Streak at 11 o'clock on the morning of New England Day. It will bear a company of New England people, garbed in the picturesque costumes of the pilgrims in number equal to those originally landing at Plymouth Rock, one hundred and two. Many of those selected for parts in the pagentry are of historic ancestry. On landing, the company will be met by a band of Indians, and under the correct stage settings, the pipe of peace will be smoked, and the compact of friendship sealed.

From the landing the cavalcade will take its way to the grounds of the Puritan Inn, and here will be served a dinner, of the exact kind that has made the name of New England cookery known the world over. Puritan customs will predominate, and John Alden, Priscilla and the good old characters will all be in evidence.

Following the dinner a series of historical tableaux will be given in the auditorium, and these will portray a number of the rooms fitted and furnished in the Haller Building and everything possible is being done to provide for the comfort and convenience of visitors. A complete list of all New Englanders is on file, and names and addresses can be had at a moment's notice. Information of all sorts will be gladly supplied, and travellers from the home states will be made to feel that they are separated from home only by a few days' railway travel.

An unprecedented congestion in the General Delivery Department of the Seattle Postoffice makes the New England club always open, a most convenient place for the New Englanders to receive their mail.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two.

"Have you a match?"

"I used my last before I got hold of this."

"Oh!" she commented, discouraged. "Have you any notion what he looks like?"

Kirkwood thought briefly. "Raffles," he replied with a chuckle. "He looks like an amateurish and very callow Raffles. He's in dress clothes, you know."

"I wonder!" There was a nuance of profound bewilderment in her exclamation, then: "He knocked against something in the hall—a chair, I presume. At all events, I heard that and put out the light. I was in the room above the drawing room, you see. I stole down to this floor—was there, in the corner by the stairs when he passed within six inches and never guessed it. Then, when he got on the next floor, I started on, but you came in. I slipped into the drawing room and crouched behind a chair. You went on, but I dared not move until—And then I heard some one cry out, and you fell down the stairs together. I hope you were not hurt."

"Nothing worth mention. But he must have got a pretty stiff knock to lay him out so completely." Kirkwood stirred the body with his toe, but the man made no sign. "Dead to the world. And now, Miss Calendar?"

If she answered he did not hear, for on the heels of his query banged the knocker down below, and thereafter crash followed crash, brewing a deep and sullen thundering to rouse the echoes and send them rolling, like volces of enraged ghosts, through the lonely rooms.

CHAPTER V.

"WHAT'S that?" At the first alarm the girl had caught convulsively at Kirkwood's arm. Now, when a pause came in the growling of the knocker she made him hear her voice, and it was broken and vibrant with a threat of hysteria. "Oh, what can it mean?"

"I don't know." He laid a hand reassuringly over that which trembled on his forearm. "The police possibly."

"Police!" she iterated, aghast. "What makes you think"—

"A man tried to stop me at the door," he answered quickly. "I got in before he could. When he tried the knocker a bobby came along and stopped him. The latter may have been watching the house since then. It'd be only his duty to keep an eye on it, and heaven knows we raised a racket, coming head first down those stairs! Now we are up against it," he added brightly.

But the girl was tugging at his hand. "Come!" she begged breathlessly. "Come! There is a way! Before they break in"—

"But this man?" Kirkwood hung back, troubled.

"They—the police—are sure to find and care for him."

"So they will," he chuckled. "And serve him right! He'd have choked me to death, with all the good will in the world!"

"Oh, do hurry!"

Turning, she sped light footed down the staircase to the lower hall, he at her elbow. Here the uproar was loudest, deep enough to drown whatever sounds might have been made by two pairs of flying feet. For all that, they fled on tiptoe, stealthily, guilty shadows in the night, and at the newel post swung back into the unbroken blackness which shrouded the fastnesses backward of the dwelling. A sudden access of fury on the part of the alarmist at the knocker spurred them on with quaking hearts. In half a dozen strides Kirkwood, guided only by instinct and the frou-frou of the girl's skirts as she ran invisible before him, stumbled on the uppermost steps of a steep staircase. Only a hand rail saved him, and that at the last moment. He stopped short, shocked into caution. From below came a contrite whisper: "I'm so sorry! I should have warned you."

He pulled himself together, glaring wildly at nothing. "It's all right."

"You're not hurt, truly? Oh, do come quickly!"

She waited for him at the bottom of the flight—happily for him, for he was all at sea.

"Here—your hand—let me guide you. This darkness is dreadful."

He found her hand somehow and tucked his into it confidingly and not without an uncertain thrill of satisfaction.

"Come!" she panted. "Come! If they break in"—

Stifled by apprehension, her voice failed her.

They went forward, now less impetuously, for it was very black and the knocker had fallen still.

"No fear of that," he remarked after a time. "They wouldn't dare break in."

A fluttering whisper answered him: "I don't know. We dare risk nothing."

They seemed to explore, to penetrate, acres of labyrinthine chambers and passages, delving deep into the bowels of the earth, like rabbits burrowing in a warren, hounded by beagles.

Above stairs the hush continued unbroken, as if the dumb genius of the place had cast a spell of silence on the knocker or else, outraged, had smitten the noisy disturber with a palsy.

The girl seemed to know her way, Whether guided by familiarity or by intuition, she led on without hesitation, Kirkwood blundering in her wake between confusion of impression and dawning dismay, conscious of but one tangible thing, to which he clung as to his hope of salvation—those firm, friendly fingers that clasped his own.

It was as if they wandered on for an hour. Probably from start to finish their flight took up three minutes—no more. Eventually the girl stopped, releasing his hand. He could hear her syncopated breathing before him and gathered that something was wrong. He took a step forward.

"What is it?"

Her full voice broke out of the obscurity startlingly close in his very ear.

"The door—the bolts—I can't budge them."

"Let me."

He pressed forward, brushing her shoulder. She did not draw away, but willingly yielded place to his hands at the fastenings, and what had proved impossible to her to his strong fingers was a matter of comparative ease. Yet, not entirely consciously, he was not quick. As he tugged at the bolts he was poignantly sensitive to the subtle warmth of her at his side. He could hear her soft, dry sobs of excitement and suspense punctuating the quiet and was frightened absolutely by an impulse, too strong for ridicule, to take her in his arms and comfort her with the assurance that, whatever her trouble, he would stand by her and protect her. It were futile to try to laugh it off. He gave over the endeavor. Even at this critical moment he found himself repeating over and over to his heart the question: "Can this be love? Can this be love?"

Could it be love at an hour's acquaintance? Absurd! But he could not laugh nor render himself insensible to the suggestion.

He found that he had drawn the bolts. The girl tugged and rattled at the knob. Reluctantly the door opened inward. Beyond its threshold stretched ten feet or more of covered passageway whose entrance framed an oblong glimmering with light. A draft of fresh air smote their faces. Behind them a door banged.

"Where does this open?"

"On the mews," she informed him.

"The mews!" He stared in consternation at the pallid oval that stood for her face. "The mews! But you, in your evening gown, and I"—

"There's no other way. We must chance it. Are you afraid?"

"Afraid?" He stepped aside. She slipped by him and on. He closed the door, carefully removing the key and locking it on the outside, then joined the girl at the entrance to the mews, where they paused perforce, she as much diconcerted as he, his primary objection momentarily waxing in force as they surveyed the conditions circumscribing their escape.

Quadrant mews was busily engaged in enjoying itself. Night had fallen sultry and humid, and the walls and doorsteps were well fringed and clustered with representatives of that class of London's population which infests mews through habit, taste or force of circumstance.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o. classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

FIGHT FOR PURE FOOD.

Friends of chemical preservatives are gathering their forces for a last and determined stand at Denver where on August 24th the annual convention of the Association of State and National Dairy and Food Departments opens. Since the National Food Commission then consisting of Secretaries Cortelyou, Strauss and Wilson, on the strength of the report of the Remsen board, reversed Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture and the board of food and drug inspection, and permitted manufacturers to use unlimited quantities of benzoate of soda, provided they stated it on their labels, the Amrican Medical Association and the American Institute of Homeopathy have petitioned the President, by resolutions adopted in their national conventions and presented through committees, to use his influence to have the use of benzoate of soda prohibited by law. Their action has been supported by that of many minor associations of local and state character, and representatives will be present at the coming convention to urge similar action on its part. The antichemical preservative forces will be led by Dr. Wiley who, it is believed will be supported by the committee of eleven appointed by President J. Q. Emery, of Wisconsin, especially to consider the conflicting reports of Dr. Wiley and the Remsen Board. The members of this committee have been conducting experiments of their own during the summer and it is understood they will report favorable to Dr. Wiley's contentions. The committee consists of Drs. M. A. Scovell, Kentucky; W. M. Allen, North Carolina; E. H. S. Bailey, Kansas; H. E. Barnard, Indiana; Richard Fisher, Wisconsin; Julius Hortvet, Minnesota; M. E. Jaffa, California; E. E. Ladd, North Dakota; Floyd W. Robinson, Michigan; James H. Shepard, South Dakota; and Dr. Charles D. Woods, Maine.

It is understood that all the members of the Remsen Board who signed the report on benzoate of soda will be at Denver to defend their report. They are Prof. Ira Remsen, Prof. Russell H. Chittenden, Dr. John H. Long and Prof. Christian A. Herter. Dr. Alonzo A. Taylor is a member of the board but had no part in the benzoate of soda experiments. This board has for some time past been engaged in studying the sulphuring of fruits. Its members receive $25 per day and expenses while employed.

The Association of the State and National Dairy and Food Departments has heretofore strongly condemned the use of benzoate of soda, alum, borax and other chemical preservatives and is expected to again go on record against them. The friends of the chemicals, however, hope to prevent the passage of any resolutions favorable to Dr. Willey or condemning the preservatives mentioned. Should they fail it is expected the Association will join with the American Medical Association, the American Institute of Homeopathy and the other medical and health bodies in asking Congress to amend the pure food law so as to specifically prohibit such preservatives by name.

Act Quickly

and you'll save yourself a lot of suffering and trouble. If you have a sudden chill—or taken cold—if you have colic, cramp or diarrhoea, don't wait a minute. Take at once a teaspoonful of Perry Davis' Painkiller in half a glass of hot water or milk. You'll be safe and on the right road to quick recovery. Then you'll escape serious illness. But you ought to have this tried and proven remedy on hand for immediate use. Being prepared is half the battle when there's pain to subdue. New size bottles 35c., also in 50 cent sizes.

The exhibition will be open this evening and it is hoped parents will attend.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Good Attendance at the Quincy Yacht Club in Spite of Storm.

The annual ladies' night of the Quincy Yacht club was held Tuesday evening at the club house and although the storm was so severe that it kept many from attending there was fully one hundred who braved the elements. The entertainment provided by the committee was a pleasing one and included a concert by Monk's orchestra and was said by all to have been one of the best ever given at the club house. After the concert there was general dancing for an hour. Had the evening been pleasant the club house would have been taxed to accommodate the party that would have attended.

TAX RATES.

The tax rate of Wayland for 1909 is $17.30 an increase of $1.10 over last year and the largest in the history of the town. The rate is a surprise as the town had reason to believe the rate would be lower on account of the reduction in the state tax.

The tax rate of Lynnfield this year is $16 per $1,000 an increase of $1 over the year 1908. The total valuation is $780,267 an increase of $30,000 from last year. With the increase valuation the taxpayers are at loss to account for the increase in rate.

TODAY'S COURT.

Business was light at the district court this morning, but one drunk having fallen into the hands of the police in the entire East Norfolk district. The unfortunate came from Milton and answered to the name of Joseph A. Johnson and he was called upon to contribute $15.

ARE YOU DEAF AND DUMB?

Opportunity For Those Who Are Thus Afflicted to Get a Good Job

Washington, Aug. 18.—Believing that deaf mutes would make good operators for the puncturing and tabulating machines to be used in making up the returns of the next census, Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor is inclined to appoint them to such positions if capable ones apply for the places.

This work requires great care in its performance, for the reason that there is no way to obtain a check on the result, and Nagel can see no reason why the deaf and dumb should not be especially efficient.

Workmen For Woman Suffrage

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 18.—Woman suffrage was endorsed by the New Jersey Federation of Labor at its convention here. In addition to the resolutions adopted it is planned to send a memorial to congress, signed by 100,000 workmen, favoring the enfranchisement of women.

Booth's Eyes Trouble Him

London, Aug. 18.—General Booth of the Salvation Army, who started on July 24 for a religious crusade in the provinces, has been compelled to return to London on account of an eye trouble. His general health, however, is excellent.

Another Victory For Harvester

Buffalo, Aug. 18.—Ed Geers' unbeaten stallion, the Harvester, won the Queen City stakes of $2000 for 2:09 trotters. It was an easy victory in four straight heats.

NEVER A SIGN OF HESITATION

Advance of Red Army Cleanly Executed and Strategic

POSTED ON BLUES' POSITION

Less Than a Dozen Miles Separate Headquarters of Defenders and Invaders, the Latter Holding Strongest Position—Rain Gives Soldiers Severe Taste of Army Life—Invaders Communicate by Wireless

Boston, Aug. 18.—At the conclusion of Tuesday's maneuvers in the war game in which the army of the Red, under General Bliss, is striving to capture Boston, which is defended by the army of the Blue, under General Pew, the army of the Red had made a material advance, and unless Pew can concentrate his troops today to meet the attack which Bliss has massed heavily on the Blue's left, Pew faces defeat.

The two headquarters are within less than a dozen miles of each other. Pew's quarters are still within six miles of Bridgewater, while Bliss has made a material advance from a point eight miles southeast of Middleboro, where his headquarters were Monday night, to East Middleboro, which is some eight miles northeast of Middleboro.

From the general direction of the movements of Bliss and his Red army and the strength of his command, the plan which he intends to follow to capture Boston is apparently revealed for the first time. This is to annihilate Pew's extreme left and to pass that end with a comparatively clear road to Boston.

But for the fact that the hour of 1 o'clock, when both armies cease operations for the day, arrived a trifle too soon, the plan would have been eminently successful Tuesday. As it is, unless Pew can support his second brigade of infantry, comprising the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth regiments and Battery B, which is the Blue's left wing, by all his cavalry and artillery, which are in the center some six miles away from the scene, and thereby hold the roads this morning until his first brigade can be rushed from the right, he faces defeat and Boston is left open to the invaders.

Over at the extreme left of the Blue line the three regiments named are facing practically the entire Red army. Bliss' movement Tuesday was on a settled plan, with which every organization was apparently familiar. In addition it was cleanly executed and strategic, and gave evidence that the Red scouts had fully posted Bliss on the position of the Blues. In the Red's advance there never was a sign of hesitation when the Blue's outposts were encountered, and then either captured or driven in in short order.

Tuesday's battle took place under conditions strongly resembling those of the Peninsula campaign in the Civil war. The country roads, inches deep in the dust of a long summer drouth, were changed into rivers of mud before the most severe northeast rain storm of the summer.

The suspension of hostilities brought no relief. All day the rain poured down in torrents. The shelter tents of both armies were quickly soaked through. The ditches dug around them filled with water and overflowed into the tents. Waterproof clothing became watersoaked, and there was a general stampede for the nearest barn or other shelter.

Outside the precarious condition of the left wing of the defending army the feature of the day was the repulse of the enemy in its rear attack on Boston.

Two companies of the Red army, numbering about 200 men, were landed by the transport Sumner at Swampscott and after a bloody encounter were driven off by the Secondary station, an outpost of the Blue army, commanded by Colonel Patterson with infantry from New York.

Th balloon Greylock, in which officers of the Blue army were to have made an ascension at Brockton to make an observation of the enemy's lines, was kidnapped by the heavy northeaster, which tore the bag from its moorings and sent it soaring rapidly to the westward, where it disappeared.

Wireless telegraphy figured in Tuesday's movements. The signal corps of the National Guard of Washington brought their wireless telegraph outfit to the front of Bliss' Red line and kept headquarters well posted on the proceedings at the front.

Beverly Folks Worry About Taft

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 18.—The citizens of Beverly have been expecting hourly to hear of the capture of the president and the summer capitol by the Red army of invasion. Three transports belonging to the Reds, the Sumner, the Meade and the McClellan, together with the tugs General Schofield and General Ord, are riding at anchor inside Baker's island in plain sight of the president's summer home.

It was reported that an attempt had been made to take the president a prisoner of war in the morning, but he escaped to the golf links.

SHENGOLD—METERPAREL.

Electa hall was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday when Miss Anna Meterparel became the bride of Isreal Shengold. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rachael Meterparel and resides in Quincy. Rev. Julius Sanderlovich of the Congregation of Achium performed the ceremony, which was attended by many friends of the bride and groom. Miss Ida Osenthicker was the maid of honor and Miss Gertrude Shriber was the bridesmaid. The best man was Harris Abram Silverstam. Benjamin Osenthicker and Bernard Shengold were the ushers. The bride wore a beautiful creation of white lace, and wore a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

A banquet was served after the ceremony, and then dancing was in order for the rest of the evening. After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Shengold will reside at 333 Water street.

VAN BUSKIRK—HARRIS.

A very pretty midsummer wedding took place at Wollaston, Tuesday evening, when Miss Maud Ann Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Perry, became the bride of Mr. Henry Fuller Van Buskirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Van Buskirk of 33 Webster street, Allston. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, 63 Grand View avenue, the house being very artistically and effectively decorated with countless asters.

At eight o'clock the bridal party entered, the best man, Ernest Westman of Walpole and the bridesmaid, Miss Alice Grafton Thompson of Wollaston, preceding, with William E. Weston of Wollaston playing the wedding march. Rev. Edward A. Robinson of the Congregational church of Hingham performed the ceremony. Mr. Frank J. Clough of Wollaston was usher.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a white messaline over white taffeta trimmed with point applique lace and carried a shower bouquet of brides' roses, and the bridesmaid wore a blue batiste gown and carried a bunch of sweet peas.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held after which amid a shower of confetti and good wishes the bride and groom left for a short wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Van-Buskirk will be at home to their friends after October first at 43 Lincoln avenue, Wollaston.

AULBACH—EAGAN.

A very pretty wedding took place this morning at the Sacred Heart church, Atlantic, when Miss Leonora C. Eagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick T. Eagan of 38 Charles street became the bride of Mr. Charles Aulbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Aulbach of 18 Walker street. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass, Rev. John P. Cuffe officiating.

Miss Frances Eagan, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, while the best man was Mr. Stephen Aulbach, a brother of the groom and a student in the Redemptorist order. Miss Louise Costello presided at the organ.

HENDRY—McLEOD.

A quiet home wedding took place Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hendry, 30 Farnum street, Quincy Point, when their brother, Robert Fleming Lang Hendry was united in marriage to Miss Helen Baxter McLeod. Rev. A. R. Atwood of the Washington Street Congregational church officiated, the ring service being used. The bride has but recently come to this country her former home being Scotland, but since coming has won many friends here. The groom, a draughtsman at the Fore River, is well and very favorably known, and his many friends wish him and his bride much joy and happiness. After a wedding trip spent on the Cape they are to reside in this city .

COOPER—SILVER.

The wedding of Martin Cooper and Miss Alice Silver, daughter of Joseph Silver of Main street, took place Tuesday evening in Hibernian hall, Franklin street. A large number of relatives and friends of the couple, witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Julius Sanderlovich of the Congregation of Achium. Miss Annie Cohen was the maid of honor and she was dressed in a gown of pink mousseline, while she carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The groom was attended by Maurice Cohen, Miss Annie Feinstan and Miss Celia Cohen acted as bridesmaids, while David Silver, Abram Yokes, David Cohen and Julius Silver were the ushers.

The bride was attired in a beautiful dress of white lace with silk trimmings, and wore a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and a shower bouquet of sweet peas.

After the ceremony a banquet was served in the banquet hall, followed by dancing and an entertainment. The couple left on a short wedding trip and on their return will reside on River street.

FAILS TO NAME MAN HIGHER UP

Persch Arraigned In Court on Charge of Grand Larceny

REFUSAL TO REDUCE BAIL

Young Broker Enters No Plea and Goes Back to Tombs In Default of $50,000—No Evidence That He Had Been Victimized by "Wiser and Bigger Men"—Jerome Exonerates Windsor Trust Company

New York, Aug. 18.—Donald L. Persch, the young note broker who has been indicted for grand larceny by the sale of mining stock belonging to F. A. Heinze, went back to the Tombs, accused by District Attorney Jerome of being the manipulator of a "simple, vulgar steal."

Although urged to reveal the "man higher up" and the intricate ramifications in high finance, as Persch had intimated he would do, he failed utterly to say anything to convince Jerome that there was any conspiracy.

Persch was arraigned before Judge Mulqueen in the court of general sessions, charged with the larceny of $100,000 worth of stock, which he is alleged to have procured from the Windsor Trust company.

It was placed in good faith by M. M. Joyce, acting for Heinze, as collateral for a $50,000 loan. The young man's attorney insisted that Persch had been victimized by wiser and bigger men, but his client refused to make any statement which would bear this out. The court refused to reduce bail from $50,000 and the prisoner entered no plea, the case going over to Monday.

Mr. Jerome told the court that from what he had ascertained the Windsor Trust company was in no way responsible. The release of the securities to Persch, he said, was due entirely to the act of an employe, Stirling Birmingham, head of the loan department of the trust company, who has been discharged in this connection.

Leonard J. Fields, head of the curb brokerage firm where Persch made his headquarters, and through whom he obtained the $50,000 to obtain the Heinze securities, appeared at the district attorney's office under subpoena. He produced some of his personal books and the firm's accounts as ordered. Other indictments may be returned before the investigation is closed.

CONSUMPTION EXHIBITS.

Three Millions Attend Anxious to Learn About Tuberculosis.

Evidence of popular interest in the anti-consumption crusade is given in a statement made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, to the effect that during the year ending August 31, nearly 3,000,000 people have attended tuberculosis exhibitions in various parts of the country.

Besides the three traveling tuberculosis exhibitions of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis ,there are twenty-eight exhibits of this kind in various parts of the country. Four years ago there were only three such displays in the entire country.

Over 300,000 people have attended the three traveling exhibits of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which have visited ten different states and territories during the year just closed. The three exhibits are now stored for the summer months.

The Southern Exhibit has been shown in Tennessee, Alabama, Florida and Georgia in ten different cities and has been viewed by about 100,000 people. Thousands of others have been reached by the literature and posters distributed, so that the number of people who have been educated directly or indirectly about tuberculosis by this exhibit is considerably over 300,000.

The Western Exhibit of the National Association has worked during the past year mainly in Kansas, Nebraska and Northern Missouri . In all, fifteen cities have been reached and over 110,000 persons have visited the exhibit.

In Porto Rico, the Spanish Exhibit of the National Association, the first of its kind, has met with decided success. Twenty-two cities, including about one-third of all the towns in the Island, were visited and over 100,000 people viewed the exhibit. The poor transit facilities in the Island made it necessary to haul the exhibit from place to place on ox-carts, like a traveling country circus.

As a direct result of these exhibition campaigns, laws relating to the anti-tuberculosis campaign have been passed in Tennessee, Florida, Nebraska, Kansas and Porto Rico. In the latter territory, a comprehensive governmental campaign against tuberculosis has been started. Owing to the fact that over eighty per cent. of the natives of Porto Rico are illiterate, the problems there are very difficult. Another result of the work has been that nearly a million people have received instruction about the dangers of tuberculosis, and the ways to prevent it.

☞The ladies of the Swedish Lutheran church are making preparations for their annual fair to be held in Electa hall the last of September.

QUINCY TEAMS NOT INCLUDED

Why the Fore Rivers and McGregors are not in League

Soccer football fans of this city are all worked up over the refusal of the Boston and District football league to admit the Fore River and McGregor football teams as members of the league. The refusal has upset the calculations of the fans in this city and a deadlock is emminent. This action of the league officials will mean that the two local teams will be debarred from taking part in the league football this season, and the followers of both clubs are up in arms over the turn of affairs. They claim that the two local teams have been intentionally boycotted by the league ,but this is denied by the league officials. The latter maintain that for the perfect working of the league and the schedule for the season, a league of more than six teams would be an impossibility. President Thomas Barker of the B. and D. league said in regard to the matter:

"If we could have seen any way out of the difficulty we would certainly have admitted both the Fore Rivers and the McGregors. The only new team under our jurisdiction is from Somerville, which is purely a Boston eleven, for while on the face of it the McPhersons of Lawrence would seem to be a new organization, the team is an old Boston team, being the old Andover F. C. under a new name, while Lynn City were members of the Williamson cup competition last season.

"These teams had prior claim to admission, and seeing that six teams was the limit, we had no other alternative but to reject the entries of the two Quincy teams. Taking into consideration the chances of bad weather, 10 games is all that we could possibly get through with before the fall season is at an end.

"Having an extended schedule and playing league games during the spring of 1910, is out of the question, for that would interfere with the schedule of the Williamson cup competition, and under these circumstances the committee had no other course open to them but to refuse the two teams from the Quincy district in order to save the league from a deadlock."

FORESTRY CONFERENCE.

Conference of Forest Schools to be Held in December.

The heads of all universities, colleges, and schools in which technical forestry is taught have been invited by Gifford Pinchot, United States Forester, to attend or send a representative to the Conference on Education in Forestry which will be held in Washington in December. In his letter of invitation, the Forester says:

"I believe that a conference of representatives of all forest schools and universities and colleges in which forestry is taught might be made of great value to the general progress of forestry in the United States, as well as to the institutions which teach forestry ,and to the Forest Service, which employs so many of their graduates, and which is vitally interested in the best training of foresters. Such a conference might well consider the objects and methods of forest instruction, the organization and standards of educational work in the field of forestry, the coordination of the work of different institutions, and the needs of the Forest Service and other employers of forest graduates.

"I hope you will find it possible to be present or to send a delegate to a conference of this kind, which, with the concurrence of the institutions concerned, will be held in Washington, December 30 and 31, 1909."

From all over the country the plan has met with enthusiastic support, letters of acceptance having been received from nearly every institution to which the invitation has been sent.

TAX RATES.

Manchester's tax rate this year is $9.40 per $1000, the same as last year. The increase in valuation was $618,662, making the total valuation $13,436,643.

CROONER IS ONE OF SIX

All but Six Sonder Boats Eliminated for Today's Race

As a result of Wednesday's elimination races at Marblehead to select the yachts that will meet the German sonder boats for the President Taft and Gov. Draper cups, the fleet has now been cut to six boats, one of which is the Crooner.

The breeze was light Wednesday but there was a long swell. Only two races were planned but the flat wind made the second race impossible.

The race was over a triangular course of six miles and was won by the Ellen, the light breeze boat which won the Quincy cup earlier this month in the races in Quincy bay.

The Crooner was sent away in the second division with such heavy breeze boats as the Wolf, Joyette and Manchester. The race in this division was won by the Skeezix, who had a lead of 3 minutes and 20 seconds over the Manchester which finished in third position.

After the race the elimination committee blasted the hopes of ten of the contestants, reducing the number to six. These are: Wolf, Ellen, Joyette, Manchester III, Skeezix and Crooner, all of which have a first to their credit.

Today's races will probably settle which three boats will have the honor of meeting the Germans.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

For Expert Accountant Under the State Bureau of Statistics.

A competitive examination of applicants for the position of special agent qualified as expert municipal accountant, in the service of the State Bureau of Statistics, will be held September 8 and 9, and also to fill similar vacancies as they may occur. There is one vacancy in this position to be filled; the salary has not yet been fixed. The examination will embrace the following subjects: training and experience, handwriting, spelling, letter-writing, arithmetic, including percentage, proportion, interest and discount, and expert double-entry bookkeeping. Special consideration will be given to the subject of experience.

Applicants must have resided in the Commonwealth one year next previous to filing applications. Men desiring to take this examination may secure application blanks by applying in person or by letter at the office of the Civil Service Commission, Room 152, State House, Boston, Mass. Applications may be filed at any time but in order to entitle a man to appear at this examination, the application blank must be filled out and placed on file in the office of this commission on or before September 4, 1909. By order of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission, Warren P. Dudley, Secretary.

POLE ACROSS TRACK.

Last Car To Houghs Neck Barely Escapes Smash-up.

The 11.50 electric from Quincy square to Houghs Neck came near being smashed up Wednesday night near the Adams farm, by a pole which had fallen across the track. The pole was rotten and fallen across the track directly in the path of the car.

Motorman James McLaughlin did not see the obstruction until he got right on top of it, as it is extremely dark at this point. He applied his brakes quickly, however, as soon as he saw the pole, and although the car struck the obstruction, there was no damage done.

TODAY'S COURT.

Maria Caracutti was arraigned for larceny at Quincy. She was sentenced to six months in the house of correction. Appealed.

Thomas F. Smith was arraigned for assault at Weymouth. He was put under $500 bonds to keep the peace for three months.

Fred C. Nutting was arraigned for a serious offence at Quincy. Case continued until Friday.

VEGETABLES AND FLOWERS

Prizes for These Exhibits Awarded Wednesday

There was quite a large attendance Wednesday evening at the exhibition of the children in sewing, sloyd and gardening and the Educational committee of the Quincy Women's club are to be more than congratulated on the good work that they have carried through. As an educational value to the children it is hard to estimate. It teaches them in a practical way things that will be of great value to them in after years.

The prizes for all but the vegetables and flowers were published in Wednesday's Ledger. Those for these two exhibits were awarded Wednesday evening as follows.

FLOWER AWARDS.

Zinnias, special prize of $3 given by William Patterson, was awarded to Margaret Griffin. Other prizes in this exhibit were to Gertrude McGrath, second, Isabel Donahue ,third, John Griffin, fourth and Maurice Cahill, fifth.

Wild flowers, special prizes of $1, 50 cents, and 25 cents, were awarded to Emily Comolli, for fifty-seven varieties; Rita Ciardelli, 56 varieties second; Signa Bridesen, 46 varieties, third; Lila Thayer, 43 varieties fourth; Ida Comolli, 43 varieties, fourth.

Special mention should be made of the exhibit of Miss Mary Griffin and her niece Miss Margaret Griffin for their collection of wild flowers. Each of the 57 varieties was shown in a separate bottle and each bore its correct name.

Collections of Wild Flowers—Hilda Sandblom first; Ethel Beal, second; Lillie Ekstrand ,third.

Candy Tuft—Maria Pompio, first; Ethel Beal, second.

Bachelor's Buttons—Mervyn Frye, first; Signa Bridesen, second; Ethel Jameson, Louise Richardson, third.

Zinnias—Lillie Ekstrand, first Hilda Sandblom, second; Hester Harkins, Ethel Beal, third.

Marigolds—Mervyn Frye, first; Maria Pompio, second; Ethel Beal, Signa Bredesen ,third.

Nasturtium—Hilda Sandblom, first; Mabel Jilbert, second; Louise Richardson ,third.

Collection of Vegetables—John Griffin, first; Stephen Page, second; Edgar Pinel ,third.

Beets—Odile LaBrecque, first; Stephen Page, second; Daniel Brandage, third.

Lettuce—Stephen Page, first; Marion Nelson, second.

Cabbage—Helen Peterson, first; Edgar Pinel, second.

The committee of the club having the exhibit in charge wish to thank the City Council for the use of the Council Chamber for the exhibit.

TOUCHED FOR SEVENTEEN

South Quincy Business Man The Victim of Gypsy Women

A tribe of wandering gypsies came to Quincy early this week and for the past two days have been visiting business houses seeking opportunities to tell fortunes. The women of the tribe who visit the business offices are very light fingered and the quickness of their hands often deceives the eye, so that when subject comes to he finds himself minus some of his good money. From what can be learned the tribe came to Quincy from Brockton where they were driven out of the city after touching several persons for various sums.

Wednesday afternoon the women of the tribe visited South Quincy and called upon a number of the business offices. Just how many victims they found is not known but it is known that one business man was touched to the tune of seventeen dollars. He says that the women entered his office to tell his fortune and before he knew what had happened they had gone with his cash.

When he realized what had happened he notified the police and Officer Murray went on the war path. Before night he had gathered in two of the women who answered to the names of Maria Caracutti and Lena Voltr.

When their cases were called in court this morning the court room was filled with members of the tribe and others who came to see what disposition would be made of the cases. Whether any of the spectators were numbered among the victims did not appear, for if they were they kept it to themselves.

After hearing the evidence in the case the court sentenced Maria to six months in the house of correction and Lena he discharged. Maria appealed her case and was ordered to furnish bonds in the sum of $300. After court the men of the tribe tried to settle the case. The victim got his seventeen back but the tribe were unable to make any settlement of the case with the court.

Voting by mail, as suggested by some one with more time to spare than brains, would make a bigger army of non-voters than the present stay-at-home variety.

About now would be a good time to take the census of Beverly. It is doubtful if any other small city can show a larger increase in a month's time.

Twelve hundred drownings in one month in this country leads one to think that soon there will be no need of learning to swim as there won't be any left to learn.

A writer in McClure's magazine says there is no natural emnity between cats and mice, just cat instinct to chase any small object that runs away. Wonder why a cat watches a hole for hours; is it because it runs away?

SALEM'S CHALLENGE.

When the scout cruiser Salem came up the harbor from her recent water and standardization tests brooms of the ordinary household variety were attached to her mast heads symbolizing the fact that the ship is willing to sweep the seas with anything in her class. Furthermore painted on a large sheet of canvas which was stretched between her funnels were the figures 26.52 in large black letters. These were particularly noted by the officers on her rival the Birmingham which is at a local yard.

Every man on the Salem from Commander Albert L. Key and Chief Engineer Orin Murfin down was very much pleased with the way the ship has behaved during the tests. The pride is not without foundation for the members of the board of inspection, which was on board her last week, said that they had never seen a better or more regular set of high speed runs.

As the complete data of the tests has gone to Washington it is not possible to learn all the details of what the Fore River built cruiser did on her trials off Rockport.

The Salem covered the measured course at the rate of 26.52 knots per hour and the uncorrected average of three high-speed runs in the standardization test was 25.7 knots. This is the best that the Salem has done since she was in commission, and it goes a long way to win back her lost laurels in the disastrous coal consumption tests which were made with her sister ships when the boats were first put in commission.

During the builders' test of the Salem the cruiser made an average speed of 25.95 knots at a displacement of 2,750 tons. This is a little higher speed than the Salem made last week, but the engines showed in the latest test that they developed much more brake horse-power and three more revolutions per minute than at the initial test. The apparent paradox is accounted in the fact that the Salem during the last test had 4,000 tons displacement instead of the 2,750 tons when first tried.

According to the effective horsepower curve which is mapped out by the naval engineers one hundred tons extra displacement means the loss of a loss of a small fraction of a knot in speed. So, according to teh figuring of the engineers on the Salem the extra displacement means the loss in speed. So, according to the figuring of the engineers on the Salem the extra displacement caused the loss of a knot of speed. The paradok is further accounted for by the fact that when the builders' test was made the Salem's bottom was in perfect condidition, which it is not now.

SAGE AND SULPHUR
Made Her look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss. Rochester, N. Y.
County of Monroe }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.

everything in the engine room went with the utmost satisfaction. The water test was to see how much steam the engines and the entire ship use while going at a fixed pressure. Everything was so satisfactory that the officers of the ship feel that the Curtis or the American turbine engine has shown its efficiency.

Scout cruiser Salem showed up so well in last week's test her officers put up broom sticks to hast head and will sweep the seas.

HOMEWARD BOUND

Harriman Appears to Be Far From Enjoying Good Health

Cherbourg, Aug. 19.—"Now I am better. My cure is finished and I am very glad I am going to see the soil of America again. My only hope is that the voyage back will be as good as that coming over."

These were the remarks of E. H. Harriman, the American financier, in reply to a question concerning his health just as he was about to sail on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II for New York last night.

Harriman's special train from Paris arrived at 7 o'clock last evening. A rolling chair had been provided and was placed beside the car as soon as the train came to a stop. Harriman's physician offered the financier his arm, but although he was pale and appeared feeble he declined assistance and slowly descended to the platform of the station. He also declined to use the rolling chair.

THE CORPORATION TAX

Threats of Attempts to Nullify It Do Not Disturb President Taft

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 19.—Reports which reach Beverly daily from Washington and New York that the constitutionality of the new corporation tax is to be tested just as soon as an effort is made to collect it have not disturbed President Taft in the least. The tests and the protests, he declares, were all anticipated, and no threats of the corporation lawyers now cause the chief magistrate any alarm.

Mr. Taft, himself a lawyer and father of the corporation tax idea, is thoroughly convinced that the tax will stand any test that may be applied to it. Attorney General Wickersham and Senator Root collaborated on the corporation tax provision of the tariff bill, and the measure as enacted, they believe, will survive any attempt to nullify it.

Bob Douglas Captures $10,000 Purse

Buffalo, Aug. 19.—Bob Douglas, from the stable of Alonzo McDonald, won the $10,000 Empire State stake for 2:12 trotters at the Fort Erie race track. The gray trotted the four heats without a break, winning the race with little or no contest from the other six starters.

TIDY LITTLE INCOME FROM STANDARD OIL

Rockefeller Cleans Up Over $79,000,000 In Two Years

New York, Aug. 19.—Speculators on the curb market with a fondness for instructive statistics figured at the close of trading last evening that John D. Rockefeller was $79,756,824 richer than he was two years ago, and by no effort of his own.

Standard Oil stock, of which Rockefeller owns $25,000,000 par value, touched 712 Wednesday—a rise of 322 points from the low price of 1907, during the panic.

Standard Oil stock pays 40 percent a year, and since 1882, when the company was formed, has distributed in dividends nearly $600,000,000, of which Rockefeller is estimated to have received one-fourth, or $165,000,000.

Negro Who Killed Another on Warship to Answer to Old Charge

Washington, Aug. 19.—The authorities of the state of Massachusetts have notified the navy department that they do not want David Williams, the negro mess attendant on the battleship Vermont, who had a boxing bout with another negro named Foster, as the result of which the latter died.

The state authorities at first sought possession of the man on a warrant charging manslaughter, but their decision not to ask for his surrender leaves the department free to turn him over to the Georgia state authorities, who want him for an alleged serious assault committed before Williams entered the navy.

AFRAID OF HUSBAND

Wife of Prominent Southerner Asks That She Be Divorced

Atlanta, Aug. 19.—Charging her husband, Mapor J. F. Hanson, president of the Central of Georgia railroad, with cruelty and with infatuation with a Mrs. Horner, Mrs. Cora L. Hanson of Macon filed suit for divorce in this city. Hanson, besides being head of the Central railroad, is a large cotton mill owner.

Mrs. Hanson declares she was so in fear of her husband that she often slept in the bathroom. She asks only for attorney fees and a total divorce.

Deposed Ruler a Would-Be Assassin

Rome, Aug. 19.—According to advices received here from Teheran, Persia, the recent reported attempt of the young shah of Persia to commit suicide was really an attempt to assassinate the boy, made by his father, the deposed shah, who struck his son with a poignard.

SEVEN SONS AMERICANS

German Who Visited Old Country Is Barred When Returning Here

New York, Aug. 19.—Carl Meisser, aged 65, a well-to-do farmer of Gibson, Wis., who recently went back to his old home in Germany, after a thirty-two years' absence, to tell the German authorities about a plot against the kaiser's life which he believed he had uncovered in Chicago, was denied the privilege of re-entering America on the ground of insanity.

As Meisser had never taken out citizenship papers during his long residence in this country, the Ellis island officials decided that he was entitled to no more consideration than any newly landed alien. So, in spite of the fact that he has seven sons in Wisconsin who are qualified American voters, an order was issued for his deportation.

TUNNEL IN PENITENTIARY

Discovered In Time to Prevent Wholesale Escape of Prisoners

Pittsburg, Aug. 19.—Discovery of a tunnel at the western Pennsylvania penitentiary frustrated what would have been a wholesale escape of prisoners.

Two convicts, suspected of digging the tunnel, are now in solitary confinement and three life prisoners are under surveillance.

Information is refused, but it is said the tunnel was within a few feet of the wall when discovered.

But Six Contenders Left

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 19.—The light and variable winds and the long ocean swell which prevailed during the Sonder Klasse trials Wednesday wafted with them the hopes of ten of the sixteen yachts which are seeking honors as one of the three defenders of the two cups against the German challengers. The eliminations reduce the number of contenders to six.

Attell-Stone Bout a Draw

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Abe Attell, the featherweight champion, and Harry Stone of New York, fought ten rounds to a draw here last night. Until the last two rounds, when Stone carried the fight to the champion from bell to bell, it was a tame exhibition.

LAND COURT

To Marion A. Knight, of Lynn, in the County of Essex; Hattie H. Merrill, Frank A. Gordon and John G. Whitman, of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk; Marietta C. Fernald, of Watertown, Sarah G. Gooch, Emma A. Bearse, Louise P. Brown, Abbie D. Coolidge, Joseph A. Coolidge and Arthur F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex, all in said Commonwealth; William H. Brown, of New York, in the County and State of New York; Rachel Coolidge, Frances Coolidge and Alice Irene Williams Coolidge Merriam, of Pasadena, in the State of California, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Susan A. Peirce, of Melrose, in said County of Middlesex, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

Two certain parcels of land situate in said Quincy, bounded and described as follows:

The first:—Southwesterly on Harvard Street 125 feet; northwesterly on Granger Street 75 feet; northeasterly on land now or late of Marion A. Knight 125 feet, and southeasterly on other land now or late of said Knight 75 feet.

The second:—Northeasterly on Fayette Street 25 feet; southeasterly on land now or late of Hattie H. Merrill 100 feet; southwesterly on land now or late of Frank A. Gordon 25 feet, and northwesterly on land now or late of John G. Whitman 100 feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirteenth day of September A. D., 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of August in the year nineteen hundred and nine.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

DO COLLEGES DESTROY FAITH?

Dr. Lyman Abbott in a recent Outlook, on the religious attitude of college students, speaks out of an unusually wide and varied experience, for in the last ten years he has visited over forty high-grade colleges between the Atlantic and the Pacific, and spoken to student audiences aggregating nearly 250,000 persons. Besides that, in many cases, as at Harvard University, he has met the young men and women for private conference on theological and religious subjects, and his keenness in getting at the heart of a person's difficulty, as well as his ability to understand other points of view than his own, make his judgment on the actual tone and tendency of religious life in these institutions all the more judicial and comprehensive—perhaps a bit more so than his recently much-discussed article on Porto Rico. Dr. Abbott is a warm defender of idealism of young men and young women now receiving college instruction; he looks upon them as the makers of the future of America, and says that what they need is not so much greater enthusiasm inspiring them to march forward, as wise counsel teaching them in what direction to march. Compared with twenty-five years ago, he finds a new set of questions confronting the college mind. Then students were seeking to reconcile Genesis and theology, the doctrine of the fall and evolution; now the questions brought to the college itinerant pastor and preacher may nearly all be classified under two heads; first, what may I believe with reasonable conviction concerning the invisible; second, what service may I best render to my fellowmen? Concerning the first set of questions, he finds an eagerness to receive light, and in the case of one Western institution, the girls, after a conference with him for an hour and a half, sat up until one o'clock in the morning discussing God, immortality, prayer, inspiration and forgiveness. As to the effect of college study upon inherited faith, he confesses that they tend to destroy belief in the authority of tradition, but that it is constructive of real beliefs. He speaks a good word for the college Y. M. C. A., which through its Bible classes is feeding the intellectual life of students, and through its network of practical activities is giving them something worth while to do.

Regarding the ethical atmosphere in our colleges, Dr. Abbott bears witness that drinking is less than in his own college days, and he believes that the vice of licentiousness is less common than most cynics and some reformers would have us believe ,and probably less inside than outside college walls. Dr. Abbott considers the fraternizing of all kinds of religious-bred students, from Unitarian to Roman Catholic and Jew predilections, of great value in promoting the growth of toleration and in aiding the discovery of truth. He concludes his valuable article in these words: "If your son or daughter desires to know the truth and to follow it as seen whithersoever it may lead, there is for such a one less moral danger in the American college than in the ordinary business and social circles of America, and a promise of great advantage in development of character and equipment for life.—Boston Transcript.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two.

Over against the entrance wherein Kirkwood and the girl lurked, confounded by the problem of escaping undetected through this vivacious scene, a stable door stood wide, exposing a dimly illumined interior. Before it waited a four wheeler, horse already hitched in between the shafts, while its driver, a man of leisurely turn of mind, made lingering inspection of straps and buckles, and, while Kirkwood watched him, turned attention to the carriage lamps.

The match which he raked spiritedly down his thigh flared ruddily. The succeeding paler glow of the lamp threw into relief a heavy beefy mask with shining bosses for cheeks and nose and chin. Through narrow slits two cunning eyes glittered like dull gems. Kirkwood appraised him with attention as one in whose gross carcass was embodied their only hope of unannoyed return to the streets and normal surroundings of their world. The difficulty lay in attracting the man's attention and engaging him without arousing his suspicions or bringing the population about their ears. Though he hesitated long, no favorable opportunity presented itself, and in time the jehu approached the box with the ostensible purpose of mounting and driving off. In this critical situation the American, forced to recognize that boldness must mark his course, took the girl's fate and his own in his hands and, with a quick word to his companion, stepped out of hiding.

The cabby had a foot upon the step when Kirkwood tapped his shoulder.

"My man"—

"Lor', lumme!" cried the fellow in amaze, pivoting on his heel. Cupidity and quick understanding enlivened the eyes which in two glances looked Kirkwood up and down. "S'help me," thickly, "where'd you drop from, guvner?"

"That's my affair," said Kirkwood briskly. "Are you engaged?"

"If you mykes yerself my fare," returned the cabby shrewdly, "I ham."

"Ten shillings, then, if you get us out of here in one minute and to—say—Hyde Park Corner in fifteen."

"Us?" demanded the fellow aggressively.

Kirkwood motioned toward the passageway. "There's a lady with me—there. Quick now!"

Still the man did not move. "Ten bob," he bargained, "an' you runnin' awye with th' stuffy ol' gent's fair darter? Come now, guvner, is it gen'rous? Myke it a quid an' "—

Kirkwood tapped his shoulder.

"A pound then. Will you hurry?"

By way of answer the fellow scrambled hastily up to the box and snatched at the reins. "Ck! Gee-e hup!" he cried sonorously.

The gloom of the tunnel inclosed them briefly ere the lights of the Hogin-the-Pound flashed by and the wheels began to roll more easily. Kirkwood drew back with a sigh of relief.

"Thank God!" he said softly.

The girl had no words.

Worried by her silence, solicitous lest, the strain ended, she might be on the point of fainting, he let up the shade and lowered the window at her side.

She seemed to have collapsed in her corner. Against the dark upholstery her hair shone like pale gold in the half light. Her eyes were closed, and she held a handkerchief to her lips. The other hand lay limp.

"Miss Calendar!"

She started, and something bulky fell from the seat and thumped heavily on the floor. Kirkwood bent to pick it up and so for the first time was made aware that she had brought with her a small black gladstone bag of considerable weight. As he placed it on the forward seat their eyes met.

"I didn't know"— he began.

"It was to get that," she hastened to explain, "that my father sent me"—

"I have been thinking that there is absolutely no way I know of to thank you properly. And I have been wondering," she continued, with unaffected candor, "what you must be thinking of me."

"What should I think of you, Miss Calendar?"

With the air of a weary child she laid her head against the cushions again, face to him, and watched him through lowered lashes, unsmiling.

"You might be thinking that an explanation is due you. Even the way we were brought together was extraordinary, Mr. Kirkwood. You must be very generous, as generous as you have shown yourself brave, not to require some sort of an explanation of me."

"I don't see it that way."

"I do. You have made me like you very much, Mr. Kirkwood."

"I'm glad," he said simply, "very glad if that's the case and presupposing I deserve it. Personally," he laughed, "I seem to myself to have been rather forward."

"No; only kind and a gentleman."

"But—please!" he protested.

"Oh, but I mean it, every word! Why shouldn't I? In a little while, ten minutes, half an hour, we shall have seen the last of each other. Why should I not tell you how I appreciate all that you have unselfishly done for me?"

"If you put it that way, I'm sure I don't know, beyond that it embarrasses me horribly to have you overestimate me so. If any courage has been shown this night it is yours. But I'm forgetting again." He thought to divert her. "Where shall I tell the cabby to go this time, Miss Calendar?"

"Craven street, please," said the girl and added a house number. "I am to meet my father there with this," indicating the gladstone bag.

CHAPTER VI.

KIRKWOOD thrust head and shoulders out of the window and instructed the cabby accordingly, but his ruse had been ineffectual, as he found when he sat back again. Quite composedly the girl took up the thread of conversation where it had been broken off.

"It's rather hard to keep silence when you've been so good. I don't want you to think me less generous than yourself; but, truly, I can tell you nothing." She sighed a trace resentfully, or so he thought. "There is little enough in this—this wretched affair that I understand myself, and that little I may not tell. I want you to know that."

"I understand, Miss Calendar."

"There's one thing I may say, however. I have done nothing wrong tonight, I believe," she added quickly.

"I've never for an instant questioned that," he returned, with a qualm of shame, for what he said was not true.

"Thank you."

The four wheeler swung out of Oxford street into Charing Cross road. Kirkwood noted the fact with a feeling of some relief that their ride was to be so short. Like many of his fellow sufferers from "the artistic temperament," he was acutely disconcerted by spoken words of praise and gratitude.

Nor had she fully relieved her mind nor voiced all that perturbed her. "There's one thing more," she said presently—"my father. I—I hope you will think charitably of him."

BACK TO THREE R'S.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, recently elected superintendent of the public schools of Chicago, announces that one main plank in her policy is to get the children back to the three R's, otherwise, reading, writing and arithmetic. It is a cheerful note which she sounds, and we trust that she will bring forth such works as will lead other pedagogical sinners to repentance. Chicago took an unusual step in electing a woman to the important position, but she was by all odds the best equipped candidate and her policy was so much in accord with common sense and bitter experience that she won without much opposition.

Mrs. Young will have opportunity to put many of her plans into execution, for Chicago is preparing to make the educational world sit up and take notice. It is building a large number of children's clubhouses by day and people's clubhouses by night which will be of great value if the fond hopes of promoters are carried out. The idea is to make the schoolhouse the farthest removed from a jail. At present the difference is in favor of the jail. The new buildings are to be fitted up to teach all of the children manual training in more than kindergarten fashion. There will be manual work for all the boys and sewing and cooking for all the girls as part of the daily curriculum. There will be bathing pools and gymnasia and lecture rooms with moving pictures, described in lectures. There will be a lot of things which do not now exist and a lot of things which are now considered essential will be swept away.

Mrs. Young is determined that every child shall know how to read, write and spell with the greatest facility. These tools of the human mind will be sharpened and no education will be complete without them. For the rest, practical affairs and not a lot of book knowledge will be put to the fore. The idea is at last to turn out children who will have some actual knowledge of the things which they are going to do and with an equipment sufficient to lead them to better things. What boots it in these days that boys study Shakespeare and can't spell half the ordinary words of three syllables; that they know a lot of physiology and can't write a decent letter; that they can parse every word in "Evangeline" but can't add up a row of figures?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Come to Hundreds of Quincy People.

There are days of dizziness;
Spells of headache, sideache, backache;
Sometimes rheumatic pains:
Often urinary disorders.
All tell you plainly the kidneys are sick.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.
Here is proof in Quincy.

Mrs. George L. Mott, living at 99 North street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for entertaining a very high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me of a serious case of kidney complaint, after everything I tried had failed to help me. Prior to using this remedy I was troubled a great deal with headaches and dizzy spells, which were so severe at times that I would have to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My eyesight was affected and spots would seem to float before me. My back also greatly annoyed me. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Cox drug store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, my case being of long standing, I was cured. Other members of my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills with equally good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

LESS POLLS THIS YEAR

Assistant Assessors Find 74 Less than Last Year

According to the returns made by the assistant assessors who made a round of the city in May the number of polls this year is 9,444 a decrease of 74 from last year. The greatest loss was in Wards One, Two and Four while gains were made in Wards Three, Five and Six ,the greatest gain being in Ward Six.

Under the order passed by the City Council last year Ward Five is now divided into two voting precincts. Precinct one, located on the west side of the track has 765 voters according to the assistant assessors and Precinct two 662.

The total number of polls by wards is. Ward One, 1,668; Ward Two, 1,749; Ward Three, 1,822; Ward Four, 1 638; Ward Five, 1,387; Ward Six, 1,180.

Following is the list of polls by Precincts:

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

RUNNING DUEL IN DARKNESS

Yeggs Caught at Work In Railroad Ticket Office

LITTLE GIRL GIVES ALARM

Policeman Quickly Appears and Pursues One of the Desperadoes, Whose Dead Body Is Discovered Some Time Later Close to Scene of Fusillade—Identified as a Pole From Olneyville—Probably Killed by His Pal

North Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 19.—The alertness of a 14-year-old girl frustrated the attempt of burglars to break open the safe in the station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and started a running duel between two cracksmen and a policeman, in which one of the yeggs was killed, presumably by a shot from his companion's weapon as he mistook him in the dark for a pursuer.

Carrie Ames, the 14-year-old daughter of Baggage master Ames, heard a steady hammering going on nearby shortly before the hour of midnight and was alarmed. Her mother and father had not heard it, but the little girl was so aroused that she ran to her parents' room to tell them about it. All three listened a moment, and then Ames said just one word, "Burglars," and ran out the side door, throwing on a few clothes as he hurried along the dark road.

Soon there was a sharp crack of a revolver, followed by a regular fusillade. One of the marksmen was Patrolman Jenkins. He had rushed down from the police station as soon as the firing started, and at the station ran almost into one of the yeggs, revolver in in hand, who ordered him to halt.

Jenkins told the unknown man to throw up his hands. The answer was a shot, and in another minute the two men were blazing away at one another in the darkness.

Jenkins heard another man inside the station, but he pursued the retreating yegg, firing steadily as he ran, the burglar now and then halting to exchange shots. Finally Jenkins had to give up the pursuit in the darkness, but he heard a shot or two later.

What the last shots meant was not discovered until Leo Valois went into the woods to gather some brush. He stumbled over the body of a man face down, fifty feet away from the railroad station, and not more than a yard from the spot where Jenkins and some other policemen had stood after the battle and peered about for some sign of the fugitives.

Investigation at the station after the affray revealed the fact that the hinges and combination had been chiselled from the safe, but that the timely discovery by Carrie Ames had frustrated their plans to make a haul.

The dead man was identified late last night as Wladyslaw Krasinski who lived in Olneyville, R. I. Krainski was formerly a mill worker, but according to an acquaintance who identified the body, had not done any work for several months and was planning to return to his home in Poland soon. He was 35 years old and unmarried.

From two rent receipts found in the pockets of the dead man, the police easily established his identity. Besides the rent receipts the police found in the dead man's clothing a watch taken from the office of the Western Union Telegraph company, through which the burglars gained entrance to the railroad station. It belonged to an operator.

SAVES GOVERNMENT $25.000 A YEAR

Result of "Doubling Up" In Letter Carriers' Vacations

Washington, Aug. 19.—By requiring letter carriers to "double up" their routes during the dull season of July and August instead of employing substitutes, Postmaster General Hitchcock expects to save the government not less than $250,000 in the cost of carriers' vacations during the present fiscal year.

Postoffice employes are allowed by law fifteen days' leave of absence with pay each year. It has been the general practice for many years to employ a substitute for every day a letter carrier is on leave of absence.

During July and August the volume of mail, in the large cities especially, is considerably reduced, enabling carriers to "double up", so that in some instances during those months two carriers serve three routes. This enables the third carrier to take his vacation without expense to the government.

FORE RIVER MAY GET ONE

Submits Bids for Building Two New Dreadnoughts

Bids were opened at Washington Wednesday by the navy department for the building of the two new Dreadnoughts, Wyoming and Arkansas. These vessels are to cost 6,000,000 each, exclusive of armor and armaments, are to be of a high rate of speed and of 26,000 tons each, the largest vessels ever undertaken by the American navy. The increase in this class of vessels is from 20,000 the size of the North Dakota now building at the Fore River.

The lowest bidder was William Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia. They submitted two bids, one of $4,450,000 and one of $4,475,000.

Bids for the vessels were made under two heads, class I being according to the navy department's plans, and class 2, the department's plans as to hull and equipment, but with machinery suggested by the bidder. As a result there were propositions for the installing of turbine coupled with reciprocating engines, reciprocating engines and turbines combined with electric motors. The speed promised generally was 20 1-2 knots under both classes.

Eight bids came from the Fore River Ship Building Co., all under class 2, and ranging from $4,747,000 $5,097,000.

VICTORY FOR BLUES.

Desperate Battle This Morning at Bryantville Won by Blues.

In the most desperate battle of the campaign this morning the blues checked the red army in its attempt to pierce the blue line at Bryantville. The attacting force was repulsed with great loss. After two hours solid fighting, during which Gen. Bliss was unable to overcome the stubborn resistance of the Blues who were solidly entrenched on the hill, he was forced to retreat.

Gen. Bliss hoped by his move this morning to crush Gen. Pew and win the battle before 2 o'clock, the time set by the umpires for secession of hostilities.

The red army suffered a genuine surprise when it was checked, and Gen. Bliss sent regiment after regiment rushing the line of the defenders but was unsuccessful. As a result of today's battle the blues score a victory.

There was some little excitement in City Square early Wednesday evening when four soldiers wearing the red band on their hats appeared from no one knows where, and made their way toward South Quincy. They separated on Franklin street and disappeared in different directions. Shortly after Richard Harding Davis the well known war correspondent passed through the city in an automobile. These gave rise to the rumors that spies were in the city and that a war ship might land troops at Houghs Neck and advance on Boston through Quincy.

SHORT CIRCUITING OF WIRE

Causes Death of Ten Persons and Serious Injury to Many Others

Lecco, Italy, Aug. 19.—Through the breaking of a highly charged electric light wire at Olgirate last night, which created a short circuit and set on fire the insulation in [illegible] houses supplied with the current, ten persons were killed and twenty seriously injured by ignoring the danger and attempting to extinguish the fires or cut off the current with switches.

The fire brigade from Lecco was summoned to extinguish numerous fires that started as a result of the short circuiting of the wire.

SAN JOSE SCALE APPEARS

Causing Fruit Growers In Green Mountain State to Worry

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 19.—The spread of the San Jose scale is creating alarm among the fruit growers of Vermont, who fear that their crops may suffer serious damage.

Further evidences of the pest were discovered in the orchards of A. A. Bull by O. P. Martin, state commissioner of agriculture. Efforts will be made to prevent the contamination of other orchards in the vicinity. The scale had previously been found in the southern part of the state.

Chicago Bridge Collapses

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Ten persons were injured seriously and twenty others narrowly escaped when 250 feet of the Twelfth street bridge over the river collapsed. None were killed so far as known.

THAW IS AGAIN IN MATTEAWAN

Resumes Life In Asylum From Which He Sought Release

IS SUBJECT TO OLD RULES

Will Have One of Small Rooms Built For Attendants For the Reason That Hospital Is Overcrowded—Superintendent Says That Noted Prisoner Will Not Be Recipient of Any Special Privileges

Matteawan, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw ate his super last night at the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane. He arrived at the institution at 6:50 o'clock last evening, after a trip under escort from the White Plains jail, where he was forced to leave after several days' respite, following the adverse ruling of Justice Mills on his application for release on a heabeas corpus writ as a sane man.

HARRY K. THAW.

Beginning today the slayer of Stanford White resumed the monotonous routine of the asylum life. Superintendent Lamb of the hospital issued the following statement:

"There will be no changes at all regarding Thaw's incarceration here. He will be subjected to the same rules as before he left to go to White Plains. He will have a special room, not because he is Harry K. Thaw, but for the reason that this hospital was built to accommodate 500 patients and we now have nearly 800. We are very crowded and some of the patients have small rooms which were built for the attendants. Thaw has one.

"I did not take it from Justice Mills' decision that Thaw was to have any special priviliges. We will follow the court's orders, however, and if Thaw is not satisfied he can appeal to the courts. At present we will adhere to the old routine."

WEIGHTED BAG OVER HEAD

One-Armed Man Found Drowned Is Pronounced a Suicide

Munson, Me., Aug. 19.—His head covered with a burlap bag which had been weighted with pieces of iron, the body of Nathan W. Hoff, a one-armed man, was found in the Piscataqua river. The medical examiner pronounced the case to be one of suicide, but there was a general questioning of the man's ability to attach the bag and weights with his one arm.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY.

Copeland Club Planning Grand Time For Labor Day.

On Labor day the Copeland club of West Quincy will hold its annual field day and the committee in charge is working hard for the success of the affair. Last year was the first attempt of the club at a big field day, and it was such a big success that it was decided to make it an annual event. A fine athletic program has been arranged for the day and from 10.30 in the morning until the finish of the Copeland-St. Mary's game in the afternoon, there will not be a dull moment.

At 10.30 the Copeland club will meet the Royal White Sox of Braintree, at 1.30 the Hardy A. C. is carded to meet the Rail Reds, and at 3.30 the big game of the day will be played, when the old rivals, the Copelands and the St. Mary's cross bats. As all these games are rubber games, some good ball is assured. Considerable interest has been aroused among the followers of the various nines and there ought to be some hot rooting at the games.

There will also be a series of track events, which will include 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, hop, step and jump, and three broad jumps. Cash prizes will be given to the winners in these events, so there is no chance for the registered amateurs, unless they want to take the chance of being thrown out of the A. A. U. for ever. However, there will be plenty of entries for the events, which will be open only to athletes in Quincy. Entries may be forwarded to William J. Shea, Copeland street, West Quincy.

SHUT OFF NOTICE.

Water Bills Must Be Paid or Water Will Be Shut Off.

Notices were sent out by the Water Department Thursday, to all parties who have not paid their water bills for the six months ending Dec. 31, stating that unless the same is paid on or before Aug. 30, that the water will be shut off.

The notices were placed in the mail Wednesday evening so that they reached the parties to whom they were addressed Thursday.

Under the rules of the Water Department, bills for water are due in advance. These bills are sent out in January and July for the ensuing six months. Many pay their bills promptly but there are others who are a little slow for various reasons. It is these parties who get the polite little dun. As it costs a dollar to have the water turned on after being shut off the easiest way to save a dollar is by paying up.

APPEARANCE IS IMPROVED

Repairs to Fall Place Church Add to Attractiveness

The Hall Place M. E. church has been greatly improved by the repairs recently made on the property. For a number of years the fire department have had an alarm connected with the bell on the church, which of course was in constant use. No repairing has ever been done before on this part of the church, and the belfry had become somewhat the worse for wear and tear of time and strain, as well as the foundation of the bell having become very weak.

About two months ago the city authorities took up the matter of repairing the belfry and placing the fire signal on safe footing. Work was begun immediately. A new foundation was put in and the belfry put in excellent condition, together with shingling and painting the same. The men were at work on the city contract for about three weeks, the work being well and neatly done.

At this point the board of trustees took up the matter of furthering the repairs as well as painting the church thinking it was best to do the work now while the public interest was aroused. Through the generosity of Samuel Richards of Common street, who volunteered the use of his outfit, ropes, ladders, etc., also his time and services free of charge, the trustees were enabled to plan for the work at once.

The money was raised by popular subscription, through the use of "Clapboard books." These were small red books, each containing twenty clapboards, five clapboards to a page, each clapboard being worth twenty-five cents, the cost of painting one clapboard around the church. Above each clapboard were the words "Twenty-five cents paints one clapboard on the M. E. church and" (the name being written on the clapboard) "pays the bill." It was a very neat arrangement and a novel success.

The following persons solicited the money needed for the work: Robert Newcomb, C. A. Goucher, Richard H. Moyle, William McCormick, Nellie Rodman, Olive Grant, Hilda Francis, Clarence Trask, Ernest Williams, Charles S. Jose and Rev. C. H. Raupach.

The total amount of money raised was sixty-six dollars and twenty-five cents, ($66.25), the total cost of material was sixty dollars, ($60.00). Of the amount raised $36.50 came from people who are not regular supporters of this church, many of them not being connected with this church in any way, the balance being contributed by the general congregation, among which were three five dollar gifts. The total number of persons contributing to the work was one hundred and fourteeen, seventy-five of this number being entirely outside of the regular congregation.

The work was done mostly after five o'clock in the evening by the men of the church, who gave their time and labor free of any charge. It took a period of twenty-three days to finish the work. The windows were all repaired, all necessary carpentering was done and two coats of paint were put on. The men who helped to do the work were: Samuel Richards, Robert Hunter, Robert Newcomb, Enoch Fuller, H. C. Johnson, C. S. Jose, Harold Williams, William E. Francis, J. J. Nichols, Ernest Williams, Joseph Francis.

The clock on the church has been thoroughly overhauled, having four new sets of gold-leaf figures and new hands put on each face and once more the clock, which for so many months has been silent, tolls forth the passing hours. New stone steps, which were a gift from John Cashman of West Quincy, were recently substituted for the old wooden ones, that have served ever since the church was built. These improvements ,together with the gas lights installed last fall and the new "imitation stained glass" memorial windows put in during the late fall have added a great deal to the attractiveness and appearance of the church. The work is greatly appreciated by both pastor and people, and there is no reason why the good work cannot go on in this community. The pastor, Rev. C. H. Raupach has been a faithful helper and worker in all that has been done.

BUILDING PERMITS.

TAX RATES.

Chelsea's tax rate this year is $23 per $1000. This is the highest rate in the history of the city and it is due to the results of the conflagration in 1908. Last year's rate was $21.40, but was really a fictitious one and was only made possible by taking some of the money received from insurance on buildings destroyed.

The total valuation this year is $24,041,350, of which $21,115,350 is real estate and $2,926,000 personal. The total number of polls is 8182, a decrease of 1978 over that of 1907.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harry E. McFall was fined $15, George E. May, Herbert L. York and William B. Hatch $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Charles T. Fitzgerald was sent to the state farm for drunkenness at Quincy.

CAPTURED AFTER A FIGHT

Chief Yeoman of Cruiser Charged With Embezzlement and Desertion

Boston, Aug. 20.—Facing arrest by the federal government on the charge of the embezzlement of $230 from seventeen letters from the United States mails and dishonerable discharge from the navy on account of desertion, George T. Arrington, chief yeoman of the cruiser Des Moines, was lodged in the brig of that ship at the Charlestown navy yard.

Arrington was brought to this city from New York, where he had been captured after a desperate struggle. He was postal clerk on the Des Moines and handled all the postal funds and money order business aboard the ship.

On Aug. 4 he left the ship on a two days' leave and upon his failure to return an examination of his books showed a shortage. A warrant was at once issued for the man's arrest.

AN IMPORTANT CAPTURE

Secret Service Men Get Kentuckian With $1,000,000 In Counterfeits

Washington, Aug. 20.—Secret service officers arrested John Roberts at Beechmont, Ky., with $1,000,000 in counterfeit bank notes in his possession.

M. C. Roberts, his brother, was taken into custody with forty Mexican bank notes of $100 denomination, said to be counterfeit, in his possession.

Siege of Asquith Raised

London, Aug. 20.—Eight suffragettes, including Mrs. Despard and Mrs. Saunderson, were arrested on Downing street in connection with the picketing of Premier Asquith's residence inaugurated by the suffragettes.

BRAINTREE CAPTURED

Invading Red Troops Reach Town at 10 A. M.

Light batteries from Connecticut, New York and New Jersey took Braintree by surprise about 10 o'clock this morning and easily captured the town. The town's only defence was the road roller which was under full steam on Pearl street.

For two hours it did keep the batteries out of this avenue to the railroad, but flank movements through Holbrook avenue on the left wing and Crescent avenue on right wing, soon surrounded the Highway department. Not untill the noon hour, however, did they open Pearl street to travel.

With the exception of two troops, all the invaders came to South Braintree to embark for home. There were several batteries of "Reds" from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut and other states, also signal corps from New York and Washington, and troops of Cavalry. All day long South Braintree was in martial array as the troops camped on all the streets near the depot previous to departure by train.

To unharness the horses; pack up all the equipment in sacks; put the horses, sacks, guns, baggage, etc., aboard the cars required several hours. There were trains of flat cars for the guns and wagons, and trains of box cars for the horses and baggage.

All the people of the town turned out quickly to greet the "enemy" and captured them by kindness. The hotels, restaurants, fruit stores and druggists did a big business and were soon cleaned out. Many of the troopers and cavaliers took the opportunity to get shaved and the barbers never were so busy before.

When the shoe shop shut down at noon the girls also were out looking for their "soldier boy."

It was noticed that some of the troopers were almost too stiff to walk after being in the saddle for nearly a week. They landed at New Bedford last Saturday and have advanced daily, picking up camp every day. It is said, however, that it is the infantry who are footsore, because of the rainy weather and the marching across country.

The trains are scheduled to leave South Braintree about 5.30 this afternoon, and will probably go to Fall River to embark, although it was reported that some of the batteries would embark on transports at Boston.

JULES VERNE FAR OUTDONE

New York Boys Circle the Globe In Forty-One Days, Eight Hours

New York, Aug. 20.—Two New York schoolboys, Walter Brown and John Munnish, who had been sent around the world for a record by a New York newspaper, were taken off the Mauretania last evening on a special tug and received by Acting Mayor McGowan, who started them off on July 9. They had completed the circuit of the globe in 41 days, 8 hours—a new record, and almost half the time set by Jules Verne in his romance "Around the World in Eighty Days."

The previous record of 60 days, 13 hours, was made in 1901 by a Chicago schoolboy in a similar trip for a Chicago newspaper.

CROONER GETS ANOTHER RACE

Has Good Chance of Being Selected to Meet Germans

The Ellen, which won the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup early in August has been selected as one of the yachts that will meet the German yachts. As a result of Thursday's races the Skeezix is out of it. This leaves the other two boats to be selected from the Crooner, Joyette, Manchester and Wolf. Today's race will settle which two will be selected.

Two races were sailed Thursday, the first being won by the Crooner, who defeated the Joyette by nearly two minutes.

In the second race she did not do as well for she finished in fourth position. Both races were sailed in a very light air and the first race was started at 12.50 and was a course of three miles south and west and return.

It took nearly two hours for the boats to cover the six miles and there was but little excitement about the race.

The second race was over a triangular course and before it finished, a squall came down upon them and they came to the finish line with a rush.

It was intended to hold a third race but the wind had so flattened out by 5 o'clock that it was called off.

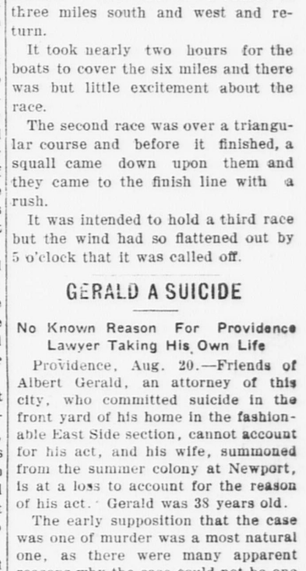

GERALD A SUICIDE

No Known Reason For Providence Lawyer Taking His Own Life

Providence, Aug. 20.—Friends of Albert Gerald, an attorney of this city, who committed suicide in the front yard of his home in the fashionable East Side section, cannot account for his act, and his wife, summoned from the summer colony at Newport, is at a loss to account for the reason of his act. Gerald was 38 years old.

The early supposition that the case was one of murder was a most natural one, as there were many apparent reasons why the case could not be one of suicide. Investigation, however, removed most of the seeming murder indications. Gerald's watch was found in his room. A box of 38-calibre cartridges—the same gauge as the revolver—was found also. Five bullets had been removed, the number used to load the weapon. Then, too, the closely-fired shots might easily be self-operated. All these latter discoveries led to a verdict of suicide.

Time, wind and women are ever changing.

There are 10,000 idle actors in New York waiting to "elevate" the American drama.

It seems that the Spaniards would rather fight each other than the Moors. Apparently, for very good reasons.

The universal expert opinion holds that such prosperity is before the land as never known, before. Turn it loose.

The women of Spokane recently held a "husband show." We are glad that the poor husbands are getting a show at last.

Dr. Eliot says the world will witness vast "change" within the next half century. We should like very much to finger a little of it right now.

"Why do men admire widows?" inquires a Dallas (Tex.) girl. It is not probable that the men know exactly; but the widows could tell, if they would.

Mr. Taft's judicial inclinations have apparently led him to reflect on a party platform as a document that represents something in the nature of a contract.

What will be Quincy's gain in population when Charles F. Getemy and his corps of census enumerators canvass the town? A big gain in population is anticipated.

The Chicago Tribune is not in favor of the present method of killing umpires. It savors too much of butchery. The Tribune thinks that umpires should be given a start of at least one hundred yards. That's fair enough.

In a few weeks the school army will again assemble in the various school buildings throughout the city. So far Quincy has been able to accommodate every child of school age and is gradually adding large and well equipped buildings. A building between the Centre and Quincy Point will soon be necessary which with the one contemplated at Houghs Neck will tide over a few years.

That was a courageous engineer in a train wreck near Bristol, Va., who although scalded and bruised unto death would not allow any stimulant to pass his lips until several passengers proved that he was not intoxicated or responsible for the accident. All an engineer has is his record and he cannot afford to have anything against that, he said, and passed out on his last run with a spotless record.

Quincy people who entertain guests during the summer regret that the historic First church is closed for services all through the summer. Many think it should not be colsed at all; that religious observance is as necessary in summer as in winter. It has been the custom of this church of late years to close for August but with two pastors many hoped the custom would not prevail and were surprised when it was announced there would be no services during July and August.

STRIFE IN MEXICO

Large Force of Cavalrymen Sent Into the Disturbed District

Mexico City, Aug. 20.—Much unrest is reported in the states of Coahuila and Nuevo Leon, in northern Mexico. General Reyes, governor of Nuevo Leon, who has been prominently mentioned as the successor to President Diaz through the candidacy of the vice presidency, has retired to a mountain retreat. El Imparcial, the government organ, says that $75,000 was sent to him yesterday secretly.

AUTO DASHED INTO A FENCE

Operator and Mechanician Are Killed on Racing Track

BOTH MASSACHUSETTS MEN

Cause of Accident Not Definitely Known, but Probably Resulted From Wheel Slipping Off—Hair-Raising Contests on New Speedway, In Which Two New American Track Records Are Established

Indianapolis, Aug. 20.—Two lives were lost and two records broken during the inauguration of the Indianapolis motor speedway. William A. Bourque, driver of the Knox car in the 250-mile race, and Harry Holcomb, his mechanician, were killed in the carnival of speed.

Barney Oldfield, driving a high powered Benz, covered a mile in 43 1-10, and Louis Chevrolet, in the Buick, negotiated ten miles in the marvelous time of 8:56 4-10. Both these are new American track records.

Robert Burman, in a Buick car, won the 250-mile race, the feature of the day, and the contest which cost Bourque and Holcomb their lives. The winner's time was 4:38:57 4-10.

The death of the two men caused the American Automobile association to issue an ultimatum to the owners of the big track that certain changes must be immediately made or the sanction for the races will be withdrawn.

The Knox car was in second place, with Burman in his Buick leading. He had covered nearly 150 miles when the crash came. Coming down the home stretch the car suddenly swerved and dashed into the fence, turning completely over and pinning its two occupants beneath it.

Theories as to the cause of the accident vary and no one will ever know what really caused the car to swerve from the track. According to Frank Brandoer, who was nearest the scene of the accident, something caused both men to suddenly turn and look behind. As they did so the steering wheel slipped from Bourque's hands and he threw his arms helplessly in the air. Then the crash came.

One of the rear wheels was found a few hundred feet from the scene of the accident, and this has led to the theory that the axle nut on it was not properly tightened when the machine took on a new tire shortly before. The men probably felt the wheel slipping off and after they looked behind realized their helplessness to prevent an accident.

Aside from the deaths the 250-mile race teemed with dramatic incidents and disappointments. Strang was the first to come to grief. His Buick car caught fire before he had completed one lap. The remainder of the field had gained about fifteen miles when he resumed, and he dropped out after making a gallant effort to regain his lost ground.

Chevrolet, in a Buick car, dashed into the lead at the start, and held it for 52 laps, or more than half the race, with the brief exception of the 15th and 16th laps, when he relinquished it to his teammate, Burman, the winner. Then he was blinded and was led from the track and his car was withdrawn. Miller, in a Stoddard-Dayton, also gave up his losing race about this time.

After Chevrolet's withdrawal, Burman again went into the lead with Bourque second and Kincaid, in a National, third. This order continued until the fatal accident to the Knox, when Kincaid moved into second place and Ellis, in a Jackson, loomed up as a contender in third place.

Burman led until the 82nd lap, or about 205 miles had been covered. Continual trouble with tires and ignition caused him to lose his once commanding lead and drop back to second place, while Ellis, in a Jackson car, who had passed Kincaid some distance back, took the lead, with Burman second and Clements, in a Stoddard-Dayton, third.

Then the Jackson began to encounter a string of mishaps which finally put it out of the race.

With the Jackson out of commission, Burman was able to regain his lead, with Clements second and Kincaid, in a National, third. This order continued until the finish.

The closest race of the day came in the five-mile stripped chassis event, won by Burman after a fierce struggle with Bourque. The two cars tore around the track, with wheels almost touching throughout the five miles. The scant margin of nine-tenths of a second separated Bourque from a victory in the last race he ever finished.

Both Masaschusetts Men

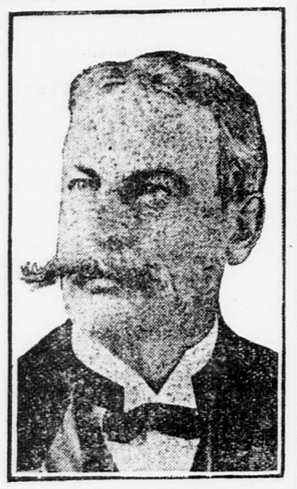

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 20.—Wilfred Bourque was 29 years old and had been in the automobile racing game three years, representing the Knox Automobile company of this city. He was to have been married this fall.

Harry Holcomb, Bourque's mechanician, had been a tester for the Knox company for two years, this season being his first in racing. He was married and leaves a family in West Granville.

Apparently Sane Man Suffers From Loss of Memory

New York, Aug. 20.—What the doctors at Bellevue hospital say is a remarkable case of loss of memory developed when a sturdy, middle aged man, well dressed and to all appearances sane, applied for admission.

Questioned by the admitting physician, he could not remember his name, his residence, or whether he was married or single. He had a hazy recollection of being in a saloon early Thursday and taking a drink of whisky, and also of having been struck a blow on the neck.

WEAVERS WILL NOT DEMAND HIGHER PAY

Throw Cold Water on Plans of New Bedford Operatives

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 20.—A complication in the movement of the cotton mill operatives to obtain a wage advance of 10 percent developed when the weavers' union flatly refused to join with the other unions in presenting a formal demand for a raise to the Manufacturers' association.

The weavers claim that if the mill owners should agree to grant an advance the raise would be largely nominal in the weave rooms, as there is no standard list of prices for weaving cloth in the local mills.

The union declared in favor of a standard list, and expressed the opinion that the weavers would receive no benefit until such a change was made in their department of the mills.

AVERTED A COLLISION

Curtiss Shows His Skill and Ability to Control His Aroplane

Rheims, Aug. 20.—The American aviator, Glenn H. Curitss, added a dramatic feature to the trial flights of the aeroplanes entered for the contests of aviation week by skilfully guiding his machine above another aeroplane and averting a collision in the air which seemed imminent.

The feat was accomplished when, for the first time in history, three heavier-than-air craft were maneuvering at the same time. Suddenly Curtiss saw M. Dumanest approaching at right angles and on the same level with him. Curtiss realized the danger and, elevating his planes, his machine instantly shot upward and soared safely over the Frenchman.

The third machine in the air at this time was that of M. Tissandier.

RESIGNATION IS EXP CTED

Wakefield's Chief of Police Failed to Return From His Vacation

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 20.—The selectmen of Wakefield announced that Harvey G. Brockbank, chief of police of the town, is residing in parts unknown and that his resignation is expected.

Brockbank left on Aug. 1 to go on a two weeks' vacation, but failed to return at the end of his holidays. Friends of the chief claim to know where he is and say that his absence is due to personal reasons.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Jennie A. Norfolk, ss. Quincy, July 14, 1909.

Seized and taken on execution and will be sold at public auction on SATURDAY the 28th day of August 1909 at 9 o'clock A. M., at my residence No. 163 Franklin Street in Quincy, said County, all the right, title and interest which Margaret L. McDonnell of Wrentham in said County had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the fourteenth day of July 1909, at ten o'clock A. M., being the time the same was seized on execution, in and to the following described real estate, to wit: A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy and bounded and described as follows, viz: Beginning at a point on the northwesterly side of Water Street about 200 feet from the junction of other land of this grantor with land of Joseph H. Vogel, and thence running on said Water street about westerly 78.4 feet, thence turning and running about northwesterly about 150 feet to land of the heirs of Daniel J. Breeding, thence turning and running about southeasterly along the line of land of said Breeding about 56 feet, thence turning and running along the line of land of said Breeding about northeasterly to other land of this grantor, thence turning and running about southerly along the line of other land of this grantor to the point of beginning, the whole containing about eighty-two hundred and fifty nine square feet of land. For my title to said premises see will of my late husband James S. McDonnell in the Norfolk Registry of Probate No. 27,133.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two.

"I was afraid—afraid his actions might have seemed peculiar tonight."

"There are lots of things I don't understand, Miss Calendar. Some day perhaps it will all clear up—this trouble of yours. At least, one supposes it is trouble of some sort. And then you will tell me the whole story. Won't you?" Kirkwood insisted.

"I'm afraid not," she said, with a smile of shadowed sadness. "We are to say good night in a moment or two, and—it will be goodby as well. It's unlikely that we shall ever meet again."

"I refuse positively to take such a gloomy view of the case."

She shook her head, laughing with him, but with shy regret. "It's so, none the less. We are leaving London this very night, my father and I—leaving England, for that matter."

"Leaving England?" he echoed. "You're not by any chance bound for America, are you?"

"I can't tell you."

"But you can tell me this—are you booked on the Minneapolis?"

"No-o. It is a—quite another boat."

"Of course!" he commented savagely. "It wouldn't be me to have any sort of luck!"

"Since we are to say goodby so very soon," suggested Kirkwood, "may I ask a parting favor, Miss Calendar?"

She regarded him with friendly eyes. "You have every right," she affirmed gently.

"Then please to tell me frankly are you going into any further danger?"

"And is that the only boon you crave at my hands, Mr. Kirkwood?"

"Without impertinence"—

For a little time, waiting for him to conclude his vague phrase, she watched him in an expectant silence. But the man was diffident to a degree. At length, somewhat unconsciously, "I think not," she answered. "No; there will be no danger awaiting me at Mrs. Hallam's. You need not fear for me any more. Thank you."

He lifted his brows at the unfamiliar name. "Mrs. Hallam"—

"I am going to her house in Craven street."

"Your father is to meet you there?" persistently.

"He promised to."

"But if he shouldn't?"

"Why"— Her eyes clouded. She pursed her lips over the conjectural annoyance. "Why, in that event I suppose it would be very embarrassing. You see, I don't know Mrs. Hallam. I don't know that she expects me unless my father is already there. They are old friends. I could drive round for awhile and come back, I suppose."

"Won't you let me ask if Mr. Calender is there before you get out, then? I don't like to be dismissed," he laughed, "and, you know, you shouldn't go wandering round all alone."

The cab drew up. Kirkwood put a hand on the door and awaited her will.

"It—it would be very kind. I hate to impose upon you."

He turned the knob and got out. "If you'll wait one moment," he said superfluously as he closed the door.

Pausing only to verify the number, he sprang up the steps and found the bell button.

It was a modest little residence, in nothing more remarkable than its neighbors unless it was for a certain air of extra grooming. The area railing was sleek with fresh black paint. The doorstep looked the better for vigorous stoning. The door itself was immaculate, its brasses shining lustrous against red lacquered woodwork. A soft glow filled the fanlight. Overhead the drawing room windows shone with a cozy, warm radiance.

The door opened, framing the figure of a maid sketched broadly in masses of somber black and dead white.

"Can you tell me, is Mr. Calendar here?"

The servant's eyes left his face, looked past him at the waiting cab and returned.

"I'm not sure, sir. If you will please step in."

Kirkwood hesitated briefly, then acceded. The maid closed the door.

"What name shall I say, sir?"

"Mr. Kirkwood."

"If you will please to wait one moment, sir."

He was left in the entry hall, the servant hurrying to the staircase and up. Three minutes elapsed. He was on the point of returning to the girl when the maid reappared.

"Mrs. Hallam says will you kindly step upstairs, sir."

Disgruntled, he followed her. At the head of the stairs she bowed him into the drawing room and again left him to his own resources.

Wearied, he deposited himself sulkily in an armchair by the hearth and waited.

From a boudoir on the same floor there came murmurs of two voices, a man's and a woman's. The latter laughed prettily.

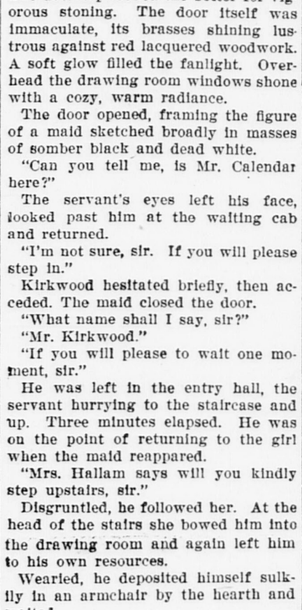

"Oh, any time," snorted the American—"any time you're through with your confounded flirtation, Mr. George B. Calendar!"

The voices rose, approaching. "Good night," said the woman gayly. "Farewell, and—good luck go with you."

"Thank you. Good night," replied the man, more conservatively.

Kirkwood rose, expectant.

There was a swish of draperies, and a moment later he was acknowledging the totally unlooked for entrance of the mistress of the house. He had thought to see Calendar, presuming him to be the man closeted with Mrs. Hallam; but, whoever that had been, he did not accompany the woman. Indeed, as she advanced from the doorway Kirkwood could hear the man's footsteps on the stairs.

"Dorothy Calendar!" Mrs. Hallam rose alertly.

"This is Mr. Kirkwood?" The note of inquiry in the well trained voice—a very alluring voice and one pleasant to listen to, he thought—made it seem as though she had asked, point blank, "Who is Mr. Kirkwood?"

He bowed, discovering himself in the presence of an extraordinarily handsome and interesting woman, a woman of years which as yet had not told upon her, of experience that had not availed to harden her, at least in so far as her exterior charm of personality was involved—a woman, in brief, who bore close inspection well despite an elusive effect of maturity, not without its attraction for men. Kirkwood was impressed that it would be very easy to learn to like Mrs. Hallam more than well—with her approval.

Although he had not anticipated it, he was not at all surprised to recognize in her the woman who, if he were not mistaken, had slipped to Calendar that warning in the dining room of the Piess.

"I am Mrs. Hallam. You were asking for Mr. Calendar?"

"He was to have been here at this hour, I believe," said Kirkwood.

"Yes?" There was just the right inflection of surprise in her carefully controlled tone.

He became aware of an undercurrent of feeling that the woman was estimating him shrewdly with her fine, direct eyes. He returned her regard with admiring interest. They were gray-green eyes, deep set, but large, a little shallow, a little changeable, calling to mind the sea on a windy, cloudy day.

Below stairs a door slammed.

"I am not a detective, Mrs. Hallam," announced the young man suddenly. Mr. Calendar required a service of me this evening; I am here in natural consequence. If it was Mr. Calendar who left this house just now I am wasting time."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Colson of West Quincy are congratulating them on the arrival of a baby boy on Aug. 17.

Mrs. Ella Mills of Wollaston was in South Ryegate, Vt., August 12th to attend the funeral of her husband's mother.

Miss Mary Howley of Hall street, West Quincy, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Lake Massabesic, Auburn, N. H.

Mrs. Edward Lovejoy and daughter Edith have returned after spending two weeks with friends in Beverly, Lynn and Salem.

Hugh Mahan and Elery Mahan of New Hampshire are the guests of Arthur Crotto. They came all the way in their touring car.

Master Donald McKay of Merrymount road gave a party to a number of his little friends on Tuesday afternoon to celebrate his fifth birthday.

Mr. Charles W. Whall of Webster street, who has been spending the last three months in Europe, returned Thursday morning, and is looking well and reports a very pleasant trip.

Henry Furnald is to entertain the boys and men of Christ church next Monday at Houghs Neck. They will enjoy ball games, bathing and boating and refreshments will be served at five o'clock. The boys are to meet at Mr. Wrigley's house, 24 Coddington street, at eleven o'clock.

Ten young ladies of the class of 1909 of Bridgewater Normal school have accepted positions in the Quincy schools. Five of these young ladies are Quincy girls and include Misses Helen and Gertrude Burke of Rogers street, Esther Viden of Kent street, Mabel E. Lovejoy of Butler road and Mercedes O'Brien of Bates avenue.

Mr. Charles W. Reed of Atlantic, the artist, is receiving his just amount of appreciation this week in Boston. Mr. Reed was the illustrator of C. F. Pidgin's "Quincy Adams Sawyer" which is being played at the Orpheum theatre this week and next in Boston. A number of large copies of Mr. Reed's original drawings are being displayed at the entrance of the theatre and are being admired.

BRIEFS.

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston is expected to be at Houghs Neck tonight.

W. W. Ewell of Foster street, who has been ill is very much improved in health.

Sergt. Mark E. Hanson of the police department is having his annual vacation this week.

That light colored and weight hat Inspector McKay is wearing this week was captured by him at Newport News.

The tides this week are just right for afternoon bathing and the city bath house is a place much sought for.

Mrs. Claudine Foster of Lexington is the guest of Mrs. George W. Bennett of Arlington street.

Mrs. Waterhouse and family of Lincoln avenue are spending several days with relatives in Haverhill.

Mrs. E. M. Blanchard who has been the guest of Mrs. Page of Davis street has returned to her home in Hinkley, Me.

Mrs. G. I. York of Newport avenue is spending the week with Mrs. Geo. Weston of Island Creek.

Wallace C. Bennett of Arlington street has accepted a position with Bean, Chase & Co., of Lincoln street, Boston.

The Ellen is all right. Not only does she carry off the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup but she beats the best sonder boats in the state at Marblehead.

As a result of the bloodless war this week the red army lost 2786 men killed and wounded, and the blue army 906, theoretically.

The annual open and interclub races under the auspices of the Wollaston yacht club will be held Saturday off the club house at Wollaston beach.

Automobile owners who have occasion to patronize a repair shop do not get a look in without costing them a ten dollar bill. This is one of the pleasures of owning a car.

Squads of red and blue soldiers passed through Quincy this morning on their way to Boston. Several truck loads of camp equipment and dismantled cannon also passed through.

In a recent three mile race under water between the submarines Cuttlefish, Viper and Tarantula at Newport, the former won. The boats were submerged to a depth of 20 feet.

Division 17 and Ladies' Auxiliary 19, A. O. H., will hold its first annual lawn party and field day on the old school house rounds at Atlantic, Saturday, August 28.

The automobile speeders captured last week by Officers Goodhue and Bishop on Washington street will line up before Judge Avery Saturday and be given an opportunity to tell why they ignored the "Square Deal" signs.

Two weeks from next Tuesday, Sept. 7, and the City Council will again be on deck. The Mayor's appointment of election officers will be forwarded to the Council at that meeting and it is probable that jurors will have to be drawn.

There is a bare possibility that the Assessors may end the suspense tomorrow and tell the citizens what the tax rate will be this year. The general impression is that it will not be far from last year, although a reduction in the state tax may enable the Assessors to give us a lower rate.

Warren H. Rideout of the treasurers office at the Fore River is having his annual vacation.

The tar concrete sidewalks recently put in by the city have become quite hard.

The vacation season is nearly ended and another week will see most of Quincy's sojourners returning to their winter homes.

The boys that ran with the machine years ago are polishing up their appetites today, in anticipation of the shore dinner at Lee's Inn Saturday.

The Rev. Samuel C. Gunn from New York will preach a Gaelic sermon in the First United Presbyterian church of this city Sunday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Work will shortly begin paving a section of Hancock street under the order for $10,000 passed by the City Council. The Commissioner has already advertised for bids for furnishing the necessary paving blocks.

James Duncan, Secretary-Treasurer of the Granite Cutters union and second vice president of the American Federation of Labor has moved from Upland road to the new house recently purchased by him on Gilmore street.

—The Rockland Standard has come into line and installed a typesetting machine, a junior linotype. Evidently Friday and the 13th of the month is no hoodoo for this enterprising newspaper for last week it entered upon another year starting volume fifty-sixth with a new type setter and up-to-date equipment.

TOMORROW'S BALL GAMES

No League Game but Two Good Games on Home Grounds

As the Quincy Old Colony league team is playing in Randolph tomorrow, the only games of importance will be those between the Makarias and the Quincy Independents, and between the Quincy Red Sox and the Bigelows. These two games should attract a lot of attention as they have much bearing on the city championships. Makaria and Quincy will cross bats at Merrymount park in their third clash of the season. The first time the teams met, Makaria won by the one-sided score of 9 to 0, and the second the result was reversed, Quincy winning 9 to 2. This will be the third and deciding game and will tell which team will meet the Atlantics for the championship of the city. Michael and Troupe will be in the points for Makaria, and as the latter seem able to play swell ball behind Michael, Manager Howard feels confident that his boys will win. Manager Ford is equally confident of winning and will have his best team in the field.

In the box for the Quincy team will be either Jack Finn, the former Boston College and St. Anselm twirler, or Lefty Ford, who for the past two years has made a swell record pitching for the Bigelows. Finn has just returned from Harrisburgh, Pa., where he has been pitching in the Tri-State league. "Buddy" Ryan, the crack outfielder of the Boston College team for the past two years, will also be seen in the lineup. As this is the only game of importance, outside the Bigelow-Red Sox game, there ought to be a record crowd at the Park tomorrow. Let us hope that the game will be played off in good clean style, without continual kicking. Both Quincy and Makaria always play clean ball and have never had much trouble in their games, so there ought to be some good sport.

The game between the Bigelows and the Quincy Red Sox will be the second of a series for the 18-19 year old championship, and will be played at the Ward Four playground. Saunders will be in the box for the Bigelows and as he beat the Sox last Saturday, he feels sure that he will be able to turn the trick again tomorrow. Rice, the clever south paw pitcher of the Red Sox, will oppose Saunders on the mound, and claims that he is going to put the Indian sign on the East Siders. If the Sox win tomorrow's game, a third game will be necessary, which will be played one week from Saturday at Merrymount park. The Bigelows say that a third game will not be necessary, while the Red Sox as strongly assert that the championship will not be won tomorrow.

While these two games are going on here, the Quincy representatives will be battling to keep up at the top of the Old Colony league, for if Randolph beats them tomorrow, they will slip down the ladder into last place. Realizing that the Quincy team has not been going very fast of late and that to win, some changes must be made and made quick, the local management has got some new players in line for Saturday. In the first place it was necessary to have a new man in the box, as Curnane, who officiated on the slab last Saturday did not fill the bill at all. Consequently Hazelton, the former Dartmouth star pitcher, has been secured to twirl. He has been with the York beach team this year and been twirling winning ball all the year. When at Dartmouth, he was second only to the great Skillen as a pitcher, but professionalism was proven against him and he had to stop playing college ball. He has been tried out in the major leagues, but lack of sufficient experience caused him to be turned loose. Another of his former Dartmouth teammates will alse be seen in the line-up in the person of Schildmiller, who will play either first or in the outfield. He is equally good in either place and is a strong batter. He was captain of the Dartmouth team this year, and also played on the basket ball and football teams, being generally selected as one of the All-American ends. He is certainly one of the greatest all round athletes ever turned out by the New Hampshire college and ought to make a valuable man for the local team. Two others from this same college may play tomorrow, if they can be secured. One is Brady, the big first baseman of the Dartmouth team this spring, and the other is Norton, the former crack shortstop of the same team. Brady can be secured, but will not come without Norton. All these men are noted for their hitting abilities and ought to fit in nice with Quincy. The rest of the team will probably be the same as usual.

It is expected that a large crowd of rooters will accompany the team in a special car. The last time the team went to Randolph the biggest part of the crowd at the game was from Quincy, so it is thought the team will be followed by an equally large crowd this time.

The Atlantic Professionals will jump over to North Woburn tomorrow afternoon to play against the clever bunch of ball tossers of that town. The game will be a benefit for one of the North Woburn players, Rupp, who was seriously injured a short while ago, having two of his fingers cut off. Rupp was one of the hardest working players on the Woburn team and the appreciation of his fine work will be shown tomorrow. Atlantic will try and stop the long string of victories of the Woburn team. Johnny Driscoll and Dode Fitzgerald will do the battery work for the Quincy boys, while Pat Duggan, Armstrong, Fay, Murphy, Granahan, Wallace, Stanton and Billy Driscoll will form the rest of the team. The Quincy Independents of this city have the credit of a victory over the North Woburn team, so it will be interesting to watch the result.

GAVE SEVERAL ADDRESSES.

Colored Boy Picked up in West Quincy by Officer Dineen.

An elevn year old colored boy, who gave his name as Martin Fanning, jumped off a train at West Quincy Thursday evening and not seeming to know where he was, he was taken in tow by Officer Dineen. On being questioned by the police at the station he said that his mother was in the hospital and that his father was employed as a waiter. He gave several different addresses, claiming to have come from South Boston and other parts of the city. He was well dressed and bright looking and it is thought that he wandered from some home in Boston. He will be kept here until his home can be located.

UNION CHAPEL SOCIAL.

Pleasant Evening Enjoyed by Children at Houghs Neck.

A very enjoyable social was held Thursday at the Union chapel, Bay View avenue, Houghs Neck, under the direction of Rev. Mr. King, the pastor. There were about 200 boys and girls present, all being invited to come. There were also several mothers and fathers present.

The fun began at 7.30 and there was something doing all the evening. Songs and graphophone selections entertained the children during the evening, after which refreshments were served.

GLOUCESTER BOAT CAPSIZES AT SEA

Quickly Goes to Bottom With Eleven of Her Crew

Lunenberg, N. S., Aug. 20.—The Gloucester, Mass., schooner Orinoco, Captain Larkin, bound to the Banks, turned turtle in a gale twenty-five miles off Sambro, N. S., and when she sank she carried down with her eleven members of her crew. Of the seventeen fishermen aboard the craft, only six were saved.

There was a stiff south gale blowing at the time and a high sea running. The helmsman let the vessel up to the wind to clear the jib sheet. She came around and caught the sails back and capsized. Twelve of the crew were below asleep and only one man succeeded in getting on deck.

The vessel filled and sank so quickly that the men below were caught like rats in a trap and drowned. The inrushing waters kept them from coming up the companionway, and with one exception they were all carried down. The vessel filled and sank within three minutes after she turned over.

Captain Larkin is overwhelmed with grief by the accident which caused the loss of so many of his crew.

The Trinket Worm.

Among the novelties in nature is a small worm, called the trinket worm, characterized by this peculiarity, which gives rise to its name:

On the leaves of a wild vine, called the trinket vine, is found a small worm, which looks at first like a small piece of white thread and is almost motionless. If the leaf be taken off and placed under a glass case in the room this little thread will in the short space of twenty-four hours grow into a good sized caterpillar, beautifully colored and studded with golden spots. When matured it will climb up the glass, fasten one of its extremities to the glass roof, and, leaving the other hanging in the air, will curl itself into a variety of forms, presenting exquisite patterns for gold trinkets, such as earrings, brooches and clasps, changing from time to time in great variety, whence its name is derived.

BLOODLESS WAR IS OVER

Red Invaders Have Theoretically Captured Boston

Boston has been captured by the red invaders under Gen. Bliss and the cruel war is over. The deciding battle was fought at Hanover and the end came only when the red army turned Gen. Pew's flank.

Thursday's fighting consisted in keeping Gen. Pew's right wing employed by a feint attack, while the main body of the reds marched to Hanover Four Corners.

Here, by the most brilliant tactics and by a dint of splendid marching, the blue army made a stand, and here a spirited engagement was being fought when the umpires called a halt.

Then it was announced that the red army wagon train and part of its infantry had passed round the left flank of the blue army and all Gen. Bliss had to do was to fall back into Boston.

Thursday's fighting was the fiercest of the week. It began early and began at Bryantville, where the blues won. Gen. Bliss was employing but a small force here to keep the defenders busy while he was moving toward Hanover.

While the battle at Hanover was in progress a vanguard of the invaders and wagon train were started on the direct road to Boston and had reached Assonet when the fight was called off.

Gen. Pew declares that he had two battalions of infantry placed on the hill at Assonet and that as a matter of fact the red army advance was wiped out. This point will be settled by the umpires.

The first news Quincy had of the final result was at 3 o'clock, when an automobile carrying a white flag dashed through City Square toward Boston.

This was followed later by other automobiles carrying red flags and knowing ones about City Square figured it out that Boston had fallen into the hands of the invaders. This later proved to be true.

WANT MACHINE DESTROYED

Wrights Say Herring-Curtiss Aeroplane Violates Their Patents

New York, Aug. 20.—Wilbur and Orville Wright, the aviators, brought suit in the United States circuit court here against the Aeronautic society of this city, alleging that the Herring-Curtiss aeroplane, which the society recently purchased, is a violation of their patents.

The Wrights demand that the infringing machine be turned over to them for destruction and in addition asks that the court assess damage for three fold the amount for whatever losses they are found to have suffered by reason of the infringement and the public exhibition or rental of the infringing machine.

Aeronautic experts here generally view the suit as brought to determine legally whether the Wrights' patents cover effectually all aeroplanes constructed along similar lines to theirs. Regarded in this light, it is pointed out that the suit is likely to have a most important bearing on the development of aerial navigation.

Prevaricating Figures.

Those to whom the mathematical mind has not been given will appreciate the fun an Irishwoman, Mrs. La Touche of Harristown, has with numbers in "The Letters of a Noble woman."

"I do hate sums," Mrs. La Touche confesses to a friend. "There is no greater mistake than to call arithmetic an exact science. There are permutations and aberrations discernible to minds entirely noble, like mine; subtle variations which ordinary accountants fail to discern; hidden laws of numbers which it requires a mind like mine to perceive.

"For instance, if you add a sum from the bottom up, and then again from the top down, the result is always different."

Enough to Scare Any One.

While out walking with her papa and mamma one day Florence, aged four, ran some little distance ahead. As she got near a mule hitched to a farmer's wagon the animal began to bray. She wheeled instantly and, running to her mother as fast as she could go, said in round eyed astonishment, "Oh, mamma, sumfin' said sumfin'."—Delineator.

A Mean Revenge.

"You seem to be considerably elated over something."

"Yes. I have a friend who is almost stone deaf. I took him out home with me last night, and my wife had to sit there all the evening and merely nod and smile while he talked."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Katz, Clark and Birmingham Indicted by Grand Jury

ALLEGED THEFT OF STOCKS

Effort Will Be Made to Get Light on Reasons Which Prompted Windsor Trust Company to Accept Exorbitant Bonus For Securing Loan Which Resulted In Hypothecation of Heinze's Property

New York, Aug. 20.—Ripples from the big splash in the financial pool caused by the arrest of Donald L. Persch, a note broker, on charges of grand larceny, continue to widen, notwithstanding District Attorney Jerome has pronounced the case "just a vulgar steal," and they have reached Charles Katz, president of the Eastern Brewing company of Brooklyn, whose name has hovered about the edges of the case from its inception.

He was indicted last evening by the grand jury for complicity in the alleged theft of 20,000 shares of copper stock which disappeared from the custody of the Windsor Trust company, with whom it had been deposited as collateral for a loan of $50,000 to M. M. Joyce, a broker for F. A. Heinze, and which bobbed up again in the curb market, where Heinze bought it back again.

W. L. Clark, the broker who, it is alleged, approached the trust company for Joyce, was also indicted Thursday. He has been out on $12,500 bail, charged with grand larceny, for some days.

A warrant was sworn out also for Stirling Birmingham, the trust company's discharged loan clerk, who is accused of having accepted a gratuity of $250 for putting the loan through. To accept such a fee is a misdemeanor under the laws of this state.

All the men arrested or indicted thus far have been shown to be closely connected with Persch, who is still a prisoner in the Tombs, unable to raise the $50,000 bail demanded. Both Katz and Persch had desk room in Clark's office.

There remains to be cleared up one very essential point in the case, one that will determine whether or not Persch can make good his assertion that he acted for "a man higher up." The grand jury is particularly desirous of getting light on the reasons which led the trust company to accept $1000 bonus for its services in putting the loan through. John A. Young, president of the company, and his counsel were both before the grand jury yesterday for two hours, presumably in explanation of this aspect of the case.

The officers of the company have insisted from the first that they acted in good faith. The warrant for Birmingham has not been served, but it is not thought the former loan clerk will seek to elude arrest. His testimony as to just what orders his superiors gave him in the matter will be heard with interest.

HAZERS PAY PENALTY

Seven Cadets Dismissed From West Point Military Academy

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 20.—The rumors of suspension and expulsion that have buzzed about the United States Military Academy here for the past two months found official confirmation here when a final order, signed by the secretary of war and approved by the president, for the dismissal of seven cadets, was received.

The cadets are dismissed for being involved in the hazing of Rolando Sutton, a brother of Lieutenant James N. Sutton of the Naval Academy, whose death was investigated at Annapolis recently.

Charges were made several weeks ago that Sutton was assaulted while on guard duty, walking a lonely post, and beaten down by men wrapped in sheets and masked with pillow cases, and was found almost dazed afterwards and sent to the hospital suffering from severe injuries.

DEFENDERS VISIT QUINCY

Worcester and Lawrence Batteries at Merrymount Pk.

Quincy was invaded by the returning boys in blue last night Battery A of Boston going into camp at the reservoir at South Quincy, while Batteries B of Worcester and C of Lawrence went into camp at Merrymount park.

Battery B went into camp in the lower field at he park at 7.30 and half an hour later Battery C camped in the second field.

They had hardly entered the park when the sky became overcast and was lit up by sharp flashes of lightning. This was followed by the distant roll of thunder and a downpour of rain.

The soldiers pitched their tents as quickly as possible but they were not soon enough to prevent getting a ducking.

As soon as camp was established for the night, many of the boys in blue came to City Square and made a raid on the restaurants who did a thriving business for a time until the hungry appetites had been appeased.

The two batteries at Merrymount park broke camp at 7 o'clock this morning and started on their hike toward home.

Straggling squads of soldiers on horseback, bicycles, in automobiles and wagon trains were passing through Quincy all day Friday. While the majority of them were of the army of blue, many wore the red band on their hats.

Today there was even more passing than on Friday.

Squads of soldiers and camp wagons began to pass through City Square as early as 7 o'clock this morning and there was an almost continuous stream of them all the morning.

Three companies of cavalry A. B. and D. arrived in City Square at 11 o'clock this morning, after a ride of 28 miles. The three companies lined up on Hancock street, between the fountain and Granite street where they rested for some time before proceeding on their way toward Boston. The riders were all pretty well tired out after their long ride and they were also hungry for something to eat and to smoke. But little opportunity was afforded them to stock up however as but few were allowed to leave the line.

Those that did get away made a raid on the fruit stores and stocked up. The boys said that they had a good time the past week but were a little tired and sore from riding as they had not been at it long enough to become hardened.

TODAY'S COURT.

Neil Johnson was sent to the state farm for drunkenness at Randolph.

Hector E. Lynch of Allerton, Ernest Hodgson of Everett, Michael W. Quinlon of Boston, Charles O. Wales of Boston, Albert S. Johnstone of Boston, Tena Bolton of Boston were fined $15 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Quincy.

Fred W. Lewis of Weymouth was fined $10 for drunkenness and $25 for assault.

Charles McLaughlin and Frank Madden were arraigned for drunkenness and for disturbance on a street car at Quincy. They were fined $10 each for drunkenness and sentenced to fifteen days in jail each for disturbance on the street cars. Appealed.

NOT A SUCCESS.

Square Deal Plan as Carried Out in Quincy Compared With Milton.

In regard to the "Square Deal" signs, the Milton Record says: "Quincy's experiment in giving the motorists a 'square deal' by abolishing police traps and requesting those driving through the city to observe the speed laws, has not turned out wholly successful. Despite the lenient attitude of the city authorities, and co-operation of one of the motorists' associations, some drivers have been racing through the streets at such a high rate of speed that the police were compelled to re-establish traps, and are to put offenders into court. Such a result of an attempt on the part of a municipality to treat motorists fairly is unfortunate, for it does much to substantiate the belief held by many persons that ownership or control of a motor car induces disregard of law. The motorists claim that only a few of their number disregard the speed limits, yet if the list of persons fined each year in any of the municipal and district courts in or near Boston for violating the automobile law, were compiled, it would be a fair sized percentage of the total number of owners.

"Milton does not advertise to give motorists a "square deal," and yet there is not a town that treats them more fairly. Except in rare cases, where the condition surrounding the offenses were exceptional, Chief Pierce has not summoned motorists into court unless he had evidence that they were driving far in excess of the legal limit. Motorists know that they can drive up to the legal limit, and perhaps a little beyond it, without danger of prosecution in Milton, and yet there are many who take improper advantage of this privilege. Even with the wide margin permitted there has not been a week this summer when the Quincy court has not had before it, motorists accused of overspeeding in this town. And almost without exception substantial fines have been assessed. The experiences of Quincy and Milton indicate that some motorists are not inclined to keep up their end of a "square deal," and yet it does not seem possible that they can be so blind to their own interests as not to accept such advances towards an amicable understanding when they are offered."

JAIL SENTENCES.

Court Gives Jail Sentences to Street Car Disturbers.

Two young men, who gave their names as Frank Madden and Charles MsLaughlin undertook to supplement the conductor on a street car from Neponset Friday night and run things to suit themselves. The conductor remonstrated but all to no use. They were armed with beer bottles and one of them struck a passenger with a bottle. The men were turned over to a police officer and locked up for the night. This morning in court they were arraigned on two complaints. One for drunkenness and the other for creating a disturbance on a street car. The court imposed a fine of $10 each for drunkenness and sentenced each of them to fifteen days in jail for creating a disturbance. They took an appeal and were held in $300 each.

TWO ARMIES BREAK CAMP

Theoretical Carnage Gives Way to Peace In Massachusetts

INVADERS ON WAY HOME

New Yorkers Leave by Way of Fall River, While Connecticut Men Embark at Boston—Troops From District of Columbia Guests of First Corps of Cadets—Blues Have Full Day of Rest Before Breaking Camp

Boston, Aug. 21.—With the regiments of the Red army on the way to their homes and those of the Blue breaking camp this morning, the scene of the late war game in southeastern Massachusetts is fast returning to its normal appearance and the inhabitants of Middleboro, Bryantville and other fields of mimic battle are resuming their usual manner of life undisturbed by the presence of the soldiery or the rattle of gunfire.

The first of the Red army to leave the scene of theoretical carnage were the New York regiments, the Fourteenth, the Twenty-Second, and the crack Seventh. These went by train to Fall River, where they embarked on steamers with their baggage yesterday afternoon.

All the District of Columbia troops have accepted an invitation to pass a day at the camp of the First Corps of Cadets in Hingham, and it is uncertain just when they will leave for home.

Steamer New Hampshire carried a large number of umpires and other regular army officers when it left New Bedford for New York last night. These officers have for the most part been attached to the headquarters of General Wood, the chief umpire of the war game, at North Rochester.

A start for home was also made during the day by the negro cavalrymen of the Tenth regiment, U. S. A., who figured so prominently in the war maneuvers as scouts at the head of the army of the Red. They left overland for their post at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., and last night went into camp at Braintree.

At the headquarters of the Reds in Hanover last night General Bliss and his staff of assistants were practically all that remained of the army of 9000 which invaded the state a little less than a week ago. The final work of disbandment and of breaking camp was completed so that he left late last night.

In order to fill out the required tour of duty of one week, the Massachusetts troops, under General Pew, which constituted the defending army of the Blue, remained in camp near Hanover all day, most of the soldiers devoting the day to rest, which was much needed after their strenuous days and nights of marching and countermarching. Orders were given to break the Blue camp this morning.

The army transport Meade, having on board the Connecticut regiments which took part in the war game as a part of the Red army, left her dock in this city shortly after 1 o'clock this morning on her way to New Haven. The other transports, the Kilpatrick, Sumner and McClellan, remained at their piers, where they tied up yesterday afternoon.

It is expected that the District of Columbia troops will leave by the Kilpatrick and Sumner late this afternoon.

Friday was a day of official courtesies. General Bliss and General Pew exchanged calls and later General Pew called on General Wood. The battles of the now closed campaign were refought, their prominent lessons discussed, and all agreed that the maneuvers were the best and most instructive the country has ever seen.

WARATAH PROBABLY LOST

Search For Steamer With Large Passenger List Is Abandoned

Cape Town, Aug. 21.—The government and the admiralty have abandoned the search they have been prosecuting for the missing British steamer Waratah, which left Port Natal July 26 for London with 300 souls on board and since has not been reported.

They still have a slender hope that the Waratah yet may be found by reason of the fact that the French steamer Menarandra, from Madagascar for East London, is twenty-four days overdue. It has been suggested that the Menarandra may be assisting the Waratah.

ASTRONOMICAL "STUNTS"

List of Those Which Genuine Scientists Will Never Consider

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 21.—"The public should not be deceived into believing that we will ever be able to signal to or talk with Mars. It's the veriest rot."

With this statement Professor Pickering, president of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America, opened the tenth annual session of the society at the Yerkes observatory.

Professor Pickering, director of the Harvard observatory, and Professor Frost, who has charge of the Yerkes observatory, together drew up a list of the problems and "stunts" constantly discussed in newspapers which they say a genuine scientist will never bother his head about. Following is the list:

Going up in a balloon with telescopes in order to make observations.

Question of the inhabitability of the planets.

Talk of comets plunging into the sun and thus generating a heat sufficient to burn up the earth.

Rumors of the reappearance of the biblical star of Bethlehem. This star, according to Frost, is the plant Venus.

WOMEN TAKE A HAND

They Keep Troopers Busy Preserving Order at McKees Rocks

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—An alleged attempt to set fire to the plant of the Pressed Steel Car company at McKees Rocks, followed by much disorder when the striking employes of the car company fired several shots at over a hundred new men who were being taken into the works, kept the state constabulary and deputy sheriffs on the alert for twelve hours.

The women strike sympathizers became excited yesterday afternoon and about 500 gathered at the gate of the car plant and threw heavy paving stones over the stockade. A detail of troopers dispersed them.

The women later gathered near the car companyy's restaurant and suddenly the windows were shattered and stones began flying about the heads of the men in the place. Again the mounted troopers rode into the crowd of foreign women and plied their riot clubs lustily.

WRIGHTS' CHARGES OF INFRINGEMENT

Curtiss Declares That There Is Nothing to Support Them

Rheims, Aug. 21.—When Mr. Curtiss was informed that the Wright brothers had brought suit against the Aeronautic society of New York, alleging that the Curtiss aeroplane infringes certain of their patents, he said he had known for some time that something of this nature was contemplated, but he failed to see how it would result in anything but a lot of litigation.

"There is nothing to support the charge of infringement," Curtiss declared. "The best answer to this is the fact that we made public flights in America long before the Wrights did. This shows that there could not have been an imitation of their machine by us.

"All competent persons who are familiar with the two machines agree that they are unable to see how the charge of infringement can be supported, and I am confident that the court will uphold me."

TO TAKE EFFECT SEPT. 13

Mill Men to Be Asked For Higher Wages by New Bedford Operatives

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 21.—At a meeting of the New Bedford Textile council last night, it was voted to instruct the secretary to write to the manufacturers, asking that a restoration of the wages paid the operatives in this city previous to March, 1908, be made, the restoration to take effect on Sept. 13.

The date selected by the council for the restoration to take effect was on account of a standing agreemnt between th Manufacturers' association and the Textile council, providing that all projects for a change in wages, either reduction or increase, shall be submitted three weeks before the change is desired to go into effect.

Alfonso Raises Sideboards

London, Aug. 21.—A San Sebastian dispatch says that King Alfonso's appearance caused a mild shock among the members of the court who remained in San Sebastian when the king went to Madrid. During his absence the king had grown side whiskers like those worn by his father, Alfonso XII.

Not the Missing Archduke

Cleveland, Aug. 21.—John Salvatore, the Painesville machinist, is not the missing Archduke John Orth of Austria, according to official statements issued from the office of Baron Forster, the local vice consul of the Austro-Hungarian government here.

TO SET FOOT ON MEXICAN SOIL

Taft Will Leave Our Territory and Go to Cuidad Juarez

BREAKS A LONG PRECEDENT

McKinley Refused to Go Within Yard of Boundary Line While on His Visit to El Paso—Mexicans Making Great Preparations to Entertain President Taft, Who Anticipates Great Pleasure In Meeting President Diaz

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 21.—President Taft will break all tradition and will be the first chief executive of the United States to leave the nation during his term of office.

He accepted an invitation yesterday afternoon to visit Mexican territory on Oct. 16, when he will exchange visits with President Diaz of Mexico at El Paso and at Ciudad Juarez.

The invitation was conveyed by Senor Barra, the Mexican ambassador. Immediately after the ambassador left President Taft he cabled at great length in cipher to the City of Mexico.

McKinley when president came nearest to going beyond the jurisdiction of the Stars and Stripes. During a long tour of the country he visited the international bridge at El Paso, but so sensitive was he about leaving American territory that he avoided the middle of the bridge by a wide margin. He refused to go within a yard of the boundary mark, fearing that he might inadvertedly step over it.

At another time McKinley declined an invitation to an ice carnival in Canada, although personally he wished very much to attend.

President Roosevelt, on a visit to the canal zone, was careful that the battleship which transported him remained outside the three-mile limit on his way to Central America.

Word came back last night from Juarez that the city authorities there are making great preparations. They will hold a bull fight in honor of the two presidents, and have appropriated $20,000 for the festivities. The city will be profusely decorated.

Throughout Central America details of the visit are rumored to have political significance.

President Taft is looking forward with keen delight to his meeting with Diaz. He expressed last winter a desire for a personal interview with the man who for so many years has been at the head of affairs in the southern republic, and the meeting was arranged for on the occasion of the president's trip through the south.

The details of the visits are yet to be worked out. Diaz first will visit Taft in the city of El Paso, Texas. Then the president, crossing the international bridge over the Rio Grande, will return the call in the quaint little Mexican village. United States troops will be gathered at El Paso and Mexican troops at Ciudad Juarez to lend an official aspect to the exchange of formalities.

RIOTOUS SUFFRAGETTES

Shower Bricks Through Windows of Political Meeting Places

London, Aug. 21.—There were suffragette disturbances at several political meetings in the British isles last night. The women made determined efforts to invade St. Andrew's hall, Glasgow, and a crowd of their sympathizers came in violent contact with the police, which resulted in riotous scenes. Several of the suffragettes were arrested for throwing stones through the windows of the hall and oher breaches of the peace.

War Secretary Haldane, while addressing a meeting at Liverpool, was greatly disturbed by a number of suffragettes who took up a position on the roof of an adjacent building and showered bricks through the windows of the hall in which the meeting was being held. Seven of the women were arrested.

THE SONDERKLASSE RACES

Three American Boats to Meet German Yachts Are Selected

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 21.—The Wolf, owned by Caleb Loring of Boson, the Joyette, the property of W. H. Childs of Brooklyn, and Charles P. Curtis' Ellen, a Boston boat, will represent America in the Sonderklasse races with the German boats here Aug. 30 and following days.

The selection of the Wolf at a meeting of the Eastern Yacht club racing committee last night completed the list of three which were chosen from nineteen aspirants for the honor of meeting the German yachtsmen.

Great Damage by Electric Storm

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—One woman died of fright, a panic occurred in a street car which was struck by lightning, and a house roof was ripped off during a violent electrical storm here. The loss caused by the storm will exceed $500,000.

Hatters' Strike Continues

Newark, N. J., Aug. 21.—Governor Fort admits that his efforts to settle the hatters' strike have failed. The men have now been out more than five months.

A TINY BIT OF GROUND.

What May Be Done With a Plot Twenty by Fifty Feet.

A space 20 by 50 feet may under intensive culture be made to yield fresh vegetables for a small family through half the year. With 40 by 50 feet or 50 by 100 there can be a garden spelling riotous plenty.

Have the spading done as early as possible, use thoroughly rotted manure and supplement it with some good commercial fertilizer, either broadcasted and raked in or put in hills or drills.

It is a waste of seed, strength and time to plant a garden in poor soil. The seed will come up, the spindling plants will be harder to work than if they were luxuriant, and the resultant crop will be mostly conspicuous by its absence. So, if it be impossible to do more, make small rich beds, four feet wide and as long as the manure holds out, and sow them crosswise with such things as radishes, lettuce, cress, parsley, beets and onions. Make the rows a foot to eighteen inches apart or sow the radishes broadcast. Lettuce also yields more for broadcast sowing. Pull out the thriftiest as soon as edible and leave the rest to grow. Radish tops make excellent greens, something better flavored than mustard. By sowing thickly you can have dishes of greens.

Say the garden is 40 by 50 feet, this is something what the planting of it should be: Dwarf early peas, medium early and late peas, beets, early and later; beans in succession, including bush limas; carrots, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers. Do not adventure upon corn unless it be sweet corn planted on the pea space as a second crop, to come in just before frost. Make an asparagus bed all across one end of the plot, setting two-year-old roots and fertilizing the bed heavily in early summer just after cutting ceases.

Peas are so hardy they may be planted before snow is past, provided, of course, the ground is right when they go in. Make it fine and light, cover the seed at least three inches deep, then tramp the earth over them, setting the feet so one track touches the other. A quart of seed will sow a hundred feet of drill the proper thickness. An ounce of beet seed will sow the same row length.—Circle Magazine.

A MINISTER'S STORY.

Didn't Have the Intended Effect Upon the Congregation.

It is said that a New England minister once told the following story just before the collection was taken up:

"I have heard of a man, prosperous and well to do, who went to church one Sunday and put a cent—just a plain copper cent—in the collection box.

"On the way home he was overtaken by a sudden heavy shower and, having no umbrella, crawled into a hollow log by the roadside to keep himself dry until the downpour was over.

"Soon the log began to swell, and the wetter it got the more it swelled until the sides finally closed in on the prosperous citizen and held him in a grip like a vise.

"The rain ceased, but the unfortunate man was unable to move hand or foot. He shouted for help, but no one heard him. He was about to give up in despair when he suddenly thought of the cent he had dropped into the collection box that day, and it made him feel so mean and small that he crawled right out of the log without any further trouble.

"Now, if you expect to get caught in a shower and be obliged to take refuge in a hollow log on the way home, by all means put a cent in the contribution basket! If you don't anticipate a crisis of that sort—well, you will know what to do when the basket is passed."

The minister expected a shower of silver and bills to follow this story, but unfortunately just as the collection began a black cloud passed overhead, it suddenly began to sprinkle, and the pennies fairly rained into the contribution basket. Only one quarter, a solitary dime and a lone nickel were found among the coppers, and they got in before the shower began.

The congregation, it seems, had all left their umbrellas at home, and they were not taking any chances.—New York Times.

BOSTON LETTER

Attorney General Malone Candidate For Renomination

QUIET STATE CAMPAIGN LIKELY

State Convention Gossip—Many Contests for Senatorial Nominations This Fall

There will be no vacancy in the office of attorney general, for which nominations will be made at the next Republican state convention. Attorney General Dana Malone intends to succeed himself and there will be no contest to displace him.

There has been an understanding between Mr. Malone and several candidates in the state that the attorney general will stand for election once more. After that, those who wish to make canvass for the office will be able to do so.

There will then be without doubt a spirited contest for the nomination. Some of those who are said to intend to be candidates are District Attorney W. Scott Peters of Essex county, John J. Higgins of Middlesex, Richard W. Irwin of Northampton, and probably District Attorney Arthur D. Hill of Suffolk county.

In Essex county, District Attorney Peters has announced to his friends that he will not be a candidate for renomination next fall. This means a vigorous canvass for the Republican nomination. Already Assistant District Attorney Henry W. Attwill of Lynn is in the field, as well as ex-Senator Archie M. Frost of Lawrence, and E. Mark Sullivan of Ipswich. Mr. Attwill is a former member of the house and has also served in the senate. Mr. Frost has also served in both branches of the legislature. The latter has also done considerable special work for the attorney general's department at Washington and is a clever lawyer.

State Convention Interesting

From present appearances the state convention, which will meet in Symphony hall, Boston, on Oct. 2, will be an interesting gathering, not only because of its large membership, but by reason of the fact that ex-Governor Edwin U. Curtis of Boston will preside and former Governor John L. Bates of East Boston will prepare and read the resolutions. It is also expected that United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge will be present on that occasion and speak. Mr. Bates is a very popular man with the Republicans of the commonwealth and Senator Lodge is always able to attract a large audience whenever he is scheduled for a speech.

Political leaders do not seem to anticipate a very animated state campaign this fall. Democrats are not sanguine as to the results, and Republicans fail to see the necessity for making any such campaign as has been usually waged in past years. There is such general satisfaction with the administration of the state under Governor Draper, that even Democrats themselves have no great wish to displace him and put in a raw recruit.

Democrats Meet Sept. 30

The Democratic state convention will be held in Faneuil hall, Boston, Sept. 30. The Democrats intend to get ahead of the Republicans and not wait until the last minute to make their nominations. None of the details of this convention have been decided. The Democratic state committee has not yet met to choose a president of the convention or a chairman of the committee on resolutions. That will be done in a few days. Several names have been suggested as chairman of the convention, among them those of ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Neill of Boston, Congressman John A. Kelliher of Boston, James E. Cutter of Hyde Park, and ex-Congressman John R. Thayer of Worcester. It is understood that the Democrats are somewhat at a loss for issues upon which to appeal to the people in this campaign. Undoubtedly the veto of the so-called eight-hour bill, the question of beef inspection, direct nominations, and various other issues will be adopted in the party platform.

Contests For the Senate

There are likely to be a number of important contests for the senate this fall. In the Cape senatorial district John E. White of Tisbury is a candidate for the Republican nomniation to succeed Hon. Eben S. S. Keith of Bourne. Representative Thomas Pattison of Barnstable is also in the field. It is quite likely that there may be others enter the canvass before the caucuses are held. Senator Keith has srved the usual number of terms and retires for that reason. The district is overwhelmingly Republican.

In the first Suffolk district Senator Lewis Burnham of East Boston will be nominated without opposition. In the third Suffolk Senator Edward W. Dixon is not a candidate for renomination, but ex-Representative Daniel J. Kiley of ward eight is in the field and so is Representative Thomas J. Grady of ward six. Kiley is the right-hand man of Martin M. Lomasney, the boss of ward eight. He has just been admitted to the Suffolk bar and is so shrewd a politician that his chances are considered good by the political prophets. In the fourth Suffolk, where Senator James H. Doyle has just completed his first term, there are said to be signs of revolt. He is opposed by Alderman James M. Curley, but not as a candidate. Mr. Curley hopes to find someone who will be willing to run against Doyle. The latter has long been known as a sharp politician and his chances of success seem very good. In the fifth Suffolk Senator Charles D. B. Fisk of Brighton would like a third term. In order to secure it his ward would be compelled to go back on an agreement which was entered into at the time the district was formed, under which the nomination this year would go to ward eleven. In that ward Representative Myron E. Pierce is a candidate and is backed solidly by his own ward and will have considerable support, if not the entire support, of ward ten.

In the eighth Suffolk district Senator W. Prentiss Parker has now no visible opposition for a Republican nomination. There is, however, considerable feeling against him among the Republicans of the ward, and an effort has been made to induce ex-Senator Edward Seaver to accept the Democratic nomination and make a campaign against him. The district is comparatively close and Seaver is one of the most popular Democrats in the district. The chances, however, would seem to favor the re-election of Senator Parker. In the ninth district Senator Gideon B. Abbott is a candidate for a third term and ex-Representative A. S. Parker Weeks is a candidate to succeed him.

Mexican Authorities Keeping Reyes Under Surveillance

SERIOUS POLITICAL UNREST

Masonry Enters Into the Situation, President Diaz Being a Thirty-Third Degree Man, While Anti-Administration Candidate For Vice Presidency Belongs to Clandestine Lodge, by Which He Is Backed

Mexico City, Aug. 21.—General Reyes, governor of the state of Nuevo Leon, is surrounded by a detachment of government troops in the mountains near Galeana.

A number of members of the Reyist party have been arrested at Torreon for holding meetings. The charges against them are disorderly conduct.

Special news dispatches from various parts of northern Mexico agree that the situation throughout that region is one of much political unrest. General Trevino, newly appointed commander of the third military zone, is acting with vigor and decision, and during the last two days troops have been moved quietly and swiftly to places where they will be most needed in case of serious disturbances.

The trouble centers about the personality of Reyes, governor of Nuevo Leon and formerly minister of war. The Reyista party, with branches in every state, has named Reyes as a candidate for the vice presidency in opposition to Ramon Corral, the present incumbent, who has been nominated by the adminisration party.

Some time ago Reyes left Monterey for the summer resort of Galeana in the mountains. Yesterday he left Galeana for the ranch of a friend. Simultaneously troops were sent to the mountains and Reyes is surrounded by federal forces. This is believed to be but a precautionary movement on the part of the government.

Yesterday was Reyes' birthday, and those Montereyans who would have him named as the possible successor of President Diaz desired to make a demonstration in the Alameda of Monterey. General Trevino, however, curtailed many features of the program. He denied the use of military bands and prohibited displays of fireworks.

One of the most dangerous elements of the situation, according to the dispatches, is the alleged called meeting of all the clandestine lodges of Masons throughout the Monterey region. It is asserted that these fraudulent Masons have pledged themselves to support Reyes.

President Diaz is a thirty-third degree Mason and stands high in the estimation of Scottish Rite Masons in the United States. The special dispatches say that no general order has gone forth stopping the sale of firearms in Monterey, but none is to be had at any price, because the pawn shops and stores where weapons are kept have sold out their entire stocks.

Coal Company's Decision Regarding United Mine Workers

Toronto, Aug. 21.—The following statement is given out by President Ross of the Dominion Coal company:

"With regard to the rumors that negotiations were in progress for settlement of the strike, there is not one word of truth in them. No one has been authorized by the Dominion Coal company to discuss a settlement.

"The strike was called by the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America because the Dominion Coal company refused to recognize them, and this refusal will stand for all time, so there is nothing to discuss. The only settlement is for the men that remain in the district to come back to work."

BEES GET BUSY IN COURT

Magistrate Casts Dignity to the Winds and Flees Through Window

Columbus, Ga., Aug. 21.—Justice Daniels' court at Shack was broken up by a swarm of bees being dislodged from the ceiling.

During argument by an attorney the bees dropped down and scattered over the crowd. Almost every person present was stung.

The magistrate escaped through a window. Several persons were seriously injured by the bees.

Great Revival of Trade

New York, Aug. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that reports from the principal cities speak of wholesalers being taxed to supply the demand from retailers, of manufacturers experiencing a consantly broadening market for their products, and of a steadily increasing courage on all sides as tne outlook for large crops, of unprecedented money values, widens.

Two Boys Drowned

Lexington, Mass., Aug. 21.—An attempt to save from drowning Andrew Sullivan, 14 years old, cost Max Freedman, aged 15, his life, and was also unsuccessful, young Sullivan pulling his would-be rescuer down with him. Both boys lived in Roxbury and were on an outing.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grand-father of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Birthplaces of Presidents.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

Abigail Adams Cairn.

Penns Hill, erecteld June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Burial Place of Presidents.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple street. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

Hancock Cemetery.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744, and many other notable people.

John Hancock Birthplace.

Adams street, junction of Dimmick and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

Presidents Adams Mansion.

NEW CURATE FOR ST. JOHN'S

Rev. Patrick Scannell Appointed to Succeed Fr. Houston.

Archbishop William H. O'Connell has transferred Rev. Patrick Scannell, who for several years has been at St. Joseph's, Ipswich, to St. John's church, Quincy, where he will take the place of Rev. Francis Houston.

Rev. Fr. Houston has only been here a few months, coming as the successor of Rev. Julian E. Johnstone, who was transferred to West Roxbury. While here he has made hosts of friends by his genial and kindly manner and has many well-wishers on his departure.

He is a graduate of Boston college, class of 1896, and while there made quite a name for himself both as an athlete and as a scholar. He studied for the priesthood at St. John's Seminary, Brighton.

Since coming to Quincy he has had charge of the Holy Name Society of St. John's church and has also made quite a reputation as a preacher.

Rev. Fr. Scannell, who comes here in his place, is also a graduate of Boston College and St. John's Seminary, Brighton. His home is in Ipswich, but he was formerly located in West Newton. While in the latter place he became quite intimate with the late John Sullivan, brother of Hon. E. Mark Sullivan, assistant U. S. district attorney ,and a few years ago one of the best known newspaper men in the country, being for several years sporting editor of the Washington Post.

Rev. Fr. Scannell takes up his duties here at once. It is not yet known where Rev. Fr. Houston will be located.

SPEEDERS FINED.

Six Chauffeurs Pay Fines for Exceeding Limit at Quincy.

Six of the automobile speeders, who ignored the "Square Deal" signs put up by the Quincy Police, and ran their machines at a high rate of speed through the thickly settled part of Quincy paid $15 fines in court this morning.

The six included one woman, Tena Bolton of 91 St. Botolph street, Boston. The others were Albert S. Johnstone, Charles O. Wales and Michael W. Quinlan of Boston, Ernest Hodgson of Dover and Hector E. Lynch of Allerton.

The trap set by the police last Saturday was on Washington street between North and Chubbuck streets.

This is a very dangerous locality as there are five intersecting streets. The officers who manipulated the trap were Inspector Goodhue and Officers Bishop and George A. McKay. The speed attained by the six in court today ranged from 21 to 25 miles per hour.

The names and numbers of several other cars were taken and they will be summoned into court later.

CROONER OUT OF IT.

Ellen, Joyette and Wolf Selected to Meet the Germans.

As a result of Friday's elimination races at Marblehead the Ellen, Joyette and Wolf have been selected to meet the three German boats for the President Taft and Gov. Draper cups. Up to Friday's race the Crooner had a good chance of being selected as one of the three boats.

After the first race Friday, which was won by the Joyette, with Wolf second, and Crooner fourth, the Joyette was selected for the second boat.

The last race was between the Crooner, Wolf and Manchester and this race was won by the Crooner. A third race was started but was called off before the finish on account of light air.

Friday evening the committee met and selected the Wolf for the third boat.

BINGVILLE BARN DANCE

Notable Guests at Farmers' Ball at Houghs Neck

Despite the heavy thunder shower that broke over the city last evening, all roads seemed to lead to Houghs Neck and Brown's ballroom, where the annual Bingville barn dance of the Bingville club was being held. It was the fourth annual and as in past years was the biggest thing of the summer season at the beach, the hall being crowded to its utmost capacity, while outside were hundreds of others, who did not go in at all. Kutz's orchestra furnished the music and the fun lasted until 12 o'clock, when ten special cars took home the crowds, which came from Quincy, Roxbury, Dorchester, South Boston, Cambridge and other cities and towns in this vicinity.

There were all kinds of costumes on the floor, from the dainty little milk maid up to the real old country farmer. The crowds began to arrive about 8 o'clock and after that the cars from Quincy were all crowded ,eevn until late in the evening. There was quite a stir about 9.30 when it was rumored that Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was on his way to the beach and when he arrived about 10 o'clock, he was given a tremendous reception, hundreds all crowding around him to welcome him to the beach. After a few minutes receiving and getting his breath, he was called on for a few words, Sport Flaherty introducing him as "Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, our ex-mayor and our next mayor of Boston." He was greeted with wild cheers when he stepped to the platform and said a few words to those present. He did not mention politics, but simply said he was glad to be present among his friends.

After this little feature, the grand march was started, led by the Ex-Mayor and followed by about fifty couples all in costume. The judges awarded the prizes to George Twiss, Mrs. George Twiss, Frank Sampson, William H. Norton and Miss Rose Lamachia. The prizes were a barrel of flour, a pair of shoes, a derby hat and two $2.50 gold pieces.

The march over, dancing was then in order for the rest of the evening, Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald joining in with the rest of the happy throng of about 1500 that were trying to dance. Among the prominent guests present, outside the Ex-Mayor, were Mayor William T. Shea of Quincy, Ex-Congressman William S. McNary, Representative James F. O'Connell of the 12th district, Alderman Frank O'Hare of South Boston, Alderman Timilty and Senator John J. Butler. Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell was among the invited guests, but was unable to attend.

TAX RATES.

The tax rate of Winthrop this year is $17.90 per $1,000 a decrease of 30 cents from last year.

Boston's tax rate will probably be announced today and will be the same as last year.

Cause For Tears.

"What's the matter, dear?" queried the mother of five-year-old Helen, who was crying as if her little heart would break. "What are you crying about?"

"I w-want s-somethin'," sobbed Helen.

"What do you want?" asked her mother.

"I've f-forgot what I w-want," answered the little miss. "Th-that's what m-makes me c-cry."—Chicago News.

Overwhelmed.

"Your pulchritude is peerless. You are an astounding aggregation of feminine faultlessness. Be mine!"

"Sure," responded the girl. "I never could resist that press agent language."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Might Have Been Much Worse.

"You admit that the audience howled and whistled through the whole three acts of your play, and you say it might have been worse. How could it?"

"There might have been five acts."—Exchange.

He who thinks he has little to learn learns little and teaches less.

She Knew Him.

AUTO OVERTURNS.

Jamaica Plain Couple Have Narrow Escape on Sea Street.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Bartusch of Jamaica Plain, who have a summer home on Bell street, Houghs Neck, were thrown out of their automobile on Sea street last evening when the machine overturned near the Adams farm. Both struck on their left shoulders ,which were considerably injured, and they were otherwise bruised and shaken up. Another man, a woman and a child, who were in the automobile with Mr. and Mrs. Bartusch, were also sent flying into the street but they escaped injury.

Mr. Bartusch was operating the automobile and turned sharply to the right to get out of the way of a team coming in the opposite direction. The front wheels of the automobile struck a soft spot in the road and swung under so sharply that the machine was upset. Mr. Bartusch was cut about the face and the other occupants of the machine gave their attention to him.

A messenger was sent back to City Square for a physician and Dr. N. S. Hunting went down in his automobile and attended Mr. and Mrs. Bartusch. Later they were taken to their summer home and the automobile was taken to a garage for repairs.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

The BLACK BAG

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father.

"It was not Mr. Calendar." The fine lined brows arched in surprise, real or pretended, at his first blurted words and relaxed. Amused, the woman laughed deliciously. "But I am expecting him any moment. He was to have been here half an hour since. Won't you wait?"

She indicated, with a gracious gesture, a chair and took for herself one end of a davenport. "I'm sure he won't be long now."

"Thank you, I will return, if I may." Kirkwood moved toward the door.

"But there's no necessity"— She seemed insistent on detaining him, possibly because she questioned his motive, possibly for her own divertisement.

Kirkwood deprecated his refusal with a smile. "The truth is, Miss Calendar is waiting in a cab outside. I'm—

"Dorothy Calendar!" Mrs. Hallam rose alertly. "But why should she wait there? To be sure, we've never met, but I have known her father for many years."

She swung about quickly, preceding him to the door and down the stairs. "I am sure Dorothy will come in to wait if I ask her," she told Kirkwood in a high, sweet voice. "I'm so anxious to know her. It's quite absurd, really, of her—to stand on ceremony with me when her father made an appointment here. I'll run out and ask"—

Mrs. Hallam's slim white fingers turned latch and knob, opening the street door, and her voice died away as she stepped out into the night. Then, with a sudden, imperative gesture, she half turned toward him.

"But," she exclaimed, perplexed, gazing to right and left—"but the cab, Mr. Kirkwood?"

He was on the stoop a second later. Standing beside her, he stared blankly.

To the left the Strand roared, the stream of its night life in high spate; on the right lay the embankment, comparatively silent and deserted, if brilliant with its high swung lights. Between the two, quiet Craven street ran, short and narrow and wholly innocent of any form of equipage.

CHAPTER VII.

"WELL, Mr.—Kirkwood?"

"Mrs. Hallam," he stammered, "I"—

She lifted her shoulders impatiently and with a quick movement stepped back across the threshold, where she paused, a rounded arm barring the entrance, one hand grasping the doorknob, as if to shut him out at any moment.

"I'm awaiting your explanation," she said coldly.

He grinned with nervousness, striving to penetrate the mental processes of this handsome Mrs. Hallam. She seemed to regard him with a suspicion which he thought inexcusable. Did she suppose he had spirited Dorothy Calendar away and then called to apprise her of the fact, or that he was some sort of adventurer who had manufactured a plausible yarn to gain him access to her home, or—harking back to her original theory—that he was an emissary from Scotland Yard? Probably she distrusted him on the latter hypothesis. The reflection left him more at ease.

"I am quite as mystified as you, Mrs. Hallam," he began. "Miss Calendar was here at this door in a four wheeler not ten minutes ago, and"—

"Then where is she now?"

"Tell me where Calendar is," he retorted, inspired, "and I'll try to answer you!"

But her eyes were blank. "You mean"—

"That Calendar was in this house when I came; that he left, found his daughter in the cab and drove off with her. It's clear enough."

"You are quite mistaken," she said thoughtfully. "George Calendar has not been here this night."

He wondered that she did not seem to resent his imputation. "I think not"—

"Listen!" she cried, raising a warning hand, and, relaxing her vigilant attitude, moved forward once more to peer down toward the embankment.

A cab had cut in from that direction and was bearing down upon them with a brisk rumble of hoofs. As it approached, Kirkwood's heart, that had lightened, was weighed upon again by disappointment. It was no four wheeler, but a hansom, and the open wings of the apron, disclosing a white triangle of linen surmounted by a glowing spot of fire, betrayed the sex of the fare too plainly to allow of further hope that it might be the girl returning.

At the door the cab pulled up sharply and a man tumbled hastily out upon the sidewalk.

"Here!" he cried throatily, tossing the cabby his fare, and turned toward the pair upon the doorstep, evidently surmising that something was amiss, for he was Calendar in proper person and a sight to upset in a twinkling Kirkwood's ingeniously builded castle of suspicion.

"Mrs. Hallam!" he cried, out of breath. "Is my daughter here?" And then, catching sight of Kirkwood's countenance: "Why, hello, Kirkwood!" He saluted him with a dubious air.

The woman interrupted hastily. "Please come in, Mr. Calendar. This gentleman has been inquiring for you, with an astonishing tale about your daughter."

"Dorothy!" Calendar's moonlike visage was momentarily divested of any trace of color. "What of her?"

"You had better come in," advised Mrs. Hallam brusquely.

The fat adventurer hopped hurriedly across the threshold, Kirkwood following. The woman shut the door and turned with back to it, nodding significantly at Kirkwood as her eyes met Calendar's.

"Well, well?" snapped the latter impatiently, turning to the young man.

But Kirkwood was thinking quickly. For the present he contented himself with a deliberate statement of fact, "Miss Calendar has disappeared." It gave him an instant's time. "There's something fishy!" he told himself. "These two are playing at cross purposes. Calendar's no fool. He's evidently a crook to boot. As for the woman, she's had her eyes open for a number of years. The main thing's Dorothy. She didn't vanish of her own initiative. And Mrs. Hallam knows or suspects more than she's going to tell. I don't think she wants Dorothy found. Calendar does. So do I. Ergo, I'm for Calendar."

"Disappeared?" Calendar was barking at him. "How? When? Where?"

"Within ten minutes," said Kirkwood. "Here; let's get it straight." And he told what had happened, mentioning that he had not paid the cab driver.

"Thanks," said Calendar dryly. He bent his head in thought for an instant, then looked up and fixed Mrs. Hallam with an unprejudiced eye. "I say!" he demanded explosively. "There wasn't any one here that knew—eh?"

Her fine eyes wavered and fell before his, and Kirkwood remarked that her underlip was curiously drawn in.

"I heard a man leave as Mrs. Hallam joined me," he volunteered helpfully and with a suspicion of malice. "And after that—I paid no attention at the time—it seems to me I did hear a cab in the street"—

"Ow?" interjected Calendar, eying the woman steadfastly and employing an exclamation of combined illumination and inquiry more typically British than anything Kirkwood had yet heard from the man.

For her part, the look she gave Kirkwood was sharp with fury. It was more; it was a mistake, a flaw in her diplomacy, for Calendar intercepted it. Unceremoniously he grasped her bare arm with his fat hand.

"Tell me who it was!" he demanded in an ugly tone.

She freed herself with a twist and stepped back, a higher color in her cheeks, a flash of anger in her eyes.

"Mr. Mulready," she retorted defiantly. "What of that?"

"I wish I was sure," declared the fat adventurer, exasperated. "As it is, I bet a dollar you've put your foot in it, my lady. I warned you of that blackguard. There! The mischief's done. We won't row over it. One moment." He begged it with a wave of his hand, stood pondering briefly, fumbled for his watch, found and consulted it. "It's the barest chance," he muttered. "Perhaps we can make it."

"What are you going to do?" asked the woman.

"Give Mr. Mulready a run for his money. Come along, Kirkwood! We havent a minute. Mrs. Hallam, permit us." She stepped aside, and he brushed past her to the door. "Come, Kirkwood!"

He seemed to take Kirkwood's company for granted, and the young man was not inclined to argue the point. Meekly enough he fell in with Calendar on the sidewalk. Mrs. Hallam followed them out. "You won't forget?" she called tentatively.

"I'll phone you if we find out anything." Calendar jerked the words uncermoniously over his shoulder as, linking arms with Kirkwood, he drew him swiftly along. They heard her shut the door. Instantly Calendar stopped. "Look here, did Dorothy have a—a small parcel with her?"

"She had a gladstone bag."

"Oh, the devil, the devil!" Calendar started on again, muttering distractedly. As they reached the corner he disengaged his arm. "We've a minute and a half to reach Charing Cross pier, and I think it's the last boat. You set the pace, will you? But remember I'm an oldish man and—and fat."

They began to run, the one easily, the other lumbering after like an old fashioned square rigged ship paced by a liner.

The Thames appeared before them, a river of ink on whose burnished surface lights swam in long winding streaks and oily blobs. By the floating pier a county council steamboat strained its hawsers, snoring huskily. Bells were jingling in her engine room as the two gained the head of the sloping gangway.

Kirkwood slapped a shilling down on the ticket window ledge. "Where to?" he cried back to Calendar.

"Cherry Gardens pier," rasped the winded man. He stumbled after Kirkwood, groaning with exhaustion. Only the tolerance of the pier employees gained them their end. The steamer was held some seconds for them. As Calendar staggered to its deck the gangway was jerked in, the last hawser cast off. The boat sheered wide out on the river, then shot in, arrowlike, to the pier beneath Waterloo bridge.

FAITH IN MAHON

Chicago Railway Directors and Employes Expect Him to Settle Trouble

Chicago, Aug. 21.—William D. Mahon, president of the International Street Car Men's union, who is expected to arrive today to take charge of the threatening street car situation, is depended upon by union leaders and by officers of the street railway companies to bring permanent peace to the disputants.

WILLIAM D. MAHON.

The companies are determined to make no further concessions. Before a strike is called formally, Mahon, under the constitution of his organization, must first attempt to settle the questions in dispute and then, failing in this, he must call on the general executive board of the organization and get a majority of the members to sanction a strike. Although the situation is serious, it is believed it will end in an amicable settlement.

AMERICAN CAPITAL IN ASIATIC TURKEY

To Build Railroad Which Will Ultimately Reach India

Constantinople, Aug. 21.—The chamber of deputies discussed the question of granting a concession to an American syndicate which seeks to construct a railroad from Sivas, Asiatic Turkey, to Lake Van, near the Persian frontier, a distance of 1250 miles.

The chamber approved the scheme, on condition that no more advantageous proposal is made within the sixteen months the company asks to study the route. It is proposed that the line subsequently will be extended across Persia to India.

ACTED UNDER ORDERS

Claim of Windsor Trust Clerk In Regard to Pushing Big Loan Through

New York, Aug. 21.—Sterling Birmingham, the dismissed loan clerk of the Windsor Trust company, said through his counsel that he was "tired of being made the goat." An investigation was what he would most welcome; it would give him the chance to show that throughout his connection with the loan of $50,000 to M. M. Joyce, a broker for F. A. Heinze, he acted under orders from his superiors.

The grand jury is anxious to determine this point, because it was on the affidavit of President Young that Birmingham was arraigned in the police court, charged with a misdemeanor in accepting $250 as a fee for his services in pushing the loan through. His bail was set at $500, which he found no difficulty in furnishing, for further examination next Tuesday.

$400,000 FROM NEW DUTY

Sum Which Americans' Foreign-Built Yachts Will Yield

Washington, Aug. 21.—It is estimated that nearly $400,000 will be added to the revenue of the government when, on Sept. 1 next, the tariff on foreign-built yachts is collected by the customs division of the treasury department.

An annual tax of $7 a ton is assessed by the Payne law on all pleasure craft built abroad and chartered or owned by Americans for a period of six months or more. As an alternative the owners of such yachts may pay an ad valorem duty of 35 percent, for which they will be entitled to all of the privileges of American entry for their yachts.

Air Brake Failed to Work

Oxford, Mass., Aug. 21.—Harry B. Tuck, a motorman, was internally injured, possibly seriously, in a rear-end collision of trolley cars here, in which four passengers received minor bruises. The collision was due to the failure of an air brake to work.

Negro Murderer Lynched

Fitzgerald, Ga., Aug. 21.—Henry Taylor, a negro, charged with assaulting Mrs. Josh M. Vickers and then murdering her and her infant, was taken from the sheriff of Wilcox county and lynched.

Disturbers Will Be Exiled

Madrid, Aug. 21.—The minister of the interior announces that he will rigidly apply to Catalonia the law authorizing deportation and exile for offences against public order.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A New "Bright Child" Story from the Hub—A Bostonese Maiden Who Thinks New York Slow—Not All Blondes of the Modern Athens are in Jail—Brothers and Sisters, "Fraternalists," tell the Plain Truth for Each Others' Benefit—Another of Boston's Romantic Woodland Areas Has Been Opened to the Populace.

Apropos of the gypsy moth crusade in and around the Hub the story is told of a little girl who, on seeing a gentleman wearing a light grey coat with a wide mourning band on his arm, called to her mother and asked: "Oh, Mamma, how does he keep them from crawling up the other arm?"

Naturally it is fashionable to be in the swim. Bostons popular society belle, Miss Eleanor Sears, in company with two or three other prominent members of the summer colony at Newport, has set a very good example. Miss Sears is an exceptionally fine swimmer and her feats in this line have spurred on many of the best known members of the Newport set to learn the useful art. Swimming lessons are given morning and afternoon at Bailey's beach, and the majority of the young ladies from the Hub, among whom Miss Sears is an acknowledged leader ,are taking advantage of every opportunity to become expert swimmers. It is to be hoped that this versatile young lady has started a "fad" which will extend to the members of her sex in all classes and walks of life who should have been compelled to learn to swim at the same age that they learned the difference between oceans and continents.

Peroxide, indeed! Is the blonde the ideal type of desirable citizen in Boston? According to Major Woodruff, surgeon of the United States army, the percentage of blonde criminals and insane patients around New York is greatly in excess of that of the brunettes, but statistics in the Hub institutions show that the blonde is very much in the minority. Dr. Woodruff attributes much of the blonde criminality and insanity to too much sunshine, in which explanation is doubtless found the reason for the lack of these evils, in and around Boston, where the climate is more in accordance with the natural environment of the blonde and where the sunlight generally speaking, is neither severe nor of prolonged duration, these conditions tending to bring out the best in people of the light complexioned races. There is a lively controversy on between Major Woodruff and several eminent physicians as to the truth of his theories of the effect of sunlight on the nervous system ,but in the meantime the Hub seems to be a good place for the fair haired individual to reside.

New York strikes the Boston girl as being rather slow. She has been interested and somewhat amazed to see that Gothamites approve of the new "school for deportment for saleswomen and other women wage earners," which has recently been established in Chicago, and which is evidently regarded as a novel and enterprising project. Department stores of the Hub inaugurated the idea a number of years ago, and the majority of large stores in the city have their classes for salemanship. Good salesmanship and deportment has also been made the subject of study in one of the Boston evening schools, and the Women's Educational and Industrial union has established regular courses of instruction in this art. These schools are undoubtedly a large factor in producing Boston's efficient and attractive saleswomen who are generally admitted to be above the average in refinement, courteous treatment of their customers ,and the other qualifications which go to make up the desirable saleswoman.

The right to say what they think of each other is something that most brothers and sisters believe they possess, and the fraternalists, ladies and gentlemen, who have been in session in Boston this past week have not hesitated to exercise this right. These representatives of six billion dollars' worth of people's insurance have been most frank in urging the weaker members of their clan to put their houses in order before disaster overtakes them. That is certainly the office of the good brother. President Piper of the national fraternal congress was able to report that many of the associations have already adopted rates high enough to be perfectly safe and that others are about to change their methods. Fraternal insurance has excellent features; but many of the associations up to now are generally understood to have attempted to give insurance to their members at impossibly low rates. So far as the good old Bay state is concerned it looks as if the next few years may witness a lively competition among three types of inexpensive insurance. One of these will be the savings bank insurance, which is already after a short time pretty well established in many centres and which will be represented everywhere before many more months have passed. The rates for this have been designed by the State Actuary to be the lowest that are consistent with absolute safety, any profits accruing being turned over to the policy holders. A second form will appear in the new schemes of the insurance companies who are developing a plan of insurance of large groups of people, thus cutting down the cost of soliciting and keeping the business. The third type will be the reorganized fraternal order.

Boston's much talked about Fells have at last been made available for the hundreds of thousands of people who can visit the places that are reached inexpensively, by the comfortable trolley car. Everybody in New England probably, has heard of the exquisite forest park of 3,000 acres about eight miles north of the golden dome. Yet it is surprising how few have ever explored its rocky vastnesses and shady glades or even strolled on the level roads around its gleaming lakes. The great domain was set aside in 1889 to preserve forever something of the solitude that once brooded over all New England uplands. In many parts it is like a bit of Newfoundland or Labrador, set down amidst a million people. For more than fifteen years it has been intended that an electric line should run straight through the reservation, making its beauties accessible to those who cannot explore by carriage or automobile and incidentally creating a new through line between the Hub and the cities of the Merrimack valley. About a year and a half ago permission was at last given to the Boston Elevated Railway company to build over a bisecting route as far as Spot pond, one of the largest and most delightful lakes of this sesction, and to the Boston and Northern company to continue the line past Bear hill, the hightest point of land in the Hub's northern suburbs to Stoneham most delightful lakes of this section, of well ballasted roadway was opened for traffic on Sunday, August 15. And if anybody thought that people in a big city are not interested in discovering new scenic charms a few trips back and forth on the opening day over the new line from Sullivan square terminal out to the cool pleasant shores of the lake easily changed his opinion. The Elevated officials were obliged to run 91 great semiconvertible car trips to accommodate the crowds that gathered for coveyance over the unaccustomed route which crosses the wide marshes of the lower Mystic river between Somerville and Wellington, skirts the southern edge of the Fells and then on well constructed smooth running tracks ascends a region of beetling precipices and shady glens to the very heart and centre of the ancient forest. Bostonians fond of walking and snow shoeing have long been enthusiastic over the delights of this princely domain of all the people. Henceforth it will draw thousands of sight seers where formerly it attracted hundreds; but such is its extent and its native wildness, that the silence will still be unbroken over the greater portions of its diversified surface.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Quincy Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Quincy people testify to permanent cures.

Mrs. E. Burke, living at 143 Quincy St., Quincy, Mass. says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills an excellent remedy for Kidney trouble, both my husband and myself having used them and the results were of the most satisfactory nature. Mr. Burke had such a severe pain in his back that he could hardly do his work, but Doan's Kidney Pills fixed him up in good shape. They were procured at the Cox Drug Store and have our highest recommendation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United Statts.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Thinking of Something Else

By MAUD HALLOWELL

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"Whatever you do, Sue," said Dr. John Murray's wife, half laughing, half angry, "don't you ever marry an absentminded man. A man that is always 'thinking of something else,' like that big husband of mine, may be wonderfully good at his profession, because that's what he's always thinking about, but he is surely a domestic trial at times."

Mrs. Murray laughed, her ill nature having evaporated completely under the heat of her little outburst. Her visitor, Susan Harland, laughed with her, for Dr. Murray's wonderful feats in his fits of abstraction were famous.

"Why, Sue," continued Mrs. Murray, laughing gayly at the recollection, "do you remember when I had that touch of rheumatic fever? One night when I was burning with thirst I woke John and said to him, 'John, if you don't get me a drink of water quick I don't know that I'll live till morning.'

"He got up, sort of dazed, walked over to the mantelpiece and came back to me holding out an empty vase. I wanted a drink of water that much that I hung on to my patience until he was wide awake and knew what I was talking about. Then he went to the refrigerator and came back with a glass brimming full of good cold water. But, if you will believe it, Sue, he just stood there looking at me, and before I could say a word that man drank every drop of that water himself with me glaring holes through him. I declare, it makes me angry to this day!"

Mrs. Murray ran to the foot of the stairs and called out: "Hurry up, now, John! Sue and I are both waiting. You will find your evening clothes laid out for you in the bedroom, and there isn't any time to lose."

Miss Sue and Mrs. John sat down to talk. They exhausted their store of new gossip after awhile and began to fidget. "Goodness," said Mrs. Murray at last, looking at her watch, "that man must have done something foolish! It can't be taking him all this time to dress!"

Dr. John had done nothing foolish. He had done something rather wise. He was sound asleep in bed.

Miss Sue overheard some very active and excited conversation carried on exclusively by Mrs. Murray. At last the deep bass of her husband resounded. "My dear," said Dr. John, "don't you know anything about the wonderfully powerful control that habit has over all the species of the animal kingdom? When I began to undress wasn't it natural for me to keep right on and get into bed? Of course it was."

"No, Sue; don't you ever marry an absentminded man," said Mrs. Murray impressively when they drove away at last, with Dr. John safely opposite them.

"As long as he isn't too absentminded to attend the wedding, Sue," chuckled Dr. John, "you take him, provided his name is Dick Kendall."

Sue was glad that the darkness hid her blushes.

"Dick is going to do something great in chemistry, I do believe," said Dr. John. "There's his compound of phospho"—

"A wife wants something besides your old phosphates and other ill smelling things," said Mrs. Murray. "Dick Kendall is as bad as you are. He's just as likely as not to come to the dance tonight with his old laboratory coat on."

Dick Kendall did not fulfill Mrs. Murray's dark prophecy literally, but he did so in effect. It is true that he was soberly and blamelessly clad in his evening clothes, being correctly attired even to the tie, but the tout ensemble was somewhat marred by the sad fact that he had a patent leather pump on one foot and a bright russet shoe on the other.

Sue blushed, and then she flushed, and then she grew angry as the titters and smiles ran around the room when unconscious Dick hurried forward to meet her.

She was not a young woman given to exaggerate trifles, but she was not a stoic philosopher either. No doubt it is a small thing to have one's evening pleasure marred a bit, but it seems unduly important at the time.

Luckless Dick was doomed to further disgrace. He had barely repaired the disaster of the shoes by sending a messenger posthaste to his home for the other pump when something worse happened.

During a waltz, when Miss Sue was his partner, somebody brushed against Dick. There was a sharp crackling of broken glass, and the next instant the couple was wreathed in beautiful violet smoke that gradually filled the room.

Nobody had leisure or desire to observe the beauty of its color though. It was so instantly suffocating that there was a mad, wild rush for doors and French windows.

The accident filled Sue's cup, and it brimmed over—only a little, but too much. In her anger she stamped her foot and cried: "Dick Kendall, your absentmindedness apparently extends only to me and not to your profession. It is plain that you care more for chemistry than for me, and it would be a thousand pities to disturb your devotion."

She stripped the ring from her finger, and he took it in bewildered silence. Before he could reply she had turned her back and the next moment was walking up the corridor with Dick's pet aversion, Charles Maule, whom everybody called "the model Maul," in apt description of his mental equipment.

Miss Sue's words had been uttered in the hearing of many persons. Next day the news of the broken engagement was all over town.

Dick tried to placate the girl, but with characteristic lack of policy he did not wait for her anger to cool off. The result was that the breach seemed final to him. In his simplicity he believed every angry word she said and did not realize that the girl was eager to forgive as soon as she had punished him a little.

Dick was absentminded about little things, but not about great ones. With a heart full to breaking, he made his preparations to leave the place.

A week afterward Sue stopped at Dr. Murray's house to accompany Mrs. Murray and the doctor on a drive into the country. Dr. John was not there when she arrived.

"I hope he hasn't gone to bed again," said Sue, smiling. She was cheerful, for she had made up her mind to write to Dick, forgiving him and asking him frankly to forgive her.

"No," said Mrs. John. "Didn't I tell you where he was going this morning? He went to drive Dick Kendall down to the harbor to see him off on the Viking."

Susan Harland's half opened lips and startled eyes showed her surprise.

"Didn't you know?" said Mrs. Murray, embarrassed. "Dick is going on a cruise around the world with his friend Randall, who bought that big yacht Viking this spring."

Susan sprang up, casting aside all pretense, like the honest, warm hearted girl she was. "Kate," she cried, "I can't let him go! I cannot! I cannot!"

Mrs. Murray caught the girl in her arms. "Darling," she said, with a sob, "I thought that it was all over between you."

"I was wicked," said Sue. "As if I would lose Dick for all the absentmindedness in the world! Oh, Kate, we must stop him! I don't care what people think."

"Sue, dear," said Mrs. Murray, "it is too late. Look!" She led Sue to a window that commanded a view across a bluff and far to sea. Some miles out a great steam yacht was steaming toward the horizon.

"I must cable to him at once—at once!" said Sue passionately. For a few minutes Mrs. Murray made no reply, but held her arms around the girl and stroked her hair.

"You must be patient, dear, now, and plucky for awhile. The Viking is bound to the south Pacific, and we shall not be able to reach her for some time—perhaps for six months."

She led the sobbing girl into the library, bestowed her comfortably in an easy chair and wisely left her alone to have her cry and her trouble by herself till the first keenness should have worn off.

She had scarcely re-entered the drawing room before she heard her husband driving up to the door. A moment afterward there entered two men, looking very, very sheepish and guilty. They were Dr. John and—Dick Kendall.

"Now, don't scold and don't laugh, Kate," implored Dr. John. "I'll tell you what happened. I picked Dick up all right at his lodgings, and we did all you told us to do, saw that everything was locked up and counted his baggage and made sure that he had his money in his pockets. See, here's your memorandum, all checked off. But, Kate," added Dr. John, with a twinkle, half humorous, half ashamed, "you forgot to add on the memorandum that Dick was to be delivered on board the Viking."

"And so, you know," interposed Dick, eager to divert blame from his friend's head, "I got to telling John about a new test for white blood corpuscles, and we got interested and stopped for just a few minutes at the board of health laboratory."

"And then, as usual, you forgot all about a little thing like a trip around the world," Mrs. Murray burst out. But, strangely enough, there was a delighted smile on her face.

Taking Dick Kendall by the shoulder, she pushed him toward the library. "Now, you great, useless child," said she, with her eyes shining, "you go in there and sit down for a moment. I have something to say to the doctor."

She closed the door behind him and ran to Dr. John, clapping her hands softly. Dr. John didn't look at all absentminded when she whispered to him, but gazed at the door with as much eagerness and joy in his face as there was in hers.

They waited a quarter of an hour with highly commendable patience. Then Mrs. Murray walked to the door and knocked, but not before she had heard Dick Kendall's deep voice:

"Think of something else? Sue, I couldn't thing of anything except that I had lost you."

"Oh!" came Sue's voice. "And how about the test that made you forget the yacht?"

"Well," replied Dick, "I might forget a little thing like that, but you're not a little thing except in size."

And before the door opened Sue said: "Stop, you bear! You've nearly knocked my hat off."

Coming Near It.

First Hobo—Gee! I'm glad my clothes tore as easy as they did when that dog grabbed me! I bet he would say things if he could talk.

Second Hobo—Well, to judge by his present acts, he is chewing the rag some.—Baltimore American.

Why?

"She is an actress."
"Is she really?"
"Yes."
"What makes her do it?"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

—One reads English papers, like the Times, for instance, with constant surprise at the amount of space devoted to the habits of animals and birds and the distribution of flowers. These things seem to take the place of the chapters of scandal with which American history is illustrated in many of our daily papers.—Christian Register.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

While Hermann The Great lived he was the master magician of his time and the only person with whom he shared his secrets was his wife. Hermann was always devising something new, something startling, and at the time of his death had partly worked out several illusions which he fully expected would surpass anything he had previously produced. His widow has been working on these ever since and is now ready to show them to the public. The first presentation will be made at Keith's theatre during the week of August 23d. The Fadettes will give their fifth week of popular concerts, and the vaudeville bill announced is of the usual high order. It will mark the return after a number of years of Fred Hallen and Maude Fuller, who will appear in a new sketch "The Lesson at 11 P. M." The Kitabanza Troupe of Japanese acrobats, who are said to be the favorites of the Mikado, are also on the bill. Those clever German comedians, Raymond and Caverly will also be heard. Others are Tom Dempsey, the story teller, Hallen and Hayes in a singing and dancing act, and others.

Orpheum Theatre.

As might be expected Manager Lindsay Morison has decided to hold the great New England play "Quincy Adams Sawyer" over next week. The enormous success attending the production this present week fully justified Mr. Morison's strenuous efforts to get the play released for stock. No more thorough presentation of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has ever been seen on any stage. Manager Morison's enterprise is shown in the real farm-yard scene which he has installed in the big red lobby of the theatre. Farmyards in the center of the city are not at all common and for this reason thousands of people flock every day to see the cow milked and the sheep, pigs and hens fed. Special atteniton has been paid to the sanitary arrangements of this farm-yard. One of the chief inspectors of the H. P. Hood Company, the firm which is furnishing the cow, is on hand daily to see that the place is kept as neat as a pin. At four o'clock each afternoon the lady patrons of the theatre may have a refreshing drink of milk either warm or iced and the glasses are fully sterilized each time after using.

Highland Park.

Phil D. Greene, the world-famous equilibrist, has been engaged by the Old Colony St. Ry. Co., to appear and give free exhibitions afternoon and evening all next week at Highland Park. He does one of the most thrilling and thoroughly sensational acts that have ever been seen at the park. It is in the nature of a globe balancing act which requires 15 minutes. He has a spiral runway, flat and without guard rail or groove, 183 feet long up and down which he travels upon a round wooden ball 25 inches in diameter to a height of 50 feet. Not content with this feat during which the slightest misstep would hurl him to the ground ,he has a great teeter-board 30 feet from the ground upon which he does all kinds of startling balancing stunts. During the evening performance he adds picturesqueness and brilliancy by making his final descent amid a veritable shower of gold and silver sparks from a fireworks display which is touched off.

Now the City Fathers Can Sleep.

Municipal ownership of the Delta (Ia.) gas plant has been a losing proposition. The plant has been turned over to a Richland man, who agrees to run the plant and give the city $1.40 gas. For a long time the light plant has been causing the members of the town council to "lie awake nights," for, to tell the plain, unvarnished truth, the Delta gas plant is a losing proposition and is a great big elephant or something or other on the hands of the council, and they have been looking around for some way to relieve the situation, like the Irishman who sneaked up and caught the wildcat by the tail and began swinging it around, afterward finding out that it was not what he had thought it was. He yelled lustily to his friend Pat, "For God's sake come and help me let go of the dom thing."—Light.

Filling Their Pockets In the Dark.

A village in Georgia owning a municipal electric plant has passed an ordinance forbidding the use of tungsten lamps. Evidently the city fathers know all too well that the new lamps will reduce the electric bills by fully a third and do not mean to suffer this financial loss. A number of progressive electric light companies in large cities are now furnishing these lamps to customers at cost and without increasing the price of current.—Dallas (Tex.) Times-Herald.

VETERANS AT SQUANTUM

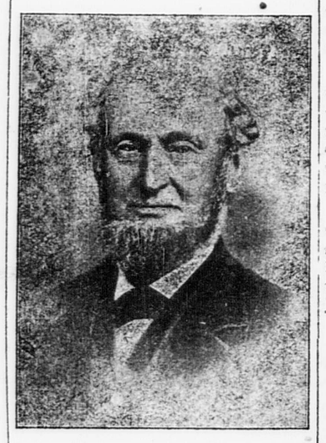

W. M. French Hose Association Holds Annual Reunion

When raging flames are nigh
God and the Firemen, is the people's cry;
But when it's out and all is righted
God is forgotten and the Firemen slighted.

From far and near Saturday, came the members and friends of the Washington M. French Hose Association, to unite with them in what was the largest and most enthusiastic reunion the Association has ever held.

As in other years the reunion was held at Squantum at Lee's Inn, and the weather and day was ideal for the affair.

The Washington M. French Hose Co. was one of the famous pieces of fire fighting apparatus that flourished in the good old days when Quincy had but little thoughts of becoming a metropolitan city, and was named for the father of Fred H. French, the first and only president of the present association.

WASHINGTON M. FRENCH

The history of the company dates back to 1868 but the present association was only formed in 1903. After the famous lockout and later disbanding of the old company the deposed members formed what was known as the twenty associates. In 1903, however, a permanent organization was formed whose scope was so broadened that it now numbers among its members, many who were attached to the other old Quincy fire companies.

The annual reunions result in bringing together, once a year, many of the old fire fighters now living in Quincy as well as those who have removed to other towns, who gather about the festive board and recall and retell incidents of other days gone but not forgotten.

The main party Saturday left Quincy on a special car at 1.50. Later cars took others so that at 5 o'clock the hour for the dinner ,there were upwards of eighty present.

It was by far the largest reuhion ever held. Many of the guests were present for the first time, but promised themselves the pleasure of being regular attendants at future gatherings.

In the party were many who were prominent in fire department circles. These included ex-Chief Engineers John Whitney Hall and Amos L. Litchfield, Ex-Assistant Engineers James T. Penniman, who is in his 91st year, Joseph W. Hayden, James H. Elcock, James N. White and Robert J. Hayes, District Engineer Frank C. Packard and Capt. Charles P. Costa of the present department.

For dignitaries there were Mayor William T. Shea and Ex-Mayors Charles H. Porter and Charles M. Bryant and the following from the present city government: Principal Assessor Warren W. Adams, City Clerk, Harrison B. Keith; Inspector of Buildings, Warren S. Parker; City Engineer, E. C. Sargent; Tax Collector, T. J. Carey; Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr. and George T. Magee, Clerk of Council; Ex-Councilmen John O. A. Field, Aubrey R. Keith, George H. Wilson, Jesse F. Curtis and Eugene R. Stone; Representative William R. Thomas and Ex-Representative Peter T. Fallon and Edward J. Sandberg, Dr. E. M. Bowker of Brookline and J. M. Schaffer, editor of the Firemen's Standard.

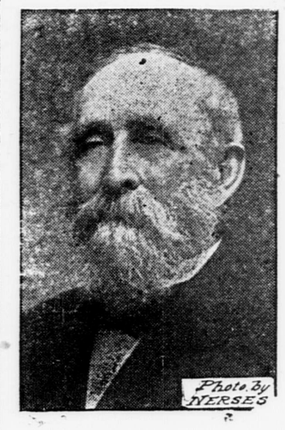

Others present were. W. A. Coffin, Daniel J. Desmond, Edward Desmond, Galen Vinton Bowditch, George W. Holden, Frank L. Carleton, Richard Newcomb, George H. Ford, Quincy Torrey, Thomas M. Butler, Albert Keating, George H. Foss, Henry P. Miller, James E. Maxim, Arthur C. Merritt, Joseph C. Morse, W. W. Hayward, James W. Pierce, Asa A. Pope, Walter S. Randall, Frank Wilkie, W. A. Hills, L. M. Hersey, George G. Tirrell, W. E. Maybury, Eliab Ramsdell, Daniel Ford, Albert G. Dolliver, John A. Dinnegan, Dennis J. Crowley, Ed. Kittredge, James Nicol, Irving B. Vose W. H. Thomas, Phillip Cook, Frank Billings, Edward Dunn, Frank J. Leonard, William F. Loud, Joseph W. Dennen, F. J. Hitchborne, William Robb, J. L. Mitchell, George M. Anderson, Arthur Hultman, J. F. Stone, Frank W. Hall and Walter M. Packard.

During the afternoon the guests amused themselves according to each individual taste and in listening to music by Wilson's orchestra. During all this time the genial president, Fred H. French was here, there, and everywhere, looking carefully after the pleasure and comfort of the party.

At a little after 5 o'clock the announcer said dinner was ready and for the next hour little was heard except the rattle of dishes and Galen's tuneful voice as he sang some of the old familiar airs. President French occupied the seat at the head of the table and on his right and left were the Mayor and two ex-Mayors.

There was but little after dinner speaking. President French welcomed the party and said he was happy to repeat what he had said a year ago, that death had not entered the ranks of the association during the year and that all were here today.

Mayor Shea offered his word of congratulation and spoke of the large gathering present. He also incidentally alluded to that famous run made by the old Granite Co.

JAMES T. PENNIMAN

When James T. Penniman, the oldest veteran of them all was introduced the party rose as one man and gave him three cheers loud and long. Mr. Penniman said he was glad to be present and thanked them for the reception given him.

Ex-Mayor Porter in his remarks continued his story of old Quincy, which he began a year ago. "Where we now are," said Col. Porter, "was once a part of Dorchester and remained so until 1855 when it was annexed to Quincy."

He also spoke briefly of some of the older residents of Squantum. Quincy he said, was delightfully rich in its associations, delightfully rich in its men, and women and everything that goes to make a good town appeals to every citizen. We shall go away from here today feeling we are citizens of no mean city.

Ex-Mayor Bryant said he had made many promises to attend one of these reunions but this was the first time he attended. He was glad to have been able to be present on this occasion.

Ex-Engineer James H. Elcock and Overseer of the Poor said the poor will always be with us and the city will take care of them. It costs from 45 to 50 cents per capita to take care of the poor of our towns but it cost Quincy less. Quincy was a grand city and we want to talk Quincy all the time.

This ended the speaking and the dinner closed with a sentiment sent

DEATH DUE TO ACCIDENT

Conductor Clague Fatally Injured by Fall From Car

Frederick Clague, aged 24 years, a conductor on the Old Colony street railway, died at his home on Phipps street Sunday morning from injuries received by falling from his car on Hancock street, Atlantic, late Saturday night.

The unfortunate man had charge of the last car out of Neponset for Quincy, which left at 12.37 Sunday morning.

There were 45 passengers on the car and Clague had completed the collection of his fares.

The accident happened between the Atlantic railroad bridge and the Sacred Heart church. According to eye witnesses Clague stood on the running board near the rear platform. He started to step from the running board to the platform when he lost his hold and fell over backwards into the street.

He struck heavily on the back of his head, causing a severe bruise but no fracture of the skull was found by Dr. Garey to whose office he was taken in the car.

He was in a semi-conscious state and kept talking incoherently. At that time it was impossible to tell how serious his injuries were.

After his injuries were dressed he was taken to his home in a carriage and one of the street railway men remained with him all night.

Sunday morning Dr. Garey visited him at 5 o'clock and found him sleeping and to all appearances he was doing well. Shortly before 9 o'clock he began to grow worse and the doctor was sent for but before he arrived the young man died.

Sunday afternoon Dr. Dexter of Hyde Park, assistant Medical Examiner, viewed the body and said death was due to concussion of the brain.

The unfortunate man had been employed by the street railway for two years and was what is known as an extra man, having no regular run. He was a very bright young man and very popular with his fellow employees and his untimely death is sincerely regretted by all.

LAWN PARTY.

Dorothy Q. Lodge of Odd Ladies Hold Successful Party at Wollaston.

Many attended the lawn party held by the Dorothy Q. Lodge of Odd Ladies on Wayland street, Wollaston, on Saturday afternoon and evening.

In the evening the grounds were illuminated with Japanese lanterns, artistically arranged, while the African dodger and fortune teller afforded much amusement.

Under the large willow trees, that graced the grounds, dancing was enjoyed on a specially constructed platform to the music of Cambells orchestra.

In a tent at the rear of the grounds stereopticon views of the wars of 1812 and 1861 were thrown on a screen and were much enjoyed by all.

Auto rides were enjoyed and ice cream, orangeade, punch and other refreshments were served throughout the afternoon and evening.

FOR PODBURY CUP.

Fifth Race Under Auspices of Wollaston Club Won by the Whisper.

The fifth race for the Podbury cup offered for boats of the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed Sunday off the club house and was won by the Whisper. Five different boats have now secured a leg in the cup and another race will be necessary next Sunday to decide the winner. Owing to the absence of the club's handicapper the correct time can not be given, the order of finish was: Whisper, Aspinquid, Sally, Dolphin, Kitten, Leisure, Vandyl and Tyrant.

THE SATURDAY BALL GAMES

Wins for Quincys, Makaria and Bigelows. Other Games

Makaria and the Quincy Independents met for the third time this season at Merrymount park, the former winning 7 to 2. It was the rubber game between these two teams and there was quite a lot of interest aroused over the game. Both teams were out to win and both had their strongest teams on the field. Quincy had Dick Williams of the Copeland club in the box, and he was given poor support and was at the same time hit rather freely. Makaria scored in each of the first four innings and in the fifth Lefty Ford was put in and held the Maks safe for the rest of the same, Michaels was in the box for Makaria and pitched excellently, allowing but five hits and fanning four.

Quincy's first run came on a home-run driven by Hoyt, one of the longest hits seen in the park for the last 12 years, the ball going clean into the street and allowing Hoyt to score easily. Their second tally came in the eighth, when Tupper muffed Elcock's hard fly after a long run, the ball going in to the hollow in right field and allowing Link to cross the rubber.

Makaria clinched the game in the fourth by scoring three runs. Tupper started the trouble with a slow bunt that Williams failed to field. Tupp then stole second and went to third on McKenzie's neat sacrifice. Eggleston then hit an easy grounder down to Flynn, which the latter allowed to get away, Tupper scoring. Russ Bates then came to time with a slashing triple to left scoring Eggleston. Troupe singled to centre sending Bates over. Ford was then sent into the box and McTiernan to centre field. Ford was there with the goods and fanned Michaels.

After this there was no scoring. The score:

Quincy and Randolph clashed Saturday at the latter's field and at the end of nine innings the local boys were ahead 11 to 5. Randolph put up rather a loose exhibition of base ball and Quincy on the other hand played a fast game at the bat and in the field. Dam, who was on the box for the shoemakers, was touched up for 17 hits for a total of 18 bases and for seven innings Randolph got but one hit off Patterson and did not get a run.

Hazelton, the former Dartmouth pitcher, who was carded to twirl for Quincy, failed to show up, and Sid Patterson was sent into the box. He pitched superb ball all through the game and held the heavy hitting Randolph team well in hand at all times. In the last two innings he let up and Randolph got four hits and scored five runs. Dan was on the mound for Randolph and was away off form, as was his catcher, Sullivan. The former made three wild pitches and the latter had three past balls.

There were several fine plays that brought the fans to their feet, among them being a wonderful running catch of a hard fly by Lonergan in

DEATH OF W. W. EWELL

Passes Away After Long Illness At Home on Foster Street

William Walter Ewell one of Quincy's well known residents and business men passed away Sunday afternoon at his home on Foster street aged 60 years.

Mr. Ewell has been in poor health since the early summer and has been unable to attend to business but little during the present summer.

Shortly after his health began to fail he was urged to take a sea trip which he did. This seemed to benefit him some and he has apparently been on the mend since his return.

He had a bad turn several days ago but rallied from it. Early Sunday morning he had another bad turn and Sunday afternoon another which was so severe that he died almost instantly.

Mr. Ewell was a Quincy boy and during his long residence has held many positions of public trust.

He was born in Quincy, Oct. 15, 1849. He received a public school education and his first business experience was in the furniture trade, which he carried on at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets for seven years, first under the firm name of Ewell & Josephs and subsequently under his own name.

Later he disposed of this business and became the local manager of Ambler & Hobart's grain business in Quincy. After seven years close application to business his health became impaired and he severed his connection with that business and entered the real estate and insurance business with George H. Field under the name of Field & Ewell. He later became interested in the manufacture of cock bicycle handles and still later was manager of the Bay State Aluminum Company.

For some years past he has carried on a hardware business at Forrest Hills.

His public life has been an honorable one his first public office being that of Councilman, representing Ward One in the City Council of 1890. That year he served on the Committee on Streets and was its clerk.

In 1891 he was appointed Commissioner of Public Works by Mayor Fairbanks, serving three years, being succeeded by the late William N. Eaton when the late William A. Hodges became mayor.

Feb. 10, 1898 he was elected as superintendent of the Water Department which position he held until the following year when the department was placed under the care of the Commissioner of Public Works.

He was one of the earlier members of Rural lodge, A. F. and A. M., with which he has been affiliated for more than twenty-five years. He was also a member of St. Stephen's chapter, R. A. M., and South Shore Commandry, K. T.

He became a member of the Granite City Club a number of years ago and for the past seven years has been its treasurer.

He leaves a widow and one son and a large circle of warm friends who mourn his loss.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Denwood, John Daley and John O'Brien were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Patrick J. Connelley was sentenced to six months in the house of correction for assault on James Brennan at Quincy. Appealed.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The seventeenth annual convention of the United States league of local building and loan associations (Co-operative banks in Massachusetts) was held at Philadelphia, Pa., July 28 and 29. Mayor John E. Reyburn in welcoming the delegates to the city, said: "We add to Philadelphia every year forty thousand people and eight thousand houses;—not hotels and apartment houses, but small houses where industrious men can live as we believe an American citizen should live, in his own house."

President Joseph H. Paist delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the Pennsylvania State league.

Secretary H. F. Cellarius, Cincinnati, reported 5,599 local associations in the United States with a membership of 1,920,257 and assets amounting to $784,175,753. This is an increase in membership over last year of 80,138 and in assets of $52,667,307. The total business transacted was at an expense of seven-tenths of one per cent. based on the assets.

During the sessions many papers were read and discussed; among them were the following: "The Benefit of home owning and saving to young men," by L. T. Hartsell, Concord, N. C. "Life insurance as a function of banking," by William F. Winter, Fall River, Mass. "The American home" written by Congressman Charles E. Townsend of Michigan and read by G. D. Jackson. "Extension of Co-operative building and Loan association along conservative lines," by A. W. McEwan of New York city.

"Growth of building association law in Pennsylvania," by T. M. Daly, president of the Continental Title and Trust Company of Philadelphia. "Uniformity of reports," by William H. Smith, bank examiner of Philadelphia.

Massachusetts was represented by the following delegates:—Mr. D. Eldredge, Boston; Mr. J. B. Dooley, Boston; Mr. George T. Bosson, Boston; Mr. W. G. Hayes, Fitchburg; Mr. W. M. Allen, Fitchburg; Mr. W. F. Winter, Fall River; Mr. E. C. Lewis, Llynn Mr. Walter L. Beals, Middleboro; Mr. J. Warren Bailey, Somerville; Mr. Harry Foster, Wakefield; Mr. W. E. Corey, Winchester; Mr. George A. Bridges, Worcester; Mr. H. W. Pinkham, Wollaston

The next convention will be held in May 1910 at Charlotte, North Carolina.

ARMOR SHIPPED.

Arrival Will End Delay to Battleship North Dakota.

Information was received at the Fore River Shipyards Saturday that nine of the eighteen upper casemate armor plates for the battleship North Dakota, building there, have been shipped and are now on the way to Quincy. Further, the builders have been notified that the remainder of the armor for this, the first of the great 21,000-ton American super-Dreadnoughts, will be shipped by the end of this month. Three of the turrets are without armor to date.

If this armor plate is received according to the latest agreement it will afford a most welcome relief for the builders, who have been waiting for some of it for about nine months and who have been bothered and had to go to extra expense on this account. The Fore River yard had rushed the North Dakota ahead as fast as it could in the hope of distancing the record of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, which is building the sister ship, Delaware, and which was at one time far behind, but the other concern had better luck in getting its armor plates from another steel works, and so is about as far ahead with its ship now.

Most of the armor should have been ready to put on when the North Dakota was launched in November. The barbette armor plates came in March and April. It was the builders' intention, originally, to give the battleship her trials this month. If the armor plates from the Midvale Steel Company's works arrive soon the North Dakota will be given her trial runs in October, and should be all ready to be turned over to the Navy Department by Jan. 1, 1910.

The contract price for the hull and machinery of the North Dakota is $4,377,000, in round figures, and of this the builders receive two per cent per month, the basis of reckoning being on the weight of construction work done. The Navy's inspectors look after this feature, and when their report shows that a payment is due on the two per cent basis the Government pays $83,250. One of the peculiar features of this method of paying for the ship is that the Government really pays in advance for some of the work on the first half of the building period, and falls behind on the last half. For this reason whatever has been paid in excess of the actual work done is carried by the Fore River company as a separate account, and at one time on the North Dakota the company had about $300,000 more than what a system of reckoning payments on a more practical basis would require. For some months now—the work having gone into its final period—the builders have really gotten ahead of the payments. On the whole, this system evens up automatically in the end. The new battle-masts are being put on the North Dakota, a change which will add slightly to the cost of the ship.

In order to insure the Government against loss, the contractors are under a bond for fifteen per cent of the contract price.

BLOODSHED AT SCHOENVILLE

State Trooper, Deputy Sheriff and Three Foreigners Killed

RIOT AFTER DAY OF QUIET

Women Conspicuous In Its Early Stages, Being Mainly Responsible For Its Inception—Ten of Those Seriously Injured Are Expected to Die—Mounted Troopers Crack Heads of All Who Happen to Be In Path

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—One state trooper, one deputy sheriff and three foreigners were shot and killed last night in a wild riot at the Pressed Steel Car company's plant in Schoenville, whose employes are now on strike. At least a score of persons were seriously wounded, ten fatally. The rioting followed a day of quiet and occurred without warning.

Sheriff Gumbert, at the county jail, called for fifty men to serve as deputies in the strike zone at 10:30. At 11 o'clock the sheriff started for the scene of the rioting. He took with him ten riot guns and two boxes of riot ammunition. The county morgue has sent for the bodies of the dead.

SHERIFF GUMBERT.

The following partial list of dead and injured was made up from reports received from the morgue, hospitals and physicians' offices:

The dead: John L. Williams, state trooper; Harry Exler, deputy sheriff; three foreigners.

Fatally injured: John C. Smith, state trooper; Lucelian Jones, state trooper; seven foreigners. George Kitch and John O'Donnell, state troopers, were seriously injured and one woman was shot in the neck. Over a score of persons received more or less serious injuries.

The riot scene was practically indescribable. Mounted troopers galloped indiscriminately through the streets with riot maces drawn, cracking the heads of all persons loitering in the vicinity of the mill. Deputy sheriffs and troopers broke in the doors of houses suspected of being the retreat of strikers, and wholesale arrests were made. From 9:30 to 11:30 scores of persons were arrested and placed in box car jails in the mill yards.

During the early stages of the rioting women were conspicuous. Some of them were armed and others effectively used clubs and stones. These women, all foreigners, insane with rage, were mainly responsible for inciting the men to extreme measures. At midnight quiet reigned in the strike zone.

A mass meeting of the strikers was held Sunday on Indian Mound. The men were counselled by general speakers to avoid violence.

DEATH OF FATHER DUCEY

New York Clergyman who Was Constantly Before the Public

New York, Aug. 23.—Father Thomas J. Ducey, rector of St. Leo's Roman Catholic church, and one of the best known priests in the country, died of dropsy.

As pastor of St. Leo's, in the heart of the hotel district and on the edge of the Tenderloin, he numbered among his friends hundreds of actors and annual visitors to New York. His keen interest in current affairs, and, in a rich parish, his labors for the poor, kept him constantly before the public.

Sons of Veterans' Encampment

Washington, Aug. 23.—Hundreds of members of the Sons of Veterans assembled in this city this morning to attend the annual encampment of that organization. They were welcomed to this city by Commissioner McFarland, as the head of the government of the District of Columbia, and by others representing local interests.

Death of Maria Parloa

Bethel, Conn., Aug. 23.—Miss Maria Parloa, the well-known writer, died suddenly at her home here, following an operation for gall-stones. Miss Parloa was well known on account of her writings and lectures on domestic science. She was 66 years old.

AVIATION WEEK OPENS

Remarkable Spectacle as Six Aeroplanes Fly Over Plain at Bethamy

Rheims, France, Aug. 23.—The spectacle of six aeroplanes simultaneously winging their flights in huge circles over the plain at Betheny was a remarkable feature of the opening day of aviation week. At the finish of the flight there was a great burst of cheers over this wonderfully impressive exhibition of man's mastery of the air.

Under unfavorable weather conditions Lefebvre alone succeeded in negotiating the complete circuit of the course. He remained in the air for sixteen minutes in a twenty-five-mile wind, covering ten kilometres in 8 minutes, 55 4-5 seconds.

Of the others entered in the trials Blerlot was able only to cover a sufficient distance to qualify, thus leaving the committee to select the remaining representative from the best achievements in the subsequent events.

There was great disappointment among the Americans at the failure of Glenn H. Curtiss to appear, but he explained that he has only one machine and cannot afford to take chances of a mishap.

CARES OF STATE

They Engage the Attention of President Taft During the Sabbath

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 23.—The cares of state weighed too heavily on President Taft Sunday to permit more than an hour's absence from his home and it was not until the sun was setting that the big motor car whirled the chief executivte and Mrs. Taft away from a cabinet meeting to the quieting breezes of Essex county.

Even church attendance was omitted, for during the forenoon a long list of pardon cases were considered, while in the afternoon Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary of the Navy Meyer discussed the intricate and delicate personnel of the new tariff board, the changes in the inter-state commerce and the anti-trust acts, and some of the economic measures which have been instituted in the navy department.

SPANISH TROOPS IN PERILOUS POSITION

Reinforcements of 50,000 Men Needed In Morocco

London, Aug. 23.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Melilla, via Gibraltar, declares that the censorship is very severe and prevents the truth of the situation from becoming known through any Spanish route. The position of the Spanish forces, says The Telegraph's correspondent, is extremely difficult and grave at the present moment.

An attack by land is impossible and operations must be begun from the sea by landing men. This will require a force of 25,000 of the best quality and the construction of a canal into Marchica, which will occupy fully five weeks.

Accordingly Spain will need to send reinforcements of 50,000 men, who will be engaged in an objectless campaign and will be spread over the mountains, where there is no village to occupy, forced to remain inactive because the whole country is hostile and an advance to the south is utterly impossible.

MANY TOWNS TO CELEBRATE

Old Home Week Opens In New Hampshire With Beacon Fires

Concord, N. H., Aug. 23.—New Hampshire's eleventh annual Old Home week opened with beautiful weather in all sections of the state and a large number of visitors generally reported. Saturday night beacon bonfires burned on hill and mountain.

Plans for eighty observances of various kinds have been reported to the headquarters in this city of the state Old Home Week association, and the final total will be well up to the usual hundred.

Richmond was the only town to make the opening day of the week the principal day of the celebration, but the day was recognized in different ways in other places.

Youth Killed by Gas Engine

Woodsville, N. H., Aug. 23.—While working about a gasolene engine, Arthur Larvey, aged 16, got his clothing caught in the flywheel. His skull was crushed and he died without regaining consciousness.

Killed For Refusing to Loan Money

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 23.—Refusal to loan $5 to a fellow countryman caused the murder of an unknown Italian in a laborers' camp here. The killing was done with a revolver and the murderer escaped.

Murder Over a Dog

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 23.—Reese Huck, a farmer, was shot to death, and four others were probably fatally wounded in a feud fight growing out of a controversey over a dog at Huntersville.

Shark Devours a Man

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 23.—When a fourteen foot shark caught here was cut open its stomach was found to contain the backbone, two ribs and portions of the skull of a man.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father.

The deck was crowded, and additional passengers embarked at every stop. In the circumstances conversation, save on the most impersonal topics, was impossible.

As the boat snorted beneath London bridge Calendar's impatience drove him from his seat back to the gangway. "Next stop," he told Kirkwood curtly and rested his heavy bulk against the paddle box, brooding morosely, until, after an uninterrupted run of more than a mile, the steamer swept in, side wheels backing water furiously against the ebbing tide, to Cherry Gardens landing.

Sweet name for a locality unsavory beyond credence!

Kirkwood shuddered, sticking close to Calendar's side as they landed. Life's naked brutalities had theretofore been largely out of his ken. He had heard of slums, had even ventured to mouth politely moral platitudes on the subject of overcrowding in great centers of population, but in the darkest flights of imagination had never pictured to himself anything so unspeakably foul and hopeless as this. And they were come hither seeking Dorothy Calendar!

After some ten minutes' steady walking Calendar turned aside with a muttered word and dived down a covered dark and evil smelling passageway that seemed to lead toward the river.

Mastering his involuntary qualms, Kirkwood followed.

Some ten or twelve paces from its entrance the passageway swerved at a right angle, continuing three yards or so to end in a blank wall, wherefrom a flickering, inadequate gas lamp jutted. At this point a stone platform perhaps four feet square was discovered, from the edge of which a flight of worn and slimy stone steps led down to a permanent boat landing, where another gaslight flared gustily despite the protection of its frame of begrimed glass.

"Good Lord!" exclaimed the young man. "What in heaven's name, Calendar"—

"Bermondsey Old Stairs. Come on."

They descended to the landing stage. Beneath them the pool slept, a sheet of polished ebony, whispering to itself, lapping with small, stealthy gurgles angles of masonry and ancient piles. On the farther bank tall warehouses reared square old time heads, their uncompromising, rugged profile relieved here and there by tapering mastheads. A few scattering, feeble lights were visible. Nothing moved save the river and the wind.

The landing itself they found quite deserted, something which the adventurer comprehended with a nod which, like its accompanying inarticulate ejaculation, might have been taken to indicate either satisfaction or disgust. He ignored Kirkwood altogether for the time being and presently produced a small, bright object which, applied to his lips, proved to be a boatswain's whistle. He sounded two blasts, one long, one brief.

There fell a lull, Kirkwood watching the other and wondering what next would happen. Calendar paced restlessly to and fro upon the narrow landing, now stopping to incline an ear to catch some anticipated sound, now searching with sweeping glances the black reaches of the pool.

Finally, consulting his watch, "Almost 10," he announced.

"We're in time?"

"Can't say. If that infernal boat would only show up"—

He was lifting the whistle to sound a second summons when a rowboat rounded a projecting angle formed by the next warehouse downstream and with clanking oarlocks swung in toward the landing. On her thwarts two figures, dipping and rising, labored with the sweeps. As they drew in the man forward shipped his blades and, rising, scrambled to the bows in order to grasp an iron mooring ring set in the wall.

Calendar waddled to the brink of the stage, grunting with relief.

"The other man," he asked brusquely—"has he gone aboard, or is this the first trip tonight?"

One of the watermen nodded assent to the latter question, adding gruffly, "Seen nawthin' of 'im, sir."

"Very good," said Calendar, as if he doubted whether it were very good or bad. "We'll wait a bit."

"Right-o!" agreed the waterman civilly.

Calendar turned back, his small eyes glimmering with satisfaction. "I suppose," he said to Kirkwood abruptly, "you haven't changed your mind?"

"Changed my mind?"

"About coming in with me."

"My dear sir, I can have no mind to change until a plain proposition is laid before me."

"H-m!" Calendar puffed vigorously until it occurred to him to change the subject. "You won't mind telling me what happened to you and Dorothy?"

"Certainly not."

Calendar drew nearer, and Kirkwood, lowering his voice, narrated briefly the events since he had left the Pless in Dorothy's company.

Her father followed him intently, interrupting now and again with an exclamation or pertinent question—as, had Kirkwood been able to see the face of the man in No. 9 Frognall street? The negative answer seemed to disconcert him.

"Youngster, you say? Blam' if I can lay my mind to him! Now, if that Mulready"—

"It would have been impossible for Mulready—whoever he is—to recover and get to Craven street before we did," Kirkwood pointed out.

"Well, go on." But when the tale was told "It's that scoundrel Mulready!" the man affirmed with heat. "It's his hand. I know him. I might have had sense enough to see he'd take the first chance to hand me the double cross. Well, this does for him, all right!" Calendar lowered viciously at the river. "You've been blamed useful," he told Kirkwood assertively. "If it hadn't been for you I don't know where I'd be now—nor Dorothy, either"—an obvious afterthought. "There's no particular way I can show my appreciation, I suppose? Money"—

"What in heaven's name, Calendar?"

"I've got enough to last me till I reach New York, thank you."

"Well, if the time ever comes just about for George B. I won't be wanting. I only wish you were with us, but that's out of the question."

"Doubtless."

"No two ways about it. I bet anything you've got a conscience concealed about your person. What! You're an honest man, eh?"

"I don't want to sound immodest," returned Kirkwood, amused.

"You don't need to worry about that. But an honest man's got no business in my line." He glanced again at his watch. "D— that Mulready! I wonder if he was cute enough to take another way? Or did he think—the fool!"

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AT NEWPORT.

Judging from the subscriptions already in for the lectures which Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont is arranging for at Marble House, Newport, on Tuesday, August 24, and Saturday, August 28, votes for women, is a good drawing card. Or, is Marble House still the attraction? Subscriptions have been received from such widely separated places as Benton Harbor, Mich., and Saco, Maine, and the subscribers from both of these places state their belief in the justice of woman suffrage and send their money to help the cause along, though unable to attend the lectures. With these two, at least, the opportunity of viewing Marble House had no influence. Whatever the inducement, the lectures are already an assured success, and Mrs. Belmont will welcome one of the largest assemblies ever gathered in the city by the sea.

His honor, Mayor Boyle, of Newport, has consented to preside at the first lecture, and his excellency, Governor Pothier will preside at the second. It is not known how these gentlemen stand on the question of the suffrage for women, but their presence on these occasions can be attributed to the well-known reputation of both for a kind and courteous consideration of everything that interests the people of their community and state.

Mrs. Belmont is naturally quite pleased with the result of what has meant much hard work. With this thought in mind, our correspondent asked her why, rather than take on the trouble and work of personally conducting an affair of this kind, she did not, as so many others do, simply make a contribution to the movement. "That would be a half-hearted effort," she replied, "unworthy of this great cause. Contributions are good—very good—but we must have workers, and those who are able to work for the suffrage, should and must do so. The mere giving of money is too often the end of all interest; It sometimes seems to me that it is like throwing a bone to a dog. One cares little for the bone, and less, perhaps, for the dog. True, the sinews of war are an essential, but without the warriors, warriors who are heart and soul in the cause and willing to make every sacrifice for it, no battles can be won, no victory gained. True suffragists must never think of defeat. Obstacles, yes, many of them, but in the end, success. Then there's another side—another reason for my giving personal effort. I would like to be a stimulus to others, and if these lectures are a success, I hope others will take up a similar work. These lectures will bring the people and give the opportunity of sewing seed from which there will some day be a rich harvest."

Mrs. Belmont then turned questioner and asked, "Do you believe in Woman Suffrage and will you help?" Very characteristic of a militant enthusiasm, which if possessed by all women would put the ballot in their hand in a short time.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NATIONAL RIFLE MATCHES.

Today the greatest National Rifle Matches this country has ever seen will be in full swing. All week teams and individual riflemen have been pouring into Camp Perry from all directions and the range outside of the firing lines, is dotted with their camps. Friday the range was turned over to Lt. Col. R. K. Evans, U. S. A., who took command as executive officer of the matches. He has nearly 100 regular army officers and 1,000 men under him who will have charge of all firing, marking and scoring and compilation of statistics during the matches. It is expected that forty eight to fifty teams will line up this morning for the National Team match for which Congress provides the trophy and the cash prizes. Each team is composed of twelve men with three alternates and a complement of officers. The shooting is at 200 yards slow fire, 600 yards, 800 yards, 100 yards, 200 yards rapid fire and a skirmish run, and it is expected that this match will occupy all of today and Tuesday. The teams present represent the U. S. infantry and cavalry, navy and marine corps and naval-academy, and the national guard of the various states and territories. They are divided into three classes on the basis of their standing in the match last year as follows: Class A. U. S. infantry, U. S. navy, U. S. cavalry, U. S. marine corps, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, U. S. naval academy, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, Washington, Illinois, Iowa, Oregon, Maine and Ohio; class B. Oklahoma, New Hampshire, Colorado, California, New York, Maryland, New Jersey, Minnesota, Kansas, Missouri, Hawaii, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia and Kentucky; class C. Wyoming, Connecticut, Georgia, Rhode Island, Arizona, Alabama, South Carolina, Tennessee, Nebraska, Delaware, North Dakota, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, Arkansas, New Mexico, Utah, Mississippi, Louisiana and North Carolina.

For class A the first prize is the National trophy given by Congress with $450 cash; 2d prize $350; 3d. $300; 4th $250. For class B the first prize is the famous Hilton trophy, with $350 cash; 2d $250 cash; 3d $225 and 4th $200. Class C has the Soldier of Marathon for its trophy and $200 cash, with additional prizes of $200, $175 and $150. Each member of a team winning a trophy will receive an appropriate medal. No team is eligible to win a prize in the class below it but can win the prize in any class above it. If a team in class B or C makes a score entitling it to a prize in a higher class it must take that prize. The classification for 1910 will depend on the results in this match.

Wednesday the national Individual match will be shot with probably 600 entries. There are thirty-nine medals in this match each accompanied by a cash prize and there is no entry fee as Congress furnished the prize money.

The National Revolver Match will be shot immediately after the national individual rifle match. It carries seven gold medals, four silver medals and twelve bronze medals with 23 cash prizes.

An Ideal Hair Restorer

Wyeth, Chemist and Scientist, discovered in Sage and Sulphur the same nourishment supplied by nature to the roots of healthy hair.

No More Gray Hair
No More Dandruff
No More Baldness

WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER

We guarantee WYETH'S SAGE and SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER to remove dandruff, stop itching of the scalp, prevent the hair from falling out, promote the growth of the hair, and to restore faded and gray hair to natural color or refund the price.

IT IS NOT A DYE

A Wonderful Cure

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly, and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff. I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it, and almost at once was benefited by it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. MRS. E. A. ROSS. Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

WOLLASTON OPEN RACE

Thirty Nine Starters in the Nine Classes Saturday

The annual open race under teh auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed Saturday off the club house at Wollaston beach in a light easterly breeze, that at times was almost a dead calm. There were thirty-nine starters in the nine classes. The greatest interest was probably in the Cape Cat class in which there were seven starters.

The course was a seven mile one to Nut island, to Long island and home, giving the boats a beat out, a reach to Long island and a reach home.

The Iris which showed up so well at Marblehead last week did not do as well in the light breeze and finished in fifth position, first place going to the Arawak with the Hustler second.

In Class A. of the interclub classes the Thordis of Commodore Dawes did not do as well as usual and finished in fifth position. The summary of the Cape Cat class.

CLASS D.

QUINCY MEN WIN.

Several Quincy athletes captured prizes Saturday at the picnic of the South End Athletic club at New Downer Landing. Everett Prout captured the 440 yard novice race; Franz R. Marceau the one mile handicap run and William J. Hackett of the Fore River Apprentices A. C. the fifteen mile run.

EDMUND S. HUNT.

Edmund S. Hunt the well known manufacturer of pyrotechnics, passed away at his home on Broad street, Weymouth, Saturday ,after a short illness. Mr. Hunt was born in Weymouth, in 1827, and has always made his home there. He was the discoverer of what is known as Japanese fireworks and was also the inventor of the Hunt life saving gun, used all over the world by life saving stations.

He was a patron of music, art and literature and was a writer for papers and magazines. He recently published a book entitled "Weymouth People and Their Ways." He was also the last surviving member of the Weymouth brass band. He leaves a widow and three sons.

ASSAULT CHARGED.

Patrick J. Connelley was arrested Sunday for assault on James Brennan. Both men are employed as farm hands at Germantown.

They got into a dispute Sunday morning and it is alleged Connelley struck Brennan with a base ball bat. Brennan was not seriously injured. Connelley was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Steps Should be Taken to Rid City of Boston Toughs.

Someone in authority should take the necessary steps to rid the city of the very undesirable class of visitors who make Quincy the headquarters for their Sunday outings. Many of these parties are made up of the toughest element of Boston. They come into Quincy Sunday morning with a load of liquid supplies and hike themselves to the grove near Germantown where they make merry all day in drinking playing ball and fighting.

Sunday was no exception to the rule for one party of nearly three carloads made their headquarters at Germantown. It was announced that they were a political club but a good part of them were little more than boys. The party were in a row soon after leaving Boston and when Neponset was reached nine of them were arrested.

After reaching Germantown they spent the day in playing ball and carousing. They started for home shortly after 5 o'clock and piled onto the cars for Quincy. It was next to impossible for the conductor to collect fares and it is doubtful if a third of them paid. The minute a car stopped they would run from one side of the car to the other and it was impossible for the conductor to tell who had paid and who had not. When the cars reached Quincy the square was black with them and a small-sized riot was started before they were loaded onto cars and started for Neponset. Even then there was more or less trouble with them and one or two fights before they were dumped in Boston.

It would be a grand good thing of the police would make a raid on some of the parties and put a stop to any future gatherings.

POSTPONED RACE.

Atlantic's July 5 Yacht Race Sailed Saturday off Wollaston Beach.

The yacht race, arranged as part of the July 4 celebration, by the Atlantic citizens, but postponed that day for lack of time was sailed Saturday off the Squantum Yacht club house.

There were eleven starters in the race which was sailed in a wholesail easterly breeze. The I. X. L. took the lead at the start and was an easy winner finishing with a lead of nearly eight minutes corrected time.

Three prizes were offered by the committee for the race, $7, $4 and $2. The committee having the race in charge were: C. W. Bean, chairman, Harry Hinkley, S. Ferguson and Archie Briggs. The summary:

Mechanician and Two Spectators Killed at Indianapolis Races

Indianapolis, Aug. 23.—Three more lives were sacrificed in the mad speed carnival which has inaugurated the great Indianapolis motor speedway. One mechanician and two spectators paid the penalty of their lives to satisfy the extreme desire for speed.

The fatal accident came when a National car, driven by Charles Merz in the 300-mile race, lost a tire and crashed through a fence into a group of spectators.

The dead are Claude Kellum, mechanician in the National car; Homer Jolleffe and James West. Besides the three deaths, two serious injuries came in the day.

The race was declared no contest and the great Indianapolis motor speedway trophy will be raced for again.

By a strange freak of fortune Merz escaped from the wreck with hardly a scratch. He fell under the car when it turned a somersault down into the gully near the side of the track. He was in imminent danger of being burned to death, but by extraordinary luck he was able to shut off the engine and save himself. Kellum was hurled into a gully some distance away.

The three deaths Saturday raise the toll of the speedway to seven lives last week. William A. Bourque and his mechanician, Harry Holcombe, were killed in an accident. Cliff Litteral, a mechanician, was killed by being hit by a big racing machine. Elmer Grampton, 6 years old, was killed by the automobile of Dr. Clark E. Day of this city.

Fire Destroys Valuable Launch

Newport, R. I., Aug. 23.—Four men had a narrow escape from death when the launch Allegro was burned three miles east of Brenton's Reef lightship. Besides the launch, which was valued at $14,000, the men lost clothing, money and a considerable stock of provisions. The fire started from an oil stove.

In the second game for the 18-19 year old championship of the city, the Bigelows defeated the Quincy Red Sox at the Ward Four playground on Saturday by the score of 11 to 5. As the Bigelows won the first game last Saturday at the Ward Two grounds, this ends the fight for the championship in favor of the boys from the East Side. It was a loosely played game all the way, the Red Sox being by far the worst offenders, and according their pitchers wretched support.

Saunders was in the box for the Bigelows and had the Sox at his mercy all the afternoon, holding them to three hits and fanning 11 men. Rice the clever south paw of the Sox, started the game for his team, but the Bigelows took kindly to his shots and in the eighth inning he changed places with Manager Clark. The latter fared no better and was as wild as the proverbial hawk. The score:

MILTON 3; MATTAPAN 4.

Stan Bates of the Quincy High who pitched for Milton Saturday was about the whole show and delighted the base ball fans of Mattapan by his masterly box work and at the bat. He struck out four men, nine of them in the first four innings and was entitled to a shut out but for eight costly errors for Milton. Bennett of Mattapan, the recent try out of the Boston Nationals made two hits with three men on bases. Stan banged a three bagger into deep left field scoring the runs. Stan certainly is a wizard in the pitcher's box and with good support has them all guessing.

EXCELLUS 8, GLOVER 2.

The Excellus class of Wollaston added another victory to its list at the Ward 6 playground on Saturday afternoon easily defeating the Glover A. C. by a score of 8 to 2. The team has been playing fast ball this season having won 14 games out of 18 games played. The team is out for the eighteen year old championship of Quincy and challenges the Bigelow A. A. for a series of three games for the title to the same. They would also like to hear from the Fore River Apprentices and the Quincy Red Sox. The club may be reached by addressing Ralph P. DR. H. W. GROSS TAKES OWN LIFE

Shoots Himself Through Head At Fore River Hospital

Dr. Herman W. Gross surgeon at the hospital at the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.'s plant committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the head with a revolver.

Dr. Gross committed the rash act between 10.30 and 11 o'clock. P. Connell nurse at the hospital heard a shot and rushing up stairs found the doctor on the floor in front of a mirror with the blood streaming from a wound in the head. Death had evidently been instantaneous.

DR. HERMANN W. GROSS

Word was immediately sent to the office and Dr. Middleton was called but the unfortunate man was beyond help. No cause is assigned for the rash act.

Dr. Gross was born in Philadelphia in 1872.

In choosing the medical profession for his vocation he followed in the footsteps of his father and grandfather. After completing his school education, he entered the University of Pennsylvania, devoting his first two years to the study of biology, and four subsequent years to medicine. He graduated from the medical school in 1895.

Moving to Boston, immediately after completing his course, he obtained his early hospital experience in the Children's Hospital of Boston and in the Boston City Hospital, receiving diplomas from both institutions.

Early in '98 he located in Brookline, but a few months later was commissioned first lieutenant and assistant surgeon in Sixth Mass. Infantry U. S. V. and served in that capacity until the regiment was mustered out in '99. He was with the Sixth regiment during the Porto Rican campaign of the summer of 1898. After the close of the Spanish American war, he resumed practice in Brookline, continuing until Sept. 1901, when he gave up his Brookline office and accepted the position of assistant resident physician of the Massachusetts General Hospital. This office he held for about two years.

In January, 1904, he moved to Quincy and has since remained here, his chief work at present being in connection with the accident department of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.

In the local campaign of the fall of 1905 Dr. Gross was a Republican candidate for the City Council from Ward Two. He was elected by a large majority and served in the Council in the year 1906. During that year he was a member of the standing committees on Sewers and Public Buildings. He was urged to become a candidate the following year but declined.

TITUS—JACOBSEN.

Brilliant Wedding on Historic Penn's Hill Monday Evening.

Historic Penns hill was the scene of a brilliant wedding on Monday evening at 7.30, when Miss Anna Josephine Jacobsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobsen and Mr. Harry Wentworth Titus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Titus of Standish avenue were married by Rev. Charles J. Wigren of Boston, at the home of the bride's parents on Kendrick avenue.

The bridal party entered the room to strains from the Lohengren's wedding march played by Miss Emma Witting of Deldoff street. The bride who was given away by her father, looked charming in an exquisite full trained gown of white lansdowne with a silk embroidered Bolero and stole on net. Her tulle veil was fastened to a Grecian bandeau with bride rose buds and she carried a bouquet of the same flowers. She wore a gold necklace with topaz settings, an heir loom from her great grandmother, and a beautiful chased gold bracelet, the gift of the groom.

Miss Lillie C. Jacobsen, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, in pink silk chiffon trimmed with baby Irish lace and pink satin sash. She carried Catherine Mermet roses and wore a pearl and amethyst ring, a gift of the bride. The flower girls were Miss Mabel Jacobsen and Miss Ferris Titus, the youngest sisters of the bride and groom. They looked very dainty in white silk muslin with their baskets of pink flowers, and wore gold lockets and chains, gifts of the bride.

The best man was Mr. Horace G. Titus of Wollaston and the ushers were Messrs. Willard Titus of Amherst, Frank Fryckstrand of Roslindale, William I. Johnson of Quincy and Emil Jacobsen, the bride's only brother. The best man and ushers received scarf pins and cuff links with topaz settings from the groom.

Green and white was the general effect of the floral decorations, potted plants and cut flowers being artistically arranged by friends of the bride.

The reception followed the ceremony. They were assisted in receiving by the maid of honor and best man. There were many handsome presents including china, cut glass, silver, linen and checks.

The happy couple left in a carriage mid showers of rice and confetti awaiting them at the front door. The ruse of the back door and automobile leaving with a couple of young people did not completely work out.

Mr. and Mrs. Titus will make a tour of the White Mountains including Bethlehem, Flume, Fabyans, and Intervale. They will be at home after November first at 280 Fayette street, Wollaston.

LID PUT ON.

Peddock's Island to be Made More Desirable Place.

Following the investigation made by the Watch and Ward Society into conditions that exist on Peddock's island, Special Officer W. S. Richards, who has charge of the island for its owner, Miss Edith Andrews, is mapping out a campaign against the gamblers and other law violators who flock to the island Sundays. Officer Richards intends to put a stop to the week-end carnivals and make the island an ideal spot for picnic parties.

THOMAS J. DEVANEY.

The funeral of Thomas J. Devaney of 5 Pearl street who died Sunday was held this morning from St. John's church and was largely attended by many of the friends of the young man. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Patrick Scannell. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

TAX RATES.

The tax rate of Natick for this year is $22.40 per $1,000. The total valuation of the town is $7,833,700, an increase of $584,100.

Boston's tax rate this year is $16.50 per $1,000, the same as last year.

Everett's tax rate is $19.10 per $1,000, an increase of ten cents from that of last year.

EAGAN'S BODY FOUND.

The body of Martin Eagan of Weymouth, who has been missing since last week Tuesday, was found Monday in Whitman's pond. He was 70 years of age. The Medical Examiner pronounced death due to accidental drowning.

INTERESTING COMBINATION

Fore River Co. Bid for Battleship, a Novel Combination

One of the most interesting propositions ever made to the United States Government for the hull and machinery of a warship is contained in the bids submitted by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy for the construction of the 26,000-ton battleships Wyoming and Arkansas. These ships will be the largest so far undertaken by any Government in the world, and for that reason alone they have aroused the interest of all the foreign powers, as well as practically everyone in this country. The particulars of the scheme proposed by the Fore River people are of importance.

When bids were asked by the Navy Department at Washington it was specified that two sets of offers were to be submitted, one upon the Government's suggestion with the regular Parsons or English turbines and the other with such engines as the bidders cared to suggest. Under the second clause there were received a great many bids. The Fore River people bid first on the straight Curtis turbines the same as are used on the scout cruiser, Salem, which was built at Fore River and second on Curtis turbines of great power and driven by electricity. No such combination of power is used on any of our warships, and the novel suggestion is now receiving the attention of the Navy Department.

It is said to offer the attraction of being unusually economical especially for cruising at moderate or slow speed. The turbines now in use are great coal consumers, and when running at moderate speed are proportionately worse in this respect than when the ship is steaming faster. The cost under this plan would be somewhat greater. It is this added expense which is being given consideration now in Washington. Here naval officers believe that the extra cost will be far more than offset by the reduced running expenses and the increased radius of action which may be obtained for the battleships by adopting the plan.

This combination drive consists of a Curtis electric turbo-generator in each engine room, the driving turbine of which takes high-pressure steam directly from the boiler and discharges it at a pressure of about fifty pounds per square inch into a low-pressure Curtis turbine directly connected to the main propeller shaft. This low-pressure turbine utilizes the steam from fifty pounds down to a twenty-eight inch vacuum and then discharges it to the condenser. The power developed by the high-pressure turbo-generator is delivered as electrical energy to an electric motor directly connected to the propeller shaft. The above method of operation is used when the vessel is running at full power and high speed.

For low power at cruising speed the turbo-generator utilizes the full range of the steam pressure down to the vacuum and exhausts direct to the condenser, thus generating all of the energy required to propel the vessel, which is transmitted electrically to the motor on the main propeller shaft. Under this low pressure cruising condition the low pressure turbine on the propeller shaft runs idly with a vacuum in its casing.

By this combination of turbines, electric generators and motors a very economical system of propulsion is obtained, especially for low cruising speeds as at this condition the steam consumption of the main propelling machinery is only about one-half of what it would be ordinarily.

The addition of the extra electrical machinery for accomplishing this economy will necessarily increase the cost somewhat, but it will give far greater tactical advantage, by reason of increased radius of action.

GERMAN BOATS OUT FOR TRIAL

All Three Put Through Their Races at Marblehead

All three of the German sonder yacht challengers—Hevella, Seehund and Margarethe— were put through their paces Monday at Marblehead for the first time since their arrival in quest of President Taft's and Gov. Draper's cups.

The little boats were measured Sunday by W. Starling Burgess, official measurer of the Eastern Yacht club, and Monday all were out for a tuning-up sail off Marblehead Rock, the scene of next week's conflict. The wind was light and the sea was smooth, but as the American defenders had been requested to keep away from the foreigners there were no comparisons of speed. The German yachts will have trials every day this week.

There was great rejoicing Monday among both the visitors and the American yachtsmen when Capt. Otto Pretzen was seen at the tiller of the Hevella. It was thought that his injury received last week might prevent him from participating in the cup races.

Admiral Barandon the personal representative of the Emperor arrived from Europe Saturday.

UNIQUE MOVING JOB.

Dwelling House to be Rafted From Ruff's Hummock to Adams Shore.

Inspector of Buildings, Warren S. Parker issued a permit to Mrs. Ida G. Andrews this morning to move a dwelling house from Ruff's Hummock to Adams shore. The house is a building 40 by 35 feet and a novel method is to be used to transport the house to its new location.

Owing to the many telephone and electric wires in the public streets it was impossible to move it over the road so that some other plan had had to be adopted. The house will be loaded onto a large raft and floated across Black's creek to Adams shore, thence to its new location.

ANOTHER CROWD COMING.

Reported that Another Boston Political Party will Hold Outing in Quincy Next Sunday.

It is reported that another Boston political party is to hold an outing at Quincy woods next Sunday and if it is to be anything like that of last Sunday the police should see to it that they behave in an orderly manner and if any disturbance is made that they be brought into court.

In the most of the cases of these parties, the participants come from Boston by street cars while their wet goods department comes over the road in teams. These teams do not pass through the square but turn into Greenleaf street and thus escape the eyes of people in the centre.

The police department will receive the thanks of the citizens in general if they take matters in hand and break up these rum gatherings. Such gatherings would not be allowed in other towns and there is no reason why they should be allowed in Quincy.

AMUSING CASE.

Much amusement was afforded the regular attendants at the district court this morning when the case of Alice Reiley of Weymouth was given a hearing on a complaint sworn out against her by Annie Landry for assault. Lawyer O'Connell of Weymouth appeared for the defendant and J. J. McAnarney for the plaintiff. The case arose over the return of a hat pin which it is alleged the plaintiff had that was owned by the defendant. Judge Pratt heard the case and the examination of the witnesses by Mr. O'Connell afforded much amusement. It was all that the court officer could do to keep them quiet.

Dinner to President Taft Sept. 14 to be a Rouser

Notices have been sent out to 3000 members of the Chamber of Commerce outlining the arrangements for the great dinner to be given President Taft in Mechanics' Hall, Sept. 14. There are indications of a tremendous demand for tickets, as the dinner will also celebrate the consolidation of the Merchants' Association, the Chamber and the Associated Board of Trade, and will really be the first meeting of the new organiation. The committee in charge consists of Jerome Jones, T. K. Cory, Harry W. Cumner, Charles S. Hamlin and Robert Homans.

About 1000 persons will sit down to dinner with the President, and 1000 more will have seats in the balcony. After all the members of the Chamber who desire them have been supplied with tickets, guests will be provided in the order of application, which must be made through some member, however.

The principal address will be by President Taft, and it is expected that Governor Draper, Mayor Hibbard and President Storrow of the Cham- will speak briefly.

The reception will be held at 6.45 P. M., and a large committee will have charge of it. Souvenirs containing the menu, photogravures of the President, list of guests, list of members and officers and other matters will be distributed to the diners. The decorations will be extensive. An orchestra of about fifty pieces is being organized for the occasion.

The Chamber obtained Mechanics' Hall through the courtesy of the exhibitors and managers of the Food and Home Furnishings Exhibition, which is to be held in October, the exhibitors generously delaying the installation of their displays.

LAST STONE IN PLACE.

Pilgrim Memorial is Complete Except For Final Fittings.

The grand memorial to the Pilgrims on Town Hill, Provincetown, which was built by Maguire & O'Heron of East Milton is practically completed. All that now remains is to put in the interior fittings. The last stone in the mammoth pile was put in place Saturday. The monument stands 250 feet above the level of the ground and 350 feet above the level of the sea. The corner stone was laid in 1907 and the job has been completed in two years lacking one day.

Many of the stones in the monument are gift stones from towns in Massachusetts, as well as stones from towns in England and from patriotic societies each bearing the name of the donor.

The City of Quincy is included in the list contributors.

The total cost of the monument will be $100,000 of which the government contributes $40,000 the state $25,000 and the town $5,000.

The monument will probably be dedicated in 1919 upon the two hundred and ninetieth anniversary of the sailing of the Pilgrim Company from Southampton, England.

The monument was erected to commemorate the first landing of the Pilgrims on American soil, their six weeks exploration in search of an abiding place and the drawing up of the historic pact in the cabin of the Mayflower. The erection of the monument was the outcome of a long controversy between Plymouth and Provincetown over the question as to which place had the prior claim to the Pilgrim Fathers.

ALL FOR CUSHING.

Rival Candidates for Councillor for Second District Withdraw.

The withdrawal of Representative Herbert W. Burr of Boston and Arthur P. Russell of Quincy from the contest for the nomination for councillor for the second district practically leaves a clear field to J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood for the nomination.

The deal was fixed up Saturday at a dinner at Young's at which all three proposed candidates were present. Capt. Cushing was not considered a bonafied candidate until lately but when he became so both Mr. Burr and Mr. Russell, who are strong Cushingmen immediately withdrew. It is said that ex-Alderman Franklin P. Codman of Brookline is still in the field for the nomination but that Capt. Cushing is sure of the nomination.

LAWN PARTY.

Atlantic A. O. H. Divisions to Hold Field Day Saturday.

Division 17 and Ladies' Auxiliary 19, A. O. H., of Atlantic are arranging for a grand lawn party and field day next Saturday. The affair will be held on the old school lot on Squantum street from 2 to 11.30 P. M. During the afternoon there will be addresses by Congressman O'Connell and Mayor W. T. Shea. There will also be a series of sports, including a three-legged race for children under 16 years; hop, step and jump, three jumps and broad jump and a grand tug of war for a purse of $75 between Division 26 of Neponset and Division 5 of Quincy.

There will also be dancing afternoon and evening.

BIG-HEARTED AND BIG-SOULED

What Secretary Miller Has to Say of Edward Harriman

MOST PATRIOTIC AMERICAN

Blazed the Trail Which Made the West What It Is Today—Wizard at Figures, With Gluttonous Appetite For Facts—Has Passion For Work and Never Plays Except With His Children

New York, Aug. 24.—As the Kaiser Wilhelm draws hourly nearer, to her pier, public interest in Mr. Harriman's return grows acute, and the general anxiety as to his health has found expression in a series of published appreciations of his personality and achievements such as never before, perhaps, have been accorded a private citizen.

There is a manifest disappointment in Wall street that Harriman's sojourn abroad has not set him up sufficiently to resume active direction of the great interests with which his name is associated. Today—the day that he lands—both the Southern and the Union Pacific directors are to meet, but it has not even been suggested from any authoritative source that Harriman will make any attempt to attend these meetings, which are expected to declare dividends and deal with other matters of importance. On the contrary, after a brief reception at the Erie railroad station after leaving the steamship, he will go direct to his new country place at Arden for further rest.

Alexander Miller, secretary of the Harriman lines, one of Harriman's most trusted lieutenants, spoke of his chief with a seriousness and warmth that brought tears to his eyes.

"Mr. Harriman," said he, "has been pictured as an ogre, a huge spider, an octopus. You don't know what a big-hearted, big-souled man he really is. I call him today the biggest, the brainiest, the most patriotic American we have.

"Educated in Wall street, he yet has none of that provinciality sometimes attributed to the born and bred New Yorker. He was always in sympathy with the west and intuitively divined its needs. Other men have helped, but Harriman blazed the trail.

"If I should be asked to name the chief characteristics that have contributed to his success, I should say: His wizardry with figures, his faculty for getting instantly to the kernel of facts, his judgment of men and his insight into and faith in the future.

"He has the gift of seizing on the meaning of a maze of figures in a flash. He knows what he wants definitely and makes it understood briefly. He makes changes, but the very men shifted will tell you that they do better work in the new positions where he places them. His enthusiasm is contagious and inspires his subordinates.

"When he sits down to his desk things begin to hum. Like all big men, he is not what you would call methodical. He jumps to conclusions by seeming intuition. No doubt the logical processes are all there—for Harriman is no visionary—but they elude analysis by their swiftness.

"Does he play as hard as he works? To tell you the truth, I never saw him play except with his children. He has a passion for work, a gluttonous appetite for facts, and a marvelous ability to digest details. His children and his work—those are his life."

BY OVER THREE KNOTS

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Flusser Exceeds Contract Requirements

Washington, Aug. 24.—Remarkably high speed was made by the torpedo boat destroyer Flusser in her contractors' preliminary trial in a run off the Rockland course. The vessel scored 31.03 knots an hour, her contract requirements contemplating but 28 knots.

Without examining the records the officials say they believe this to be the fastest speed ever made by an American naval torpedo boat destroyer, previous records being around 30 knots an hour.

Foreign built vessels, however, have reached a speed of 33 or more knots an hour.

NOT LIKELY TO RETIRE

Matter of Salary May Keep McKenna on Supreme Court Bench

Washington, Aug. 24.—In the absence of Justice McKenna from the city, his friends here scout the report that he is preparing to retire from the supreme court bench. They admit that he is not as robust in health as might be desired, but say that his health is no worse than it has been for some time.

JUSTICE JOSEPH M'KENNA.

It he should retire now, McKenna would not be entitled, because of lack of age, to the full salary of a justice. The salary is continued to members of the court who have attained the age of 70 years and have served for ten years. McKenna has served the requisite time, but he lacks almost four years of being 70 years old.

YOUTH RUNS AMUCK ABOARD A STEAMER

Holds Crowd at Bay After Stabbing Captain and Mate

New York, Aug. 24.—The captain, the mate and a shipyard gang of fifty men at work on the steamer Harry Luckenbach were helpless for half an hour before Salvatore Farina, a Portuguese, aged 18, who ran amuck with a sheath knife. John Dalton, the mate, was so badly cut that he will probably die, and his brother, Joseph, the captain, was less seriously wounded.

The fight began when the mate cuffed Farina for an impudent reply and ended with the two wounded men on the deck, Farina with his back up against the foremast, an eight-inch blade in his hand and the crew surrounding at a respectful distance. He surrendered last evening.

HONOR FOR AMERICA

Curtiss Makes a New Speed Record In Aviation Week Performance

Rheims, Aug. 24.—Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, and Paulham, representing France, divided the honors of the second day of aviation week, the former with a thrilling flight in which he lowered the speed record for the course, which measures 6 1-5 miles, to 8m., 35 2-5s., the latter making two impressive high altitude flights of 49 1-2 and 56 kilometres respectively in the endurance test for the Prix de la Champagne.

After a preliminary run along the ground of 100 yards, Curtiss' machine rose ligthly and shot by the tribune at a height of sixty feet. Curtiss made the last turn under the mistaken impression that the finish line was closer. He descended so close to earth that many thought he touched, but, perceiving his error, he mounted quickly and easily, crossing the line majestically. An instant later the signal was hoisted that he had made a record.

Curtiss said that he did not push his machine to the limit of its seped.

WRIGHT SIGNS CONTRACT

Is Expected to Make a Circuit of New York In His Aeroplane

New York, Aug. 24.—Chairman Beck of the aeronautics committee of the Hudson-Fulton celebration commission has received the contract signed by Wilbur Wright to give a series of flights with his aeroplane during the celebration.

A complete circuit of New York by the Hudson river, New York bay, East river and the Harlem river is within the possibilities of the flights which Wright, and also Glenn H. Curtiss, are expected to make, Beck says.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 24.—President Taft saw no one of importance Monday, not even an anxious delegation from Dallas, who made a long and unfruitful journey to obtain the president's consent to lengthening his stay in that Texan city until the morning light should break.

Mind Upset by Girl's Drowning

Millville, Mass., Aug. 24.—James Mahoney, 17 years old, who had been canoeing with Agnes N. Meagher, aged 20 years, on the Blackstone river, went into hysterics after communicating the fact that the girl had been drowned. He has been unable to talk further.

SEVEN LIVES TOLL OF RIOT

May Reach Eighteen In Final Count at Schoenville

ORDER IS "SHOOT TO KILL"

State Troopers Striking Fear Into Hearts of Men Who Took Comrades' Lives—Strikers at Pressed Steel Car Works Awed and Gloomy, Realizing For First Time That Their Services Are Dispensed With

Pittsburg, Aug. 24.—The death list resulting from Sunday night's rioting was swelled last night when Mike Desoski, one of the striking men, died from gun wounds in the lungs and abdomen. This brings the death list up to seven. All of the seriously wounded show slight improvement.

Following a night of murderous assaults, bloodshed, death and carnage, Monday was a day of holdups, pounded heads and fractured skulls at the Pressed Steel Car works at Schoenville.

The members of the state constabulary began dealing summary vengeance upon every foreigner they could find upon the streets. Every man was held up at the point of a carbine and made to disgorge from every pocket. If a revovler was found upon him he was marched to the box car lockup, at every step receiving a none too gentle tap frrom a trooper's baton or the butt of the carbine.

Martial law has been declared, and the troops have received orders to shoot down persons inciting a riot or provoking a disturbance.

When the final count is taken the death list from the riots of Sunday night probably will reach eighteen.

Last night the striking men realized for the first time that their jobs were no more, that the company could do without them, and that they no longer were wanted within the big gates of the car plant.

The women and children of the strikers grasped the situation as soon as the men, and the idea of starvation and eviction, with winter coming on, caused wails of anguish in many a striker's cottage.

Forty state police today augmented the company of mounted constables now on duty at the car plant. Since Saturday night's carnage these cavalrymen have evinced a desire to strike fear into the hearts of the men who took their comrades' lives. The strikers realize that the mounted troopers are more than a match for them.

Yet, all during Monday, these troopers were subjected to abuse from house windows and doors whenever they chanced to pass a strike sympathizer's home. In retaliation not a striker or sympathizer left his doorstep but he was halted and searched. Besides the searching the troopers insisted on examining the bodies of the strikers, and if they bore bruises or traces of having been clubbed they were promptly arrested, for the troopers considered such evidence proof that the men had participated in Sunday night's rioting.

The strikers' wives are viewed with disfavor by the troopers. Several of them, carrying large baskets, were made to turn over the contents so that they might be carrying nothing contraband into the houses.

Twenty-five men were arrested and put into the box car jails by nightfall. The men who resisted were manacled to the troopers' horses and dragged through the streets to the plant's entrance.

The strikers seem awed and gloomy at the extent of Sunday night's fatalities. The news that additional state constables were on their way from Wilkesbarre seemed to act as a quietus upon those few strike sympathizers who gathered in doorways last evening and discussed the situation.

"There is no use now," said one of the striking men, "to try to resist these mounted police, as eighty such men, armed as they are, are more than a match for a thousand infuriated strikers."

The announcement is made that the government will heed the peonage charge against President Hoffstet and Foreman Cohen of the Pressed Steel Car company to the extent of making a thorough investigation of the allegations made by Albert Vams, who swore to the charges before Commissioner Lindsay.

Two Killed In Auto Accident

Kankakee, Ills., Aug. 24.—Mrs. George Granger, wife of a retired merchant, and Mrs. Genevieve Rabig, an elocution teacher, were instantly killed and five other occupants of a touring car were seriously injured when the machine was run over by a locomotive. A string of cars on a side track obstructed the view of the chauffeur and of the engineer.

Death In Runaway Accident

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 24.—A pair of horses attached to a heavy truck became frightened and started off at a mad gallop. Edward Spinx jumped into the road to stop them, and after being dragged some distance fell under the ponderous truck. He died a few hours later. Spinx was a teamster.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames.

He cut off abruptly, seeming depressed by the thought that he might have been outwitted, and, clasping hands behind his back, chewed savagely on his cigar, watching the river. Kirkwood found himself somewhat wearied. The uselessness of his presence there struck him with added force. He bethought him of his midnight boat train, scheduled to leave a station miles distant in an hour and a half. If he missed it he would be stranded in a foreign land, penniless and practically without friends, Brentwick being away and all the rest of his circle of acquaintances on the other side of the channel. Yet he lingered in poor company, daring fate that he might see the end of the affair. Why?

There was only one honest answer to that question. He stayed on because of his interest in a girl whom he had known for a matter of three hours at most. It was insensate folly on his part, ridiculous from any point of view, but he made no move to go.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE slow minutes lengthened monotonously.

There came a sound from the street level. Calendar held up a hand of warning. "Here they come! Steady!" he said tensely.

Calendar turned to the boat.

"Sheer off," he ordered. "Drop out of sight. I'll whistle when I want you."

"Aye, aye, sir."

The boat slipped noiselessly away with the current and in an instant was lost to sight. Calendar plucked at Kirkwood's sleeve, drawing him into the shadow of the steps. "E easy," he whispered. "And, I say, lend me a hand, will you, if Mulready turns ugly?"

"Oh, yes," assented Kirkwood, with a nonchalance not entirely unassumed.

The racket drew nearer and ceased. The hush that fell thereafter seemed only accentuated by the purling of the river. It was ended by footsteps echoing in the covered passageway. Calendar craned his thick neck round the shoulder of stone, reconnoitering the landing and stairway.

"Thank God!" he said under his breath. "I was right, after all!"

A man's deep tones broke out above. "This way. Mind the steps. They're a bit slippery, Miss Dorothy."

"But my father?" came the girl's voice, attuned to doubt.

"Oh, he'll be along—if he isn't waiting now in the boat."

They descended, the man leading. At the foot, without a glance to right or left, he advanced to the edge of the stage, leaning out over the rail as if endeavoring to locate the rowboat.

"But, Mr. Mulready"—

The girl's words were drowned by a prolonged blast on the boatswain's whistle at her companion's lips. The shorter one followed in due course.

"But what shall we do if my father isn't here—wait?"

"No; best not to—best to get on the Alethea as soon as possible, Miss Calendar. We can send the boat back."

"'Once aboard the lugger the girl is mine,' eh, Mulready, to say nothing of the loot!"

If Calendar's words were jocular his tone conveyed a different impression entirely. Both man and girl wheeled right about to face him, the one with a strangled oath, the other with a low cry.

"The devil!" exclaimed this Mr. Mulready.

"Oh, my father!" the girl voiced her recognition of him.

"Not precisely one and the same person," commented Calendar suavely, "but—er—thanks, just as much. You see, Mulready, when I make an appointment I keep it."

"We'd begun to get a bit anxious about you"— Mulready began defensively.

"So I surmised from what Mrs. Hallam and Mr. Kirkwood told me. Well?"

The man found no ready answer. He fell back a pace to the railing, his features working with his deep chagrin. The murky flare of the gas lamp overhead fell across a face handsome beyond the ordinary, but marred by a sullen humor and seamed with indulgence—a face that seemed hauntingly familiar until Kirkwood in a flash of visual memory reconstructed the portrait of a man who lingered over a dining table with two empty chairs for company. This, then, was he whom Mrs. Hallam had left at the Piess—a tall, strong man, very heavy about the chest and shoulders.

"Why, my dear friend," Calendar was taunting him, "you don't seem overjoyed to see me for all your wild anxiety! 'Pon my word, you act as if you hadn't expected me—and our engagement so clearly understood at that. Why, you fool"—here the mask of irony was cast—"did you think for a moment I'd let myself be nabbed by that yap from Scotland Yard? Were you banking on that? I give you my faith I ambled out under his very nose! Dorothy, my dear," turning impatiently from Mulready, "where's that bag?"

The girl withdrew a puzzled gaze from Mulready's face (it was apparent to Kirkwood that this phase of the affair was no more enigmatic to him than to her) and drew aside a corner of her cloak, disclosing the gladstone bag securely grasped in one gloved hand.

"I have it, thanks to Mr. Kirkwood," she said quietly.

Kirkwood chose that moment to advance from the shadow. Mulready started and fixed him with a troubled and unfriendly stare. The girl greeted him with a note of sincere pleasure in her surprise.

"Why, Mr. Kirkwood! But I left you at Mrs. Hallam's!"

Kirkwood bowed, smiling openly at Mulready's discomfiture.

"By your father's grace I came with him," he said. "You ran away without saying good night, you know, and I'm a jealous creditor."

She laughed excitedly, turning to Calendar. "But you were to meet me at Mrs. Hallam's?"

"Mulready was good enough to try to save me the trouble, my dear. He's an unselfish soul, Mulready. Fortunately it happened that I came along not five minutes after he'd carried you off. How was that, Dorothy?"

Her glance wavered uneasily between the two, Mulready and her father. The former, shrugging to declare his indifference, turned his back squarely upon them. She frowned.

"He came out of Mrs. Hallam's and got into the four wheeler, saying you had sent him to take your place and would join us on the Alethea."

"So-o! How about it, Mulready?"

The man swung back slowly. "What you choose to think," he said after a deliberate pause.

"Well, never mind! We'll go over the matter at our leisure on the Alethea."

There was in the adventurer's tone a menace, bitter and not to be ignored, which Mulready saw fit to challenge.

"I think not," he declared. "I think not. I'm weary of your addle pated suspicions. It'd be plain to any one but a fool that I acted for the best interests of all concerned in this matter. If you're not content to see it in that light I'm done."

"Oh, if you want to put it that way I'm not content, Mr. Mulready," retorted Calendar dangerously.

"Please yourself. I bid you good evening and goodby." The man took a step toward the stairs.

Calendar dropped his right hand into his topcoat pocket. "Just a minute," he said sweetly, and Mulready stopped. Abruptly the fat adventurer's smoldering resentment leaped in flame. "That will be about all, Mr. Mulready! 'Bout face, you hound, and get into that boat! D'you think I'll temporize with you till doomsday? Then forget it. You're wrong, dead wrong. Your bluff's called, and"—with an evil chuckle—"I hold a full house, Mulready—every chamber taken." He lifted meaningly the hand in the coat pocket "Now, in with you!"

With a grin and a swagger of pure bravado Mulready turned and obeyed. Unnoticed of any save perhaps Calendar himself the boat had drawn in at the stage a moment earlier. Mulready dropped into it and threw himself sullenly upon the midships thwart.

"Now, Dorothy, in you go, my dear," continued Calendar, with a self satisfied wag of his head.

Half dazed, to all seeming, she moved toward the boat. With clumsy and assertive gallantry her father stepped before her, offering his hand—his hand which she did not touch, for in the act of descending she remembered and swung impulsively back to Kirkwood.

"Good night, Mr. Kirkwood. Good night. I shan't forget."

He took her hand and bowed above it, but when his head was lifted he still retained her fingers in a lingering clasp.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TWO WOMEN BADLY HURT

Man Who Stuck to Seat Is Uninjured In Collision of Cars

Merrimac, Mass., Aug. 24.—Two women were severely hurt and ten other people slightly injured when two electric cars met in a head-on collision here. Mrs. David E. Currier, in jumping from one of the cars, had the ligaments of her right shoulder torn away and her left arm severely bruised. Internal injuries are also feared. Mrs. William L. Gale sustained spinal injuries.

The exact cause of the accident is not known, as the railroad officials refuse to make any statement.

The only passenger who kept his seat was John Hetherman. Injuries sustained in an automobile accident three months ago kept him from jumping with the others and he escaped unhurt.

FISHERMEN'S RECORD CATCH

Half a Million Pounds of Mullets Get Into Their Nets

Beaufort, N. C., Aug. 24.—A catch of mullets aggregating 500,000 pounds, said to be the largest ever landed on the Atlantic coast, was made off this port by deep sea fishermen.

The fishermen went to sea yesterday in search of menhaden, but their boats ran into schools of mullets miles long and each vessel was loaded to the gunwales with them.

The catch was brought to market here and the entire working force available was engaged all night in preparing the fish for shipment today.

DESIRABLE MEN LEAVING THE ARMY

Largely Due to the Indications of Prosperity

Washington, Aug. 24.—Returning prosperity is having its effect on recruiting men for the United States army, making it more difficult to keep up the standard established during and following the panic of 1907, when splendid material was available from the ranks of the unemployed.

The authorized strength of the army today is 84,500 men, exclusive of the hospital corps, which numbers 3500 men. As the terms of enlisted men expire it is no easy matter to induce the desirable men to re-enlist.

It will not be a hard matter therefore, to reduce the size of the standing army, in accordance with President Taft's wishes.

PUTTING ON THE LID

Maine Summer Resorts Must Strictly Observe Sunday Laws

Sanford, Me., Aug. 24.—"Blue" Sundays are in prospect in Sanford for at least a year. Thirteen persons were arrested Monday, charged with violating the Sunday laws. Seven dealers were fined $10 and costs each and were forced to go under individual bonds of $500 as a pledge of future Sunday closing. The trials of the other six, four of whom are clerks, will come up later.

It is understood that similar action will be taken at Kennebunk and at York, two popular summer resorts. The efforts to suppress Sunday sales are being furthered by the Maine Civic league, which secured the evidence.

Several months ago the town was closed tight for several Sundays. Later, the "lid" was lifted, however, and Monday's arrests were unexpected.

CLASH OF UNDERTAKERS

Burial of Indiana Man Held Up Pending a Decision of Courts

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 24.—To enforce an ante-mortem contract for the cremation of the body of Charles Crary, C. B. Stiver, an undertaker, met the funeral procession in the cemetery and with the aid of an attorney and several policemen prevented the burial. The corpse was finally placed in a vault to await a legal decision of the case.

Stiver contends that six years ago Crary entered into a contract with him to have his body cremated. On Crary's death his uncle and heir, Wesley Crary, placed the body in charge of a rival undertaker, who attempted to bury it according to Wesley Crary's orders.

Crary's uncle alleges that his nephew was not mentally responsible when the contract with Stiver for cremation was made.

Disastrous Forest Fire

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 24.—Forest fires are spreading on the Idaho side toward Priest lake, covering a large territory and doing immense damage. It is estimated that 1,500,000 feet of lumber will be destroyed.

Last of "Invading Army" Depart For Home After a Parade

Boston, Aug. 24.—Claiming the honors of the recent mimic war and flushed with pleasure over the two extra days of sightseeing allowed them in Boston, the 1600 National Guardsmen from the District of Columbia last evening boarded the transports Sumner and McClellan and sailed for the Potomac.

Under command of General Harries and the brigade staff the men marched through the streets of the city and attracted much attention and generous applause. At the state house Governor Draper reviewed the troops, while President McCabe of the common council did the honors at the city hall.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Quincy People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Quincy.

Nicholas Albanese, living at 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by a dull backache for some time and often while at work sharp shooting pains would dart through my loins and cause me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my eyesight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies but did not receive relief and as a last resort, decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store, began their use and was instantly relieved. I have no hesitancy in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure and I highly endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AUTO SMASHED.

One of Abbott & Millers Express Autos Run Into by Street Car.

One of the big express automobiles of Abbott & Miller was run into on Hancock street this noon by an electric car and quite badly damaged. According to eye witnesses of the accident the driver of the auto was the person to blame. The auto was coming from Boston and was using the inward street car track. Just behind him was the 11.07 car from Neponset for Quincy. The motorman of the car was bothered more or less all the way up by the automobile which did not seem inclined to get out of the way. When near the corner of Hancock street and Billings road the auto turned off of the track and then immediately turned onto the track again in front of the car. The next instant there was a crash and over went the automobile with a smashed wheel. No one was injured, but street cars were delayed somewhat.

A Brief Introduction.

Mark Twain said the only introduction to a literary audience that seemed to him the right word in the right place, a real inspiration, was as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I shall not waste any unnecessary time in the introduction. I don't know anything about this man—at least I only know two things about him. One is that he has never been in prison, and the other is I can't see why he hasn't."

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Editors Daily Ledger:

This morning I dropped a five dollar bill in the Mount Wollaston bank. A few minutes later H. E. Teasdale, Esq., picked it up. Did he put it in his pocket and wait to see the loser advertise for it as so many people would do? He did not. He handed it to the cashier and in course of a few hours the bill was returned to me.

Some readers will say "What else should a member of the legal profession do but exert himself to find the owner?" Just the same I feel the incident ought to be published. I hardly need say Mr. Teasdale does not know of my writing this item.

Citizen.

Editor Ledger.

I notice in the Boston papers, that the police of Quincy have become tired of the square deal for auto maniacs, which means, unlimited speed, and have begun to check the reckless driving. As a summer resident of Bay View, North Weymouth, I wish to call the attention of the Weymouth police if there are any, to the reckless driving going on every day on the main road to Nantasket. Forty to fifty miles an hour is common speed. While the laws have been made more lenient instead of more serve, as they should have been, reckless driving and accidents are becoming more common. There are only two ways to prevent reckless and unreasonable speeding, either gear the machines to a reasonable rate or jail the offenders and until this is done murders and maiming of the innocent will continue and increase.

E. F. Sawyer,
Bay View, North Weymouth.

A Towel Story.

In a certain New England town they manufacture a well known kind of towel, most efficient for drying purposes. How that towel first happened to be made in the form which has proved so profitable to its makers is the subject of an amusing legend. It savors strongly of belonging to the "too good to be true" genus of anecdotes and is as follows:

Once the machinery in the towel factory, busily engaged in turning out a very conventional brand of towel, suddenly went wrong and began practically to go backward. There was much excitement. Eventually the machinery was chastised and set to rights again.

But—it was discovered that the towels turned out during that interval of mechanical anarchy were of a texture quite unrivaled for use as bath towels. At once the machinery was set going backward again and has been traveling in that direction ever since, to the great delight of the stockholders in the towel company.—New York Times.

When Linen Is Translucent.

The whiteness and opacity of dry linen, as of writing paper, are due mainly to the fact of repeated reflections at the surface, so that the light is wasted in these reverberations before it can reach to any depth. The body of linen is a network of transparent fibers not in optical contact, which intercept the light by repeatedly reflexing it. Now, if the interstices of these fibers are filled by a body of the same refractive index as the fibers themselves the reflexion of the surface is destroyed and the linen is rendered more transparent. Water does this; hence linen when wet is darker, but more translucent, just as is the oiled paper used for tracings by architects and engineers. The same holds good with ordinary glass and ground glass, the repeated reflections of the latter making it far less transparent. To a similar cause are due the whiteness and opacity of snow, of salt and of pulverized glass.

An Entertaining Catbird.

Nothing escapes the eye of our pet catbird, for he is curiosity personified. He wants to know the why and wherefore of everything that is a little strange and does not rest until he has found out. When let out in a room he will carefully examine every nook and corner. He is an inveterate joker and delights to play jokes on his fellow prisoners, while his sense of humor is almost human at times. The pincushion is a constant wonder and delight to him. He flies to it as soon as let out of his cage and either pulls the pins all out or drives them into the cushion as far as possible. If he pulls them out, he hops to the edge of the table and drops them on the floor, flirting his tail and uttering a note of great satisfaction when they strike the floor.—Suburban Life.

How He Felt.

He was an Englishman of the ultra sort and recently arrived, but he was striving strenuously to catch up with American idioms and New York slang. He had made some progress. He loomed up in the breakfast room of his hotel the other morning after a too convivial evening and encountered one of his companions.

"How do you feel, old chap?" asked the latter.

"Feel?" repeated the Englishman. "Feel? Oh, yes, I see what you mean, old fellow. Well, really, don't you know, I feel like one and six."

"Like what?"

"Like one and six, as you chaps say here. No! Hold on, there! I mean 80 cents, you know; feel like 30 cents. Yes."—New York Globe.

EXTRAVAGANCE IS CHARGED

"Lessening of Executive Vigilance" by Mayor of Boston

COMMISSION ISSUES REPORT

Finds That Positions Have Been Secured For Favored Individuals, Tending to Increase City's Expenses and Demoralize Service—Unjustifiable Increases In Compensation—Remedy For Alleged Evils Submitted

Boston, Aug. 24.—The first distinct arraignment of the executive and legislative branches of the municipal government of Boston during the present administration was made last night in the report issued by the finance commission, which charged the office of Mayor Hibbard with "extravagance," "a lessening of executive vigilance" and "the placing of favored individuals upon the payrolls of the city."

Comparing the condition of the city's finances with other years, the commission says: "In the present year, owing to the disregard by the city council of the financial condition of the city, the extravagance of certain department heads, and the failure of the mayor to continue the work of reform, there has been on the whole a retrogression."

Commenting on the fact that Hibbard, in a message in January to the city council, emphasized the need of economy in all departments, the report adds:

"But the investigations of the commission have shown that his office during the present year has sought to procure positions for favored individuals in various departments. Such interference increases the expenses of the city, and tends to demoralize the entire service."

The commission in general charges that "the responsibility for unnecessary expenditures, as distinguished from appropriations, rests primarily with the mayor; that the facts show a lessening of executive vigilance and a corresponding growth of extravagance; that in many cases reductions in compensations have been followed by restorations, and discharges by reinstatements; that new and unnecessary appointments have been made and unjustifiable increases in compensation granted."

As a remedy for the alleged evils the commission recommends: "That all salaries, needlessly raised, be reduced; that all unnecessary appointments be revoked; that action on pending requests for increases in salary be postponed until superfluous employes be removed and excessive salaries be reduced to a proper basis; that executive departments be relieved of pressure from the mayor's office in the appointment of subordinates."

EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID

It Appears to Have Taken Pretty Firm Hold on Cranston Jail

Cranston, R. I., Aug. 24.—Three guards of the Providence county jail here have been taken to the Rhode Island state hospital, suffering from typhoid fever, two others are at their homes with symptoms of the same disease, while three prisoners are suspected of being afflicted.

The epidemic follows closely upon the death three weeks ago of Thomas Hagan, a prisoner in the jail who developed typhoid fever soon after entering in July. The authorities are investigating to determine if possible the cause of the spread of the disease.

Aunt Anna's Wisdom.

By GRACE ETHEL WEEKES.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Miss Eleanor Hodges when barely seventeen had a lover, George Bergen, two years her senior. Miss Hodges, being an orphan, was brought up by an aunt who was a very wise woman. As soon as she heard of the affair she called the lovers into her boudoir and said to them:

"In loving each other you two children are but following a law of nature. But you must have forethought. Neither of you have any means, and you, George, have but a meager salary. It is all right if you will be patient. Far be it from me to object to this match because neither of you are rich. What I wish for you to do is to wait till George has a salary that will enable you to live without having the wolf continually prowling about your door. Besides this, you should have a little sum laid up in case of sickness or other misfortunes. There is one other matter that should be provided, though I don't think it absolutely necessary—that is, a nest egg, a snowball, neither the principal nor interest of which is to be spent. That is for old age and the children when you leave them."

Eleanor was convinced; George demurred. He said he thought it better to be married and fight the battle together from the start. The adviser smiled upon him sympathetically and drew a picture of married life with no provision against the thousand and one expenses that come up continually to make every day a horror. George shuddered. Then he went away resolved to devote every hour of his existence (when not sleeping) to secure all these provisions, including that "snowball."

He kept his word. In the morning he was the first man at the store where he was employed and in the evening the last to leave. He not only did his own work, but that of every one else who would permit. He opened a savings bank account and Saturday night deposited everything he could possibly get on without spending during the following week, and every Saturday he made his estimate for the next less in order that his deposit might be more. His passbook became, next to Eleanor, the all important thing of his life. In a year he had several hundred dollars drawing interest.

One day his employer told him of a chance to buy some shares of stock very cheap. He drew his money from the savings bank and bought three shares. Soon after he was paid a dividend. Here again was money producing money. He put his dividends into the savings bank, where they drew interest, and cut his expenses to the quick. In a few months he had enough in bank to buy two more shares of stock.

"Oh, George," said Eleanor when informed of all this, "Aunt Anna will be delighted, especially as you are acting on her advice. What a level head she has! At this rate perhaps we may be married in another year."

"Possibly, but since we have begun to act as your aunt advised we should complete the proposition. There is the salary for necessary expenses and, say, 10 per cent to be saved. There is the fund for unforeseen contingencies and the fund for old age. Your aunt said we must be patient."

"So we will," said the girl.

Another year passed, with more additions to the fund than had been expected, and George's salary was raised to a sufficiency for a young couple to live plainly. The next year the contingent fund could easily have been put aside, but in that event George would have to begin at the bottom for the "snowball." The desirable thing was to wait till the latter was big enough to furnish the former and a working capital besides. This George decided upon, and Eleanor was disappointed.

When Eleanor was twenty-one George had a fair salary, a contingent fund and his "snowball." Aunt Anna thought they might be married without transgressing the laws of prudence, but George had his eye on some real estate that could be bought very cheap and preferred to wait another year. The rental would pay off a mortgage there was on it. He bought the property before the year was out, but figured that by two years more of careful expenditure he could pay off the mortgage and have the property intact.

Eleanor objected to these constant deferments, but George wouldn't give up his plan. He said they could live in the house when paid for rent free, and he could have what the rental of a home would be to make more money with.

When George was twenty-eight years old he was considered very well to do, but he had the reputation of being one of the meanest young men in the place where he lived. At this time he made several neat turns in a business way, clearing a considerable sum. For the first time he failed to report his gain to his sweetheart. Nor did he confide it to any one else.

And so the years went on, but the wedding came not. "I feel so sorry for that Miss Hodges," said a lady to another. "I understand she's been engaged for twelve or fifteen years to some one who isn't able to marry her." "Nonsense," said the other. "Her lover is rich. That horrid old aunt of Eleanor's inoculated him when he was very young with the demon of greed. He won't marry because he knows that he must keep up an establishment commensurate with his reputed wealth, and that would interfere with his miserly practices."

Eleanor is now fifty and an old maid.

His Nightcap Privilege.

Among the many strange privileges granted by English sovereigns to their subjects probably the most remarkable was the permission given to the Earl of Sussex by Queen Mary to wear his nightcap, or even two nightcaps, if he so wished, in her royal presence. The earl was a victim of colds in the head, which, like the law, are no respecters of persons, and as he considered catarrh in the head too heavy a price to pay for loyalty he petitioned the queen for permission to wear his nightcap in her presence.

The patent conceding this unique privilege is one of the most amusing in royal annals. It runs thus: "Know ye that we do give to our beloved and trusty cousin and counselor, Henry, earl of Sussex, Viscount Fitzwalter and lord of Egremund and Purnell, license and pardon to wear his cap or nightcap or any two of them, at his pleasure, as well in our presence as in the presence of any other person or persons within this realm or any other place in our dominions wheresoever, during his life, and these our letters shall be sufficient warrant in his behalf."

Wise Winnetka.

Winnetka, Ill., has gas as a result of giving a long term franchise after years of discussion. This would hardly be worth noting except for the fact that a citizen had offered to build and present to the village a well equipped gas plant. The citizens looked up the results of municipal gas works and decided that the gift would in the long run be too expensive; hence the franchise.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY

Held on Grounds of Mrs. Gragg For Hall Place Church

One of the most successful affairs of the season, from the social as well as the financial point of view, was the lawn party given by the Hall Place Methodist Episcopal church, Tuesday evening, Aug. 24th, in the shade of the old apple trees.

The lawn party was held on the grounds around Mrs. Gragg's house on the Parkway, near the Willard school. Mrs. Gragg has a very pretty as well as extensive place and it proved an ideal spot for a fete of this kind. The grounds were very prettily decorated Japanese lanterns being used for lighting purposes. Each table was decorated with a different color.

The candy table was decorated in red and white and was in charge of Miss Edna Burke, Miss Katharine Hodgkinson and Mrs. John Pearce. Punch was served under a pretty pink canopy under the direction of Miss Ada Williams, Miss Lillian Johnson and Mrs. Richard Moyle. Aprons and fancy articles were sold by Miss May Williams and Mrs. George Hawes, who displayed their art in decorating by having their table beautifully draped in yellow. Miss Carol Parris, Miss Beryl Hannant and Mrs. Mary McCormick dispensed treasures from the deep blue sea to fishermen who fished with patriotic fishing poles and waited anxiously for good bites.

Charles S. Jose once more proved himself to be a popular peanut vender, having also added pop corn to his stock in trade. Ernest Williams sold peanut grabs, a great many proving their ability to withdraw all that came within their reach.

A large quantity of ice cream was sold, it being an ideal night to enjoy eating it "in the shade of the old apple trees." This was in charge of Mrs. Fred L. Badger, Mrs. William McCormick and Miss Hilda Francis. A pleasing feature of the evening was the band concert rendered by the band from the Finnish Congregational church, there being also music by a male chorus from the same church.

A great deal of interest was displayed in the pie race, there being four girls and four boys who showed their intense liking for blueberry pie, by kneeling on the ground and eating a whole pie without the aid of their hands, the pies being laid on a bench in front of the contestants. The prize was a beautiful penknife and was won by Albert Thomas, who succeeded in eating his pie first.

Another interesting and fun provoking contest was a doughnut race, the doughnuts being tied on the end of a string which was tied to a clothes line. The object was to bite the doughnut as it swung back and forth and the one who succeeded in eating their doughnut first won the prize. This also was done without the use of hands. Miss Elizabeth Conway of Cross street won this prize which was a beautiful shell inkstand.

The night was an ideal one and better weather could not have been desired.

UNMUFFLED BOATS.

Inspector McKay Gets After Violaters of the Motor Boat Law.

There have been numerous complaints about the noise made by motor boats, that cruise about Quincy waters, that are not muffled according to law. There have also been several communications in the Ledger bearing on the same matter. With all this seeming warning there are many owners of boats who cruise about the harbor making noise enough to frighten the Indians.

Inspector McKay has been getting after them however and as a result of his work several will be summoned into court this week for violation of the law. This may have the desired effect and serve as a warning to others.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Committee Give Notice as to Papers and Delegates

Notice is given in today's Ledger by the Republican City Committee regarding the filing of nomination papers for delegates to the several conventions as well as for Representatives to the general court from the fifth and sixth districts, to be voted for at the caucuses Sept. 21.

The Republicans are entitled to nineteen delegates to the several conventions as follows: Ward 1, four, Ward 2, two, Ward 3, three, Ward 4, two, Ward 5, five and Ward 6, three.

Nomination papers in conformity with the laws may be obtained from the office of the secretary of the committee on or after Wednesday Sept. 1, and must be filed with him between 7.30 P. M. Wednesday, Sept. 8, and Thursday, Sept. 9, at which time they will be opened.

Whether or not there will be any interesting contests for the delegations is not now known but it is fair to presume that there will be some contests especially for county officers.

Representatives William R. Thomas of the fifth district and Representative Louis F. R. Langelier of the sixth districts will be candidates for renomination and rumor has it that there will be others who will seek the nomination.

For Senator from this district Senator Hultman, the present incumbent will be a candidate for reelection and he will apparently have no opposition for the nomination, as far as Quincy is concerned.

FREDERICK E. CLAGUE.

Funeral of Victim of Sunday Accident Largely Attended.

The funeral of Frederick E. Clague, who died as a result of injuries received from falling from his car on Hancock street early Sunday morning, was held Tuesday afternoon from his late home 103 Phipps street and was very largely attended. There was a delegation of seventy-five of his coworkers on the street railway as well as Supt. Gammons and others.

The services were conducted by Rev. A. A. Ellsworth, who spoke of the high esteem in which the young man was held by his employers and among the men with whom he worked.

The casket was surrounded by beautiful flowers which included a large standing cross from the officials of the street railway and a massive floral car from the conductors and motormen.

The members of the street railway employees union assembled at Wilson's hall and marched to the house preceeded by car No. 3571, which was draped in mourning. After the services, the remains were escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery by the car and 75 of the motormen and conductors attached to the Quincy barn.

The bearers were Thomas Devaney, who was the motorman on the car when the accident happened, Edward J. Dunn, Herbert E. Johnson, Arnold Kent, Felix Lorandeau and H. E. Severns. Arriving at the cemetery the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Ellsworth.

EDMUND S. HUNT.

The funeral of Edmund S. Hunt of Weymouth was held Tuesday from his late home. The services were conducted by Rev. William Hyde and were attended by a large number of his former associates and a delegation of former members of the Weymouth brass band. During the services Mrs. Mary Montgomery Brackett of New York, sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and "Lead Kindly Light." The burial was at Weymouth Heights.

TAX RATES.

Fall River's tax rate for 1909 as announced Tuesday is $18.90 per $1,000 as against $19.20 last year.

The tax rate of Malden for 1909 is $15.70, a deduction of $3.50 from the rate of last year.

YAGHTSMEN BANQUETED

Admiral Barandon and Sonder Boat Crews Entertained

Admiral Barandon and the crews of the sonder class boats were entertained at a banquet Tuesday evening by the Eastern Yacht club at Marblehead.

It was a brilliant gathering of yachtsmen, covers being laid for 100. Admiral Barandon spoke in glowing terms of the sportsmanship of American yachtsmen and of the cordial feeling between the yachtsmen of America and Germany who next Monday were to "sail God's ocean" in a friendly contest.

Now that the measuring of the sonders for the German-American match is over, the three German boats are out every morning and afternoon for sail stretching spins and general tuning-up.

All three, the Hevella, Seehund II and Margarethe, were out Tuesday following the racing among the rating boats in the Corinthian Y. C. event. The rig and especially the large club topsail that the 38-rater Dorella sports caused much comment among the crews of all three boats.

Otto Protzen, the skipper of the Hevella, whose injured knee seems to be progressing finely, was out in his boat and it now appears that there is no doubt but what he will be able to sail her in the first race of the match next Monday.

While the German boats are sailing around, the American team, Ellen Joyette and Wolfe are out of the water at Burgess yard. These boats are being put into the best of trim for the racing. They have been stripped of rigging and spars and the masts have been unstepped.

The paint is to be scraped off down to the planking ,then they will be smoothed down and painted with two or three coats. This treatment will be given to both the top sides and underbody.

Although the Wolf and Joyette were potleaded for the trial races in the coming match, both will be painted white, and green below the waterline.

This results from the rule of the match that none of the contestants can be hauled out during the racing. Potlead is good for only three or four days, and a surface of the ordinary green antifouling paint is much better after a boat has been in the water a week.

BODY CLAIMED.

Friends of Dr. H. W. Gross, Who Committed Suicide Claim Body.

The body of Dr. Herman W. Gross, surgeon at the Fore River hospital who committed suicide Tuesday by shooting was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms that afternoon after being viewed by the Medical Examiner. Later in the day friends from Boston notified Mr. Hall that they would come to Quincy for the body.

While not a man who readily made friends Dr. Gross, by those who enjoyed his acquaintance, was considered a fine fellow. He had but recently returned from his vacation and friends at the Fore River noticed that he appeared somewhat despondent. but it was attributed to ill health. He retired as usual the night before and he had been dead fully an hour when discovered by the nurse, who went to his room to see what had become of him.

During Dr. Gross' year in the City Council he was punctual in his attendance at meetings of the two committees of which he was a member as well as being present at practically every meeting of the Council. It was in the committee room that one came to know him. Here his natural genial disposition was manifested and he made many fast and firm friends who deplore his death.

ARRANGING NEW CRUISE

U. S. Battleships to Make Journey of 28,000 Miles

Another "peace fleet" is to be sent to the Pacific by Uncle Sam. It will comprise eight vessels of war, just one-half as many as circled the world on a similar mission. It will be composed of the strongest and fastest cruisers in the naval force, and will leave San Francisco a week from next Sunday and be occupied with its mission, which is declared to be friendly, more than five months .

The vessels which have been ordered to prepare for the journey are the armored cruisers Tennessee, California, South Dakota, Washington, West Virginia, Colorado, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

According to the navy department's schedule of their 28,000-mile journey the cruisers will arrive at Honolulu Sept. 11, where they will remain until Oct. 5. They will spend a week at Nares Harbor in the Admiralty islands, arriving Oct. 18 and leaving for Manila Oct. 24. They will reach the Philippines Nov. 1.

While in the Philippine archipelago the squadron will engage in gunnery practice and will spend a month on the islands. Dec. 1 is the tentative date for their departure from Manila.

The Tennessee and Washington will go to Woosung, the California and South Dakota to several Chinese ports and then proceed to Yokohama. The West Virginia and Pennsylvania will visit Hong Kong and Kobe and the Colorado and Maryland the same points at a later date. The whole squadron will reassemble at Yokohama, and will sail for home Jan. 19, 1910.

On the return trip a second stop of a week will be made at Honolulu. The Glacier will accompany the squadron as supply ship.

Another inducement for men to keep sober—an insurance company in the south has applied for a charter and will only accept risks on total abstainers.

Edward Markham, author of "The Man with the Hoe," is to give up his residence in New York and go back to the Pacific coast believing he can do better work there.

The golden age of summer is here and in the garden is the golden glow, sunflowers, marigolds and flowers of all kinds, while the fields and waysides are bright with golden-rod.

When the Wakefield schools reopen next month the teaching of writing will be changed. After fifteen years trial, vertical writing is to be abolished and a slanting penmanship adopted.

Another two-cent stamp is on the road due to arrive next month. It is issued to commemorate the Hudson-Fulton celebration from Sept. 25 to Oct. 9. It will be the color of the present two-cent stamp.

The Prohibition party is becoming quite old and is preparing to celebrate its fortieth anniversary on Sept. 24, at Chicago, when there will be a large gathering from all over the country.

Brown-cheeked boys and girls are returning from country and seashore and preparing for school which is now days off instead of weeks. After a season of recreation it is hard to enter again on the regular routine whether one is a child or a big grown-up.

Work at the District Court would be much lighter if the Quincy police and judge could be made to accept the authority of the Cambridge man who when arraigned for drunkenness said he was not drunk, that a man isn't drunk unless he lies in the street.

Because of friendly relations between our country and the Argentine Republic, American architects have been asked to present plans for a large government hospital to comprise twenty buildings to be built at Buenos Ayres. In the competition the winner will be invited to take charge of the work and the second and third best contestants will receive $10,000 and $5,000.

Superintendent Elson of Cleveland says "When we can get away from teaching the child the things that are of little value to him and replace them with subjects which when mastered will in the later years of his life mean dollars and cents to him, the educational problem will be solved. Injecting commercialism in grammar school studies will go further in bringing beneficial conditions than any other method."

Mayor Brooks of Cambridge discovered that several present and past city officials of that city were not paying a water tax and has ordered not only the collection for this year but for past years. It has created some opposition as some of the men have not held office for five years or more but have continued having their water tax rebated and naturally do not wish to pay up. Wonder how many in Quincy enjoy the privilege of free city water?

During the past few weeks the name of Quincy's first Mayor, the Hon. Charles H. Porter, has been brought forward as a good one to lead the Republican ticket at the municipal election. Former City Auditor Sidelinger's name is also mentioned and a new one and a strong one in the Mayorality field is Senator Hultman. It is understood that the latter gentleman would be agreeable to the majority of his party but for party reasons it is thought best to give the present incumbent another term, after which the Republicans would have a winner in Senator Hultman. If the Republicans do not make a deal and unite in a strong candidate, a pretty contest may be expected this fall.

GNAWED BY A WILD ANIMAL

Decomposed Body of Vermont Farmer Found In a Ravine

CLOSE TO HIS OWN HOME

Nothing Had Been Heard of Him Since He Visited a Neighbor More Than Six Weeks Ago—Discovery Made by His Two Young Sons—Two Elder Sons In Prison, One Awaiting Hanging For Murder of Woman

Townsend, Vt., Aug. 25.—The accidental discovery of the decomposed body of George Kent, 60 years old, a farmer of this town, by his two young sons at the bottom of a deep and unfrequented ravine near the Kent home, was the cause of an investigation into the man's death by State Attorney Williams.

On July 9 Kent paid a visit to the neighboring farm of Herbert Barker and since leaving Barker's house to go home nothing has been heard of him until the discovery made by his two sons.

These lads, Bernard, aged 14, and Perry, aged 10, while playing on the hillside near their home, clambered to the top of the ravine and peered over. The eye of Richard detected something that looked to him like the coat his father had worn on the day he disappeared. The boy made his way down the gully, followed by his brother.

The coat was identified by both the boys as the one their father had worn, and pursuing their discoveries further they discovered the body of their father beneath some bushes, badly decomposed and partly gnawed by some wild animal.

Horrified at their discovery they fled hastily to the home of the nearest selectman and told of their discovery. Led by the two lads a party of men went to the ravine and confirmed the story of the two boys. The selectmen could not account for the presence of the old man in a place so hard to get into and unfrequented except occasionally by venturesome boys.

State Attorney Williams was notified of the circumstances and he came here to make a personal investigation. Little could be learned from the boys, except that there had been some friction between the old man and one of his elder sons. What further information Williams learned he would not make public.

Fred Kent, one of George Kent's sons, who is at present in jail at Newfanes on the charge of a burglary at Westminster, will be questioned by the authorities in the effort to cast further light upon his father's death, if possible.

The dead man was the father of Elroy Kent, who is in the Windsor jail awaiting the death penalty for the murder of Delia Congdon at Wallingford. This crime was committed after Kent had escaped from the state insane asylum at Middlebury, Vt.

STEAMERS CRASH IN STORM

Number of Persons Who Lost Their Lives May Reach Two Hundred

Montevideo, Aug. 25.—In a driving rainstorm the Argentine excursion steamer Colombia and the North German Lloyd steamer Schlesien collided at the entrance of Montevideo harbor. The Colombia's bow was crushed in and she sank almost immediately. Between 150 and 200 jersons were killed or drowned as a result of the accident.

The Colombia carried about 200 passengers and a crew of 48 men. Most of the dead are women and children. A majority of the survivors are men.

The Schlesien, which was only slightly damaged, has been detained here by the port authorities. Her commander attributes the collision to the wind and the high seas, which made the steamship almost unmanageable in the harbor entrance.

While great numbers of women and children were drowned almost everyone of the ship's complement was saved.

SUMMER MAGAZINES.

Everybody's September number opens with a quaint child story, "Happiness," by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews. This delicate little yarn is a long way from Mrs. Andrew's famous story of a clergyman's adventures with a humorously intoxicated college friend, said to have been taken from an experience of her brother's the Rev. Percy Shipman. And Blanche Greer's pictures are what in one of Emily Post's novels surely would be described as "delectable." If there are no comic situations here, the deficiency is made up in the succeeding pages by L. Frank Tooker in his sketch, "A day off," which recounts the doings of a Tammany picnic. Robert Dunn's "Semper Sparling" is quite thrilling as fiction, but the story will also be recognized as a patriotic plea for a merchant marine. Porter Emerson Browne, who wrote the much discussed play, "A Fool There Was," contributes "The Mellowdrammer," a laughable satire on his own profession. In "The dryad of Barrell lane," Walter Prichard Eaton has produced one of those light, exquisitely handled love stories of his which carry a flavor of distinction all their own. "The tilting island" is a scientific horror story of New York devastated by one end sinking into the sea of its own weight. Forrest Crissey's "Cooperation Close to the Soil" is the sequel to his "Robbing the Hand that Feeds," and is, in effect, a rousing cheer for the new organizations by which the farmers propose to meet trust methods with methods of trust. E. Alexander Powell's article, "The Romance of the Missionary" credits the spread of the gospel with the spread also of health to the heathen and wealth to our merchants.

The contents of September Lippincott's are as follows, A bride for Casey, a complete novelette by Ella Middleton Tybout. When to tell the parents, a sketch by Thomas L. Masson. A patchwork quilt of humanity, a special article by Day Allen Willey. What happened to father, a short story by Mary Roberts Rinehart. A question of honor, a short story by Horner Cotes. Cogitations, by Elizabeth Walter Pulitzer. The shadow of Molly Kinshela, a short story by Josephine Van Tassel Bruorton. Aunt Dianthy, a short story by George Allen England. Those nerves, III.—character leakage, a special article by George Lincoln Walton M. D. Love never is too late, a poem by Florence Earle Coates. Between trains, a short story by Thomas L. Masson. Here, a poem by John Kendrick Bangs. The death sentence, a short story by Caroline Ticknor. An unwilling intrusion, a short story by Percy Wilson. Doubt, a poem by Josephine Morris Rowan. Ways of the hour, "The bigness of things," by Warren Barton Blake; "The things we cannot see," by Ellis O. Jones; "The sin argument," by Phil Collom. Walnuts and wine.

METERS SAVE WATER.

Evidences of the effect of the installation of meters in this city are very apparent in the reduction in consumption of water and consequent reduction in the pumpage and amount of coal consumed, says the Jamestown N. Y., Journal, in its issue of July 9.

"The wells at Levant contain plenty of water, and after the test of the dry season of last year it is safe to assume that there will be no shortage, especially when the fact that the installation of meters is constantly reducing the amount of consumption is taken into consideration.

"Many private dwelling houses have been metered this season. The employes of the water department say that in many cases the consumption the first quarter is continued in the old way and the result is a water bill of prodigious proportions.

"With the average family using water in a careful manner the bill should not be very large. Many families in the city keep inside the minimum rate of $2 per quarter, which allows for 7,500 gallons. The usual trouble with those who have extraordinarily large bills is either unsuspected leaks in the pipes or wasteful use of water. Many persons have been accustomed to keep faucets constantly open in the warm weather in order that a constant supply of cool water may be had. They usually discontinue this practice after they receive their first water bill on a meter.

"In other cases leaks have been found in the pipes. A small leak with a constant drip for 24 hours in the day helps to swell the water bill all out of proportion to what it should be.

"A little figuring on the amount of water for $2 per quarter will serve to show that water is frequently wasted. The amount is 7,500 gallons. That is an average of 83 gallons per day."—Public Service.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames.

"Good night," he said reluctantly. In a sudden flush of daring he turned and nodded coolly to Calendar. "With your permission," he said negligently and drew the girl aside to the angle of the stairway.

The boat dropped away, the oars lifting and falling.

"Miss Calendar"— he began, but was interrupted.

"Here—I say!"

Calendar had started toward him angrily.

Kirkwood calmly waved him back "I want a word in private with your daughter, Mr. Calendar," he announced, with quiet dignity. "I don't think you'll deny me. I've saved you some slight trouble tonight."

Disgruntled, the adventurer paused "Oh, all right," he grumbled. He returned to the boat.

"Forgive me, Miss Calendar," continued Kirkwood nervously. "I know I've no right to interfere, but"—

"Yes, Mr. Kirkwood?"

"But hasn't this gone far enough?" he floundered unhappily. "I can't like the look of things. Are you sure—sure that it's all right—with you, I mean?"

She did not answer at once, but her eyes were kind and sympathetic. He plucked heart of their tolerance.

"It isn't too late yet," he argued "Let me take you to your friends—you must have friends in the city. But this—this midnight flight down the Thames, this atmosphere of stealth and suspicion, this"—

"But my place is with my father, Mr. Kirkwood," she interposed. "I daren't doubt him, dare I?"

"I suppose not."

"So I must go with him. I'm glad—thank you for caring, dear Mr. Kirkwood. And again good night."

"Good luck attend you," he muttered, following her to the boat.

Calendar helped her in and turned back to Kirkwood with a look of arch triumph. Kirkwood wondered if he had overheard. Whether or no, he could afford to be magnanimous. Seizing Kirkwood's hand, he pumped it vigorously.

"My dear boy, you've been an angel in disguise. And I guess you think me the devil in masquerade." He chuckled, in high conceit with himself over the turn of affairs. "Good night and—and fare thee well!" He dropped into the boat, seating himself to face the recalcitrant Mulready. "Cast off, there!"

The boat dropped away, the oars lifting and falling. With a wearyful sense of loneliness and disappointment Kirkwood hung over the rail to watch them out of sight.

Somewhat wearily the young man released the railing and ascended the stairs. "And that is the end!" he told himself, struggling with an acute sense of personal injury. He had been hardly used. For a few hours his life had [illegible] by the inevitable glamour of romance. Mystery and adventure had engaged him. He had served a fair woman and been associated with men whose ways, however questionable, were the ways of courage, hedged thickly about with perils.

Disconsolate and aggrieved, he gained the street. He was miles from St. Pancras, foot weary, to all intents and purposes lost.

In this extremity chance smiled upon him. The cabby who at his initial instance had traveled this weary way from Quadrant mews, after the manner of his kind, ere turning back had sought surcease of fatigue at the nearest public. From afar Kirkwood saw the four wheeler at the curb and made all haste toward it.

Entering the gin mill, he found the cabby, soothed him with bitter and, instructing him for St. Pancras with all speed, dropped, limp and listless with fatigue, into the conveyance.

CHAPTER IX.

FROM the commanding elevation of the box "Three 'n' six!" enunciated the cabby, his tone that of a man prepared for trouble, inclined to give trouble a welcome. His bloodshot eyes blinked truculently at his alighted fare. "Three 'n' six," he iterated aggressively.

An adjacent but theretofore abstracted policeman pricked up his ears and assumed an intelligent expression.

"Bermondsey Ol' Stairs to Sain' Pancras," argued the cabby assertively, "seven mile by th' radius—three 'n' six!"

Kirkwood stood on the outer station platform, near the entrance to third class waiting rooms. Continuing to fumble through his pockets for an elusive sovereign purse, he looked up mildly at the man.

"All right, cabby," he said, with pacific purpose; "you'll get your fare in half a shake."

"Three 'n' six!" croaked the cabby, like a blowsy and vindictive parrot.

The bobby strolled nearer.

"Yes?" said Kirkwood, mildly diverted. "Why not sing it, cabby?"

"Lor' lumme!" The cabby exploded with indignation, continuing to give a lifelike imitation of a rumpled parrot. "I 'ad trouble enough wif you at Bermondsey Ol' Stairs hover that quid you promised, didn't I? Sing it! My heye!"

"Quid, cabby?" And then, remembering that he had promised the fellow a sovereign for fast driving from Quadrant mews, Kirkwood grinned broadly, eyes twinkling, for Mulready must have fallen heir to that covenant. "But you got the sovereign? You got it, didn't you, cabby?"

TAFT IS VANQUISHED

Grand Army Men Succeed In Getting Him to Review Their Parade

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 25.—The veterans of the Civil war broke down veterans of the ivil war broke down the firm resolution of President Taft not to participate in any public function during his vacation, and 2500 Grand Army men in Essex county are thrilled with the news that the president will review them as they march through the streets of Beverly on Sept. 11.

It will be the only time that the public here will have a chance of seeing the president at a standstill. He will ride to the entrance of one of the side streets, where he will sit in his auto while the posts march by.

NO SERIOUS TROUBLE

Political Disorder In Mexico Is Confined to Northern States

Washington, Aug. 25.—Davis E. Thompson, United States ambassador to Mexico, has telegraphed the state department that there is no danger of serious trouble in Mexico.

He says the elements of disorder are practically confined to the northern states and that the Mexican government is fully prepared to take care of any condition that may arise. He adds that no hurt can come to any foreign interests in Mexico.

British Nobleman Found Dead

London, Aug. 25.—Lord Eliot, aged 24, the eldest son of the Earl of St. Germans, was found dead from gunshot wounds at the family home. Whether it was an accident or a case of suicide is not determined.

Revolution In Albania

Saloniki, Aug. 25.—It is reported that a revolution has broken out in northern Albania, and that severe fighting has taken place. Strong reinforcements have been ordered to the scene.

A special meeting of the School Committee will be held this week to decide what plan it will recommend that the new school building at Houghs Neck be built by. The committee had nine plans submitted to them and by the process of elimination the number has dwindled down to two or three.

HEAVY FINE IMPOSED.

Reckless Automobile Driver at Milton Fined $50.

Pary Lew McKinney of 124 Chandler street, Boston, was before the district court this morning on complaint of Officer Fallon of Milton for the reckless driving of an automobile at East Milton. Officer Fallon testified that he first saw McKinney on Milton hill and noticed that he was travelling very fast. He turned about and followed him through East Milton to the Quincy line where he held him up.

Officer Fallon said that his speedometer registered 37 miles per hour when he first got after him. Then it registered 47 miles and from that it ran up to 52 miles per hour. As the car passed through East Milton there were several teams on the street and the car passed through them without slacking speed. The officer characterized it as the most reckless piece of speeding he had seen.

McKinney denied that he was making the speed testified to but the court took the evidence of the officers and imposed a fine of $50. An appeal was taken.

CITY TAX RATES.

Rates of 23 Cities for 1909 Compared with 1908.

It is interesting to note while Quincy citizens are waiting for the Assessors to tell them what the tax rate is to be this year, what other cities of the Commonwealth are doing. Up to the present time 23 of the cities of the state have announced their tax rate.

Of this number but five report an increase from the rate of last year. Four remain the same as last year and 14 report a lower rate.

The cities to show an increase are Melrose 10 cents, Somerville 20 cents, Everett 10 cents, Cambridge 90 cents and Chelsea $1.60. The cities that remain the same are Lynn, Boston, Newton and Woburn.

The following table gives the tax rate of the 23 cities for 1909 in comparison with the year 1908:

	1909.	1908.
Melrose	$19.30	$18.50
Worcester	16.40	17.00

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles H. Olcott and Francis B. Washburn were fined $15 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Alice Riley was fined $10 for assault on Annie Landry at Weymouth. Appealed.

John Galvin was fined $25 for assault at Quincy. Appealed.

Sidney W. Miller was arraigned for violating the liquor law at Weymouth. Case continued under $300 bonds until Sept. 8.

Pary Lew McKinney was fined $50 for reckless driving of an automobile at Milton.

Max Steer was fined $10 for assault on Minnie Goldstein at Quincy.

The continued cases against Gustin Gourley, Edward Fostello, James McDermit and Fred Blacklock for assault on George Germaine at Quincy, were called and the cases dismissed for want of prosecution.

PLACED ON RETIRED LIST

Rear Admiral Swinburne Enjoys Distinction of Long Sea Service

Washington, Aug. 25.—Rear Admiral William T. Swinburne, who holds a longer record for sea service than any if his contemporaries, was transferred to the retired list Tuesday, when he attained the age of 62. Twenty-six years of his forty-three years of service were spent at sea.

ADMIRAL SWINBURNE.

Admiral Swinburne's retirement does not leave a vacancy in the grade of rear admiral. He is an extra number, and received his promotion because of the conspicuous part he played in the Spanish-American war. He was promoted to his present rank July 22, 1906.

FRIENDSHIP OF EDITORS

Cuban President Concludes That It Is an Important Asset

Havana, Aug. 25.—President Gomez has inaugurated a series of personal conferences with the editors of the newspaers which have recently been attacking the government. These papers have not made any specific charges, but apparently have been drawing inferences calculated to disturb public confidence.

The purpose of the conference is to reach a friendly understanding with the hitherto hostile press. Already two prominent dailies have assumed a more moderate tone toward the administration.

Chicago's Rapid Growth

Chicago, Aug. 25.—An estimate made today by the compilers of the new city directory, which will be out this week, gives 2,457,600 as Chicago's population. The increase over last year is estimated at 33,000.

NO DISCLOSURES MADE BY PERSCH

Broker and Associates Succeed In Furnishing Bail

New York, Aug. 25.—After much legal argument between District Attorney Jerome and Justice Mulqueen, bail was furnished and accepted last evening for Donald L. Persch, Walter M. Clarke and Charles Katz, all involved in the long-range disappearing Windsor Trust loan.

Persch was released in $50,000 bonds, Clarke in $20,000 and Katz in $25,000, but not until the district attorney's office had been given in confidence the names of the men who had agreed to indemnify the surety company in the event that the bonds should be forfeited.

Persch refused to make any of his threatened disclosures, now that he is free. He and his two associates must plead to the indictments found against them next Friday.

A BLOODTHIRSTY MONARCH

Terrible Torture Inflicted Upon Rebels Captured In Morocco

Tangier, Aug. 25.—By the sultan's special order, according to reports from Fez, the prisoners captured at the defeat of El Roghi have been barbarously tortured. The sultan had them taken in procession to the gate of Babelhamis, where, in the presence of the troops and populace of Fez, every prisoner had his right hand severed and the stump plunged into boiling pitch.

The women had their teeth drawn, some of the leaders of the rebels having their right foot amputated also. The British consul has entered a formal protest against the atrocities.

Mill Superintendent Kills Himself

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 25.—It would probably have made little difference had Mrs. Charles E. Thomas responded to her husband's telephoned instructions to hurry home, for when she returned his body was hanging from a rafter in the cellar. He had been dead several hours. He was superintendent of the Oswell mills, was 58 years old, and had been ill for some time.

Visitors From New Zealand

Washington, Aug. 25.—The state department is informed that Premier Ward and Solicitor General Fritchett of New Zealand will arrive in New York on Aug. 28. The department has no information as to the purposes of their visit.

FUNDS TRANSFERRED

Officers Unable to Place Embargo on Property of Swedish Compositors

Stockholm, Aug. 25.—Anticipating a court order sequestrating its funds pending the trial of the suits for damages begun by the newspapers of Stockholm in connection with the recent strike, the Swedish Compositors' union has transferred all its possessions to private hands.

Officers of the court attempted to place an embargo on the funds of the association, but they were informed by the president of the union that the concern did not possess a kroner, either in cash or property.

Dixie Day at Seattle Show

Seattle, Aug. 25.—Nearly all the southerners in the northwest, exiles and travelers, took part in the celebration of Dixie Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. There were speeches, receptions, reunions and all the bands played "Dixie" to tumultuous cheering.

Enforcing Nantucket Liquor Laws

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 25.—That the liquor law of this town will be strictly enforced was made evident when six cases of illegal liquor selling were brought into court and convictions obtained in all instances. Appeals were taken in all the cases.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

WAS THROWN AGAINST TREE

John E. Foster Killed in Runaway Accident at Wollaston

As the result of a runaway in Wollaston on Wednesday afternoon about four o'clock, John E. Foster of 235 Warren street, Roxbury, was fatally injured and died almost instantly.

The wagon, which was drawn by two horses, was on Kemper street, near the corner of Bass, when the horses became startled for some reason and started up. Mr. Foster, who drives for Wood, Pollard & Co., with his back to the horses, was reaching under the seat for some goods when the shock came and he was thrown down upon the pole between the horses.

Arthur Barrett, of 20 Carson street, Roxbury, a boy of fourteen or fifteen, who was assisting Mr. Foster in delivering, was in the wagon and jumped to try and hold the nigh horse. This was unsuccessful as the animal was too strong for him. It frightened the horses more and they started on the run down Kemper toward Beach street. Mr. Foster, although fallen, managed to catch hold of one rein and this caused the horses to swerve to the side of the street.

The outfit brought up hard against a tree in front of the residence of John Whitehead, one horse going on each side of the tree, while Mr. Foster was pinned between the tree and the dashboard and injured internally.

Dr. W. G. Brooks, who resides on the corner of Beach and Kemper streets was on the scene almost instantly but by the time the police had been telephoned, life was extinct. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of A. W. Fay on Newport avenue, where it was viewed by Medical Examiner Frazer of Weymouth, in the absence of Dr. Jones of Quincy, and later claimed by relatives.

The horses who had run away were captured after a short chase and two men were sent out by the firm to deliver the few remaining orders. As a rule Mr. Foster only receives the orders but was this week delivering them in the place of H. J. Kniffin, who is on a vacation.

Mr. Foster was about forty-five years of age and is survived by a widow and three brothers, one of whom lives in Brockton and another in Gloucester. He was well known in Quincy as driver for Wood, Pollard & Co., grocers, of Boston, and has taken orders for that concern for many years, in fact, ever since a route was established by them in this vicinity. For this reason he will be greatly missed by the many customers and friends with whom he has become acquainted in the last ten or twelve years of pleasant associations.

The body will be taken to Gloucester for burial, it being his early home and the birthplace of his parents.

BOATS NOT MUFFLED.

Four Summoned Into Court for Violation in Mufiling Law.

Four owners of motor boats that the residents of Wollaston beach claim make an unusual amount of noise, were summoned into court this morning by Inspector McKay on a complaint charging them with violating the law which provides that all motor boats shall be muffled. The four that were lined up before Judge Avery were J. Frank Merrill, Alonzo C. Akerley, H. C. Moebes and Charles Toban.

In the case of Toban it was shown that he was fully aware of the law but ignored it. To him the court said the fine will be $10. Sentence was suspended however until Oct. 1.

In the cases of Merrill, Akerley and Moebes the court continued their cases until Oct. 1. If by that time it is shown they complied with the law and there was no further complaint their cases will probably be placed on file.

Building Work Tied Up

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Millions of dollars' worth of building construction work in Chicago's business district halted suddenly in a sympathetic strike order that went out to aid the elevator constructors.

W. WALTER EWELL.

Many Business Friends and Associates Attend Funeral.

The funeral of W. Walter Ewell, former Commissioner of Public Works was held Wednesday afternoon from his late residence, 16 Foster street, and was very largely attended by present and former city officials, business men and friends.

The services were conducted by Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, who came from Nelson, N. H., to pay a tribute to his friend and neighbor. The services were of a simple nature. After prayer and reading of the scriptures, Dr. Hardy spoke feelingly of the departed one, whom he said he had come to know well, and a better friend and neighbor he did not desire. Such men as Mr. Ewell, he said, Quincy can not afford to lose.

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, which included set pieces from Rural Masonic lodge, St. Stephens Chapter, R. A. M. and South Shore Commandery and the Granite City club. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

WIGHT—VON SELLING.

Well Known Quincy Point Man Goes to Brockton For a Bride.

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Loula G. Berry of Highland street, Brockton, when her niece Miss Bertha Lucile von Selling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max von Selling of Buffalo, N. Y., became the bride of Mr. Marcus Seymour Wight of Quincy Point.

Rev. David Matthews, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church officiated and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Cleo von Selling of Buffalo, N. Y., while Mr. Richard Sprigings of Brockton did the honors as best man. Only the members of the immediate families were present and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The house was prettily decorated with palms and ferns and a wealth of fall flowers, making a most effective coloring. Congratulations followed the ceremony and a wedding supper was served.

The bride has resided with her aunt in Brockton for several years, coming east to complete her education. The groom is a son of Marcus E. Wight, and has always made his home in Quincy Point, where he is very popular and has a host of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wight left at an early hour for Boston, enroute for Fitzwilliam, N. H., where they will spend their honeymoon at the Laurel Lake hotel. On their return they will reside at "The Gateway," Wesland avenue, Boston.

BOSTON SOCIETIES GAIN.

The will of Mrs. Marion Davis Hollingsworth, one of the old-time residents of Milton, was filed Saturday with the Norfolk registry of probate at Dedham.

There are a number of public bequests in the will as follows: To the Tuskegee institute, Tuskegee, Ala., $2000; society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $2000; kindergarten for the Blind at Jamaica Plain, $1000; Home for Crippled Children at Boston, $1000; Kurn Hotting Home for Boys, Vermont, $1000; home for Crippled Children at Hyde Park $1000; Voorhees Industrial school, South Carolina, $1000; parish house of the Milton Unitarian church, $500; Milton public library, two oil paintings; proceeds from the sale of the furniture and carpets to the Milton convalescent home at Milton; proceeds of the sale of the harnesses, carriages and horses to the home for Crippled Children at Hyde Park.

THE SPRING HILL STRIKE

Idle Miners' Ranks Augmented by Men Employed on Barges

Parrsboro, N. S., Aug. 26.—The strike at the Spring Hill mines of the Cumberland Railway and Coal company has resulted in tying up that company's fleet of barges and has forced out of work more than 150 persons employed on the craft and about the wharves and docks.

These are in addition to the several thousand persons employed in the mines, who went out on strike for increased wages several weeks ago.

Children Dying of Cholera

London, Aug. 26.—A dispatch from Rotterdam says the mysterious deaths there recently of several children are now declared to have been from the cholera. Up to the present time there have been eleven fatalities.

LAY CLAIM TO CHAMPIONSHIP

Have Won Thirteen of the Thirty Games Played Thus Far

Saturday will be an off day with the Atlantic Professionals as they have no game scheduled. A review of the work of the team for the season up to the present time shows that they have an enviable record, and that they have proved their right to the title as champions of Quincy by winning 13 out of a possible 20 games this year, against some of the fastest teams in this state and Rhode Island. The Professionals are coming down the home stretch in their schedule, having few games more to terminate one of their most successful seasons on the diamond.

Patsey Duggan, first baseman, is the field leader of the team and he has proved his ability to hold that position, not only by his fine playing on the bag, but his experience in the game has added many victories this year.

Atlantic opened its season at Melrose, winning a close game, 3-2. Then on May 31 they lost to the "Ganzels," before the team had got a start, while the Makaria's had seen five games. Atlantic then uncocked 8 straight wins before going down to defeat before Reading and Simpson. Teams that fell before the playing of the north-side lads were Malden Athletics, "Conquerors of Makaria," Bridgewater, Phenix, R. I., Makaria, Quincy, Middleboro, Norwood Press and Jamaica Plain.

Atlantic then lost to the Reading town team, but returned with a victory over Neponset Wanderers the following Saturday. Then the Professionals received their first shutout of the year in a Sunday game at Phenix, R. I., losing 1-0 in 10 innings. A win over Norwell was followed by four defeats in the next five games played, as follows: Newport, R. I., Hyannis, Ipswich and Everett City, while the team won over Phenix, R. I.

Atlantic's last win was at North Woburn, last Saturday, Driscoll holding this team down to three hits, and winning 2-1.

Three pitchers have been tried out on the mound this year, Big Jack Driscoll doing the bulk of the work. Driscoll has won 8 games and dropped 6, which is a fair record for the season's work. Then Dolan pitched in four games, winning three, while the credit of the other game goes to Frank Mullen of the Ashland team of the trolley league. Dolan pitched the celebration day game against Jamaica Plain at Atlantic and was batted hard for six innings. With the score against him, Mullen stepped into the breach, winning out for the North end team. Then Duggan pitched two games, winning one at Phenix, R. I., and losing the other to a fast team of college players—Hyannis.

Dode Fitzgerald, whom many Old Colony league managers were after, caught 18 games for Atlantic this year Joe Cunningham, now of the New York state league, being behind the pan in the other two. Fitzgerald was missing in the games with Newport, R. I., and Phenix, R. I., catching for North Adams at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., on these days. "Fitzy" is one of the finest throwing catchers in this section, and few baserunners attempted to steal a second time, if successful in the first.

Duggan on first, Stuart Armstrong on second, Jimmy Fay in the short field and Frank Murphy at the hot corner, complete one of the fastest infield combinations in independent ball. All are strong on ground balls, have excellent whips, can run bases and hit hard, while the outfielders, Henry Granahan, Dick Wallace, Billy Driscoll and Dick Stanton have proved themselves fast enough to cope with any outfield in the state.

By the above record, baseball fans in this city can pick their own dope as to what team should clash with the Old Colony league whirlwinds at the close of their season. The northside boys have proved that they can play ball, and if a series were arranged on the Water street links, the games would be witnessed by tremendous crowds.

Atlantic has made a success of playing away from home, as a good team could not be supported in that section of the city. It is too bad, too, that Atlantic could not play at home every other Saturday to give the loyal fans an opportunity to see a game, but the attendance at the games was not such that warranted the management to take a chance.

CAMP WYANOKE.

Thirty-five Boys Camping Through July and August at Wolfboro.

Walter H. Bentley, master of the Coddington school, is conducting for the first season his camp for boys on Lake Winnipesaukee, near Wolfboro, N. H. Mr. Bentley has been for the past five years one of the owners of Medomak camp, Washington, Maine, and chose the present location on account of its preeminent fitness for a boys' camp and its accessibility to Boston.

Among the thirty-five boys who are spending July and August at the camp are the following Quincy boys: Kenneth and William Edwards, Myrick and Warren Crane, Edmund Whittemore, Bernard Waltemeyer, Fred Shenkelberger, Gordon Jameson, Robert Stone, Ralph Alden and Waldemar and Lincoln Crosscup. Two of the six counsellors are from Quincy. Mr. C. Ralph Taylor is acting as tutor, and Mr. Walter Graves has charge of the base ball and track athletics. Mr. Lorenzo Wood of Upland road is the camp chef.

Fishing, bathing, canoe and motor boat trips, manual training, tennis, baseball, athletic meets and water sports with neighboring camps, and long "hikes" which involve cooking and sleeping out in the woods constitute the most attractive features of Wyanoke life. Last week a party of the older boys made a trip to the White Mountains, and walked across the whole Presidential range. In Tuckerman's Ravine, the boys enjoyed the summer novelty of a snow-ball fight.

The following Quincy people have visited the camp and express themselves as much pleased with the supervision and equipment: Mr. Frederick W. Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alden, Mr. and Mrs. George Stone, Miss Ada Stone, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stanley, Mrs. Lorenzo Wood and Miss Edna Wood.

Brakeman Drew Struck on Head By Dimmock Street Bridge

George M. Drew a brakeman on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is at City Hospital suffering from a number of contusions caused by being struck by the Dimmock street bridge. Drew was a brakeman on what is known as the "Double Iron" freight due to pass through Quincy between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning. When the train reached Quincy he was found lying on top of a car by some of the other trainmen. It is supposed that while on top of the car he was struck by the Dimmock street bridge.

Drew probably knew of the location of the bridge but the train evidently reached it before he thought it would. He was taken from the top of the car at the Quincy station and taken to the City Hospital in the police ambulance, where he was attended by Dr. Burke. While badly injured it is not thought that he is fatally injured. But little is known of him by the train crew other than his name, but they think that he resides in Boston.

EXCEEDED GUARANTEES.

Submarine Tarpon Runs Thirty Hours Without Stopping.

The submarine torpedo boat Tarpon, one of the seven submarines under contract with the Electric Boat Company for the United States Navy, has just completed her contract trials. One of the trials consisted of a twenty-eight hour continuous run at full speed. As a matter of fact this vessel ran for thirty hours full speed without stopping. The vessel exceeded every contract requirement.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles Toban was fined $10 for violation of the motor boat muffler law at Quincy. Sentenced suspended until Oct. 1.

Olonzo C. Akerley, J. Frank Merrill and H. C. Moebes were arraigned for violation of the motor boat muffler law. Cases continued until Oct. 1.

John McClosky was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Jeremiah F. Frazier was arraigned for assault on Frank Olsen at Braintree. He was fined $15.

Charles H. Loring Jr. was sentenced to two months in the house of correction. Sentence suspended until Dec. 1.

Signs of prosperity are indicated in Philadelphia at the Baldwin Locomotive works, which are running night and day with a force of 25,000 men, a city of employees in itself.

Stay-at-home people are wasting very little sympathy on travellers in Switzerland who are risking their lives in mountain climbing. Nearly forty lives have been lost so far this season in the Alps.

President Taft likes Beverly so well that indications now point to a return next summer. His brother Charles P. Taft also likes the North Shore and has purchased property at Ipswich for a summer home.

Quincy people are warned to look out for the man who claims to know some personal friend and pays you a friendly call and in the course of conversations, says he is stranded and needs a few dollars to get back to his home. He is a very clever swindler and has operated in and about New York and Boston. A year ago the same man was in Quincy and claimed then to be in the Pension office in Washington. It is best to be hard hearted and not encourage this apparently well informed visitor.

FOREST RANGER EXAMINATION.

An examination to fill vacancies in the Ranger force on 149 National Forests in twenty-one states and territories including Alaska, will be held October 25 and 26. From this examination it is expected that 500 appointments will be made. This examination will be held at each Forest Supervisor's headquarters in the National Forest states and territories, including Arkansas, Minnesota, Michigan and Florida, which are the most easterly states having National Forests.

While the examination is entirely along practical lines, and knowledge of field conditions rather than book learning is considered essential, the opportunities for those applicants with educational advantages are considerably increased. The rapid development of the National Forests is making continually increasing demands upon those engaged in their management, and men with ability to assume responsibility and serve in supervisory capacities are in demand. These more responsible positions on National Forests are filled by promotion from lower grades, so that anyone entering as a ranger is eligible for promotion to any of the more responsible and higher paid places, including that of Forest Supervisor. Only those men who are at least twenty-one years of age, not more than forty, of good character, temperate, and in good physical condition, are eligible to take this examination. The salary paid to beginners is $900 a year.

Applicants can secure information concerning the examinations from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. District Foresters at Missoula, Mont., Denver, Colo., Albuquerque, N. Mex., Ogden, Utah, San Francisco, Cal., and Portland, Oreg., or Forest Supervisors.

SUMMER MAGAZINES.

The September number of Suburban Life is the annual building number, and is filled with interesting and valuable suggestions for the man who is building or planning a home. The illustrations, also, are a strong feature of this number. One of the principal articles is devoted to the use of brick in building the private house and shows that wonderfully artistic architectural effects may be secured with this material. "When planning the house of satisfaction" is an exceedingly well written and practical contribution. "Concrete used in a decorative way" illustrates the tremendous advance made in the use of cement. "Running water for Country homes" is, perhaps, the most exhaustive and practical article of this kind ever published in a popular magazine.

Garages which cannot be burned," "Fireplaces which will not smoke," "Choosing the color for the house," "How many bathrooms shall there be?" "Why now is a good time to build" "A house for suburb or country," "A $3,500 bungalow," and "Three rooms worth studying," are among the other important house-building articles. Although this is primarily a house-building number, other topics have not been neglected, the table of contents including such subjects as "Trees and shrubs for fall planting," "Evaporating fruits and vegetables," "Saving a famous old tree" and "Country life brought happiness."

SAGE AND SULPHUR

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss. Rochester, N. Y.
County of Monroe }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.

RELIGIOUS BODIES.

That the church members in the United States numbered nearly thirty-three millions in 1906; that there were a billion and a quarter dollars invested in church edifices; that every day eight new churches sent their spires skyward; that males formed considerably less than half the total church membership; that a larger percentage of Catholic males than Protestant males were members; that in 16 states the majority of the total church membership were Roman Catholic; but that of the grand total of church members reported for the United States 61.6 per cent were Protestants and 36.7 per cent Roman Catholics; these are the salient and conspicuous facts appearing in the proof sheets of a United States Census Bureau bulletin, prepared by Chief Statistician William C. Hunt of the division of population, of the United States Census Bureau.

The bulletin will be issued this month. It is in the nature of an abstract of the comprehensive report, now in press, giving the results of the fifth census of Religious Bodies in the United States.

It is stated that United States Census statistics of church membership by sex were collected for the first time in 1906. Of the total number of members reported by the various religious bodies and classified by sex, 43.1 per cent were males and 56.9 per cent females. Among the Protestants the difference was greater, only 39.3 per cent being males. In the Roman Catholic churches there were relatively more males, the number forming 49.3 per cent of the total membership.

Fewer males than females were found among the Latter-day Saints, the Lutherans, Disciples, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, and Protestant Episcopalians, the percentages of male members decreasing in the order shown, and there being but 35.5 per cent male among the Episcopalians. Among the Christian Scientists, only 27.6 per cent were males; and of the Shakers but 21.3 per cent; but, in the Greek Orthodox Church, 93.9 per cent were male, as practically all Greek immigrants have been males.

Of the total estimated population of continental United States in 1906, the church members formed 39.1 per cent, as against 32.7 per cent for 1890, amounting to 6.4 per cent more in 1906 than in 1890. Of this 6.4 per cent increase, the Roman Catholic Church is credited with 4.4 per cent, and the Protestants with 1.8 per cent; the remainder being divided among all other denominations.

It is stated in the bulletin that the total number of members reported by the various religious bodies for 1906 was 32,936,445 ,of which number the Protestants were credited with 20,287,742, and the Roman Catholics with 12,079,142. Of the Protestant bodies the Methodists numbered 5,749,838 ;the Baptists, 5,662,234; the Lutherans, 2,112,494; the Presbyterians, 1,830,555; and the Disciples or Christians, 1,142,359.

Of the total of 32,936,445 church members, 61.6 per cent were Protestants; 36.7 per cent, Roman Catholic; and 1.7 per cent, members of other religious organizations. The rate of increase shown for the Roman Catholic church is 93.5 per cent, which is more than twice that for all the Protestant bodies combined. The Methodists reported 17.5 per cent of all Protestant church members; the Baptists, 17.2 per cent.

The total number of local religious organizations in 1906 is given as 212,230 ,an increase since 1890 of 47,079, or 28.5 per cent. The Protestants are credited with an increase in this particular amounting to 27.8 per cent; the Roman Catholic church 21.9 per cent; the Jewish congregations, 231.9 per cent; and the Latter-day Saints, 38.3 per cent.

The Methodists reported the largest number of local organizations, 64,701; the Baptists reported 54,880; the Presbyterians, 15,506; the Lutherans, 12,703; and the Roman Catholics, 12,482.

Other interesting features of the bulletin are those showing that the total seating capacity of churches was 58,536,830, an increase over the 1890 U. S. census figures of 34.4 per cent; that the rate of increase was practically the same for both Protestants and Roman Catholics, and kept pace with the increase in population; and that $1,257,575,867 was invested in church edifices in 1906. The total amount of debt was $108,050,946, or 8.6 per cent of the total value; of this total the Protestant bodies owed $53,301,254 and the Roman Catholics, $49,488,055. In 16 states a majority of the church members were Roman Catholic; in 29 states, Protestants; and in 1, Utah, Latter-day Saints.

SHATTERS ALL OLD RECORDS

Paulhan's Exploits Make Him Hero of Aerial Race Meet

HE FLIES EIGHTY-THREE MILES

Covers the Distance In Heavier-Than-Air Machine In Two Hours, Fifty-Three Minutes and Twenty-Four Seconds—Undaunted by Gale and Rain, He Descends Because Gasolene Gives Out

Rheims, Aug. 26.—Another sensational exploit was added to the marvels of aviation week when Louis Paulhan, the plucky French aviator, broke the world's record in a wonderful flight of 2 hours, 53 minutes and 24 seconds.

During twenty minutes of the time Paulhan had a heavy rain and wind storm to contend aganst. The previous official record for time in the air was made by Wilbur Wright at Lemans—2 hours, 20 minutes, 23 1-5 seconds. The unofficial record was 2 hours, 27 minutes, 15 seconds, made by Sommer at Marmelons.

Paulhan's new record for distance is about 134 kilometres, or 83 miles. He made thirteen circuits of the course.

When Paulhan finally came down it was because the 56 litres of essence which he carried in his tank was exhausted. He said immediately after he landed that both the machine and the revolving self-cooling Gnome motor had stood up perfectly and that he could have continued indefinitely if the tank had been replenished.

No one who witnessed the marvelously impressive flight now entertains the slightest doubt that aerial navigation with heavier-than-air machines has a glorious future.

Starting in a twelve knot breeze shortly before 4 o'clock, with the avowed intention of completing the 50 kilometres before 5 o'clock in order to bar his less venturesome rivals who desired to await calmer air, Paulham not only accomplished his original purpose, but continued to circle the vast plain until his tank was literally empty. Thirteen times he made the circuit.

Even when a shower, accompanied by a high wind, suddenly broke, the intrepid pilot did not falter. He battled in the teeth of the rain and wind for ten minutes up one length of the course, and the thrilled spectators watched the struggle against the elements in spell-bound admiration. When he succeeded in rounding the turn the excitement and enthusiasm broke into a frenzied roar.

Going down on the wings of the wind Paulhan made up for the time lost in fighting against it. Fortunately the storm was of brief duration. As the time approached when it was evident that he would beat the Wright record, the excitement was intense and the crowds rushed out of the tribune each time he passed, cheering and shouting words of encouragement.

It was dark when a great cheer arose as Paulham appeared out of the blackness of night and descended gracefully in front of the tribunes. The fence was torn down in the rush to reach him and he was borne on the shoulders of enthusiastic spectators, the crowd escorting him to the box of the president of the committee on aviation to receive congratulations and have his health drunk in champagne.

Paulhan is not an inventor but simply an operator, who last night took rank as the world's greatest professional. The belief is unanimous that he won the Prix de Champagne, although the managers of the Wright machine intimate that they will have a try for it today. The final day for this event is Friday.

Hamburg Belle Breaks Two World's Records In Trotting

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—At the Randall race track Hamburg Belle, the Kentucky mare, not only defeated Uhlan, the New England gelding, in two straight heats in their first trotting match, but broke the world's trotting race record by going the first heat in 2:01 1-4.

This was followed with a second world's record smashing exhibition when she went the second heat in 2:01 3-4, thus establishing an average of of 2:01 1-5 for two heats.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames. VIII—Calendar meets his daughter in the company of a man named Mulready, evidently his companion in some strange nefarious enterprise. Mulready, it seems, has tried to kidnap Dorothy in Kirkwood's cab. Calendar and Mulready quarrel, after which the girl and the two men row off to board a vessel referred to as the Alethea, leaving Kirkwood to find his way in a cab to St. Paneras station, where he is to take the midnight train for his steamer. He is now thoroughly in love with Dorothy.

The driver affirmed the fact with unnecessary heat and profanity and an amendment to the effect that he would have spoiled his fare's sanguinary conk had the outcome been less satisfactory.

The information proved so amusing that Kirkwood, chuckling, forbore to resent the manner of its delivery and, abandoning until a more favorable time the chase of the coy sovereign purse, extracted from one trousers pocket half a handful of large English small change.

"Three shillings and sixpence." He counted the coins into the cabby's grimy and bloated paw and added quietly: "The exact distance is rather less than four miles, my man—your fare, precisely 2 shillings. You may keep the extra 18 pence for being such a conscientious blackguard—or talk it over with the officer here. Please yourself."

He nodded to the bobby, who, favorably impressed by Kirkwood, smiled at the cabby a cold, hard smile, whereupon the latter, smirking in unabashed triumph, spat on the pavement at Kirkwood's feet, gathered up the reins and wheeled out.

Restoring 2 shillings and a few fat copper pennies to his pocket, he entered the vast and echoing train shed. In the act his attention was attracted and immediately riveted by the spectacle of a burly luggage navvy in a blue jumper in the act of making off with a large folding signboard, of which the surface was lettered expansively with the advice, in red against a white background, "Boat Train Leaves on Track 3."

Excitedly Kirkwood touched the man's arm with a detaining hand. "Boat train?" he gasped, pointing at the board.

"Left ten minutes ago, thank you, sir."

"Well, but— Of course I can get another train at Tilbury?"

"For yer boat? No, sir, thank you, sir. Won't be another tryne till mornin', sir."

"Oh-h!"

Aimlessly Kirkwood drifted away his mind a blank.

Some time later he found himself on the steps outside the station, trying to stare out of countenance a glaring electric mineral water advertisement on the farther side of the Euston road.

He was stranded.

Distracted, he searched pocket after pocket, locating his watch, cigar case and cigarette case, matchbox, penknife, all the minutiae of pocket hardware affected by civilized man, with old letters, a cardcase, a square envelope containing his steamer ticket, but no sovereign purse. His small change pocket held less than 3 shillings—two and eight, to be exact—and a brass key, which he failed to recognize as one of his belongings.

And that was all. At some time during the night he had lost (or been cunningly bereft of?) that little purse of chamois skin containing the three golden sovereigns which he had been husbanding to pay his steamer expenses and which, if only he had them now, would stand between him and starvation and a night in the streets. If Brentwick were only in town! But he wasn't and wouldn't be within the week.

"No good waiting here," he concluded. Composing his face, he re-entered the station. There were his trunks, of course. He couldn't leave them standing on the station platform forever.

He found the luggage room and interviewed a mechanically courteous attendant, who, as the result of profound deliberation, advised him to try his luck at the lost luggage room across the station. He accepted the advice. It was a foregone conclusion that his effects had not been conveyed to the Tilbury dock. They could not have been loaded into the luggage van without his personal supervision. Still, anything was liable to happen when his unlucky star was in the ascendant.

He found them in the lost luggage room.

A clerk helped him identify the articles and ultimately clucked with a perfunctory note, "Sixpence each, please."

"I—ah—pardon?"

"Sixpence each, the fixed charge, sir. For every twenty-four hours or fraction thereof, sixpence per parcel."

"Oh, thank you so much," said Kirkwood sweetly. "I will call tomorrow."

"Very good, sir. Thank you, sir."

"Five times sixpence is two and six," Kirkwood computed, making his way hastily out of the station lest a worse thing befall him. "No, bless your heart—not while two and eight represents the sum total of my fortune."

He wandered out into the night. He could not linger round the station till dawn, and what profit to him if he did? Even were he to ransom his trunks one can scarcely change one's clothing in a public waiting room.

Somewhere in the distance a great clock chimed a single stroke freighted sore with melancholy. It knelled the passing of the half hour after midnight, a witching hour when every public shuts up tight and gentlemen in top hats and evening dress are doomed to pace the pave till day (barring they have homes or visible means of support)—till day, when pawnshops open and such personal effects as watches and hammered silver cigar cases may be hypothecated. What was he to do? An hour passed. Through this long hour Kirkwood walked without a pause.

Another clock somewhere clanged resonantly twice. The world was very still. And so, wandering foot loose in a wilderness of ways, turning aimlessly, now right, now left, he found himself in Frognall street.

Kirkwood identined it with a start and a guilty tremor. He stopped stock still in an unreasoning state of sempanic, arrested by a silly impulse to turn and fly, as if the bobby whom he descried approaching him with measured stride, pausing now and again to try a door or flash his bullseye down an area, were to be expected to identify the man responsible for that racket raised ere midnight in vacant No. 9.

At the corner he swerved and crossed, still possessed of his devil of inspiration. It would be unfair to him to say that he did not struggle to resist it, for he did, because it was fairly and egregiously asinine; yet, struggling, his feet trod the path to which it tempted him.

"Why," he expostulated feebly, "I might as well turn back and beat that bobby over the head with my cane!"

But at the moment his hand was in his change pocket, feeling over that same brass door key which earlier he had been unable to account for, and he was informing himself how very easy it would have been for the sovereign purse to have dropped from his waistcoat pocket while he was sliding on his ear down the dark staircase. To recover it meant, at the least, shelter for the night, followed by a decent, comfortable and sustaining morning meal. Fortified by both he could redeem his luggage, change to clothing more suitable for daylight traveling, pawn his valuables and enter into negotiations with the steamship company for permission to exchange his passage, with a sum to boot, for transportation on another liner—a most feasible project, a temptation all but irresistible!

But then—the risk. Supposing, for the sake of argument, the customary night watchman to have taken up a transient residence in No. 9, supposing the police to have entered with him and found the stunned man on the second floor, would the watchman not be vigilant for another nocturnal

NATIONAL RIFLE ASSO.

The matches of the National Rifle association of America will begin at Camp Perry today or tomorrow depending on the time when the National matches are concluded. Lt. Col. R. K. Evans, U. S. A., who has been executive officer of the National Matches will continue in that capacity during the N. R. A. matches which will continue until the program is completed. The necessary complement of army officers and enlisted troops to man the range will remain during the matches. While a number of the state teams will leave tomorrow and thereafter, still a large number will remain and the entry lists promise to be larger than ever. The N. R. A. will this year put into effect the percentage plan for prizes and all money paid in entrance fees will be returned to the winners after deducting the actual expense of operating the range. As this will be very small owing to the employment of troops for that purpose the purses will be considerably larger and the number of prizes greater than ever before. As it was uncertain when the National matches will close, dates could not be set for the N. R. A. matches but they will open with the Press match this afternoon or tomorrow. The first prize is the solid silver "Press cup" for annual competition with a small replica to the winner; 2nd a life membership in the N. R. A. valued at $25; with a 3rd, 4th, and 5th cash prize. The Press match will be followed by the championship revolver team match, state secretaries match, life and annual members match, interclub championship company team, championship regimental team, Leech cup, Wimbledon cup, individual long range tyro, Marine corps, President's and the Evans service skirmish matches. During the tournament the national marksman's match will be in continuous progress as well as the Junior Marksman's match. Competitors making the necessary score in these matches will be enrolled in the national marksmans reserve, at the war department.

The Leech cup, Wimbledon cup, Long Range Marine corps tyro, and the President's match will attract the most attention of the individual matches. The first two have been contested for so often as to be historic. The Leech cup is shot at 800,-900 and 1,000 yards, and the Wimbledon with 20 shots at 1,000 yards. Capt. K. K. V. Casey of Delaware, carried off both of them last year. The winner of the President's match will recieve a personal letter of congratulation from President William H. Taft, and the man making the highest average in the President's and the national individual match will receive the title of Military Champion of the United States.

The Marine corps match is a new one for which the officers of the U. S. Marine corps have supplied a $1,-500 trophy. The conditions call for twenty shots at 600 and 1,000 yards.

The N. R. A. matches will close with the Evans service skirmish match named after Lt. Col. R. K. Evans, U. S. A., who drew up the conditions and presented the trophy. It is for teams consisting of a captain and two squads of one corporal and seven men each. Forty rounds of ammunition will be furnished each man.

The start will be made beyond the 1,200 yard line and firing will be at direction of the team captain. For every wrong command given by a captain one man on his team will be dropped and for every hit on a target the opposing team will lose a man and his remaining ammunition. The run will be continued until each team has exhausted its ammunition or one team has lost all its men. In the former case the team losing the lesser number wins that run. The match will be decided by continued competition between the winners of the various runs.

Friday evening the National Rifle association will holds its annual meeting at the clubhouse of the Ohio State Rifle association. Twelve directors will be elected for a period of three years and other business pertaining to the association will be considered.

YOUTHFUL SNOBBISHNESS.

Parents and others interested in the welfare of the public schools will find interest in the article on "High School Fraternities" in the current number of Everybody's Magizine. It calls attention in a way that is none the less pointed for being so humorous to a serious menace to the public school system. When, a few years ago, imitation of the Greek letter society of the colleges was introduced in the high schools, it was feared by experienced observers that mischief might result. The extent to which these societies have flourished has been amazing. And wherever they have spread they have introduced petty social rivalry, snobbishness and heartburning. Into what has long been regarded as one of the chief bulwarks of democracy they have introduced a kind of aristocratic exclusiveness. Thus far no protests have been effective enough to put an end to the societies, though in several instances they have led to flagrant evils. The chief trouble is, of course, that the parents of the children cannot be persuaded to cooperate with the school authorities. The distorted, misinterpreted "spirit of freedom" which in reality is nothing more than rebellion against authority is largely responsible. Parents as well as pupils resent what they call the "interference" of school authorities in the personal and social life. And often the effect of these societies is to nurture further rebellion against school discipline. The menace is real although the aping often is ridiculous. —Boston Herald.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
LAND COURT

To Marion A. Knight, of Lynn, in the County of Essex; Hattie H. Merrill, Frank A. Gordon and John G. Whitman, of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk; Marietta C. Fernald, of Watertown, Sarah G. Gooch, Emma A. Bearse, Louise P. Brown, Abbie D. Coolidge, Joseph A. Coolidge and Arthur F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex, all in said Commonwealth; William H. Brown, of New York, in the County and State of New York; Rachel Coolidge, Frances Coolidge and Alice Irene Williams Coolidge Merriam, of Pasadena, in the State of California, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Susan A. Peirce, of Melrose, in said County of Middlesex, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

Two certain parcels of land situate in said Quincy, bounded and described as follows:

The first:—Southwesterly on Harvard Street 125 feet; northwesterly on Granger Street 75 feet; northeasterly on land now or late of Marion A. Knight 125 feet, and southeasterly on other land now or late of said Knight 75 feet.

The second:—Northeasterly on Fayette Street 25 feet; southeasterly on land now or late of Hattie H. Merrill 100 feet; southwesterly on land now or late of Frank A. Gordon 25 feet, and northwesterly on land now or late of John G. Whitman 100 feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirteenth day of September A. D., 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of August in the year nineteen hundred and nine.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

BLOCKADED

Every Household in Quincy Should Know How to Resist it.

The back will ache no more.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

It's the best proof, for it comes from Quincy.

Mrs. Andrew Gibb, living at 322 Washington St., Quincy, Mass. says: "My husband suffered a great deal from Kidney trouble. He had severe pains in the small of his back and had but little strength or energy to do his work. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, he procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began taking them as directed. He was surprised and gratified at the quick relief he obtained from the first and when he had taken the contents of two boxes he was cured. Doan's Kidney Pills will always have our hightest recommendation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRIEFS

Those at the mountains or sea shore these hot days are to be envied.

There will be no prayer meeting this week at the Hall Place M. E. church in the absence of the pastor.

Thomas J. Sullivan of West street has returned from New Hampshire where he has been a few weeks.

George Jones, chief machinist at O. T. Roger's quarry has gone to Medford for a short vacation.

Miss Agnes Kelley of Liberty street is enjoying a fortnight at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Miss Rose Walsh of West Quincy, formerly of Norwood, is spending two weeks with friends at Houghs Neck.

Guy Marden, one of the jackies of the cruiser Des Moines is home on a leave of absence for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Titus of Kemper street went to New Braintree on Tuesday for a fortnight.

William Bullock of Willow street is at home after a vacation at the camp of Chester Gurney at Hancock, N. H.

Rev. C. H. Raupach, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church, left today for Wellfleet, where he is to spend a week with friends.

The Brockton lodge of Eagles are to hold a clam bake at Quincy woods Sunday. They will not be molested as long as they behave themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. John Robbie and son Everett left Monday for a few weeks' tour of Eastport, Red Beach and St. George, N. B.

Miss Beryl E. Hannant, organist at the Hall Place M. E. church, left yesterday for a month's vacation in New Hampshire. Miss Hannant has been in poor health for some time but hopes to return much improved.

The executive committee of the W. R. C. will meet at Mrs. Gardner's Friday afternoon, to make plans relative to the Norfolk county convention, which will be held in this city in September. As this meeting will be an important one, as many as possible should attend.

The Franco-American club of West Quincy held a social entertainment in Farnum hall, Copeland street, last evening. Whist at five tables was enjoyed from eight till ten after which there were vocal solos by Miss Bates, piano solos by Miss Mary Bedeau, both of West Quincy, dancing and refreshments.

BRIEFS

Quincy has had its share of fatalities this week. Three accidents, two of which were fatal and one suicide.

The man who said there would be no more hot weather this year has taken to the woods.

The Knockers' club are planning for a shore dinner, which will probably be held sometime next week.

Lester Chapman of Willow street has returned from Middleboro, where he has been camping the past month.

Miss Helen Thayer of Holbrook is the guest of Miss Helen Jones of Beach street for several days.

Gordon R. Jameson of Beach street has returned to his home, after the summer season at camp Wyanoke on Lake Winnipesaukee.

Miss Marian Balster of Virchild street and Miss Florence Hart of Independence avenue are at the Gal-Rustic lake, Nipmuc, Mendon.

Miss Anna Chapman who has been the guest of Miss Edith Chapman of Wollaston has returned to her home in New York City.

Miss Ita Sullivan of Copeland street has returned from Somerville where she has been spending a pleasant three weeks.

Miss Edith Monroe has returned to her home in Taunton after a week's visit with Mrs. William J. Croucher of Beach street.

Evening bathing is again in vogue at the city bath house and every night this week hundreds have enjoyed a dip in the briny.

Mrs. Louis B. Crosscup of Warren avenue has returned with her sons Lincoln and Waldemar. The boys have been enjoying camp life in Wolfboro for several weeks.

F. W. Plummer of Greenleaf street has returned from Auburn, Maine, where he has been spending the latter part of his vacation, the first part being spent in Wolfboro, N. H.

Quite a change in the weather today from what it was a year ago today. The temperature at noon a year ago was 57 degrees. Today it was 91 degrees.

Miss Dorothy Kingsbury of Newton street and Miss Edith B. Armstrong of Warren avenue returned Wednesday from Hyde Park, where they were guests for a week of Miss Margaret Robertson of Maple street.

The Misses Edith M. Atkins, Helen M. Ketchum, Robina A. Atkins, Helen L. Croucher of Wollaston Park, the Misses H. Louise Baker and Lydia Anderson of Roslindale and Miss Marion Coogan of Somerville are enjoying a fortnight at Camp Cheewee, Wollaston beach.

Friends will be grieved to learn that Mrs. P. Warren Cameron of Tewksbury was taken seriously ill after her return home from Wollaston last week. An operation for appendicitis was performed Tuesday morning and yesterday her case was considered extremely critical. Mrs. William O. Phelps of Prospect avenue has gone to be with her.

BOSTON 1915.

Plans Are Being Made for Grand Exposition Next November.

To show the people of Boston and vicinity the resources and possibilities of Boston as they can be developed between now and 1915 a Boston "1915" exposition will be held in the old Art Museum building next November.

The object of this exposition will be to show in a graphic and interesting form the work now being carried on by public institutions, etc., for the betterment of the city.

The exposition will be in four general departments, viz. The Visible city, Educational and social, Economics and Attractions. Schools, colleges, and libraries have been asked to exhibit. The information on these topics will be put in the form of working models, moving pictures, photographs, diagrams, plans and stereopticon pictures.

GERMANS SPEEDY.

Sonder Boats Develop Great Speed in Trial Spins.

Wednesday the yachting sharps had their first chance to see the German sonder boats work in a good whole sail breeze. All three of them, the Hevella, Margarethe and Seehund II., were out during the day and made a good impression.

There was enough of a breeze at times to put their lee rails down. They went fast and smoothly and carried their sail well. There was nothing like a test of speed either among themselves or with any of the American sonders, but the German boats looked fast and were well handled.

At the height of the breeze the Seehund appeared to show the best form. She went to windward like a witch, and it looked as if under the conditions she would make a close race with any of the American boats.

The German craft will spend the rest of the week sailing around the bay and getting tuned up. They will be hauled out for the final touches Saturday.

All three of the American defenders are hauled out at the Burgess yard and will probably stay on the dock until Monday morning, when they must be launched, not to be hauled out again until after the cup races are over.

IS WILLING TO LEAD SIEGE OF CAPITAL

Woman Advocates Shooting to Gain Woman Suffrage

Bayonne, N. J., Aug. 26.—This city has a militant suffragette who lives up to the name. "No great cause was ever won without bloodshed," said Mrs. Julia Goldzier. "If the legislature will not grant us the right to vote, the women should arm themselves, march to the capitol at Trenton and surround the building when the lawmakers are in executive session. Then give them the alternative of granting us the right of suffrage or being shot down.

"I guess they would choose the easier course. If not, let them suffer the consequences and the world see then that we really mean business."

Mrs. Goldzier recently asked the city council to appoint women to the police force. She says she is willing to lead the siege of the state capitol herself.

PURE FOOD DISPUTE

Remsen Board Insists That Benzoate of Soda Is Not Harmful

Denver, Aug. 26.—The contentions of the department of agriculture that benzoate of soda used as a preservative in thousands of food products is not harmful to health was defended today by many chemical experts at the convention of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments.

Secretary Wilson was joined by members of the Remsen referee board, created by President Roosevelt to decide on disputed points in the enforcement of the federal pure food laws. These experts appeared before the convention to defend their findings that benzoate of soda is not harmful when used in small quantities.

INSPECTORS' SUSPICIONS

They Are Confirmed When They Detain and Search a Woman

New York, Aug. 26.—Several strings of pearls, diamond earrings, a diamond ring and a lace skirt, all valued at $1500, which the customs inspectors say they found concealed about the person of Miss Catherine M. McKee, an elderly spinster of Harrisburg, caused her arrest after her arrival on the steamship Teutonic from Liverpool.

Miss McKee declared she had dutiable goods worth only $100 and was about to leave the pier when she was detained and searched. She was released on $1500 bail.

Death of Secretary Bennett

Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 26.—Charles H. Bennett, secretary of state of Rhode Island and prominent in Republican politics there, died at a sanitarium here. His health broke down last spring and he had been a patient at the institution for several months. He was born in Westerly, R. I., in 1861.

Will Provides For Funeral Banquet

New York, Aug. 26.—Five hundred dollars for a dinner "with liquid refreshments," to be served at his funeral, was among the provisions of the will of the late Albert H. Karutz, who stipulated that heirs who failed to attend the funeral banquet should be disqualified.

BIG HOAX WELL CARRIED OUT

Report That Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt Had Been Shot

CREATES GREAT SENSATION

New York Police Department, Coroner's Office and Newspapers Quickly Got on the Job, Only to Find That Some Unknown Individual Had Fooled Them—Perpetrator of Wild Tip Not Located

New York, Aug. 26.—New York was startled early this morning by a report which originated from some unknown source and was communicated to the coroner's office that Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt had been shot at the Grand Union hotel.

ALFRED GWYNNE VANDERBILT.

The coroner's clerk who received the mysterious information by telephone notified Coroner Shrady, who immediately started for Bellevue hospital, where it was understood Vanderbilt had been taken. Before going, however, the coroner telephoned Bellevue and learned that Vanderbilt was not there. Subsequent inquiry at the Grand Union hotel showed that there had been no shooting there.

The clerk at the hotel said that the first intimation he had of any shooting came through an inquiry from a New York morning newspaper. This was followed quickly by inquiries from nearly every other newspaper in the city, which had in the meantime received the report.

The coroner quickly found that he had been duped and as the Grand Union hotel appeared quiet and normal when he reporters arrived it was seen that there had been a mistake.

Clinching this fact came a laconic message from Vanderbilt himself, or at least one who said he was Vanderbilt, who called up the coroner's office on the telephone and casually remarked: "I understand I have been shot."

The coroner's office replied that they had such a report, but on being assured by the supposed Vanderbilt that he was all right, branded the rumor as a rank fake.

About the only mystery that remains to be cleared up now is why the rumor was started and by whom. Detectives called at the Grand Union hotel, but the clerk in charge, T. W. Miller, could give them no information other than that the first report came to him through a newspaper that was seeking information. This paper had previously received the wild tip from the coroner's office.

Mr. Vanderbilt returned to New York from London only a few days ago. He was found, safe, sound and asleep at the Hotel Plaza early today and the whole affair resolves itself into a joke. It was also ascertained that Vanderbilt had not called up to assure the coroner's office that he was all right. This phase of the case is believed to have been only another part of the hoax. Evidently the person who started it desired to call it off after he had gotten the police, the coroner's office and the press under way.

Mr. Vanderbilt was not aroused at the hotel and slept peacefully throughout the excitement.

Cold Comfort For Creditors

Boston, Aug. 26.—The creditors of the estate of H. W. Poor & Co., bankers and brokers, will receive something less than 45 percent of their claims, according to the adjustment by the committee of creditors. The total claims of creditors aggregate $234,377.

Cannot Run Trains Backwards

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 26.—The Michigan railroad commission issued an order prohibiting railroads in this state from running trains backwards.

STRENUOUS WORK AHEAD

Spanish Army In Morocco Is Up Against Some Serious Problems

Melilla, Aug. 26.—Expert opinion has been justified, as it has been found impossible to cut the Marchica canal under four months. General Marina, commander of the Spanish forces, decided to commence the advance, which began yesterday, to Restinga along the sea front, in intense heat.

The men appear glad that the long suspense is ended and that the war has really begun. The concentration of the whole army will occupy several days. The commissary is in good shape, but the water supply is a serious problem.

One effect of the failure to construct the canal will be to limit the amount of artillery accompanying the army, especially quick-firers, as it is impossible with the existing means of communication to provide them with sufficient ammunition.

ONE AUTOIST MAY DIE

Machine Turns Turtle When Forced Into Ditch by a Farmer's Wagon

Westerly, R. I., Aug. 26.—The much-disputed rights of the road question between automobilists and farmers resulted last night in injuries to four persons, one of whom may die. An automobile owned by Dr. Robert Mulligan of Pittsburg, in which were Dr. and Mrs. Mulligan and Mrs. Mulligan's father, W. H. Singer, turned turtle near Matinuck on the post road when a farmer's wagon in front had forced them into a ditch in order to pass.

All were thrown out, Singer receiving a scalp wound and a shock which, with his 80 years, may result in death. Mulligan and his wife received a number of bruises. The chauffeur's hurts were minor. The identity of the farmer whose wagon was responsible for the mishap has not been learned.

PEONAGE CHARGES NOT SUSTAINED

No Evidence Thus Far Against Car Plant Officials

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—The government investigation into the charges of peonage sworn to by a man who had been employed in the Pressed Steel Car company works at Schoenville may extend into next week.

According to unofficial information the government officials have failed to elicit any assertions from the men employed inside the car plant that they had been subjected to violence when they asked permission to quit their work or had been held on their jobs after they had asked for discharges.

The strikers maintained an attitude of sullenness Wednesday when their houses were searched for rifles by deputies, armed with loaded riot guns. No violence was offered, however, and the sheriff last night announced his search for firearms had ended.

SURTAX OF 25 PERCENT

To Be Levied on Haitian Imports to Guarantee Loan of Half a Million

Washington, Aug. 26.—Last month the Haitian government gave notice of its intention to raise a temporary loan of $400,000 in gold, made necessary by the fact that when the dull season was approaching the government could expect but little revenue from its regular funds.

This amount apparently will not be adequate, and word comes from Port-au-Prince that the loan will be increased, probably another $100,000, making a total of $500,000. The loan is to be raised locally. To guarantee it there is to become effective immediately a surtax of 25 percent on all imports.

WILD SHOT HITS STEAMER

Close to a Tragedy During Target Practice of Coast Artillery

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—During the sub-calibre practice of the coast artillery a three-pound shell fired from one of the guns on Fort Wetherell struck the steamer General Richard Arnold, which was planting targets.

Striking the engine room, on the upper deck, the shell penetrated to the fireroom below, where the engineer and two firemen were. The shell finally lodged within a few feet of them.

Commerce Commission Will Appeal

Washington, Aug. 26.—It is regarded as certain that the interstate commerce commission will take an appeal to the United States supreme court from the decision of the United States circuit court at Chicago in the Missouri rate case.

Scarpia Wins $2500 Stake

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Scarpia, at 7 to 2, won the $2500 Adirondack handicap, six furlongs, for 2-year-olds here, defeating a good field of youngsters. He was admirably ridden by Grand.

Disaster Overtakes Picnic Party

Fort Dodge, Ia., Aug. 26.—Two children were killed and fifteen others injured at Humboldt when a hay rack, carrying a Methodist Sunday school picnic, was overturned.

WANTS BODY EXHUMED

Mrs. Sutton's Request Likely to Be Ultimately Complied With

Washington, Aug. 26.—The officials of the war department have decided to postpone action upon the request of Mrs. Sutton to exhume the body of Lieutenant Sutton, her son, now buried in Arlington national cemetery. The department officials received a simple request from Mrs. Sutton asking that this permission be given without stating reasons for her request.

Although there seems to be no reasonable doubt that ultimately the mother's wishes will be complied with, the officials are of the opinion that the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, and possibly the president, should be communicated with before final action is taken.

No instance is of record where the request of relatives for the disinterment of bodies of their relatives has been refused, but the case of Sutton is regarded as a very exceptional one.

MET WITH DISAPPOINTMENT

Said to Have Caused Death of Walter Ramsdell, Twice Mayor of Lynn

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 26.—Walter L. Ramsdell, mayor of Lynn in 1896 and 1897, and unsuccessful candidate for congress from the Seventh district more recently, died last night of illness brought on, it is claimed, through his failure to successfully reenter politics a year ago, when he again ran for mayor of Lynn.

He was born in East Bridgewater in 1860. He became a printer and after some years at the work came to Lynn, where he became correspondent of Boston newspapers. Interested in labor matters, as well as a strong Democrat, he entered politics and was elected mayor of Lynn twice. After his retirement from office he engaged in the real estate business.

CHAMPIONSHIP IS DISPUTED

Makaria Claims Better Record Than That of Atlantic

Makaria has a say about local championship ,having won 14 out of 19 games played which is as good an average as 13 out of 20 and among the team were some of the fastest teams around Boston as the following will show.

Makaria won eight straight games including Quincy Ind. 9 to 0 and the Atlantics 4 to 1. They lost one to Atlantic 2 to 1, won the next three, one each from Reading with Chase in the box 2 to 0, Roxbury 2 to 1 and Middleboro 6 to 3. Lost the next one to Quincy Ind. 9 to 2, won the next one from Braintree 10 to 5. Lost the next one to Norwell 8 to 7, 10 innings. Lost the next one to Cunningham Gym. 3 to 2 and one to Malden Athletics 13 to 2. The Copeland game was called off after 4 innings had been played. Makaria won the next two, defeating Norwell on Aug. 14, 8 to 3 and the rubber game with Quincy Ind. Makaria won 7 to 2.

Makaria calls attention to several games. The Reading team defeated Atlantic, Makaria won from Reading, shutting Reading out 2 to 0. In the two Atlantic games Makaria won the first 4 to 1, Atlantic the second 2 to 1. The Middleboro game defeating Middleboro 6 to 3 in Middleboro. The Norwell games two of them, Makaria lost the first in 10 innings and won the second 8 to 3, getting 13 hits off Osborne, Atlantic played Norwell one game and won out in 16 innings.

Michael has pitched the most of the games and won 13 out of 15, Stan Bates lost 2, Penley lost 1 and Tupper won 1.

Troupe has done the backstop work for Makaria and has it on any amateur around Quincy. Wes Ganzel at first is a chip of the old block and is sure a classy ball player. McKenzie is one of the top notchers with the stick while Rupert Ganzel leads the order for hits. Russ Bates, who has taken his place has shown great work the last three games. Mattie Nicoll, a short, was a star and will soon be back in the game, having recovered from the sprained ankle received at the first Norwell game. "Honey" Curtis in left field "nuff sed" the fastest fielder and hitter in Quincy, bar none. Tupper has shown his ability this season, getting hits when they counted for runs. These players with Penley, Eggleston and Macdonald to complete the outfield have proved in a conclusive way that the name Makaria stands for fast clean amateur base ball and with the able assistance of Charles W. Ganzel have shown that they are able to give good account of themselves with any team around Quincy, and are willing to play the rubber game with Atlantic.

All the members of the Makaria team are members of the Makaria Fraternity of Bethany church and do not receive anything at all for their playing and stick together in fine shape. This Saturday they play the Cunningham Gym. at East Milton, and Sept. 4 they play a return game with the Malden Athletics in Malden and play at home Labor day Monday.

E. LANDIS SNYDER.

Supervisor of Music in Public Schools Died at Middleton, Pa.

Word was received in Quincy Thursday of the death at Middleton, Pa., of E. Landis Snyder, for several years the supervisor of music in the public schools of Quincy.

Mr. Snyder has been in poor health for some time and last April was obliged to give up active work, and go to his home in Pennsylvania. At that time he was granted a leave of absence by the School department.

Mr. Snyder had been supervisor of music in the public schools since 1901. Previous to that time he was the organist and choir director at Christ's church. Mr. Snyder was a thorough teacher and brought the schools of the city to a high plain of musical efficiency. He also organized the high school orchestra.

After leaving Christ church, Mr. Snyder became organist and choir director of St. Chrysostom's church and shortly before going home for his health he accepted a position as organist at the First church.

Mr. Snyder was a thorough teacher and a musical writer of some note. He was 35 years of age and is survived by his parents and two sisters.

His funeral will be held Saturday at Lancester, Pa., and the school department of Quincy will be represented at the services by Thomas B. Pollard, master of the Washington school, who left this noon.

NEW TEACHERS.

School Committee Fill Vacancies in Teaching Force at High School.

At a special meeting of the School Committee this week the three vacancies in the teaching force at the High school were filled.

P. Henry Landers was elected teacher in the Commercial department.

Max Weiss was elected as teacher in the Science department.

Harold B. Blazo was elected a teacher in the history department.

A WORD TO DELEGATES.

Political Candidates Can Not Serve as Caucus Officers.

In the city of Medford last year the question was raised whether an election officer was disqualified from serving as such in the state primary elections (or caucuses) by the fact that he was a candidate to a political convention from the ward for which he was appointed to be an election officer. The City Solicitor of Medford, to whom the question was submitted, decided the election officer was so disqualified.

In Acts of 1907, chapter 560, section 151, it is provided that "The provisions of law relating to election officers.... shall apply to primaries." Section 205 of the same chapter provides, "No person shall at a state, city or town election be eligible or act as an election officer in a voting precinct in which he is a candidate for election." This provision is highly proper, since it would be very undesirable that a man should be allowed to count the ballots for or against himself.

This point was not raised in Medford last year until it was too late for the election officers named as candidates to withdraw their names, and the Mayor was compelled to remove them from office.

It would therefore seem necessary for the political parties taking part in the approaching caucus ,to see to it that no names of prospective election officers are included in the lists of delegates to conventions.

When it comes to the nominations for Ward Committees, by section 154 of the same law it is especially provided that a candidate shall not be ineligible to serve as a primary election.

TODAY'S COURT.

Martin Kane was sentenced to six months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

Russell E. Johnson was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

SONDER RACES BEGIN MONDAY

Races will be Followed by Eyes of Two Great Nations

The official circular for the guidance of the six sonder class boats that will participate in the international races off Marblehead next week was issued Thursday.

The notice states that the races will begin Monday at 11 o'clock. One will be sailed on Monday, another on Tuesday and on Wednesday the crews will rest. There will be races on Thursday and Friday, rest on Saturday and Sunday, another race Monday, Sept. 6, and if necessary one on Sept. 7.

The courses will be alternately triangular and windward-and-leeward, the starting line being off Halfway rock, three miles off Marblehead. The triangular courses will be 2 1-2 miles to the side, twice around, or 15 miles in all. The other course is six miles to windward or leeward and return.

The method of starting is that employed in Germany. At 11 A. M. a warning whistle will be blown on the committee tug, the flags that have signalled the course will be lowered and a ball will be hoisted to the top of a mast. Five minutes later this signal ball will be lowered and a whistle blown. In another four minutes the signal ball will be hoisted to a band on the mast. In 15 seconds it will be elevated to another band, at 30 seconds to another, and in 45 seconds to another, and at the end of the 10th minute after the warning it will be dropped and the whistle blown for the start.

This method enables the men steering the boats to tell at a glance how many quarters of their last minute before the start have run out.

Each boat will be timed from the signal, no matter when she crosses the line.

Several circumstances tend to make next week's match an important event in the year's yachting. One is the fact that it is a rubber, both sides having won, an American team having taken the Roosevelt cup at Marblehead in 1906, and a German team the kaiser's cup at Kiel in 1907. There was no match in 1908.

Another fact that enlists public interest in the match is that it is the only international yachting event of the year. In short, these races have served to keep alive interest in international sailing matches, since the New York yacht club put the America cup in the locker and padlocked it in.

There are many yachtsmen who hope they will pave the way to racing between America and Germany with larger boats, possibly for the America cup, could a way be found to draw that famous prize from its retirement.

As the world knows, the German emperor is deeply interested in yachting. He gave a prize for a great race of large yachts across the Atlantic in 1905. It is expected that a similar race will be sailed for another trophy from him in 1910. He has encouraged German designers of yachts to produce vessels as fast as any built in England and in recent matches the new imperial schooner Meteor IV, the emperor's pride, and another German schooner, the Germania, built in 1908, swept the board at Cowes, the stronghold of British yachting.

The kaiser has sent one of his most experienced advisers in naval and yachting matches, Vice Admiral Barandon, to witness, as his representative, next week's match at Marblehead.

The presence of this German Admiral, as special ambassador of an emperor, and of President Taft at the scene of the races, gives the international match an official character that would appear at first glance to be out of proportion to the little yachts with which the races will be sailed.

The President will present the prizes—the Taft and Draper cups as they are called—to the winners, and will entertain the crews of all six boats at luncheon on the government yacht Mayflower an Sept. 9.

The match is thus dignified with the highest official encouragement on both sides. This is in keeping with the wishes of the German Emperor, who has given the various matches for the sonder class his sanction because of their importance in developing cordial relations between the two nations concerned, and as a stepping stone in the progress of German yachting.

BRAVE RESCUE.

O. H. Bates Plunges Into Water and Saves Young Woman From Drowning.

Prompt work of O. H. Bates prevented a drowning accident at Squantum beach Thursday evening, when Miss Bessie Ward either got beyond her depth or was seized with the cramps.

Mr. Bates was on a high part of the beach at the time and heard the cries for help of Miss Ward as she sank out of sight.

Mr. Bates ran to the beach and plunged into the water. At that time Miss Ward was seen to be floating but still shouting for help. Before Mr. Bates reached her she sank a second time. When she reappeared Mr. Bates seized her by her bathing suit and forced her over on her back and then swam ashore.

Here the young woman was given restoratives by friends and then taken home.

A large crowd was attracted to the beach by the woman's cries and saw the rescue. As Mr. Bates came ashore with the woman he was loudly cheered.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Lives in Jeopardy as Train Crashes Through Gate at South Station.

Many people had a narrow escape from injury Thursday at the South Station when a train for Newport in backing into the station crashed through the buffer and fence into a crowd of several hundred who were waiting for the gates to open.

Failure of the air brakes to work is said to have been the cause of the trouble. As the people heard the crash and saw the train coming there was a quick scattering of the crowd who tumbled over each other in their hurry to get out of the way. The air was full of flying splinters of wood and it is somewhat remarkable that many were not killed.

The rear car ran quite a distance into the main waiting room before it came to a stop. Some twenty or more persons are said to have been injured but none seriously.

OBJECT TO SPIKETAILS.

Business Men Kick at Dress Requirements for Taft Dinner.

President Taft, on Sept. 30, is to be the guest of the Omaha Knights of Ak Sar Ben, an organization of all classes of business men of the city formed to furnish entertainment for visitors. A committee for the Knights has announced that the charge for the dinner will be $20 per plate.

The 1,500 members of the order agreed to this but now many of them are in revolt, because the committee's order provides that when the $20 that pays for a plate is sent in there must be a distinct understanding that the applicant will appear in a spiketail coat, white waist coat, light trousers, white "spats" and black shoes.

Because of the order ,a large number of business men will not attend the banquet.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

New Haven Begins Work at Harrison Square.

The work of eliminating the grade crossings of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in Dorchester, an undertaking that will cost $1,300,000, was begun Thursday. Two temporary tracks are now under construction, for which two miles of highway and most of the abutting property was purchased. Bridges, cuts and grading will serve to do away with the five crossings on the main line and four on the Shawmut branch. Meanwhile the engineers must not interrupt the 225 trains which pass daily.

MARSHFIELD FAIR.

The first day of the annual fair of the Marshfield agricultural and horticultural society brought out a good crowd, but the weather was so warm that the field sports were postponed until today. The display of fruit and vetegables is good and the cattle exhibit surpasses that of any show in late years.

There are 25 yoke of oxen shown. The exhibit of President Thomas W. Lawson from Dreamwold is very fine and includes all kinds of stock. Yesterday was the big day and there was some fine trotting, as many fast horses are entered. At noon took place the annual banquet, with speaking by a number of prominent people.

TRAINING MOTHERS.

The Health Department of New York, in co-operation with more than eighty philanthropic organizations, has lately been doing fine preventive work for the health of the babies of the city. It has established a visiting service, consisting of 157 physicians and 141 nurses. Thirty-five thousand visits have been made. The chief result so far has been in driving midwives out of business and in undoing the damage these relics of an unscientific age have already done. One of the most important results of this service has been in the proper protection and care of infants' eyes. A large per cent. of blindness or affection of the eyes dates back to neglect at or immediately after the time of birth. Particular attention is given in this service to this particular need. Moreover, mothers are receiving instruction in the care of babies, particularly in the matter of bathing, fresh air and diet.

REMSEN BOARD INDORSED

Advocates of Use of Benzoate of Soda In Food Are Victorious

Denver, Aug. 27.—President Roosevelt's famous Remsen referee board of consulting scientific experts was indorsed by the convention of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments. After a fight, in which the term "medicated garbage" was used, the association approved of the use of benzoate of soda as a food preservative by a vote of 57 to 42.

A committee which was appointed previously to "investigate" the Remsen board had reported adversely upon the board's findings, declaring that benzoate promoted "the practice of concealing unsanitary methods," and calling upon President Taft to institute another investigation on "broader lines."

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TRIBUTE TO LAURIER

Higher Position Said to Be Awaiting Him If He Will Accept

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—A letter from a prominent politician in England says that the British government is to offer Sir Wilfred Laurier the position of first governor-general of South Africa as a tribute to his reconciliation of races in Canada.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Sir Wilfred refuses to discuss the rumor, and in official quarters it is regarded as most unlikely he would accept, even if the offer were made.

COTTON MILLS CLOSED BY STRIKE

Two Thousand Employes of York Company Are Idle

Saco, Me., Aug. 27.—The strike of weavers in the cotton mills of the York Manufacturing company has resulted in Agent Page shutting down work indefinitely.

The strikers demand an increase in wages, averaging 3 cents a "cut." Although the strikers elected a committee to confer with Page as to an adjustment of the differences it is believed the strike will prove to be a protracted one.

WAR VETERAN DROWNED

Perishes Before Wife's Eyes While She Vainly Tries to Save Him

The Weirs, N. H., Aug. 27.—While returning from a reunion of Grand Army veterans in this town to his hotel on Bear Island with his wife in his private motor boat, Major J. E. Randlett, aged 65, an architect and contractor of Concord, N. H., fell overboard and was drowned in Lake Winnepesaukee.

Mrs. Randlett was sitting in the bow of the boat while her husband was in the stern, handling the tiller ropes and the engine. The woman was attracted by the sound of a splash and turning around she saw her husband swimming in the water after the fast speeding boat. The handling of the boat was a mystery to her, but she finally managed to get the boat headed back in the direction of the spot where her husband was struggling. The veteran was a good swimmer and he struck manfully for the boat, but he sank before his wife's eyes before the little craft, which was but partly under control, could reach him.

WANTS ARGENTINE BE[EF]

England May Remove Restrictions Against South American Cattle

London, Aug. 27.—A shortage in the meat supplies of the country and fear lest the American beef combine obtain complete control of the Argentine trade have induced the British government to reconsider the possibility of removing the existing prohibition against the importation to Great Britain of Argentine cattle.

In response to Argentine's latest request for the removal of the present restrictions, Great Britain has asked Argentina to furnish detailed information of the government steps taken in suppressing the foot and mouth disease, "in order that the matter may be considered."

A GENTLEMAN AND BURGLAR

Man Whom Police Seek Said to Have Led Double Life

NOW HIDING IN MAINE WOODS

Had Escaped From City Prison In Boston While Being Booked For Alleged Perpetration of Numerous Burglaries—Fled to Salem, Boarded His Yacht, and Sailed For Coast of Maine—Eludes His Pursuers

Kittery, Me., Aug. 27.—Clyde G. Bruhm, charged by the Boston police with being the perpetrator of upwards of a score of burglaries in eastern Massachusetts, and who made a sensational escape from the city prison in Boston while being booked on Tuesday, is in the woods between North Kittery and York, with a companion, where they were pursued by a posse of about 100 men.

Bruhm's yacht, the Savage, was confiscated by the local police after Bruhm and his companion had left the yacht in a canoe. When searched, a bag containing a quantity of silverware and three suit cases, supposed to also hold jewelry and plate, were found. All were held by the local police for the Boston authorities.

The Savage arrived in this harbor Thursday afternoon. Bruhm and his companion, Harry V. Wingate, anchored the craft and then went ashore in a canoe, their only tender. The police of Portsmouth, N. H., were notified and with Kittery officers they boarded the yacht. They were there when the pair returned. Bruhm and his companion spied them, however, and quickly turned back to shore. The officers manned their boat and followed.

Bruhm and Wingate broke into a run immediaely upon landing, heading for North Kittery. The officers were not far behind. Branching off, the fugitives reached a creek, which they crossed in a boat which chanced to be there. The officers when they reached the place were unable to cross, having no boat, and were obliged temporarily to give up the pursuit.

Returning to Kittery, the police organized a posse of nearly 100 men who searched the woods in the vicinity of the creek and toward York, but without result. Under the direction of Inspector Shields of the Boston police the search will be prosecuted today.

An examination of the Savage showed that the name had been erased. Since leaving Salem on Tuesday night the boat has been the object of a marine search, in which all the wireless stations and coastwise shipping, together with the government craft and shore officials, have participated.

At Salem Bruhm was known as a lavish entertainer and associated with the best class of the summer vacationists and residents. He appeared to be well supplied with money.

In Boston, it is alleged, he conducted burglaries, the results of which supported his generous entertainments. Breaks in other places in Massachusetts are also charged against him.

Following his arrest for housebreaking on Tuesday, and his subsequent sensational escape from the prison, an examination of Bruhm's lodgings in Boston disclosed a considerable amount of silverware, believed to be the results of some of his alleged burglaries. The finding of the silverware in a bag on the yacht last night still further make the police believe they have located the instigator of many of the burglaries in the vicinity of Boston during the past several months.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames. VIII—Calendar meets his daughter in the company of a man named Mulready, evidently his companion in some strange nefarious enterprise. Mulready, it seems, has tried to kidnap Dorothy in Kirkwood's cab. Calendar and Mulready quarrel, after which the girl and the two men row off to board a vessel referred to as the Alethea, leaving Kirkwood to find his way in a cab to St. Paneras station, where he is to take the midnight train for his steamer. He is now thoroughly in love with Dorothy.

marauder—would not the police now, more than ever, be keeping a wary eye on that house of suspicious happenings?

Decidedly to re-enter it would be to incur a deadly risk. And yet undoubtedly, beyond question, his sovereign purse was waiting for him somewhere on the second flight of stairs, while his means of clandestine entry lay warm in his fingers—the key to the dark entry, which he had by force of habit pocketed after locking the door on leaving the house with Dorothy.

He came to the Hog-in-the-Pound Its windows were dim with low turned gaslights. Down the covered alleyway Quadrant mews slept in a dusk, but fitfully relieved by a lamp or two round which the friendly mist clung close and thick.

There would be none to see.

Skulking, throat swollen with fear, heart beating like a snare drum, Kirkwood took his chance. Buttoning his overcoat collar up to his chin and cursing the fact that his hat must stand out like a chimney pot on a detached house, he sped on tiptoe down the cobbled way and close beneath the house walls of Quadrant mews; but, halfway in, he stopped, confounded by an unforeseen difficulty. How was he to identify the narrow entry of No. 9, whose counterparts doubtless communicated with the mews from every residence on four sides of the city block?

He almost lost his head when he realized that escape was already cut off by the way he had come. Some one or, rather, some two men were entering the alley. He could hear the tramping and shuffle of clumsy feet and voices that muttered indistinctly. One seemed to trip over something and cursed. The other laughed. The voices grew more loud. They were coming his way. He dared no longer vacillate. He dived into the nearest black hole of a passageway and in sheer desperation flung himself, key in hand, against the door at the end. Mark how his luck served him who had forsworn her! He found a keyhole and inserted the key. It turned. So did the knob. The door gave inward. He fell in with it, slammed it, shot the bolts and, panting, leaned against its panels, in a pit of everlasting night, but saved—for the time being, at all events.

CHAPTER X.

INDOORS Kirkwood faced unhappily the enigma of fortuity, wondering if this by any possibility were No. 9.

The key had fitted, the bolts had been drawn on the inside, and, while the key had been one of ordinary pattern and would no doubt have proved effectual with any one of a hundred common locks, the finger of probability seemed to indicate that his luck had brought him back to No. 9.

In spite of all this, he was sensible of little confidence. Though this were truly No. 9, his freedom still lay on the knees of the gods; his very life, belike, was poised, tottering on a pinnacle of chance.

In the end, taking heart of desperation, he stooped and removed his shoes, a precaution which later appealed to his sense of the ridiculous in view of the racket he had raised in entering, but which at the moment seemed most natural and in accordance with common sense. Then, rising, he held his breath, staring and listening. About him the pitch darkness was punctuated with fading points of fire, and in his ears was a noise of strange whisperings.

He went forward gingerly, feeling his way like a blind man on strange ground. Ere long he stumbled over a doorsill and found that the walls of the passage had fallen away. He had entered a room, a black cavern of indeterminate dimensions. Thence, progressing over complaining floors through what may have been the servants' hall, a large room with a table in the middle and a number of promiscuous chairs (witness his tortured shins), he finally blundered into the basement hallway.

By now a little calmer, he felt assured that this was really No. 9 Frognall street and a little happier about it all, though not even momentarily forgetful of the potential police and night watchman. However, he mounted the steps to the ground floor without adventure and found himself at last in the same dim and ghostly hall which he had entered some six hours before. The mockery of dusk admitted by the fanlight was just strong enough to enable him to identify the general lay of the land and arrangement of furniture.

More confidently with each uncontested step he continued his quest. Elation was stirring his spirit when he gained the first floor and moved toward the foot of the second flight, approaching the spot whereat he was to begin the search for the missing purse. The knowledge that he lacked means of obtaining illumination deterred him nothing. He had some hope of finding matches in one of the adjacent rooms, but, failing that, was prepared to ascend the stairs on all fours, feeling every inch of their surface if it took hours.

And thus it fell out that, at the instant he was thinking it time to begin to crawl and hunt, his stockinged feet came into contact with something heavy, yielding, warm—something that moved, moaned and caused his hair to bristle and his flesh to creep.

We will make allowances for him. All along he had gone on the assumption that his antagonist of the dark stairway would have recovered and made off with all expedition in the course of ten or twenty minutes at most from the time of his accident. To find him still there was something entirely outside of Kirkwood's reckoning. He would as soon have thought to encounter, say, Calendar—would have preferred the latter, indeed.

"Poor devil!" murmured the young man. "He must be in a pretty bad way for sure!" He knelt, compassion gentling his heart, and put one hand to the insentient face. A warm sweat moistened his fingers. His palm was fanned by steady respiration.

Immeasurably perplexed, the American rose, slipped on his shoes and buttoned them, thinking hard the while. What ought he to do? Obviously flight suggested itself—incontinent flight, anticipating the man's recovery. On the other hand, indubitably the latter had sustained such injury that consciousness, when it came to him, would hardly be re-enforced by much aggressive power. Moreover, it was to be remembered that the one was in that house with quite as much warrant as the other unless Kirkwood had drawn a rash inference from the incident of the ragged sentry. The two of them were mutual if antagonistic trespassers. Neither would dare bring about the arrest of the other. And then—and this was not the least consideration to influence Kirkwood—perhaps the fellow would die if he got no attention.

COMPELLED MEN TO WORK

Testimony to the Effect That Car Company Practiced Peonage

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—The first testimony offered in the federal government investigation into the charges of peonage against officials of the Pressed Steel Car company in Schoenville, in which it is alleged force was used to compel imported workingmen to work, developed last evening.

United States District Attorney Jordan refused to comment on the disclosures, but it is now said by those in a position to know that suits on peonage charges will more than likely be filed against minor officials of the car plant within the next ten days. A suit against President Hoffstot is unlikely, according to attorneys interested in the case.

ELLERY CLARK IS STILL AN ATHLETE

Amateur Champion of New England For Fourth Time

Boston, Aug. 27.—For the fourth time Ellery H. Clark, who has twice won the title as national all-round champion athlete, won the all-around championship meet of the New England Amateur Athletic union here.

Clark is a former alderman of this city and a member of the school committee and has been in athletic competition for nearly twenty years, but Thursday's meet he won easily, not finding it necessary to compete in the mile run. His total number of points was 5455½.

Victor Kennard, the Harvard football star whose drop kick won the game from Yale last fall, was second, with 5097 points. W. Lynch, a soldier from Fort Warren, was third. Nine athletes competed.

BASEBALL PLAYER KILLED

Spikes In Shoes Attracted Lightning, Which Passed Into His Body

Atlantic City, Aug. 27.—In full view of nearly 1000 persons, William Bedford, negro second baseman of the Cuban Giants baseball team, was instantly killed by lightning while practicing before the game with the Atlantic City team at Inlet park.

The bolt struck the ground close to Bedford and ran through the spikes in his shoes into his body, which carries no burns nor other marks of the lightning. Two other players who were close by were knocked down by the shock, but not injured.

The spectators felt the force of the shock and were thrown into a panic. None was injured.

MET AN AWFUL DEATH

Workman Literally Whirled to Pieces by Being Caught In a Pulley

East Douglas, Mass., Aug. 27.—Charles H. Lambert, aged 48, a forger in the local plant of the American Axe and Tool company, fell from a ladder while he was adjusting a belt. His clothes caught on a set-screw of a pulley and he was whirled around at the rate 300 revolutions a minute.

It was fully a minute before the power was shut off. Lambert's right arm was wound around the drum, both legs were severed, the top of his head was lopped off, his body was a mass of cuts and bruises and every shred of clothing was shorn from it.

Car Crashed Into Buggy

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 27.—Wendell H. Hazzard may lose his life as a result of a collision between a trolley car and the buggy in which he was riding with Daniel B. Fales. The car crashed into the buggy from the rear, the horse dying from his injuries. Fales will recover.

Pollitt Heads Sons of Veterans

Washington, Aug. 27.—Atlantic City was selected by the Sons of Veterans as the place for holding the next annual encampment of the organization, and George W. Pollitt of Patterson, N. J., was elected commander-in-chief.

SKINS HAVE "LOUD' ODOR

Consignment From Roosevelt Received at the National Museum

Washington, Aug. 27.—Giving forth sickening odors, the skins sent by Theodore Roosevelt from his African hunting trip were unpacked in the taxidermist's shop of the National museum here. The specimens were packed in salt and were in better condition than that in which skins usually arrive.

The tanning of the hides will be commenced as soon as other work will permit, but it will be many months before the skins are ready to be placed on exhibition.

HIS ISOLATION IS ABSOLUTE

No Word From Outer World Can Reach Harriman

DOCTOR MAKES A REPORT

Says Patient Is Suffering From General Nervous Breakdown and Needs Rest—Harriman and Allied Stocks Go Tobogganing, Affecting Entire New York Market, on Account of Pessimistic Rumors

Arden, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Whatever the actual prognosis for Edward H. Harriman's recovery, it is evident that his family has determined that he shall make no further sacrifices of vitality to reassure the public and buoy up the stock market. No armed guards patrol his estate, but for all effective purposes of human intercourse, his isolation on his mountaintop is as absolute as any devised for an eastern potentate.

Except the selected few of his own immediate entourage, not a soul sees him and no word from the outer world penetrates his seclusion. His "rest cure" is absolute. All approaches to the grounds are picketed and admission is unqualifiedly denied to outsiders.

The telephone operator at Arden with access on a direct line to the house has orders to make no connections from the outside. The mountain and private funicular railway to the heights are both forbidden to everyone but the household. It is impossible to reach Harriman either directly or indirectly, unless by his own wish or that of his family communicated from within the gates.

Dr. Lyle, the family physician, bridged the gap Thursday with a brief account of his patient's progress. Harriman, he said, had been confined to the house for the day by the rains which shrouded all the Ramapo mountain, but his eager mind had been busy with the construction work still in progress on his new home.

"Mr. Harriman passed a good night and ate a hearty breakfast at 10 o'clock this morning," said Lyle. "His appetite is better and he relishes good food and plenty of it. His present condition is due to a general nervous breakdown and there is nothing he needs more than absolute rest."

Robert S. Lovett, who has been mentioned as Harriman's possible successor, came to Arden yesterday afternoon for another conference. Lovett positively refused to discuss the purpose of his frequent visits. It is thought, however, that with his first lieutenant so often at his elbow, Harriman cannot be wholly out of touch with the market or completely free from business cares.

All the Harriman children are now here. Walter A. Harriman, the eldest son and last to arrive, stepped off a train from Chicago. "I am not a public man yet," he said in declining an interview. "I have come on here from the west about the time I had intended. That is all I can say."

As chainman of a surveying gang on one of his father's lines, young Harriman has begun to learn railroading from the bottom up.

Great Sag In Stock Market

New York, Aug. 27.—The state of Harriman's health continues to be the principal topic of interest to Wall street. There was little or no definite news to be had Thursday, and in its absence, pessimistic rumors of varied character sent the Harriman and allied stocks spinning downward.

The slaughter of prices was attended by the usual list of "dead" and "wounded" on the speculative field. At the close of the day's business, which aggregated more than 1,200,000 shares, many "pyramided" accounts had evaporated into thin air, and the clerical forces of most brokerage houses were kept working long into the night issuing calls for additional margins.

Since early in July it has been a Harriman, or "one man" market. Thursday's doleful gossip, therefore, quickly acquired a strength sufficient to give the entire market a convulsive downward movement.

The day's losses in the general list ranged from 7½ points in Union Pacific to 4 points in the preferred, 5⅞ in Southern Pacific, 4⅛ in Reading, 3⅝ in New York Central and 2⅝ in United States Steel.

In the less active issues declines of 2 to 4 points were recorded by several leading stocks.

On Monday of last week, nothwithstanding Union Pacific then sold at 219 and other Harriman issues also were strong, the list began to sag, and with scarcely any interruption went lower and lower with the result that Thursday's final price obliterated many of the gains of the past two months. Conservative Wall street had sounded a note of warning over a fortnight back.

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 27.—Charles E. Bullard, a retired officer of the Boston police department, was appointed chief of police by the selectmen last night. Bullard succeeds Harvey G. Brockbank, who recently disappeared.

LINCOLN ADDITION.

Official Inspection of Four Room Addition to Building.

An official inspection was made Thursday afternoon of the four room addition to the Lincoln school building. In the party were Mayor Shea, Architect Bridgham, Chairman Hunting of the School Committee, John L. Miller sub-committeeman for that district and Commissioner Bainbridge.

There had been some wild rumors on the street that all was not as it should be at the building and for that reason the inspection was made. The officials found that the rumors were entirely without foundation and that the specifications had been lived up to in every particular.

The addition is all completed and will be occupied when the schools open for the fall term in September.

About Matches.

John Walker, an English chemist, was experimenting in 1827 with an inflammable mixture for use on shipboard. One day Walker happened to rub a stick dipped in this mixture across a table. There was a report—the stick took fire, and because John Walker was no fool the match was born. The match's inventor put his wonderful invention on the market in April, 1827. The Walker match was as big as a lead pencil, and it cost a shilling a box. Because it could only be lighted by drawing it through a piece of sandpaper folded in two the Holden match supplanted it in 1833. The Holden was a lucifer. It ignited more easily than the Walker, so it put the Walker out of business. Sweden is today the home of the match industry. Sweden exports annually about 2,000,000,000 boxes of incomparable matches. But there is no statue to John Walker.—Exchange.

Shank's Mare.

"I haven't got a limousine or any aeroplane; I haven't got a coach an' six, not e'en a special train; I haven't got a bicycle nor yet a hoss an' team. I git along all right, by jinks, 'thout gaserline or steam. I travel jest by shank's mare an' never hev no fear but what I'll reach my stoppin' place the same day in the year. No artificial rigs for me, no busted tires or bones, no landin' all up in a heap upon the highway stones. I may be slow a-gettin' round an' cause the world to stare, but I will git there by an' by all right side up with care."—Boston Herald.

A Tramp of Resource.

Much experience of thirsty tramps had caused the author of "An English Holiday," J. J. Hissey, to foreknow almost exactly what they would say to him. One day, when sending his motorcar slowly along a shady English road, he met one of this guild, who accosted him with the preliminary touch of his cap. Mr. Hissey anticipated him by exclaiming:

"I be mortal thirsty! Have you, good sir, the price of a glass of ale about you? I've driven nearly fifty miles today, and since the morning not a bite of food has passed my lips."

The look of astonishment that tramp gave me was a delight to observe. But this tramp was a man of ready resource, and, seeing I was a hopeless case, he rose to the occasion and promptly exclaimed, with what dignity he could command and with a comically serious expression:

"If there were a policeman in sight I would give you in charge for begging, that I would!"

Noted Hotel Burned

Niagara, Ont., Aug. 27.—The Strathconia hotel, a landmark on the frontier and just outside the town limits, was burned to the ground. The loss, including property lost by the guests, will be about $25,000. The fire started in the basement from an undiscovered cause.

LATHAM NOW KING OF FLYERS

Holds Every Record For Speed and Distance but Two

VINDICATION OF MONOPLANE

Covers Nearly Ninety-Six Miles In Severe Storm of Wind and Rain In 2:18:9 3-5—Compelled to Descend Because Gasolene Gives Out—Accident to Bleriot's Machine May Enhance Curtiss' Chances

Rheims, Aug. 27.—Hubert Latham, the French aviator, has established a new world's record for distance, 154 miles.

Latham covered fifteen laps, or 150 kilometres, in 2h., 13m., 9s. and the full distance in 2h., 18m., 9 3-5s., which also are world's records, the flight being at the rate of about 68 1-2 kilometres an hour as compared with 53 1-2 made by Wright at Lemans and a fraction under 50 made by Paulhan Wednesday.

Except for the one lap speed records made by Bleriot and Curtiss this week and Paulhan's time record in the air, Latham now holds every record for distance and speed. Like Paulhan, he descended only when the gasolene tank was empty.

Nothing could have exceeded the beauty and impressiveness of the prolonged flight. In grace of lines no other areoplane here compares with Latham's monoplane. The slightly tilted planes from the long skiff-like body give it a resemblance when close to a winged canoe, while, sailing high up in the air, it looks from a distance like a mammoth dragon.

Like a living thing it fought its way against the storm of rain and wind at an average height of 150 feet, mounting higher as the wind rose, until during the worst of the storm it was up fully 300 feet. The contention of the advocates of the biplane that the monoplane would be unable to live in a strong breeze has been amply refuted.

Latham, earlier in the day with "Number 13," another aeroplane of the same type, made a flight of more than seventy kilometres and, after he had finished in the afternoon Lambert covered 116 kilometres (72.03 miles), in commanding fashion. Three flights, therefore, in a single day totalled more than 210 miles.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the American, had practice spins, but although his machine behaved splendidly its speed was disappointing. An accident which Bleriot suffered about dusk may improve Curtiss' chances for the international cup. While trying to alight with a passenger aboard his big 80-horsepower machine Bleriot crashed into a fence, the wings and propeller being broken. He narrowly missed killing several of the spectators.

Whether or not the motor was injured has not been definitely determined. If so, Curtiss' most dangerous rival has been put at a disadvantage, as Bleriot intended to use the wrecked machine in the international event, although he qualified with another.

Thursday's contests altered the classification for the Prix de Champagne, the figures now standing: Latham, 154½ kilometres; Paulhan, 131; DeLambert, 116; Lathm, 70; Curtiss, 30; Lefebvre, 21. Latham's two records were made with different machines.

ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP FLIGHT

German Dirigible Started This Morning on a 450-Mile Journey

Friedrichshafen, Aug. 27.—The dirigible balloon Zeppelin III started at 4:30 o'clock this morning for Berlin. The course will be via Nuremburg, Leipsic and Bitterfeld, a total distance of about 450 miles.

The run to Bitterfeld will be made without stop, and the airship will probably arrive there there after nightfall. It will remain at Bitterfeld until noon Saturday to replenish the gas and benzine supply, and take on Count Zeppelin, who will go to Bitterfeld by rail. The count will pilot the ship to Berlin.

The Social Realm

I would dwell with thee,
Merry grasshopper,
Thou are so glad and free,
And light as air;
Thou hast no sorrow or tears,
Thou hast no compt of years,
No withered immortality,
But a short youth sunny and free.

ATLANTIC PROS. VS. MAKARIA

Another Chapter on that Championship Question

The Atlantic Professionals, recognized baseball champions of this city, seem to be a bone of contention for the other "second-rate" teams to pick on at present.

Referring to statements made in the Ledger Friday by the manager of the Makaria team, Atlantic wishes to have a few of them corrected. In the first place the record of the Makaria team is a brilliant one, although they have not faced the teams that the Professionals have played against this year. Reading, with Roger Chase in the box, was beaten by Makaria, 2-0, while Atlantic fell to Reading and Simpson, 4-1. Atlantic beat Makaria in the championship games last year, one of the games being a 3-0 shut out with Roger Chase in the box for the "church boys."

Makaria neglected to give credit to the Atlantic team for beating Middleboro, when they knocked Moralis, Middleboro's pitcher off the mound, and then hit Gammons, the third baseman hard. It was Gammons, an infielder, who pitched against Makaria.

Then at Norwell, Makaria yost its first game, but redeemed itself on the second. Atlantic won its only game with this team in 11 innings, not 16 as the Makaria manager exaggerated it.

Atlantic swamped the Malden Athletics, 11-3, while this team triumphed over Ganzel's clever nine, 13-2.

Atlantic is willing to play the rubber game with Makaria, but the latter team has done as much dictating as it will do this year, anyway, and will have to jump down to ward 6 playground before the two teams will be able to get together. Makaria fears the strong rooters of the north-side team, and that is the reason the management of that nine gave in the second game, which Atlantic easily won.

The Atlantic team has shown that they can play ball all-round the Wollaston park team by their record which was published in Thursday evening's edition of the Ledger.

Makaria's disputed claim to the title is taken as a joke in the Atlantic section of the city. They have claimed that they have won 5 games out of 9 with Atlantic last year, and this statement has proved true, although that fact does not give the Makaria team any option on championship views this year.

Makaria won one more game than Atlantic did but the last five games were arranged by the managers of the two nines as a city championship series, in which the Atlantic boys were victorious.

Now if Makaria thinks that they can beat Atlantic or even hold them to a close score, let them come to Atlantic and talk business.

CARE OF BABIES.

Boston Children to be Taught How to Care for Infants.

A permanent organization of Boston physicians is being formed whose object is to teach high school girls how to care for babies. Uniform methods will be adopted in order to improve the work. The plans are to have high school girls attend conferences of the committee where the nourishment and care of infants are discussed. Several conferences have been held this season and have been very successful and it is believed the scope of work can be enlarged by the permanent organization.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Editor of Daily Ledger:

The several articles printed recently in the Quincy papers in relation to the power boats in Wollaston bay, seem to the reasonable citizen to rather exceed the speed limit of truth .

The combined efforts of all the power boats at Wollaston beach could not hold a candle to the noise made by one healthy stone crusher. I would suggest that the self chosen critic visit a stone crushing plant.

Every power boat owner is not a criminal and excessive noise is fully as distasteful to the owner as to those on shore. The police of the city of Quincy have their hands full with nuisance more obnoxious than a puff of a motor boat and to criticise our police force, considering the size of our city ,and the small number of officers seems entirely uncalled for. What little experience the writer of this article has had with our police department has convinced him that the force is both efficient and diligent in the pursuit of their duties.

The laws enacted by our state legislature were never intended to be misconstrued by the eccentric and the petard may prove to be a boomerang much to the discomfort of the misguided individual who weilds the critics pen.

Are You Wretched in Bad Weather?

Keeping the Kidneys Well Has Kept Many Quincy People Well.

Many Quincy people find that bad weather brings on a dull pain in the back, or rheumatic aching, neuralgia, nervousness, irritability and weakness. If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys," and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness, which is often the beginning of disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the chilly feeling is gone, and the flow of urine is natural. Doan's Kidney Pills has saved Quincy people much suffering.

W. Charlesworth, living at 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were at times more severe than at others and colds or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief, but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give this remedy a trial and procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had used the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames. VIII—Calendar meets his daughter in the company of a man named Mulready, evidently his companion in some strange nefarious enterprise. Mulready, it seems, has tried to kidnap Dorothy in Kirkwood's cab. Calendar and Mulready quarrel, after which the girl and the two men row off to board a vessel referred to as the Alethea, leaving Kirkwood to find his way in a cab to St. Pancras station, where he is to take the midnight train for his steamer. He is now thoroughly in love with Dorothy. IX and X—Kirkwood just misses his train and finds himself almost penniless. After wandering about for two hours he is again in Frognall street. He enters the house to seek his missing purse and finds the young man whom he had knocked down still unconscious after six hours.

Light upon the subject, actual as well as figurative, seemed to be the first essential. His mind composed, Kirkwood set himself in search of it. The floor he was on, however, afforded him no assistance.

After some momentary hesitation he went upstairs, his ascent marked by a single and grateful incident. Halfway to the top he trod on an object that clinked underfoot and, stopping, retrieved the lost purse.

The rooms on the second floor were bedchambers, broad, deep, stately, inhabited by seven devils of loneliness. In one, on a dresser, Kirkwood found a stump of candle in a china candlestick. The two charred ends of matches at its base were only an irritating discovery, however—evidence that real matches had been the mode in No. 9 at some remote date. Disgusted and oppressed by cumulative inquisitiveness, he took the candle end back to the hall. He would have given much for the time and means to make a more detailed investigation into the secret of the house.

Since his latest entrance his vision had adjusted itself to cope with the obscurity to some extent, and the street lights, meagerly reflected through the windows from the bosom of a sullen pall of cloud low swung above the city, had helped him to piece together many a detail of decoration and furnishing, alike somber and richly dignified. Kirkwood told himself that the owner, whoever he might be, was a man of wealth and taste inherited from another age. He had found little of meretricious today in the dwelling, much that was solid and sedate and homely and—Victorian. He could have wished for more. A box of early Victorian vestas had been highly acceptable.

Making his way downstairs to the stricken man, who was quite as he had been, Kirkwood bent over and thrust rifling fingers into his pockets regardless of the wretched sense of guilt and sneakishness imparted by the action, stubbornly heedless of the possibility of the man's awakening to find himself being searched and robbed.

In the last place he sought, which should, he realized, have been the first—to wit, the fob pocket of the white waistcoat—he found a small gold matchbox packed tight with wax vestas and, berating himself for crass stupidity—he had saved a deal of time and trouble by thinking of this before—lighted the candle.

As its golden flame shot up with scarce a tremor, preyed upon by a perfectly excusable concern, he bent to examine the man's countenance. The arm which had partly hidden it had fallen back into a natural position. It was a young face that gleamed pallid in the candlelight, a face unlined, a little vapid and insignificant, with features regular and neat, betraying few characteristics other than the purely negative attributes of a character as yet unformed, possibly unformable, much the sort of face that he might have expected to see, remembering those thin and pouting lips that before had impressed him. Its owner was probably little more than twenty. In his attire there was a suspicion of a fop's preciseness, aside from its accidental disarray.

"I can't make him out at all!" declared Kirkwood. It was most exasperating, the incongruity of the boy's appearance assorted with his double role of persecutor of distressed damsels and nocturnal housebreaker.

Kirkwood bent closer above the motionless head, with puzzled eyes striving to pin down some elusive resemblance that he thought to trace in those vacuous features, a resemblance to some one he had seen or known at some past time somewhere, somehow.

"I give it up. Guess I'm mistaken. Anyhow, five young Englishmen out of every ten of his class are just as blond and foolish. Now let's see how bad he's hurt."

With hands strong and gentle he turned the round, light head. Then "Ah!" he commented in the accent of comprehension, for there was an angry looking bump at the base of the skull.

Kirkwood let the head down and took thought. Recalling a bathroom on the floor above, thither he went, unselfishly forgetful of his predicament if discovered, and, turning on the water, sopping his handkerchief until it dripped. Then, returning, he took the boy's head on his knees, washed the wound, purloined another handkerchief of silk, with a giddy border, from the other's pocket and of this manufactured a rude but serviceable bandage.

Toward the conclusion of his attentions the sufferer began to show signs of returning animation. He stirred restlessly, whimpered a little and sighed. And Kirkwood in consternation got up.

"So!" he commented ruefully. "I guess I am an ass, all right, taking all that trouble for you, my friend. If I've got a grain of sense left, this is my cue to leave you alone in your glory."

He was lingering only to restore to the boy's pockets such articles as he had removed in the search for matches—the matchbox, a few silver coins, a bulky sovereign purse, a handsome plain gold watch, and so forth. But ere he concluded he was aware that the boy was conscious; that his eyes, open and blinking in the candlelight, were upon him.

They were blue eyes—blue and shallow as a doll's and edged with long, fine lashes. Intelligence of a certain degree was rapidly informing them. Kirkwood returned their questioning glance, transfixed in indecision. His primal impulse to cut and run for it was gone. He had nothing to fear from this child, who could not prevent his going whenever he chose to go, while by remaining he might perchance worm from him something about Dorothy.

"You're feeling better?" He was almost surprised to hear his own voice put the query.

"I—I think so. Ow, my head! I say, you chap, whoever you are, what's happened? I want to get up." The boy added peevishly, "Help a fellow, can't you?"

"You've had a nasty fall," Kirkwood observed evenly, passing an arm beneath the boy's shoulder and helping him to a sitting position. "Do you remember?"

The other snuffled childishly and scrubbed across the floor to rest his back against the wall.

"Why-y, I remember fallin', and then I woke up, and it was all dark, and my head achin' fit to split. I presume I went to sleep again. I say, what're you doin' here?"

Instead of replying Kirkwood lifted a warning finger.

"Hush!" he said tensely, alarmed by noises in the street. "You don't suppose"—

He had been conscious of a carriage rolling up from the corner as well as that it had drawn up (presumably) before a nearby dwelling. Now the rattle of a key in the hall door was startlingly audible. Before he could move the door itself opened with a slam.

Kirkwood moved toward the stairhead and drew back, with a cry of disgust. "Too late," he told himself bitterly. His escape was cut off. He could run upstairs and hide, of course, but the boy would inform against him and—

He buttoned up his coat, settled his hat on his head and moved near the candle, where it rested on the floor. One glimpse would suffice to show him the force of the intruders and one move of his foot put out the light; then—perhaps—he might be able to rush them.

Below a brief pause had followed the noise of the door, as if those entering were standing, irresolute, undecided which way to turn, but abruptly enough the glimmer of candlelight must have been noticed. Kirkwood heard a hushed exclamation, a quick clatter of heels on the parquetry, pattering feet on the stairs, all but drowned by swish and ripple of silken skirts, and a woman stood at the head of the flight—to the American an apparition profoundly amazing as she paused, the light from the floor casting odd, theatric shadows beneath her eyes and over her brows, edging her eyes themselves with brilliant light beneath their dark lashes, showing her lips straight and drawn and shimmering upon the spangles of an evening gown, visible beneath the dark cloak which had fallen back from her white, beautiful shoulders.

CHAPTER XI.

"MRS. HALLAM!" cried Kirkwood beneath his breath.

The woman ignored his existence. Moving swiftly forward, she dropped on both knees by the side of the boy and caught up one of his hands, clasping it passionately in her own.

"Fred!" she cried, a curious break in her tone. "My little Freddie! Oh, what has happened, dearie?"

"Oh, hello, mamma!" grunted that young man, submitting listlessly to her caresses and betraying no overwhelming surprise at her appearance there. Indeed, he seemed more concerned as to what Kirkwood, an older man, would be thinking to see him so endeared and fondled than moved by any other emotion. Kirkwood could see his shamefaced, sidelong glances and despised him properly for them.

But without attending to his response Mrs. Hallam rattled on in the uneven accents of excitement. "I waited until I couldn't wait any longer, Freddie, dear. I had to know, had to come. Eccles came home about 9 and said that you had told him to wait

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

American Women Only Imagine They are Nervous, Says a Harvard Professor—The Sea Serpent's Annual Visitation is now On—A Mushroom Society Exhibits a Hundred Varieties of Potential Deaths—Boston Bees, by a Rear End Attack, Bout Two Base Ball Teams—A Little Known Story of the Introduction of Cocaine to this Country.

Once more the sea serpent. All this summer crowds leaving Boston on the various excursion boats, bound for Plymouth or Provincetown or Gloucester or the Maine resorts or for Nova Scotia, have eagerly looked to starboard and to larboard, anxious for a glimpse of the famous scaly head and neck, followed by a frothy trail in the waters. But not to a single sojourner has it been vouchsafed to sight the monster either through colored glass or with the naked eye, until last week when two reputable citizens of Newburyport caught a full view of him in all his grandeur enjoying a fish dinner. These experts are reported to agree both as to the story they tell and in the circumstance that both their wives are in the country, hooray.

Quit being nervous about a nervousness that doesn't exist. Here is our own delightful Professor Muensterberg, of "unser Gott," lecturing femininity through an article, in one of the September magazines, saying that modern woman is not nearly so nervous as her grandmother and that in fact she isn't really nervous at all except that she lacks concentration, is restless and unsettled and is flippantly superficial. And not only are these the characteristics of the present day woman but they have been imparted to a considerable extent to husbands, sons and brothers until the national character suffers not from diseased nerves but from lack of pluck, persistence, manliness. If the men don't get after him for this, isn't it about time for some intellectual Amazon to land a solar plexus upon the redoubtedable Harvard professor?

Beekeeping in Boston is not all milk and honey. It may have an unpleasant side. There is that about the city bred bee that may leave a sting. So discovered a resident of one of the nearer suburbs whose swarm, comfortably ensconced in his back yard, in accordance with all the rules and regulations of the beekeeping manuals, suddenly went mad last week, drove the owner from the place, rushed in a whirl down a shady street amidst shrieks of women and children and finally turned into a vacant lot where two teams of boys were playing ball. The rooters were just about to call out "stung" as Charlie Smith was caught napping between second and third base when the bees suddenly got busy and the audience melted quickly away. The umpire, hearing the short stop rip out a frightful exclamation, was starting to impose a fine when he found he had trouble of his own on his hands. This he tried to pass along to the catcher who found the bars of his cage of no protection whatsoever against the infuriated bee-liners. Both teams went over the fence since they could not go up in the air, and the bees remained victorious on the field of conquest. The mothers of some of the lads ,after a siege with the liniment bottle ,are positive that the law ought to prevent people from raising bees in communities of more than ten thousand inhabitants.

Alas for bachelors in places where they may be unable either to get married or to remain single. It is reported that in at least four states bills are being prepared for the next sessions of the legislatures, by means of which the treasury can profit from the defenceless condition of the unmarried men. Fifty dollars a year if you don't marry, and fifty times fifty if you do! Massachusetts is not yet one of the states—and perhaps will not be one, since there has always been a feeling here that you cannot by mere legislation compel men to do their duty. On the contrary, as education is the great New England solvent for all difficulties it would be more in accordance with local traditions to start among the bachelors a lively campaign of education? The state, in line with this policy, might organize a correspondence course in proposing. As commissions are being appointed to look after all important interests, and as nothing is more important—in the sight of many people —than marriage and giving in marriage ,the governor should be empowered by the Great and General court to appoint a commission to investigate the problem of the wifeless man—this commission at the beginning of the ealiest ensuing leap year to produce its report containing a list of all unmarried males in the state over 21 years of age, and their reasons for being so.

The bravest of Boston associations has just been holding an exhibition of 101 varieties of possible death. In other words, of so many kinds of New England mushrooms, collected by enthusiasts in the fields and pastures and woodland around Boston and warranted not to injure the most delicate human stomach. Among the members of the Boston Mycological club is a very sweet little woman, a painter by profession, who loves the yellow and pink fungi of the field so dearly that whenever she finds a particularly luscious group of them she paints them as they grow, with the clearest, most delicate of water color tones ,and then she picks them for the studio afternoon tea, or, when the society is about to exhibit, for the collection which it displays to a wondering public. This year there is especial rejoicing among these eschewers of toad stools because a variety of puff ball not known to exist in this section has suddenly rolled in upon their consciousness. It is called Bonastella Ohiensis and was picked in Framingham. The members are also demonstrating with great pride some kinds of mushroom which can be dried, like apples or beef or Mum's champagne, for winter use. This fascinating August exhibition of the Mycological club was attended by hundreds of interested sightseers, most of whom would as soon have partaken of rat's bane or potato bug exterminator or snake bite cure as to let the grubby fungi pass their lips. Yet all agreed that mycology is a great culus.

How little do druggists know about drugs. Apropos of this agitation about the evils of cocaine—and the Currier commission of Chicago appears to have shown that it is a very real evil—hundreds of his Boston friends recall hearing from one of the most best known of Back Bay druggists, a man of blameless life and reputation, now gone to his rest, the story of how he was the first American to chew coca leaves having been presented with some by a Spanish American friend who saw no harm in their use. Those were days when Oliver Wendell Holmes and other leading physicians of the middle of the century used to gather in this man's store and examine the unusual materia medica with which it was always more abundantly supplied than perhaps any other shop of its kind in the United States. They were intensely interested in the new drug, and in the coca wine and other preparations that Yankee enterprise presently put upon the market. They had a theory, to which the druggist, who died only a few years ago, held tenaciously, that this stimulant had absolutely no pernicious after effect. Yet here we have the Currier commission reporting, in the Chicago magazine "Everyday Life" that: "Though the youngest and last born of the furies of 'dope' cocaine is the most pernicious. The early Spanish conquerors found that the natives of certain districts in Peru and Bolivia were addicted to chewing the leaves of a small shrub, called "coca" or "cuca," in order to counteract hunger, fatigue and the difficulty of breathing in the high altitudes. They were a degenerate race, but under the stimulation of coca-chewing they were capable of amazing feats of endurance. But now it would be a boon to the world if the manufacture of cocaine could be done away with, and the shrub-covered uplands of Bolivia whence the bulk of the cocoa-leaves come (more than 40,000,000 pounds annually) could be blasted into a desert. Medicine has other substitutes for cocaine, and can dispense with its services, with little inconvenience, while "coke" (the dope-phrase for cocaine) has absolutely ruined the lives of thousands, and is claiming new victims each day." So probably the Boston druggist, who certainly meant well toward all mankind, was responsible for bringing one of the worst of evils to these shores.

Snuff Spoons.

All the world is familiar with snuff boxes, but snuff spoons are pretty little refinements of which this generation has hardly heard. Very probably they came into use about two years after Sir George Rooke's expedition to Vigo bay in 1702, when he captured half a ton of tobacco and snuff from the Spanish galleons, and snuff thus became a common article in England.

One of the characters in a comedy published at Oxford in 1704, entitled "An Act at Oxford," by Thomas Baker, says, "But I carry sweet snuff for the ladies," to which Arabella replies: "A spoon too. That's very gallant, for to see some people run their fat fingers into a box is as nauseous as eating without a fork."

In the forties and fifties of the last century snuff spoons were still in use on the Scottish border. They were of bone and of a size to go into the snuff box. People fed their noses, it was said, as naturally as they carried soup to their mouths. As late as 1877 a farmer at Norham-on-Tweed was seen using one.—London Saturday Review.

TRUE CONDITION OF HARRIMAN

Slight Chance of it Becoming Known to the Public

SURGEONS HURRY TO ARDEN

Tanks Containing Oxygen and Hospital Truck Sent to Financier's Home Give Impression That He Is About to Undergo an Operation—Three Camps of Press Correspondents Watching For News

Arden, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Whatever be E. F. Harriman's ailment, whatever his true condition, the public is not to know until he and his family decide that such an announcement is opportune. He is an isolated invalid, with the nature of his affliction held a mystery to those outside his mountain retreat. At the top of Tower hill, where the funicular railway stops, with roads picketed by guards and all but one telephone wire —and that a private one—severed, he spends his days and nights in a seclusion almost absolute.

Scraps of news, dropped from the lips of his son-in-law, former Judge Lovett and an employe, indicate that he spent a quiet day, part of it out of doors, but there were other indications which led those who are draining the meager channels of information to believe that all was not so well.

There was the arrival at the station at Turner of two tanks—something which may have had no bearing on Harriman's illness, but which appeared significant in that they were recorded on the bill of lading as "oxygen." Shortly afterward there came a small collapsible cot, such as is used in hospitals to move patients between wards. Both were sent up the incline railway to the estate.

Coincident with the arrival of these requisites to an operation came two men from New York, one of them carrying what appeared to be, the black bag of a surgeon. They were taken up the incline to the house and rumors that Harriman was to be operated upon quickly spread broadcast. One of the men, according to popular rumor, is Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, an eminent specialist in abdominal surgery, who, according to report, was summoned from Bretton Woods, N. H., to assist Dr. Lyle of New York, who has been Harriman's physician throughout his illness.

All this gave color to the report that there was to be an operation on Tower hill, but of this no confirmation is to be had.

The correspondents on the scene are divided into three groups, standing guard day and night and squeezing dry every available source of news. One camp has been established here at Arden, another at Turner, the railroad station, and another at the base of the incline railway. No one enters or leaves the estate without being subject to inquiry.

Last night the great stone house loomed darkly on the crest of the hills against a brilliant moonlit sky. What was transpiring there no one outside the estate knew. Early in the evening the big electric light in the front vestibule could be seen clearly from the valley below, but at 9 o'clock this was extinguished.

No word came from the house and no one descended either to Turner or to Arden. If the two men who ascended the mountain to the house during the day were physicians, none but the family knows, for neither would tell who they were.

About 3 o'clock a special train rushed through Turner and it was afterward learned stopped at Goshen, fifteen miles west of here. About the same time Mr. Gerry, Harriman's son-in-law, came down the mountain in his automobile and headed toward Goshen. In about an hour he returned with three men in the car. The machine ascended the steep winding road to the Harriman residence without stopping and the identity of Gerry's passengers could not be learned.

These three strangers, in addition to the two who arrived earlier in the day, make five who were brought to the Harriman house with every evidence of haste. Whether or not they were surgeons or nurses could not be ascertained, but everything points to the fact that the world's greatest railroad man is about to undergo an operation.

Lovesick Man a Suicide

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 28.—Near the home of Miss Vesta Dunlap at New Gloucester, the body of Herbert E. Jordan was found, he having killed himself with chloroform. Despondency over the refusal of Miss Dunlap's parents to allow him to keep company with her is supposed to have caused the deed.

Lightning Kills Three Men

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Three men on a farm west of here were killed by a stroke of lightning. This was the most serious incident of a deluge of rain which broke over this city, flooding basements and doing other damage.

A COMPROMISE OFFER

New Bedford Mill Operatives May Get Five Percent Advance

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 28.—It is learned unofficially that the 20,000 cotton mill operatives in New Bedford will be offered an advance in wages within a day or two, the proposed increase probably amounting to 5 percent. The Textile Council a week ago sent a letter to the Manufacturers' association, demanding the restoration of the 10 percent cutdown made in March, 1908, during the business depression.

There has been considerable unrest in local textile circles and at other mill centers throughout New England on account of the hesitation on the part of the manufacturers to increase wages, and at one or two points strikes have resulted.

The outcome of the wage question in New Bedford is of widespread interest throughout cotton mill centers of New England, as in several places the New Bedford schedule of wages is closely followed, and a change here would probably mean that manufacturers employing from 25,000 to 50,000 hands would likewise change their prices.

ELUDE THEIR PURSUERS

Bruhm and His Pal Will Resist Arrest to the Death

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 28.—While posses of farmers, led by deputy sheriffs, are scouring the country between this city and Kennebunk, Me., Clyde G. Bruhm and Harry Wingate, the fugitives from Boston police justice, are successfully eluding all efforts to effect their capture.

It is known that they are heavily armed and will resist arrest to the death. Bruhm especially is feared, knowing that life imprisonment is staring him in the face in the event of his capture.

Bruhm will sell his life dearly, and members of the several posses hunting for him are armed to the teeth, ready to do battle with a dangerous man.

NORWHAL MAKES WORLD'S RECORD

Great Stunt of Submarine In Her Surface Speed Test

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 28.—A world's record for speed on the surface by submarines was completed off here by the submarine Norwhal in the course of her contract trials. During 25 hours, over an even 300 miles, the Norwhal averaged 12¼ knots an hour without a stop.

The Norwhal was recently completed at the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding company at Quincy. She went to Quincy today to prepare for her deep sea submergence test, which will complete her governmet tests.

THE MANCHURIAN SQUABBLE

Japan Will Get the Lion's Share In Settlement With China

Pekin, Aug. 28.—It is announced officially that the negotiations between China and Japan on the general Manchurian questions are nearly completed.

There is reason to believe that these long and bitter controversies between China and Japan are on the point of being arranged, but the pending settlement is regarded by friends of China with pessimism. It is understood to consist of a surrender of the main points China held for her defense.

The only thing that China receives is recognition of her coveted jurisdiction of the Chientai territory, lying between Korea and Manchuria.

A LITTLE CHOLERA SCARE

United States Health Officials Ascertain That It Was Needless

Washington, Aug. 28.—A dispatch from the American consul at Rotterdam puts a different light on the cholera situation and greatly relieves the feeling of apprehension felt by the government's health officials.

The consul states that the Andyk was the last steamer to leave Rotterdam for America before the cholera cases were reported, and that he did not mean by his former dispatch to convey the idea that the disease had broken out aboard that vessel.

Sandy Ferguson's Poor Showing

New York, Aug. 28.—Sandy Ferguson of Boson, notwithstanding superior weight, height and reach, made such a poor showing in a bout with Joe Jeannette, the New York negro heavyweight, that he was jeered by the crowd. His seconds threw up the sponge in the eighth round.

Possum Wins Taft Cup

Toledo, Aug. 28.—The cup offered by President Taft for the catboat series in connection with the interlake meeting will stay in Toledo for a year, having been won by the Possum, owned by Arthur Davis.

Irish Land Bill Advanced

London, Aug. 28.—The Irish land bill, as reintroduced in the house of commons March 30 by Chief Secretary for Ireland Burrill, yesterday passed through committee without serious amendments.

SEVERE PENALTY.

Unfortunate Feature at N. R. A. Matches at Camp Perry.

An unfortunate feature of the final day of the match, the most unpleasant in the history of the contest, was the severe penalty given the Naval Academy team. Its whole rapid-fire score of 446 was thrown out and Massachusetts given first place with a score of 428. The Wisconsin team protested the score on the ground that the cadets had so altered the stop-pin of the bolt in their rifles that the reduced friction made rapid firing more rapid and gave them an unfair advantage. The protest was sustained.

The elimination of the cadets gave New York the fifth place they would have had at the beginning of the skirmish stage and put the cadets 47th, just above Louisiana. It is stated that the matter will be taken before the national board for the promotion of rifle practice, under whose auspices the match is shot.

The possible which Sergeant Lensher of the New York team made Tuesday at 1000 yards is the first one ever scored at that distance in the national match.

Chicago does grow, the city directory giving a population of over 2,500,000.

From out of the North comes the report of a light fur catch, so probably furs will be more fashionable than ever this winter.

Notwithstanding early reports the apple crop is said to be a failure. This will be hard on the small boy who is fond of apple pie to say nothing of apple sass.

It's a hard world for the poor American citizen who will now have to go dirty and unperfumed or hand out good money—the tariff on imported soaps, perfumery and toilet articles is now sixty per cent.

How the mouth waters when one reads about that big cantaloupe crop in Maine. Seventy-five carloads will be the output from Lewiston county to say nothing of other districts.

Mexico is considering abolishing the office of vice president. Not a bad idea—he isn't of much use any way and his salary could be used in other directions to good advantage.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

JOHN CAVANAGH.

Sudden Death of Prominent Braintree Man.. Was Well Known in Quincy.

John Cavanagh, one of Braintree's prominent citizens for many years, died suddenly last night at his residence on Cedar street in his 79th year. He was equally well known in Quincy, and had a wide circle of acquaintances all over the state.

Mr. Cavanagh had not been in the best of health for some years and about two years ago he lost his sight. Despite his physical impairment his cheerful good nature and optimism never forsook him. Within the last few months his general health seemed to be improved somewhat and three weeks ago the birth of a baby girl to his daughter, Mrs. George B. Gavin, seemed to fill his cup of happiness to the full.

Early last evening he took a short walk and after he had returned to the home he was suddenly stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage, and though medical attendance was hastily summoned, Mr. Cavanagh died within a few minutes.

Mr. Cavanagh is survived by his wife and six children, four sons and two daughters.

For many years Commodore Cavanagh had been a prominent figure in the town affairs of Braintree. He was a constant attendant at the town meetings and a firm believer in the old style of popular government as expressed in these meetings.

Very often he took part in the debates and was always listened to with the greatest attention. As a counselor in affairs pertaining to the management of the town's business Mr. Cavanagh was regarded as a man of unusual valuable experience, and his words always carried great weight.

He was a former commodore of the old Monatiquot yacht club of East Braintree and Weymouth, and was well known all over the harbor as the owner of the famous yachts Erin and Beatrice. He was one of the best equipped amateur skippers on the Masachusetts coast, and this ability has been transmitted in no small degree to at least two of his sons.

Commodore Cavanagh was one of the most enthusiastic workers in the aid of home rule for Ireland that could be found in all America, although he was born in this country. He was one of the organizers of the old Quincy branch of the Irish national land league and for many years served as its president, and it was due to his enthusiasm and whole-hearted interest for the cause of Ireland that the Quincy branch remained loyal to the late Charles Stewart Parnell and kept the flag of Irish nationalism flying to the present day.

Mr. Cavanagh was a devout Catholic and was instrumental by his money and work in building the present St. John's church in Quincy, to which parish Braintree formerly belonged.

John Cavanagh was a building mover by trade and a popular member of the master builders' association of Boston.

Though for nearly 40 years a resident of Braintree, he was formerly an influential resident of South Boston. Throughout his life he took an active interest in all progressive movements in the community in which he lived, and though never seeking public office, he was induced some years ago to run for the position of county commissioner, polling a large vote though failing of election, owing to the district being naturally strongly republican.

Mr. Cavanagh received a compliment on his last birthday, in April, that touched his heart deeply, when a delegation of Boston builders, as well as many other friends and former business associates, gave him a little surprise party at his home, bringing him flowers and other pleasing testimonials of their regard.

EXCEEDS REQUIREMENTS.

Submarine Narwhal Built by Fore River Co. Makes New Record.

The submarine boat Narwhal has satisfactorily completed all of her official tests with the exception of the 200 ft. depth test which will take place next week. This vessel has greatly exceeded all of her contract requirements and in addition to holding the record for submerged speed has made a new record for sustained surface speed, having made 300 miles in 24 hours, without stop, at an average speed of 13 1-2 knots per hour.

NEW SURGEON IN CHARGE.

Dr. William H. Blanchard has been appointed as resident surgeon at the Fore River Red Cross hospital to take the place made vacant by the death of Dr. Gross. Dr. Blanchard is a recent graduate of Tufts medical school.

MRS. HARRIET L. ALVORD.

Mrs. Harriet Lincoln Alvord, wife of Ralph F. Alvord of Newton Highlands, who terminated her life by inhaling gas at her home, Aug. 18, had suffered at periods from melancholia, the attack of the past few weeks being especially acute. A close watch was maintained to prevent any accident but she eluded vigilance.

Mrs. Alvord was the daughter of A. A. Lincoln of Wollaston, and a resident of that place previous to her marriage. A graduate of Wheaton seminary, her preparation was made at the Quincy High school.

In all the relations of life she won many friends by her gentle manner and beautiful character. A rare Christian woman she was the centre of a happy home and a devoted family.

MILTON.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Maguire of Adams street, East Milton are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son.

The water department has been filling the gap in the high service main on Canton avenue between Reedsdale road and Highland street.

Tree Warden Nathaniel T. Kidder sailed Tuesday afternoon on the Cunarder Ivernia for Liverpool.

Miss Mae Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias J. Williams of Elm street and Ralph F. Amidon of Dorchester were married, Tuesday by Rev. Roderick Stebbins. After their wedding trip, they will reside in Dorchester.

William E. Beer of Edge Hill road gave a very interesting talk to the boys of East Milton this week on the hose house grounds, his subject being stars.

The new town sewer at East Milton has been connected this week with the Metropolitan trunk sewer on Adams street.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael T. Kelley are receiving the sympathy of their friends for the death of their twin sons Frederick and Alfred, born this spring.

—The case of the musical man who named his four daughters after the eight notes of the tonic sol-fa scale is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type fonts he used—Ruby, Pearl Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in father's footsteps and afterward became a printer's manager in London.—London Chronicle.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class o. classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Of all the types drawn by George Ade, now recognized as America's greatest humorist, none has hit the popular fancy better than his manicure, which he introduced in a short comedy, with the mayor of a western town as the other principal character. In it the mayor's son while at college fell in love with the village manicure, and when he returned home, the woman followed him and tried to extort money from the father. The manner in which Ade worked out the situation, showing the humorous side of it, even though dealing with an adventuress is one of the very best things he has ever done. The sketch is called "The Maid and the Manicure" and will be presented at Keith's next week by Edwin Holt and company. Mr. Holt was formerly with Maude Adams and is one of the best known comedians now on the stage. This week will also be the last of the Fadettes, when Mrs. Nichols and her forty women players will give a farewell program made of request numbers sent by admirers. Another novelty this week will be Kid Gabriel in his wonderful poses. This will be their first presentation in New England. Others will be the Four Rianos Acrobats. Smith and Campbell humorists, Arthur Rigby blackface comedian, and the four Dancing bugs, something that will prove a surprise in the dancing line.

Castle Square Theatre.

The John Craig Stock Company begins its second year at the Castle Square Monday afternoon and evening. For forty weeks this famous organization of players filled the Castle Square last season to overflowing, and its acting of comedy, farce, melodrama, drama and musical comedy was highly approved by multitudes of playgoers who helped to make the season the most successful in the history of the theatre. The Castle Square will be under the sole lesseeship and management of John Craig, and he will leave nothing undone for the benefit and enjoyment of his patrons. He has already secured a number of famous plays for his repertory, and he has reengaged the entire stock company that helped to make last season so notable. Mary Young will be the leading lady, with Mr. Craig himself as leading man, and the personnel of the company will comprise Theodore Friebus, Donald Meek, George Hassell, Wilfred Young, Bert Young, Al Roberts, Gertrude Binley, Mabel Colcord and Kate Ryan. For his opening attraction, Mr. Craig has chosen the brilliant American comedy of "Clothes," and he will give it its first production in Boston. Its scenes are laid at a country estate on the Hudson River and in New York, and its highly emotional story of love and romance embodies many striking episodes not unknown to American ever-life. Miss Young will appear in the role of the heroine originated by Miss Grace George, Mr. Craig will play the hero, and the other members of the company as enumerated above, will have leading parts. "Clothes" will be played but a single week at the Castle Square, with performances every afternoon and evening.

Orpheum Theatre.

Never before in the history of summer stock productions in Boston has a play been run three weeks and this makes all the more remarkable Manager Lindsay Morison's announcement that "Quincy Adams Sawyer" is to be held over next week. During these two weeks all records in stock attendance have been smashed. Over thirty-seven thousand five hundred people have seen "Quincy Adams Sawyer" and capacity audiences have been the rule at every performance. The show in itself needs no comment. The hundreds of thousands of people who have seen it during the past six years find it pleasing to witness it over and over again. There is always a fund of humor that even to the person who has seen it a score of times seems inexhaustible. The fact that it is to be continued over a third week at the Orpheum theatre is evidence of both Mr. Morison's courage and the immense popularity of the piece. The play will include the same excellent cast headed by Howell Hansel as "Quincy Adams Sawyer," and the same original properties and scenery which have added so much to the production, will be retained.

Park Theatre.

When produced in Chicago last Spring, there was not one newspaper of the eight big dailies published in that city, but what accorded the highest praise to Paul Wilstach's play, Keegan's Pal" now announced as the opening attraction of the Park theatre, Boston, on Thursday evening, Sept. 2. Emmett Corrigan ,the star, has done much important work on the dramatic stage. In "Keegan's Pal" the role of him the fullest opportunity to display him the fullest opportunity to display his wonderful diction and exquisite suavity of touch. The play itself, which could rightly be termed a "drawing-room detective story" is a drama of pulse and brains, of the brilliant class in which are enrolled "The Third Degree," "The Lion and the Mouse," and "The Thief." Mr. Wilstach's dramatic story strikes life with a hard and living punch and its telling holds the audience keenly interested and makes the onlookers feel and be moved all of which shows that the author has driven true to the heart of the public taste in the year 1909. Mr. Corrigan's support is the most able and distinguished which surrounds any star this season. Among the leading players are beautiful Ethel Clayton, Hattie Russell, a sister of Ada Rehan, who rarely acts outside New York; Maud Burns, Harry Harwood, John A. Butler, an American boy of 22 and Bertram Barburgh, an English artist who made a great hit in "Keegan's Pal" in Chicago last Spring and remains in America to play his original part in New York this season. There will be matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Paragon Park.

Nothing quite so spectacular and unique in the way of a pyrotechnic display has been seen in this part of the country as the fire-works attack on Paragon Park last Saturday night by land and water and sky. It was a fitting climax to the war game which had been going on earlier in the week. At times the effect in the sky over Paragon Park was that of an aerial war in progress. It was a fine demonstration of what can be done with pyrotechnic effects, not only in the sky, but on the water. Every feature of the program was practically new to the big crowds that filled the Palm Garden, swarmed about the tables on the broad verandas, choked up the plaza between the Palm Garden and the band stand and spread out in thousands around the lagoon. The best idea of the magnitude of the display may be had from a mention of some of the pieces. The exhibition opened with a salute of three aerial maroons, followed by a magic illumination of the lake, novel acquatic fireworks, including floating fiery geysers, prismatic fountains, flying fish, submarine torpedoes, diving devils, a pillar of fire one hundred feet in height, the Merry Widow fan, Neptune and his daughter, attended by sea nymphs (covering 1,000 square feet), the rising angel, batteries of chromatic stars, batteries of electric spreaders, batteries of silver stars, discharge of 12 inch, 15 inch, 18 inch sequence bombs, etc. Next Saturday night the fireworks display will be just as elaborate and in addition there will be a mimic sea battle on the lagoon reproducing the battle of Lake Erie.

FIREMEN HELPFUL ALLIES.

Horses of Fire Departments Also in Excellent Condition in This State.

Our Dumb Animals in the September number says: "The firemen in the departments of the various cities are among our best friends and most helpful allies. Frequently they respond with long ladders to our requests to rescue cats in high and otherwise inaccessible places, and the chiefs are ready to lend a helping hand by offering the use of water for horses and performing other services when asked. It is pleasant to see and to hear of the excellent condition of the fire horses in Masachusetts, of which the following, from the Quincy Ledger is but one illustration." Here is inserted an extract from an editorial concerning the splendid control our firemen had over their horses in that accident which occurred on Elm street the first of the summer, when the horses even while suffering excruciating pains from lacerated wound had perfect confidence in the driver and obeyed his every word.

THE MORNING FIRE.

Incendiary Probable Cause of Fire Off Nelson Street.

The alarm from Box 441 at 12.20 this morning was for a fire in a small unoccupied stable off Nelson street owned by Otto Lingquist. The fire had made good headway when discovered and by the time the department arrived it had communicated to a large stable adjoining owned by the same party.

The department lost no time in getting the fire under control. The loss on both buildings is estimated by Chief Williams at $500. He also gave his opinion that an incendiary was the cause of the fire.

AUTO BURNED.

Valuable Car of J. A. Barbour Damaged by Fire.

A large six cylinder touring car valued at $6000 and said to be owned by John A. Babour of Wollaston was damaged by fire at Cohasset Friday night. There were four passengers in the car at the time and the fire was discovered just as the car was passing a wooden cottage. Fearing that the high wind would set the cottage on fire, the car was run further down the road where the fire department was called to extinguish the flames.

The front seat, part of the woodwork and some of the cushions were burned and the damage is thought to be $500. The car was left on the side of the road.

There Is a Whole Lot of Satisfaction in Knowing That the Furniture You Buy Is DEPENDABLE

There are two kinds of furniture as well as in other lines of merchandise—the good kind and the other kind. And the pity is that more of the latter is turned out these days than of the good kind. Too many manufacturers and dealers are looking for quick profits. The "other kind" is made to look like the good kind—and you, the final buyer, have to suffer. Woods aren't properly seasoned, furniture is hurriedly put together, paint and varnish cover up many defects and faults. The result is a great deal of the furniture of today doesn't live long.

We don't allow this kind of furniture in our store. First, we assure ourselves that the manufacturers with whom we deal are "on the square"—second, we examine every piece before it goes into stock. We make doubly sure that what we offer measures up to our high standard of quality. There is satisfaction for you in buying this kind—the good kind—DEPENDABLE. And what's very important for you to remember is—YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY ANY MORE FOR THE GOOD KIND HERE. Our margin of profit isn't as great—but it pays us in the end.

WAITING FOR ZEPPELIN

Whole Population of Berlin Is on the Tiptoe of Expectation

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Count Zeppelin alone occupies the minds of the population of Berlin and a welcome has been prepared for his coming today in his big airship such as has never been equalled since Prince Bsimarck's return from Versailles after the coronation in 1874 of William I as emperor of Germany.

Most of the factories and offices and all of the schools are closed and all public buildings are decorated. Thousands of dwelling houses are also decorated with bunting and flags.

The Zeppelin III had departed at 4:30 yesterday morning from Friedrichshafen for Berlin, a distance of 450 miles, and throughout the day throngs crowded about the bulletin boards, eagerly reading bulletins announcing the progress of the dirigible over various cities.

The revulsion of feeling in favor of Count Zeppelin, as compared with that existing three or four years ago, is most remarkable. Then he was regarded as a visionary, throwing the family fortune to the winds. Now he is honored as no living German is.

HAMLIN TABLET UNVEILED

Maine Statesman's Memory Honored on Anniversary of Birth

Paris, Me., Aug. 28.—The 100th birthday of Hannibal Hamlin was commemorated by unveiling a bronze tablet, set in a huge boulder, which has been placed on a lot in front of his birthplace.

The tablet bears the information that he was speaker of the Maine house of representatives, a member of both branches of congress, governor of Maine, vice president of the United States, minister to Spain and counselor of Lincoln.

Touching tributes to his memory were given by Governor Fernald of Maine and others. Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin of Bangor, widow of the former vice president, and their three sons were present.

NO ARBITRATION IN SWEDISH STRIKE

Much Suffering In Homes of Men Who Are Idle

Stockholm, Aug. 28.—At a cabinet meeting it was decided to refuse to arbitrate the labor disqute which resulted in the general strike.

The suffering in the homes of the laborers who went on strike already is terrible. Many of the men have pawned most of their belongings and their families are either without food or subsisting on one meagre meal daily. The strikers do not dare appeal to the poor relief fund, but are applying to the Salvation Army, which is preventing actual starvation.

SONDER YACHT RACES

Course Will Be Kept Clear by Quartet of Revenue Cutters

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 28.—International Sonder yacht racing between American and German boats received official recognition with the arrival in this harbor of the revenue cutters Androscoggin, Mohawk, Seminole and Acushnet, which completes the fleet of patrol boats that has been sent by the government to keep the course clear during the next week's racing between the little yachts.

There will be three prominent features in Sonder yacht week. The illuminations on Sept. 1, the dinner to Governor Draper on Sept. 7, and the presentation of the cups to the winners by President Taft on Sept. 9.

STOCKS NOT CARRIED

Investigators Say Boston Brokers Conducted a Bucket Shop

Boston, Aug. 28.—The opinion that the bankrupt brokerage firm of Sederquist, Barry & Co. had conducted bucket shop operations was expressed in the report made at a meeting of creditors of the firm held here by a committee of creditors appointed to investigate the company's affairs. The report says that the committee has examined a synopsis of the firm's books made by an expert accountant and continues:

"The figures seem to show that the stocks which you supposed were being carried for you were in fact often not carried, but were frequently only ostensibly bought."

Trade Continues to Expand

New York, Aug. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that from the principal cities come such reports as "large fall purchases," "active demand," "sales exceeding best previous years," "large number of visiting buyers" and "outlook for very active fall trade." There is apparently no change in the general expanding revival of trade.

The municipal gas department of Iola, Kan., has arranged to have the city mains connected with those of the United Zinc and Chemical company, from which it will purchase its gas.—Progressive Age.

THE SOLDIER'S SLANG

Army Vernacular as Odd as That of the Navy.

MANY QUEER EXPRESSIONS.

A Man Just Enlisted Is Called "a Rooky," and Men Who Enlist at the Beginning of Winter and Desert In the Spring Are Called "Snowbirds."

The army has just as odd a vernacular as the navy. To the uninitiated some army expressions would convey little or no sense, as, for example, if a soldier were heard to say, "The top told me to report for kitchen police and help skin the spuds for slum for supper," the hearer would have several guesses before he would come anywhere near what this meant in the patter of the barracks.

In plain language, it means that the first sergeant (the ranking or orderly sergeant) had told him to report to the cook to assist him in peeling the potatoes to make the hash or stew for supper. Hash or stew is always "slum," and the first sergeant is "the top;" "kitchen police," a man who assists the cook in the preparation of meals and the washing of dishes, pans, etc.

A man who has just enlisted or has not yet been in the ranks long enough to be considered a full fledged soldier, having learned all his duties, is called "a rooky," and woe be unto the "rooky" who gets "fresh" before an old sergeant who has been in the ranks since before the fresh "rooky" was born! He will be told in any but gentle terms by the old timer: "Shut up and go about your work. Your name is not yet dry on your enlistment paper!" meaning that when he was sworn in and promised to serve for three years and obey the "orders of the president and the officers appointed over him" he had signed his name to this paper and the signature had not had time to get dry.

When a man says he is going to "take on" or "take to another blanket," he means that he is going to reenlist. The government, in the clothing allowance for each man, provides a blanket; hence the term to "take another blanket."

The guardhouse is called "the mill." Some ill behaved soldier away back in the past (the term is a very old one) no doubt thought his term in the guardhouse ground out toward its end very slowly, so he applied this now much used name to the prison of the garrison.

When "the top" says, "Get your blanket and go to the mill," the soldier knows he is in for a tour of duty in the guardhouse, and his blanket means one or more nights, for in that much to be avoided place nothing is supplied in the way of comforts, and each occupant carries with him his blanket, or more if he has them, to make his rest more comfortable.

All meals are called "chuck," and along toward mealtime the expression, "Is it not time for chuck call to blow?" is heard very frequently.

"Snowbirds" are men who enlist in the winter about the time snow begins to fall and the real snowbird puts in its appearance and desert in the spring when the robin appears. They "take on" only to tide over the winter with its discomforts.

The oldest man in the company is "dad" and the youngest "the kid."

Any deserter is called a "skipper."

Two men who share the same small tent or whose bunks are side by side in the barrack room are called "bunkies." This ancient term originated in the days of the very old army, when the bunks were "built for two" and two men slept side by side on a mattress filled with straw and one blanket apiece, much different from today, when each man has his hair mattress, pillow, sheets and blankets. A "bunky" always has a chew or tilling for a pipe for his mate, when he might tell another man that he has not enough weed to "put under your nail."

All fines received from a court are called "blind," so that a man who received ten days in the guardhouse and a fine of $5 would tell his comrades that he "got ten days in the mill and five blind."

The commanding officer of a company or the post is always the "old man." If he is not liked other terms, not parlor talk, are used.

All field musicians are called "wind jammers" on account of their jamming of wind into the trumpet that calls the men to labor or rest.

Every man on the completion of his term of enlistment is given a discharge. At the bottom of his paper in olden times was a space in which the character borne by the man during his term of enlistment was written. If his service had been bad this part of the discharge was cut off, and it was called "a bobtail." In speaking of the length of time a man has to serve before he has completed his term of enlistment the term "butt" means less than a year. So to say he has a year and a little less than two years he would say "a year and a butt."

There are a number of men in the ranks who save their money and lend it to others. The rate is very high. If a man borrows $2 he must pay $4 at pay day. This is called "cent per cent." The term "one more shingle on the White House" means that the man has completed one more tour of guard duty consisting of twenty-four hours.

Many of these terms quoted are of very old origin, so old that if you ask the oldest man in an organization when he heard it first he will probably tell you, "Oh, it was used when I took my first blanket."—Major B. W. Atkinson in New York Tribune.

ARAGO'S NOSE.

It Was Enormous In Size but It Was Safely Anchored.

Emmanuel Arago, the French politician, was a nephew of the noted astronomer and was considered a handsome man, although his nose was extremely conspicuous. At one time he was traveling by train to Versailles when a child who was in the same car and who had watched Arago for some time with dilated eyes began to cry. In vain did the child's mother endeavor to calm the perturbed juvenile. The poor mother was in despair, and as the shrieks grew more and more piercing Arago felt bound to interfere and see what he could do. He said to the child:

"What ails you, my dear?"

Thus addressed, the child sobbed out, "Take off your nose."

Arago looked at the mother, who grew very confused and said:

"Ah, monsieur, excuse me—excuse my son."

"But, madame," said Arago, "what does he mean?"

The mother then explained that she had during the carnival taken her child to see a number of persons in masks and with false noses and he had become so excited that he could thing of nothing else.

"By an unfortunate occurrence," she added, "we got into the same carriage as you, who no doubt for some good reason are prolonging the carnival. But you see what a deplorable result has followed. Let me then beg of you to have pity on a poor mother and take off your nose."

"But, madame," said Arago, stupefied.

"A little more and my child will have convulsions," shrieked the mother. "Take off your false nose."

"But, madame," said Arago in despair, "that is impossible. This is not a false nose, but my own!"

"Impossible, impossible!" cried the agonized lady.

"Touch it," said Arago.

The lady gave a pull at Arago's nose, but it did not come off in her hand, as she had expected.

"A thousand pardons," she said, "but pray—oh, pray, hide it with your hat."

So Arago continued his journey with his nose in his hat, and the child's screams gradually subsided. Arago himself used to tell the story with much glee.

ROLE OF THE COCOANUT.

The Staff of Life to the Natives of Sea Washed Island.

It is more than a coincidence that the tree which furnishes a greater amount of available material to man than any other in the vast kingdom of vegetables is the first to spring up on the bare rocks of the newly arisen coral reef. The cocoanut, so formed that it may have floated halfway across the Pacific, is thus universally distributed throughout tropical islands.

It thrives best near the sea, seldom penetrating far into the interior. Its hard shell is a coat of mail for the embryo plant, enabling it to stand hard usage for a protracted period and locking up securely the precious life in miniature.

The fibrous husk which envelops it and is seldom seen on the market on account of the greatly increased bulk breaks the jar which would be inevitable should the hard nut fall unprotected from the tall tree to the ground sixty or ninety feet below.

Such a blow would scarcely fail to break the shell, occasioning the loss of the nourishing milk so necessary to the germ. The outer husk not only breaks the jar of a fall, but buoys it up on the water, while the tough outer cuticle is waterproof.

Thus is the tree which offers to man almost in the raw state all his necessities freely scattered where the warm seas and their borders offer a footing, and from it the humble native secures sugar, milk, butter, wine, vinegar, oil, candles, soap, cups, ladles, cordage, matting, thatch for roof and material for raiment, combining food, clothing and shelter in a single gift, continually making waste places habitable.—New Age.

Building Up a Speech.

Before making a speech Charles Dickens would decide on his various heads and then in his mind's eye liken the whole subject to the tire of a cart wheel, he being the hub. From the hub to the tire he would run as many spokes as there were subjects to be treated, and during the progress of the speech he would deal with each spoke separately, elaborating them as he went round the wheel, and when all the spokes dropped out one by one and nothing but the tire and space remained he would know that he had accomplished his task and that his speech was at an end.

Doing It.

Old Lady (to grocer's boy)—Don't you know that it is very rude to whistle when dealing with a lady?

Boy—That's what the guv'nor told me to do, mum.

"Told you to whistle?"

"Yes'm. He said if we ever sold you anything we'd have to whistle for the money."—London Fun.

Running Conversation.

Collector (angrily)—You know very well, sir, that this bill has been running several years. Now, I put it up to you, what do you want me to do with it? Debtor—By George, I'd enter it in the next Marathon race if I were you!—Puck.

Both on the Line.

"The artist over the way was boasting to me that his work is now being hung on the line."

"Humph! So is his wife's."—Baltimore American.

THREE LINKS IN A CHAIN OF FATE.

By NORMAN P. WHITE.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Fate be hanged! There's no such thing as fate. Napoleon said, 'I will make circumstances.' And he did—that is, till they became too powerful for him by the union of all his enemies."

"That may do for Napoleon, but not for me. That I am a resident of this city, that I am the husband of my wife, the father of a boy named Alan and a girl named Lucia and that we are all rich is the result of not one incident—that wouldn't be so singular—but of a number of incidents happening in succession, the absence of any one of which would have made entirely different surroundings for me.

"The first incident was this: On a certain day a man took up a paper he had never seen before and saw an ad. of mine. I was a young lawyer, with no clients. I advertised to secure the care of estates. The man was a stranger in town and wished for some one to be agent for a building there. Seeing my ad., he came to me. If he hadn't seen it I wouldn't be talking with you now. He told me that the building, one of a scattered estate, belonged to some one he was looking for and couldn't find. The interview resulted in his giving me the agency, the building being a part of the Pendleton estate.

"One afternoon, being bored by having nothing to do, I went out and strolled into a vitascope show. One of the pictures was the arrival of an express train at Schenectady, N. Y. The passengers poured out of the cars, and one, a girl about seventeen years old, came walking, with a satchel in her hand, toward the audience. It seemed as if she were going to step right into the showroom. She had a timid look on her face, such as a girl might have arriving in a strange city. She was looking about her, fearing some of the many vehicles passing hither and thither would run over her. I wanted to go and put my arm about her to reassure her. Then suddenly she passed out of the picture.

"There was something in the face and figure that took hold of me. The performance lasted half an hour, then began all over again. I waited till I had seen my little girl get out of the train and run the gantlet of wagons and carriages three times. Not only that, I went to the show every day till the picture was taken off. By that time I was desperately in love. Odd, isn't it?

"The next in the chain of incidents was a trip to Schenectady on business. That was two years after falling in love with a moving photograph. While there I went into a merchant's office and saw sitting at a table jabbing type keys with her fingers—whom do you suppose? I recognized her at once—the original of my moving picture! What sent me to that city and that very counting room? Fate.

"Having found my love, I didn't propose to lose her. I learned her name—Evelyn Brickworth—offered her a better salary than she was receiving to work for me, and she joined me at the end of the month.

"You may rest assured I made it pleasant for her, and I made love to her in a delicate, gingerly way—she was very sensitive and reserved—and won her. But I was still a poor lawyer with too small an income to marry on, so she stayed on as my typewriter till I would be better fixed financially. That she might be of more assistance to me, I taught her to keep my accounts.

"One day the man who gave me the agency of the building I spoke of came to town, and I paid him some collections. He told me that he had been unsuccessful in finding the heirs to the estate, and he rather thought the provision made in the will in case they were never found would be carried out. The provision was that at the expiration of a certain period the property was to go to specified charities. That period would expire in a few months. I asked him if he knew who the heirs were. He said he knew that all were dead except the children of Eliza Pendleton. At the name Eliza Pendleton I noticed that my assistant-fiancee—I mean my fiancee-assistant—looked up. After the man had gone she asked me:

"'What was that man saying about Eliza Pendleton?'

"'Why do you ask?'

"'Because that was my mother's name before she married my father.'

"It was probable that there were a great many Eliza Pendletons, but it struck me the matter was worth looking into. Evelyn told me that she knew nothing of her father's family, but that her grandfather on her mother's side was named Nathan Witridge. I had her typewrite a letter to the manager of the property, giving this information. He had gone back to where he lived and didn't get the letter till the next day. Then I received a telegram giving an affirmative reply and asking why I wished to know. This began to look peculiar. I replied by telegraph that my typewriter was the granddaughter of Nathan Witridge Pendleton. The reply to this was, 'If she can prove it I am ready to pay her $800,000.'

"Evelyn Brickworth had no difficulty in finding the requisite proof and, being the only living heir, got the property. It was lucky for me that I had courted and won her while she was poor, for to do so after she became rich would have been beyond my price.

"Fate does work queer things. There are three links in your chain, each of which was essential."

THE PLAIN OF GUISNES.

Its Transformation Into the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

It was a magnificent display when Henry VIII. of England and Philip I. of France met in good fellowship on the plain of Guisnes.

The king's retinue had been selected from the noblest of the kingdom. Wolsey, with his 300 followers, headed the escort and was followed by dukes, earls, barons, bishops and knights, with their retainers. The escort numbered 4,000 horsemen, not including the queen's escort, numbering nearly 2,000 persons and 800 horses. The French king had an equally splendid retinue. King Henry and his great cavalcade were taken, on arrival at Guisnes, to the magnificent palace provided by Wolsey. There was an old palace there, and Wolsey had established himself in that and erected one for his king. The palace was the most beautiful place imaginable. It had so many glazed windows that it looked as though built of crystal, and much of the woodwork, both inside and out, was covered with gold. All the way from the gate to the door were rows of silver statues. Inside the walls of the chambers and halls were hung with magnificent tapestry embroidered in gold, and the ceilings were draped with white silk.

But Henry was not to spend all of his time in his fine palace, for tents had been erected on the plain, and in these the two kings and their suits were to lodge. The tents of the French king were pitched just outside the walls of the town of Ardres and extended almost to the tents of King Henry.

The tents in which the two queens were lodged were covered with cloth of gold, as were also the tents of the ladies in attendance upon them and of all members of the royal families. The effect was dazzling. Beautiful pavilions, hung with cloth of gold, dotted the plain; banners floated everywhere; fountains of wine spouted in the bright June sunshine; horses, decorated with fluttering ribbons, pranced about gayly. So gorgeous had the dreary plain been made that it has become known in history as the "Field of the Cloth of Gold."

BROWNING'S "SORDELLO."

The Critics Had Lots of Fun With the Famous Poem.

When Robert Browning was twenty-eight years old and after he had written "Paracelsus" and his tragedy of "Strafford," he wrote "Sordello," about which there has always been such a variety of opinion. Dante in his "Purgatory" wrote of Sardello, who was a poet of Provence.

"When "Sordello" appeared it made a sensation. Punch said it had offered £100 to any person who would reasonably explain one single line and that after a year no one had claimed this reward. Burlesques were written on it, and in one of these it was claimed that the funniest lines were some of the exact original ones.

A story is told of witty Douglas Jerrold, who met a friend one day and asked, "Have you read 'Sordello?' Does it mean anything?"

The friend replied that it meant nothing whatever. "Thank heaven!" said Jerrold. "Then I am not mad! I read it yesterday and feared I had lost my wits. It is only Browning who has lost his."

Another story was that criminals at Newgate prison who were condemned to death were offered full pardon if they would listen to the reading of "Sordello," but in every instance they hastened with glee to the gallows. Browning once said that he blamed nobody but himself for the work and that it had many faults of expression; that he meant to lay stress on incidents in the development of a soul and that little else is worth study. This estimate of his work was given twenty-five years after it was written, when he had revised it and dedicated it to a friend. He rewrote very little of it, and his followers have a belief that he considered "Sordello" his best literary work. It certainly has many beautiful lines, and in particular there is a word picture as striking as anything in our language:

That autumn eve was stilled.
A last remains of sunset dimly burned
O'er the far forests like a torch flame turned
By the wind back upon the bearer's hand
In one long flame of crimson; as a brand
The woods beneath lay black.

—Boston Globe.

The Boss Got Ahead.

"I came mighty near resigning my job this morning," said Ardup, ordering coffee and sinkers. "I'd made up my mind that the boss and I couldn't get along any more."

"Well, why didn't you resign?" asked the man sitting on the next stool.

"He beat me to it by just one second."—Chicago Tribune.

Smart Boy.

Mamma—Edgar, didn't I tell you not to take any more preserves from the jar? Small Edgar—Yes, ma'am. Mamma—Then, if you wanted some, why didn't you ask me for them? Small Edgar—'Cause I wanted some.—Chicago News.

How He Manages Her.

"How is it that your wife is so tractable?"

"Why, I told her when we were married that she could do just exactly as she pleased, and of course she finds no pleasure in doing it."—Chicago Post.

The Fighting Eel.

Bacon—Which do you think is the gamiest fish? Egbert—Well, the black bass is the gamiest to catch, but the eel is the gamiest when it comes to getting it off the hook.—Yonkers Statesman.

SAVINGS BANK INSURANCE.

Evidences of a spirited competition to insure the lives of the wage earners of this country are gathering. At the great congress of the fraternal insurance orders which met in Boston, Aug. 16-18, President C. W. Piper made much in his annual report of the attempts of the industrial insurance companies to disrupt the "fraternals" by securing legislation permitting them to insure workingmen in groups at lower rates than have been possible heretofore. Laws to this effect have already been passed by eight states, it is said. The plan of the insurance companies seems to be, having gained this permission, to induce the various societies and lodges to turn their insurance business over to experts for operation while they continue with their philanthropic and social activities. The leaders of the fraternal movement, who calim a total of $8,000,000,000, worth of insurance in force against about 2,500,000,000 of industrial insurance feel that this is a flank movement which they ought to resist.

Meantime, with the fraternals reforming their rates and thus avoiding the charges of old line actuaries that their form of insurance is unsafe and with the insurance companies trying to introduce the group plan which enables them to reduce the cost of getting and keeping business there are prospects for keen rivalry in Massachusetts where the savings bank life insurance plan has already stirred up the insurance people. The rates authorized by the State Actuary of the Bay State average more than 25 per cent cheaper than those which the industrial companies have been able to offer heretofore. Taking into account the participating features they are at least as low and probably lower than the rates of those "fraternals" which have acceded to the reform movement, are writing new business on a basis of mortality tables that are actuarially right, and are otherwise adopting the measures of safety that have been found necessary in the conduct of the old line insurance enterprises. Indeed the "annual premium policies" issued by the savings and insurance banks of this state are reported to be the cheapest level premium industrial insurance ever offered anywhere. It will be interesting to Massachusetts citizens to see how this type of insurance fares in the new competition with the life insurance companies and the reformed fraternals.

—Judge Truax, of New York, speaking about the new corporation tax thought there was going to be some difficulty in defining what corporations should pay the tax and which should be exempt. "Small corporations doing business in one State only will not be subject to this tax so far as I can see, and I think when it comes to a test case the Federal courts will accept that view. The Federal Government has no right whatever to collect taxes from any corporations which do other than inter-state business."—Boston Transcript.

Chairman McLeod Seems to Be a Hustler For Democrats

GREAT ACTIVITY IN CAMPAIGN

Coughlin's Candidacy for Governor—Return of Fitzgerald—J. Stearns Cushing Conceded Councillor Nomination

There has been considerable activity in the political field in the last week or more. The near approach of the caucuses has started all the politicians on both sides of the political fence working.

Evidently Chairman Frederick J. McLeod of the Democratic state committee has been busy for several months past. He has made a very careful campaign, organizing the city and town committees of the state and getting them into the best possible shape. It is somewhat remarkable, but in the great majority of towns he found no organization whatever. Evidently there has been none since the year 1903, when Colonel William A. Gaston was a candidate for governor. There was also a dearth of records and other data in regard to these committees. He also discovered that the state committee had been in the habit of ignoring all but a few of the large towns, and whatever was done in the way of campaign work was evidently in the cities and these few large towns.

Chairman McLeod thinks it difficult to diagnose the political situation at the present time, and does not feel inclined to make prophesies. On the other hand, he is not willing to admit that the Democrats have no show, so he declares that it is difficult to get any forecast on the result of the vote. He believes there is more evidence today of a breaking up of party lines among the Republicans than ever before, at the same time admitting that the Democratic party has been in that condition for three or four years. He thinks the result of this breaking up will be apparent in due time. The oracle at Delphi could not have framed an utterance more oracular than that.

The greatest activity at the present time is seen in the contests for the various nominations. In all the districts where there are such contests, there is the greatest activity on the part of the candidates. The most effective political work that is being done in a general way is in the line of registration in Boston. A good many thousand voters have moved since the last election and, to locate these, get them listed, and have their names registered as voters, has occupied the earnest attention of the Republican city committee. In the neighborhood of ten thousand voters have moved since 1908. To find where such voters have gone, mail letters calling attention to the necessity of registering, and similar work, makes business brisk at the headquarters.

The Democrats will have a field day on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 28, at Squantum, when the Young Men's Democratic club of ward twenty has its summer outing. Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell is the leading spirit in this club, and will preside, while the speakers will be Chairman McLeod of the state committee, President James Donovan of the Democratic city committee, James H. Vahey of Watertown, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and several congressmen from New York and Pennsylvania. All the candidates for the Democratic nomination for mayor have also been invited.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant is announced to speak on Thursday, Sept. 2, at the summer outing of the Young Men's Republican club of Dorchester. This will be his first speech since the passage of the tariff bill, and it is assumed that he will say something of more than ordinary interest in regard to the features of that measure, and the benefits it will bring to this commonwealth.

Some interest has been aroused by the announcement of the candidacy of Mayor John T. Coughlin of Fall River for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. It is not generally believed, however, that Mayor Coughlin will be able to capture the nomination. There are a good many Democrats who do not care particularly for Mr. Vahey, but it has been conceded, in a way, that the nomination should come to him this year, and that will have some weight in deciding the question, without doubt. Mayor Coughlin is reckoned among the conservative leaders of the Democratic party and he has generally had very little use for the progressive element which seems to have control of the organization at the present time.

The return of John F. Fitzgerald to Boston has given added zest to the mayoralty campaign. Mr. Fitzgerald declares that he is a candidate regardless of which plan of city government is accepted by the voters. He is quoted as saying that he will run under any old plan. When he left for Europe, the trial of two of his subordinates while the mayor had just been completed, and both had received sentences on the charge of defrauding the city. In that trial Mr. Fitzgerald failed to remember nearly everything about which he was asked. District Attorney Hill openly charged him with attempting to "throw" the government case. His friends were nearly a unit in advising him not to enter the mayoralty contest. It was believed when he sailed, shortly after, that he would on his return to Boston announce his withdrawal as a candidate. He has not done this, but is apparently as much of a candidate as ever. Nobody believes that he could win under the caucus and convention plan of nominating the candidates. He has announced himself in favor of the other method by which anyone securing the names of five thousand voters may run for the office of mayor. Under that plan he probably believes that he might win, if there was a sufficient number of candidates in the field to divide the vote of the opposition. He has the open hostility of President Donovan of the Democratic city committee, and it is believed that the city committee as a whole would oppose his nomination.

Thus far he is the only active, hustling candidate for mayor in the field. Mayor Hibbard is expected to announce his candidacy before long, while there appears to be considerable doubt whether James J. Storrow will allow the use of his name. President Donovan is believed to be for Mr. Storrow or ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Neill. The Good Government association is for Storrow if he will consent to be a candidate. There are various other names mentioned, but these are the ones which command attention at the present time.

In the second councillor district, Mr. J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood is now unopposed for nomination as the Republican candidate. Both the other candidates, Representative Herbert W. Burr of Dorchester and ex-Representative Arthur P. Russell of Quincy, have formally withdrawn from the contest, pledging their support to Mr. Cushing. This, of course, means the nomination of the latter by acclamation in the councillor convention.

In the Boston councillor district, the Third, there is no one now in the field for the Democratic nomination with the exception of ex-Representative William F. Murray of Charlestown. It seems at the present time that no other candidate will care to enter the field at this late date. This district is as strongly Democratic as the second district is Republican.

ALL AVIATION RECORDS FALL

Farman Carries Off Grand Prize In Great Contest at Rheims

FLIGHT OF OVER 118 MILES

Remains In Air Ten Minutes After Timekeepers Cease to Keep Record, His Time Being Less Than Four Seconds Under Three and a Quarter Hours—Glenn Curtiss Among the Last of Contestants

Rheims, Aug. 28.—Henry Farman, the English aviator, a dark horse in the aviation contests, in a biplane of his own design broke the world's records for duration of flight and distance in a heavier-than-air machine and won the Grand Prix de la Champagne—the endurance test—by a remarkable flight officially recorded as 180 kilometres (111.78 miles) in 3h., 4m., 56 2-5s.

He actually covered more than an extra 10 kilometres, a total of over 118 miles, and remained in the air 10 minutes after 7:30 o'clock last evening, the hour that the timekeepers, under the rules, ceased to keep a record of the flight.

The other contestants finished in this order:

Hubert Latham, in monoplane No. 29, 154 kilometres 500 metres, time 2h., 18m., 9 3-5s.; Louis Paulhan, in a Voisin biplane, 131 kilometres; Count de Lambert, biplane, 116 kilometres; Latham, in monoplane No. 13, 111 kilometres; M. Tissander, biplane, 111 kilometres; Roger Sommer, biplane, 60 kilometres; M. De La Grange, monoplane, 50 kilometres; M. Bleriot, monoplane, 40 kilometres; Glenn H. Curtiss, biplane, 30 kilometres; M. Lefebvre, biplane, 21 kilometres.

Although Latham, with a different machine, took second and fifth positions, the aviation committee held that he was ineligible for two prizes and awarded the fifth to Tissandier and the sixth to Sommer.

Although Farman's brilliant record as an aeroplanist should have warned the sharps that he was a dangerous competitor, his victory came as a complete surprise.

He had been preparing his machine secretly and had not appeared upon the field until yesterday, except for a few practice flights, and had been almost forgotten.

After he started, about 4:30 p. m., keeping close to the ground while Latham and others were soaring in spectacular fashion high in the air, Farman attracted no attention until he had flown 80 kilometres. Then suddenly the watchers woke up and began to make inquiries, only to discover that he had gone out carrying petrol enough for a five hours' flight and equipped with a self-cooling revolving motor built by the Gnome company after his own design.

The Grand Prix de la Champagne is of 100,000 francs, divided into six prizes of 50,000, 25,000 and 10,000 francs, and three of 5000 francs, to be awarded to aeroplanes traveling the longest distance without having to be recharged with fuel.

CANNOT BE REINSTATED

West Point Hazers Stand No Show of Returning to Academy

Washington, Aug. 28.—"It will be useless for any of the young cadets who were dismissed by President Taft from the West Point Military academy for hazing Cadet Sutton to make any efforts towards reinstatement," says an army officer. "Neither the president nor the secretary of war has any power to reinstate any of them," he added.

This statement was given in answer to inquiries at the war department regarding efforts being made by some of the cadets for reinstatement. The young men have been uniformly told such efforts will be absolutely fruitless.

RULES OF DISCIPLINE

They Will Not Be Changed In Matteawan to Suit Thaw's Fancy

Albany, Aug. 28.—Harry K. Thaw, who is protesting against his treatment in the Matteawan state hospital for insane criminals, will receive no different treatment there from that accorded to other patients of the same sort, according to Superintendent Collins of the state prisons department.

The changed conditions prescribed for Thaw by Judge Mills, it is pointed out by the Matteawan officers, are contrary to their rules of discipline.

Wants to Raise the Maine

Havana, Aug. 28.—An application has been made to the Cuban government by Jacinto Alla, an Argentine engineer, for permission to raise the battleship Maine, which lies in Havana harbor. His proposition is under consideration.

Bomb Explosion In Barcelona

Paris, Aug. 28.—News letters from Barcelona report that a bomb explosion, which was heard for miles, startled the city. Three persons were injured. The censorship continues inexorable at Barcelona.

THE BIRTHMARK.

By GWENDOLIN ADAMS.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"My dear," said Sir Huntley Hurlbut soon after his marriage to his American wife, "why is it that you, who have very pretty round arms, never show them uncovered?"

"I have two dresses made without sleeves."

"Yes, but when you wear either of them I have noticed that you wear a band of black velvet midway between shoulder and elbow."

"That's to make me display that ancient buckle which belonged to your grandmother."

Their eyes met. There was distrust in the husband's and fear in the wife's. He had not only noticed what he had referred to, but that robing or disrobing his wife had never uncovered her right arm above the elbow. They had been married three months before he had made this discovery.

"Hunt, dear," she said, going to him and endeavoring to caress away a cloud resting upon his brow, "I will confess that I am hiding something from you, a blemish."

"A blemish—a blemish on you! Such a thing can't be."

"Nevertheless there is something on my arm that I wish to conceal from you."

"A birthmark?"

She hesitated, glanced out of a window and finally answered:

"Yes."

She lied, and he knew she lied. A good woman or a good man may tell a lie. The man will tell it with all the appearance of a clear conscience. The woman will spoil it by trying to soften the deception or betray it in her look.

Sir Huntley arose and, without looking at his wife, went out to his club. He had met her in England, fallen in love with her and married her without visiting her native land or inquiring as to her antecedents. He knew that she was but fairly educated, fairly refined and had no money. What had fascinated him was an appearance of sterling worth there was about her. Somehow he had felt that she was to be relied on under any strain. And now when it was too late he had discovered that she was hiding something from him and that she had lied to him.

It was early morning when he returned. His wife was sleeping with a troubled look on her face. Her right arm lay extended. Could he not lift the sleeve and, without waking her, get a view of what she was concealing? He advanced to do so and shrank back. He was above possessing himself of what she would not willingly give him. For a moment he hesitated, then went to his own room and to bed.

A cloud hung over the Hurlbuts. Neither mentioned the secret, yet both felt that it was turning their love to bitterness. There were no reproaches, no hot words. The husband was scrupulously deferential, the wife obedient to his slighest wish, attentive to his slightest comfort. Yet there was an absence of that delightful interchange of sympathy which had existed up to the moment the husband had discovered that his wife had a secret which he was not permitted to share. Meanwhile his imagination was conjuring all sorts of probabilities. She might have been married before. She might have committed some sin of which this so called birthmark was an uneradicable token. He thought of crossing the ocean to hunt up her record. What—hunt a record he dreaded to know! He thought of leaving her, losing himself in the wilds of some distant continent. This, too, he flung away as impracticable. He could not get on without her till he was assured there was some crime connected with her past, and to know of that crime would drive him mad.

One day while he was about to enter his house something flitted before him and fell on the walk. He picked it up. It was a clipping from a newspaper. He glanced at it, then crumpled it in his hand, intending to throw it away. The door opened, and his wife met him, with an anxious look on her face. After a hasty greeting, such as passed between them since the secret came, she hurried out, and through a pane of glass he saw her looking for something. Then he knew the clipping had blown from her window. He went up to his room, locked himself in and read under a date of ten years past:

Yesterday the brave girl who pulled out with a rope in the storm that wrecked the Clara Jones submitted to have tattooed upon her arm a memento of her daring exploit. Bill Peters, an expert in such work, did the tattooing, and it was exhibited last night at a reception given the wearer at the Sailor's Snug Harbor.

Sir Huntley went downstairs and met his wife, who was returning from an unsuccessful hunt. He handed her the paper.

"Are you that girl?" he asked.

"Yes," she said, paling.

"Why have you kept this from me?"

"Because you are so proud of your lineage I knew it would wound you to learn that you had married one who had belonged to fisher folks."

"You told me you were concealing a birthmark."

She hung her head.

"Pull up your sleeve."

She raised the sleeve and displayed an anchor tattooed in blue ink. Across the anchor was the letter H.

"What does the H mean?"

There was no reply for a time, then a faint "I don't know."

He advanced and took her in his arms.

"Lying again," he said. "You know very well it stands for"— He paused.

Again she hung her head, but not for shame.

"Heroine."

ARMED GUARD AT CAR PLANT

A Repetition of Serious Rioting Is Feared In Schoenville

STRIKEBREAKERS DESERTING

More Than Three Hundred Leave Work and Join Forces With Strikers, Declaring That Conditions Inside Stockade Are Unbearable—Stories of Bad Food, Vermin-Infested Beds and Exorbitant Prices

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—At sundown last night sixty state troopers mounted guard at the plant of the Pressed Steel Car company in Schoenville, where 3500 employes of that concern are striking, fearing a repetition of the riots of last Sunday night.

Imported workmen yesterday deserted the Pressed Steel Car plant in groups of from two to two hundred. The men declare that they had been misused, subjected to indignities and forced to work whether they chose or not. As quickly as the men reached the outside of the car plant stockade they were welcomed by the striking employes, and within half an hour the "strike breakers" had entered into a strike spirit as virulent as if they had walked from their jobs six and a half weeks ago, when the car plant employes first laid down their tools.

Strikers and their sympathizers gathered in knots about street corners last night and discussed the day's developments in strong language. The strikers declare that the Pressed Steel Car company will be forced to suspend operations at once. But 300 workmen were left in the plant last night at sundown, so the deserting workmen say.

The grounds surrounding the river gate of the Pressed Steel Car plant presented a picturesque sight last night. Encamped there were over 300 workmen who left the car works during the day and who say they will stay near the car plant offices until they get at least a portion of the wages due them.

Stories told by the workmen who have quit their jobs in the car plant are almost unbelievable. Conditions, according to these workmen, were practically unbearable inside the car plant stockade. Soup prepared from rotting vegetables was served them, they declared, by negro waiters picked up from the slums of Pittsburg. Beds filled with vermin were given them to sleep on, they declare, while they were charged exorbitant prices for clothing, even 2-cent stamps selling at four for 10 cents in the car company's commissary.

These stories were made the subject of affidavits late yesterday in the government probe into alleged peonage conditions at the plant.

MASS FOR DEAD SOLDIERS

Interrupted by Fire From Moors, and an Engagement Follows

Melilla, Aug. 28.—A solemn requiem mass for the large numbers of Spanish officers and men killed in the battle with the Moors July 27 was dramatically celebrated yesterday. The altar was decorated with flowers and surrounded by four cannon, Gatling guns and stacked rifles.

At the moment of the elevation of the host the Moros opened a fierce fire from a distance and the guns on Fort Camellos roared a response. The religious ceremony was completed, however, after which a defile of troops and artillery did considerable damage to the camps of the enemy, in one of them blowing to pieces a group of tribesmen and their women.

CARS COLLIDE IN RACE

Mechanic Instantly Killed and Driver Receives a Broken Spine

Brighton Beach, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Louis Cole, mechanic of the Stearns car in the 24 hour automobile race, was killed here and the driver, Laurent Gross, was fatally injured in a collision with the Acme car shortly before midnight. Patcheke and Maynard, the crew of the Acme car, were only slightly injured. Both cars were wrecked.

Gross and Cole were thrown from their car in the collision. Cole was almost instantly killed. Gross' spine was broken and he cannot recover.

The race was stopped at once, but was resumed in ten minutes.

Double Lynching In Georgia

Mount Vernon, Ga., Aug. 28.—S. B. Clarke, an escaped negro convict, was killed and burned, John Swinnie, a negro who harbored Clarke, was lynched, Sheriff Hester was wounded and other lynchings are threatened at Soperton. Clarke had on two steel breastplates that stopped Winchester bullets.

Close of Old Home Week

Concord, N. H., Aug. 28.—New Hampshire's eleventh annual Old Home Week, fully as successful as any of its predecessors, closed last night, although a few scattered celebrations are being held today. This year's observances have been more simple, as a rule, than those of past years.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grand-father of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Birthplaces of Presidents.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

Abigail Adams Cairn.

Penns Hill, erecteld June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

Burial Place of Presidents.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple street. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

Hancock Cemetery.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744, and many other notable people.

John Hancock Birthplace.

Adams street, junction of Dimmick and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

Presidents Adams Mansion.

THE OLD FLINTLOCKS.

They Seem to Have Done Some Rather Tolerable Shooting.

"These old shooting irons," said a man from Virginia, who was examining an old flintlock rifle, "always have my profound respect. Our grandfathers and great-grandfathers did their hunting with them and used them in our two victorious wars with England. They were always good weapons and are now, if they are equipped with a good stock and a good lock. They could do fine service. Any man who was any sort of a marksman could do effective work with them in their day. This fact was well illustrated in an incident that happened several years ago near Richmond. The story was printed in some of the leading newspapers in Virginia and was the cause of much interest.

"There was an old farmer residing in one of the peninsular counties who was coming on the cars to Richmond and had with him one of those old fashioned weapons. In the train he got into conversation with a small party of gentlemen, who expressed much interest in his old rifle, and the farmer told of some rather extraordinary feats of marksmanship that he had performed with it.

"Finally he was persuaded to give an exhibition of his skill with the old relic, and a trial came off at Rocketts in the presence of a few gentlemen. The old flintlock was fired seven times and only missed the mark once. At first the old man fired it at some small objects—to get his hand steady, so he said. Then the old fellow handed to his son, who had every faith in his father's skill, a large potato and stationed him at fifty yards distance, holding the potato between his thumb and forefinger.

"The rifle cracked, and the potato was split into several pieces. Another shot was made at the bowl of a pipe which the boy was smoking, and the bowl was smashed. Several other shots were made at various objects, but in trying to hit a copper cent that was tossed in the air the marksman made a miss. He was considerably mortified at this and laid the blame on a bystander who sneezed loudly at the critical moment, but made another attempt, which was successful.

"The old man then declined any further trials of his skill and when offered a sum of money to repeat his feat of shooting a potato from his son's hand refused, saying he didn't care to experiment any further unless his weapon was freshly cleaned. The boy was willing, but the old man was obdurate. The young man showed not the least anxiety during the dangerous experiment upon himself."—Washington Post.

A Necessity.

"Twenty dollars for retrimming your hat!" exclaimed Mr. Madison. "But we agreed to spend nothing except for things that were positively needed."

"Well, John, this is. You see, my best friend has just had hers retrimmed, and I have promised to go with her to the concert on Friday."

"Oh, all right. But I can't give you more than fifteen this morning, because I broke my meerschaum and must have it mended."

"Can't you smoke your old brierwood?"

"Certainly, dear. And you can wear your old hat."

"John, let's begin to economize next month after we get things all straightened out."

"All right."—New York Herald.

To Multiply by Division.

Everybody knows that learning the tens in the multiplication table is as easy as "pie" and that the fives are not much harder; but, slight as is the mental effort required in multiplying any number by five, it may be lessened still more by discarding the multiplier entirely and substituting a divisor instead. This may sound paradoxical, but by experimenting you will find that dividing by two will bring the same result as multiplying by five, provided you add a cipher to the quotient if the dividend be an even number or five if it be odd. For instance, if you multiply 2,734 by five the product is 13,670. What is still easier, divide 2,734 by two, which is done almost instantaneously; then tack on your 0 and you have 13,670.

Separate and Together.

First Seaman—I say, Bill, wot's this card?

Second Seaman—That's the saloon passengers' menu, of course.

"But wot does it mean?"

"Oh, it's a list of all the things they have for dinner—soup and fish and vegetables and meat. That's the difference between the saloon and the forecastle; they get them all separately and call it a menu. In the forecastle we get them altogether and call it Irish stew."—London Answers.

True Tale.

"My daughter gave us an awful scare the other day," said a caller last night. "She went away for a visit in New York. And she sent a telegram from Buffalo, her first stop. My wife was afraid to open it. We had visions of train wrecks, sudden illness and all sorts of things. And what do you think the message said? This:

"'I forgot to tell you—don't eat up all the strawberry jam while I'm gone.'"—Cleveland Leader.

An Amateur Burglary.

By ROSALIE THURTEE.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"O heavens!"

"What's the matter?"

"The key. Mother told me to be sure and take it. I forgot it."

"Well?"

"Mother has gone out to spend the evening with Mrs. Tomkins, father is at the club and the maid was called away yesterday to her sick mother."

"That means that there is no one to let us in and we must wait on the steps till some one comes home."

"I am afraid so."

"This is the house?"

"Yes; fourth from the end of the block. I wonder if it is third or fourth—fourth, I'm sure."

"What made you hesitate?"

"Don't you know we only moved in last week?"

"Oh, yes; I forgot."

They sit down on the stone step and talk of a small party they have attended. The step is cold; so is the wind.

"What kind are the window catches?" he asked.

"Old fashioned. These houses are all old fashioned."

"I wonder if I can turn one of them with my knife blade?"

He steps to a balcony on which the front windows open, inserts his knife blade and tries to move the catch. He fails. He rattles the sash. It is very loose. He puts both hands in position to act as levers on the sash and pushes. Something gives way, and the sash goes up. Watching him from the stoop, she sees him disappear in the window.

"Why is he so long? He must have gone in to light up and open the door for me."

She waits for him at the door, but since he doesn't come she climbs over the rail on to the balcony and stands at the window. Seeing or hearing nothing, she calls:

"Where are you?"

"Here inside."

"What are you doing?"

"Sitting on some one."

"Good gracious! What do you mean?"

"As soon as the window went up I felt myself seized by some one—a man, I suppose—who dragged me in through the window. I put my arm around him and downed him."

"Oh, my goody gracious!"

"I wonder if we've got in the wrong house."

"Why don't you ask him?"

"I have asked him who he is and what he meant by grappling me, but all I can get out of him is 'Nix furstay.' He must be a German. Anyway, he doesn't seem to understand."

"How provoking! What in the world are we going to do?"

"Lucky he doesn't holler. We'd be caught red handed in an act of burglary. The house can't be yours."

"Oh, dear! Did I say the fourth house from the end of the row? Come to think of it, it's the fifth."

"Maybe it's the fiftieth." This in a dissatisfied tone.

"That's positively cruel. How can I be expected to know the position of a house I've not lived in a week?"

"How long am I to sit on this man?"

"I'll call the police."

"If you do I'll spend the time set apart for our honeymoon in jail."

"Can't you leave him, jump out of the window and run for it?"

"And have him yelling 'Stop thief!' and I run into a cop's arms? That's a brilliant idea."

"Gott in himmel! Ugh! Um!" from the man underneath, struggling.

"Shut up!"

"What in the world will be the end of this? We'll be arrested, and the least we can expect is that it will all be in the papers tomorrow morning," from the girl.

"If I knew the inside of this house I could lock him up somewhere," from the young man.

"Hans! Vas ist?" This comes from upstairs.

The young burglar claps his hand over Hans' mouth.

A light is coming and the sound of steps on the staircase. A young woman in night robe peeps cautiously over the banister and gives a shriek.

"For heaven's sake keep quiet. Do you speak English?" cried the burglar in anguish.

"Yah. Vot's d' matter?"

"Tell this man in German, if he understands German and isn't a deaf mute, that I got in here by mistake. I'll let him up if he'll let me out of it peaceably."

"It was all my mistake," called the girl outside. "I live in this block, the fourth or fifth house from the end—I don't remember. Oh, do please tell him. Is he your husband?"

"My husband! Nein! You think I am old voman!"

"Oh, dear, I'm so unlucky! I make nothing but mistakes tonight."

"Will you kindly cease to make any more mistakes till after we have got out of this?" says the young man impatiently. Then to the woman on the stairs, "Tell him, please."

There was a parley in German, which the trespassers did not understand. At last the interpreter said the man was satisfied. Then he was permitted to arise.

"I don't know how I came to make such a mistake," said the girl as they moved away.

"Nor I," said the young man sententiously.

"Here comes mother. Mother, what's our number?"

"Forty-six. That's not it. Seventh house from the east end."

The young man went home without the usual kiss.

THE WEEK END FIRE ALARMS

Fires Saturday and Sunday Keep Firemen on the Jump

The bells and whistles on the fire alarm circuit of the city was kept busy Saturday afternoon and evening clanging out alarms of fire and a lost child call.

It was exactly 4.48 when one round of Box 71 sounded. This was followed by a confusion of blows which was very misleading and the cause of some delay in the firemen responding to a brisk fire on Washington street.

The fire was in what is known as the Harvey French house situated on the corner of Washington and Sumner streets owned by Clarence Burgin. The last occupants of the building were Italian families. It has been unoccupied for some time however. The windows were a shining mark for the boys to throw stones at and they had succeeded in demolishing all the window glass.

The fire Saturday was in the rear part and is thought to have been caused by boys. It was discovered by different persons about the same time. Some rushed to Box 71 at the corner of Washington and Mill streets and others to Box 74 at the corner of Washington and River streets. Both these boxes were pulled causing a confusion in alarms.

Chief Williams was at the Water street ball grounds and getting Box 71 on the whistle started for the scene. Vacation and supper time had depleted the force at the Central station and just at that time drivers were at a premium. This and the confusion of alarms delayed the apparatus and when the Chief arrived at the fire he had to wait for the apparatus to arrive.

In the mean time the fire was burning briskly and only the absence of a high wind prevented a conflagration. As it was sparks ignited the roofs of the store of Jacob Peterson and the double house owned by Timothy Cashman and occupied by Mr. Cashman and the Misses Ring.

Miss Annie Ring went to the attic for some clothing and was surprised to find it full of smoke. She gave the alarm and a stream of water quickly extinguished that fire and the fire on the roof of Peterson's store.

Meantime other firemen were busy battling with the flames in the French house.

There was a great water pressure on the two lines of hose and duckings were the order of the day for many of the firemen before the fire was out. The house was badly gutted the damage being placed at $1,500. The damage to the Cashman house was $15 and to Peterson's store $5.

Washington street was blocked to street cars and carriage travel during the progress of the fire.

LOST CHILD CALL.

At 7.58 a lost child call was sounded from Box 74 and was to summons help for John the 3-year old son of Timothy G. Crowley of 162 Sumner street.

It was thought the little fellow had followed the fire department and became lost. It appears however that the little fellow had got tired out and had gone to his room and was asleep.

FRENCH HOUSE AGAIN.

At 11.27 another alarm was sounded from Box 71 and was for another fire in the old French house.

It is thought that this fire caught from sparks that lodged between the partitions that were not extinguished in the afternoon fire. An old fashioned ice box built into the house was burned somewhat, but the loss was slight.

SUNDAY'S ALARM.

The alarm from Box 122 at 3.45 Sunday afternoon during the shower called the department to a double house on Miller Stile road owned by Frank C. Packard and occupied by Patrick Barry and John T. Wentworth. The fire was a slight one and was caused by the house being struck by lightning.

☞The Rue House in rear of the Church of St. Francis-by-the-sea will be sold at auction Friday, Sept. 3, at 2 P. M. Aug. 28-3t

ASSAULT CLAIMED.

Calixte Rogers called to his Door and Struck with Stones.

Calixte Rogers of 329 Water street reported to the police Sunday that he was assaulted by three unknown men early that morning at his home.

Rogers says he was aroused by a knock at the door and on opening it was confronted by three strangers. They asked him some questions concerning some boarders in the house and the next minute one of them struck him in the face.

The others threw stones and beer bottles at him. They then ran out of the yard. Mr. Rogers followed them but was unable to overtake them or learn their identity. He was hit in the eyes but not seriously injured.

This morning Inspector McKay arrested Alexander J. McKee of 233 Water street at a South Quincy polishing shop as one of the three men who made an assault on Mr. Rogers Sunday morning. When taken before Mr. Rogers he identified him as the one who had struck him in the face.

Gideon Rogers, a son of the assaulted man, was also a victim of an assault at his barber shop at Quincy Friday night. In this case the man who made the assault was a barber who formerly worked for Mr. Rogers. Mr. Rogers was struck on the right arm by a large rock. The fellow was chased but got away.

QUINCY CLUB RACE.

Thordis and Emeline Easy Winners in Saturday's Race.

A very light and variable wind was handed out to the boats of classes C and D of the Quincy yacht club off the club house at Houghs Neck. At times the wind had flattened out almost to a dead calm so that the race was devoid of interest.

There was but one starter in Class C the Thordis of Commodore Dawes and he sailed over the course unaccompanied.

All of the Class D scrappers were out but the Emeline of Commodore Robbins won handily over the Iris of Rear Commodore Crane, by nearly four minutes corrected time. The summary.

WAS GREAT SUCCESS.

Prominent Guests at Division 17 and L. A. 19 Lawn Party.

The lawn party Saturday afternoon and evening on the old school lot grounds at Atlantic under the auspices of Division 17 and Ladies Aid 19, A. O. H. was very largely attended and a grand time resulted.

During the afternoon there was a series of field events for boys and girls which resulted as follows:

Three-legged race for boys under 16 years won by Nat McClure and T. Wilkinson, Dan Nyhan and Tim Golden second.

Potato race won by R. Hartnett, Tim Golden second.

50-yard dash won by H. McClure, P. Connelly second.

Egg race for girls won by Helen McCormick, Pearl Hayes second.

50 yard dash for girls won by Gertrude McCormick, Dorothy Hollaway second.

During the evening there were brief addresses by Mayor Shea, Congressman O'Connell and Mathew Cummings president of the State A. O. H.

Pellagra Prevalent In Illinois

Washington, Aug. 30.—More than fifty cases of pellagra, with an additional fifty in the state of recovery, and fifty more under suspicion at the Peoria, Ills., state hospital, is the word that comes from Captain Siler of the army medical corps, who was sent to Peoria to investigate the outbreak.

SPEED BOYS SLAUGHTERED

Stoughton Demolishes Home Team in First Innings

It was anything but a bunch of "Speed Boys" that faced Stoughton Saturday in the Old Colony league game played at the Water street grounds. The local team had the emergency brakes on all afternoon and were completely demoralized. It was one of those one inning games, where one team scores enough runs in one inning to win the game. The whole story of the contest is right in the first inning when Stoughton got seven hits and scored nine runs, aided materially by errors by Duggan, Lonergan, and Courtney. One man was hit and one received a free pass in this inning, which also helped Stoughton to tally some of its runs. Altogether it was one of the most weird games of ball seen in this city, since that never-to-be-forgotten game between Adams Academy and Quincy high school, when Adams scored 18 runs in the opening inning and won the contest by the extremely one-sided score of 53 to 3. The final score was 12 to 5.

Roger Chase, who by the way pitched two good games for Quincy this season, started in on the slab for the local aggregation and he was away off color. The first man that faced him hit the ball on a line to centre, but Billy Duggan coralled the flying sphere and saved a hit. This was Ingalls and the next man, Reynolds, hit the ball to the same place, but this time it was a safe hit. Murphy and Burrill followed with singles, and then Chase hit Dunbar. He then fanned McInerney, but Coffey got a hit and Grieves was passed. All this coupled with two wild throws by Duggan and a fumble by Lonergan, netted Stoughton four runs. This was enough for Chase. He was sent to the stable while Sid Patterson was trotted out to the slaughter. And a slaughter it proved to be, too. Three hits followed in quick succession, and these coupled with an error by Courtney, allowed the visitors to tally five more runs, before the third man went out on a fly to left field, which Lonergan did manage to hold. After this, the game was fairly decent and Patterson, who complained of a sore arm and was in no condition to pitch, twirled a fairly good game, although hit rather freely.

There were, however, a few redeeming features in the game, but these were few and far between. Strobel and Reynolds each had big days at the bat, each polling out four dandy hits, Two of Strobel's hits went for two bases and both came with men on bases. Murray also caught a fine game, his throwing to bases being excellent. Henry McInerney, the rangey left-fielder of the visitors also had a fine day in the field and at the bat. He got three beauty hits one going for two bases, and caught four flies in the field, one of these being a pretty running catch, that brought Mac away into the infield. George Donaher at second for the local team, played a good game, accepting four chances without an error and getting two hits.

Another local player, Harry Drake, graced the lineup of the Quincy team, playing in the outfield the first inning and going to first base for the rest of the game. He played a good fielding game, but was not over efficient with the stick, which is supposed to be his strong point. This makes three local men on the team now, and if Smith and Fay, two other locals, who are playing in the Old Colony league, were also with the team, they would help out a whole lot.

After the first inning as stated above, the game was fairly good, although all through it was rather loose. Quincy scored two runs in the third on hits by Strobel, Schildmiller and Courtney and an excusable error by Reynolds, who allowed Courtney's hit to get away from him. In each of the three following innings Quincy scored one run, but after that they could not get a man across the pan. After the first inning, Stoughton scored one in the second and then were shut out for four innings. In the seventh and eighth innings Stoughton got one run

SPECIAL MEETING.

City Council to Meet Wednesday Evening. Matters to be Acted on.

Mayor Shea has called a special meeting of the City Council for Wednesday evening. There are three matters stated in the call, viz: to draw jurors, to receive from the Mayor a list of appointments of election officers and to designate polling places for the caucuses to be held Sept. 21.

Under the law the list of election officers must lay on the table at least three days before confirmation. As Ward Five has been divided into two voting precincts there is some curiosity as to who the election officers of the two precincts will be.

HOLD UP REPORTED.

Two Men Point Revolver at Head of James Fleming.

James Fleming of 24 Foster street was held up near his home at 1 o'clock Sunday morning by two men who pointed a revolver at his head.

Fleming told the police that he was going through Foster street on his way home and when near the residence of Dr. Edwin N. Hardy two men stepped out of the walk and confronted him. One of the men pointed a revolver at his head and asked him where he lived.

Fleming told them he lived near the livery stable on Washington street. This seemed to satisfy the men and he was allowed to depart without further words.

Fleming thought the men might have been trying to enter the residence of Dr. Hardy whose family are now at Nelson, N. H.

The police made an investigation but found nothing that would tend to show that anyone had been on the premises or had made any attempt to get into the house.

LAST WEEK OF PLAYGROUND.

Ward One Playground Has a Great Five Days in Store for Children.

The last week of the Ward 1 playground is now at hand and a great five days is indeed in store for the children of Quincy. The closing day of the playground will be held Friday. It will be an all day affair. The morning given up to games as usual and the afternoon gymnasium drills by boys and girls running races and baseball and basket ball. The children of the city are urged to take advantage of these last few days and make the best of them. Ice cream will be served Friday to all children on the playground. Every morning this week will be full of activities and the best time possible will be given the children. The playground has been a great success and it is hoped that after this demonstration of a supervised playground action may be taken for further work along these lines by the city.

JOHN CAVANAGH.

The funeral of John Cavanagh the well known Braintree citizen who died Friday evening was held this morning from St. John's church and was very largely attended, among those present being officials from the town of Braintree, city officials from Quincy, representatives of the Master Builders association of Boston and representatives of the Irish National League of Quincy and Boston.

A solemn high mass of Requiem was celebrated with Rev. Mathew McDonnell of Braintree as celebrant, Rev. William H. Fitzpatrick of Brockton, a life long friend as Deacon, Rev. Patrick Scannell as sub-deacon and Rev. William T. Deasey of Randolph as Master of ceremonies.

The Gregorian chant was sung by the choir. Miss Mary McConarty sang the "Pie Jesu" and John Mahan "The Libera."

There was a mass of beautiful floral tributes the Master Builders association, the Irish National league and town officials of Braintree being among those to send pieces.

The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery the bearers being Mayor William T. Shea, Dr. P. J. Tinnian of the United Irish National league, W. H. Cuddihy representing the Master Builders association of Boston, Peter McConarty and Michael Burns representing the Quincy branch of the Irish National league and Elmer E. Abercrombie of Braintree.

☞One of the best renting houses near the Red Lion owned by George W. Morton will be sold at auction on Friday, Sept. 3. Aug. 28-3t

STORM DOES MUCH DAMAGE

Houses Struck, Street Car and Signal Boxes Burnt Out

A very severe thunder storm passed over Quincy Sunday afternoon and did considerable damage. The day up to 3 o'clock had been very hot and oppressive. Then the westerly sky became overcast and there was a distant roll of thunder. It looked decidedly as though Quincy was in for a storm, and it was. The sky overhead became overcast and black and at 3.30, the thunder became very near and the flashes of lightning very vivid. Then it began to rain and for a few minutes the rain fell in torrents flooding the streets and turning the gutters into rivers.

During the height of the storm a bolt struck the double house at 25 and 27 Miller Stile road owned by Frank C. Packard and occupied by John T. Wentworth and Patrick Barry. The bolt went down the chimney all the way to the cellar, where it wrecked the furnace. An alarm was sounded from Box 122 but was somewhat confused in striking. The fire department however got the box right and responded but there was nothing for them to go. The damage to the house and furnace is estimated at $500.

A chimney on the house at 322 Washington street owned by George W. Morton and occupied by Andrew Gibbs was also struck and that part above the roof demolished. The bolt however did not set fire to the house.

Some of the signal wires connecting the street railway boxes on Washington street were burnt out and their failure to work caused some delay in the movement of cars. One of the Nantasket cars was also burnt out on Washington street and had to be towed to the car barn.

There was a large crowd at the beaches and when the storm broke there was a grand rush for shelter. Some were able to get in out of the wet but there were many who got a ducking. The storm served to rapidly depopulateh the beaches for people were afraid that there would be another, and made a rush to get home. The sky soon cleared after the storm had passed and the evening was cool and delightful.

The lightning also did considerable damage to the telephone system and quite a few instruments were burnt out.

Think what it means to be rich enough to have a disease with a long name. Harriman of railroad fame is ill with spondylitis deformans. With the poor man it would probably be just spinal disease.

"Hello Bill" will not be so joyously called by the Elks for some time as Col. William D. Shaw the originator of this slogan at lodge conventions died last week at his home in Cincinnati. He was a railroad man and popular all along the line.

It did not take William Taggart of Philadelphia long to decide against matrimony when he found out that by remaining a bachelor he would inherit over $50,000 by his brother's will. Money and single blessedness certainly offer inducements that love in a cottage never could. To complete the story the girl in the case should sue for breach of promise and gather in the $50,000.

YACHT STOLEN.

Knockabout Pontiac taken from Moorings at Houghs Neck.

It was reported to the police Saturday that the knockabout Pontiac owned by W. G. Spargo had been stolen from her moorings some time Saturday. Her loss was not discovered until Mr. Spargo attempted to go aboard the yacht Saturday night.

The Pontiac is 30 feet overall, 21 feet waterline and 9 feet beam. She is painted white and was valued at $400.

EL ROGHI IN A CAGE

Pretender Exposed to Gaze of Population of Moroccan Capital

Fez, Morocco, Aug. 30.—El Roghi, the rebel who was captured recently and brought into Fez in an iron cage, is exposed to the gaze of passing crowds in his open cell. He boldly shows his scorn and disdain.

When the sultan asked El Roghi why he had started the rebellion, the pretender to the throne replied: "I simply followed in your footsteps, only you succeeded and I failed."

WATERWAYS IMPROVEMENT.

Since the passage of the tariff bill a tremendous quickening of interest in national needs is noticed and this interest is not likely to wane as time passes. Already there is noticeable changes going on throughout the country on the subject of improving the inland waters of the United States and the utterances of those great railway kings, Harriman, Hill, Yoakum and others, who state that the railroads cannot transport more than 60 per cent of the freight at the time it should be carried, has emphasized the needs for a broad and comprehensive waterway policy on the part of the Federal government, to the end that the great natural thoroughfares of the country may be made to do their share of transportation.

A much greater interest is being shown by Senators and Representatives in Congress than ever before in the subject of waterways and their improvement. Congressman Henry T. Rainey of the Twentieth Illinois district, is among the leaders of the House to unreservedly favor a bond issue of liberal proportion to carry on the work of improving the inland waters and canals of continental United States, one of the cardinal planks in the platform of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, whose sixth Annual Convention in Washington next December, gives promise of being the biggest Waterway Convention ever held.

"The Waterways of the country," said Mr. Rainey today, "have fallen into disuse for two reasons: First, the railroads have been increasing their carrying capacity, building larger engines, building larger cars, laying heavier rails, and double-tracking their lines until now the limit of development seems to have been reached. Nothing has been done for waterways while this remarkable railway development has been in progress. Rivers have not been dredged to any considerable extent, the banks of streams have not been regularized, and as yet no comprehensive system of waterway development has been entered upon. In the second place, railways paralleling rivers and reaching cities along our rivers have pursued the policy of making cheaper rates to river points, rates often as cheap or cheaper than river steamers of the present capacity can make. Railways have been carrying freight to river points at a loss in order to destroy river traffic, and have been compelling inland towns and cities to pay higher freight rates than they ought to pay in order to make up the loss. There has been for half a century a fight of the railroads against the rivers, with no organizations until a comparatively recent period fighting for the rivers.

"There is only one way to meet the situation and to restore to railroads the competition they ought to have, and that is by improving our rivers, connecting them where necessary with artificial canals, depending upon the electric lines reaching our rivers and extending out now into the interior of the country to furnish in connection with the improved rivers, the competition which a gigantic railway combination must have. Improve our rivers and you will have furnished to every man a great free national highway upon which he can launch his boat and carry his goods, free of all charge, to the ocean highways of the world.

"The building of the Panama canal meets with the approval of the country, and yet it will fail to accomplish the results for which it is intended unless we improve the 16,000 biles of navigable rivers lying within our mountain ranges; unless we improve rivers and harbors between our mountain ranges and the seas in order to enable freights to be transported cheaply from the interior to the world's ocean highways. The time, it seems to me, is here when the country would approve a bond issue of large size for the purpose of improving rivers on a comprehensive basis. The development of the country now depends upon it.

"By a majority of nearly 500,000 votes, the state of Illinois has declared itself for this proposition, and has voted in favor of a bond issue of twenty million dollars in aid of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf-Deep-Waterway. The state of New York has voted one hundred and one million dollars in bonds to deepen the Erie canal. The waterway from the Lakes to the Gulf is an interstate Waterway. The Ohio river is an interstate waterway. The Missouri, the Tennessee and the Arkansas rivers are all great interstate waterways. The Atlantic Coast Deep Wateway is an interstate scheme. Illinois and New York have done their part towards creating efficient waterways within their boundaries connecting our interior lakes with the sea. The time has come for the National Government to issue bonds for the purpose of carrying on the great work of river improvement and canal building upon which the future prosperity of the country depends."

CURTISS WINS HIGH HONORS

America Leads All Other Nations In the Aviation Contests

LION'S SHARE OF THE PRIZES

Winning of International Cup a Great Victory In Itself—Close of Aviation Week Marked by Accident to Bleriot's Afrship—Petrol Tank Bursts and Pilot Has Remarkable Escape From Death

Rheims, Aug. 30.—A twilight vision of Paulhan's graceful monoplane, like a great bird soaring above the plain, so high that it seemed to rise above the yellow harvest moon just rising above the distant hills, and the fleeting "Golden Flyer," as the Curtiss machine has been dubbed, smashed another world's record in the Prix de la Vilesse, were the closing glories of Aviation Week.

The victory of Glenn H. Curtiss, the sole American representative in the contests, coming on the heels of his great victory in the international cup Saturday, gives the United States the lion's share of the honors of the meeting. The Prix de la Vilesse of 2000 francs ($4000) divided into four prizes, was distributed to the four machines making three rounds of the course, 30 kilometres, at the greatest speed, the first prize being won by Curtis quite handily, nothwithstanding his penalization.

Curtiss missed winning the lap speed contest from Bleriot by only a small margin. He captured second place in that event, which was over the full course of 10 kilometres, or 6.21 miles, raising his total money winnings for the meeting to 38,000 francs, besides the international cup, which goes to the Aero Club of America, inscribed with his name.

As in Saturday's cup contest, an accident—the only serious one of the meeting—removed Bleriot, the American's most dangerous competitor, from Sunday's three-lap speed contest.

Bleriot's escape from death was a narrow one. He had passed the first turn in the Prix de la Vilesse when the rudder suddenly failed to respond. The machine turned completely over three times, landing with such force that the petrol tank burst, and, catching fire from the hot motor, enveloped the machine and pilot in flames. Before Bleriot could extricate himself he was burned about the face and hands, but not seriously.

The Prix de l'Altitude, 10,000 francs, to be awarded to the aeroplanist attaining the highest altitude, was won by Latham, who reached a height of 155 metres (about 490 feet). Farman was second with 110 metres, Paulhan third, 90 metres, and Rougoier fourth, 55 metres.

The passenger carrying contest was won by Farman. With two passengers he made the circuit of the course in 10:39 and with one passenger in 9:52 4-5. Lefebvre, with one passenger, completed the lap in 11:20 4-5.

The lap speed contest went to Bleriot, who covered the 10 kilometres in 7:7 4-5.

The dirigible balloon Colonel Renard captured the Prix de Aeornauts, a prize of 10,000 francs for the best time in five circuits of the course of 50 kilometres. The time was 1:14:49.

AIRSHIP REACHES BERLIN

Great Demonstration In Honor of Count Zeppelin

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The airship Zeppelin III, with Count Zeppelin at the helm, arrived safely at Berlin Sunday, completing the voyage from Friedrichshafen. The emperor witnessed the arrival of the airship.

Two monarchs of the air, Zeppelin and Orville Wright, met here for the first time. They were introduced by Emperor William. Wright was utterly surprised at the emperor's technical knowledge of flying machines and the results achieved.

Tempelhof field was reached just after the conclusion of church services. The hundreds of thousands who had gathered there sighted the craft at the same moment and a roar of cheering went up.

Zeppelin meanwhile had descended to a low altitude and carried out a series of intricate evolutions gracefully in full view of the people. Then the ballon's nose was turned toward the city, over which it circled for two hours in all directions.

Finally the balloon came slowly over the field, the motors stopped and the vessel glided to the ground. The band played and the emperor saluted as Count Zeppelin stepped forward. The mayor welcomed the count in the name of the citizens and the emperor took off his helmet and called for three cheers for Zeppelin.

Later, with the count seated at his right, the emperor proceeded to the castle, where lunch was served. The spectators all along the route shouted themselves hoarse and waved flags until the procession disappeared. Zeppelin returned to Friedrichshafen by train last night. The airship started at 11:24 p. m. on its return voyage to Friedrichshafen.

M'HARG TO QUIT OFFICE

Credited With Having Said Some Sharp Things About Roosevelt

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 30.—The resignation of Ormsby McHarg, assistant secretary of the department of commerce and labor, will be accepted. Secretary Nagel, head of the department, had an extended conference with President Taft and discussed with the chief executive the question of a successor to McHarg.

There is no one in Beverly willing to say that McHarg's resignation was in any wise the result of an interview with him published in Washington last week in which McHarg is credited with having said that the policy of forest conservation outlined by former President Roosevelt was too dreamlike even to be of practical value and that only "the Lord himself" could have carried it out. McHarg further was represented as having said that perhaps Roosevelt thought himself equal to the worker of miracles.

THE HOLMES CENTENNARY

It Is Quietly Observed In the City of Poet's Birth and Its Vicinity

Boston, Aug. 30.—Scrawled in pencil in a musty Farmer's almanac, "Aug. 29, 1809," was the simple inscription that recorded the arrival in the world 100 years ago of Oliver Wendell Holmes, poet, scientist and humorist, the celebration of the centenary being observed very quietly in this vicinity.

The only public observance was a service held in King's chapel, where Dr. Holmes regularly attended for many years prior to his death in 1894. Many of his hymns were sung by the choir and an address was given. At the Boston public library an exhibition of Holmes' works, portraits, scenes connected with his life, treasures and relics were shown.

BRUHN AND HIS PAL OUTWIT PURSUERS

Police Give Up Hope of Effecting Their Capture

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 30.—Clyde G. Bruhm and his companion are still at large, the search for the daring young burglar who made such a sensational escape from the Boston city prison last week and his friend having revealed no trace of them. The men who landed at Kittery from the yacht Savage last Thursday are believed to have effected their escape by taking advantage of the thick woods of Maine.

Inspector Shields of Boston, who has left for home, said that they had in all probability made good their escape.

REVIVAL OF INDUSTRY

Of a Very Pronounced Character In Southeastern New England

New Haven, Aug. 30.—Inquiry at the offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company here brings the statement that while there was a steady increase of business in New England during July it does not seem to have been greatly affected by the tariff, but has been connected with the general revival of industry.

The statement is also made that the revival of business is very pronounced in the southeastern part of New England, particularly among the cotton mills, where there are plans for the erection of a large number of new plants, notwithstanding the competition of southern cotton factories.

MISCONDUCT IN OFFICE

President of Borough of the Bronx Removed by Governor Hughes

Albany, Aug. 30.—Finding him guilty of charges of misconduct in office and neglect of duty, Governor Hughes has ordered the removal from office of Louis T. Haffen, president of the borough of the Bronx in the city of New York. Haffen has held the office since Jan. 1, 1908.

The governor based his findings on the report of Wallace McFarlane, who was appointed commissioner to take evidence in the matter, and who, after an exhaustive hearing, reported that Haffen had been guilty of misconduct which should subject him to removal from office.

Robbers Had Clear Track

Magnolia, Mass., Aug. 30.—Jewelry valued at $1500 was stolen from the summer home of Lucius M. Tuttle, president of the Boston and Maine railroad, supposedly while the family were at dinner. A screen door had been left unlocked and the robbers had little difficulty in getting the valuables.

Gaynor Mum on Politics

New York, Aug. 30.—Justice Gaynor, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for mayor of New York at the election next winter, arrived on steamer Cedric from Liverpool. He had nothing to say on politics.

Cholera In Russia

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—Although the cholera is decreasing in the capital, deaths from the disease are reported daily from the different cities of the empire.

THE SCHOENVILLE STRIKE

Not Unlikely to Be Brought to the Attention of Congress

Pittsburg, Aug. 30.—Uncle Sam's searchlight, turned for the past few days on alleged poenage conditions at the Pressed Steel Car company's plant in Schoenville, in all probability will cast a strong reflection into the halls of congress when that body reconvenes in December.

Glaringly excessive methods by Chicago and New York employment agencies toward strike-breakers will, it is authoritatively stated, result in strong official recommendations for the passage of a statute to prevent such actions in the future. United States District Attorney Jordan will suggest action of that sort in his report to the department of justice at Washington.

"These men," declared Jordan, "came here not knowing where they were bound, nor what they were supposed to do. Neither did they know a strike was on. Now they are here they are dissatisfied with the conditions and in many instances helpless to go anywhere. Such a state of affairs is exorbitant."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SWIMS TEN MILES TO BOSTON LIGHT

Austrian Accomplishes Feat Never Before Performed

Boston, Aug. 30.—Alois Aderle of New York city stumbled up from the waves upon the rocks at the foot of Boston light Sunday afternoon, winning the honor and record of being the first to negotiate the swim of ten miles from Boston to the light, doing the distance in 5 hours, 38 minutes. Behind him were left seven exhausted swimmers.

Many swimmers have made the attempt to go from the Charles river bridge, which connects Boston and Charlestown, to Boston light in past years and in the present year fully a dozen swimmers have made the try. Up to yesterday, however, the course had remained unswum.

Except for a voracious appetite Aderle seemed in perfect condition at the end of his swim. He was given a rub down and well fed and apparently had no ill effects from the swim.

Aderle is a native of Vienna, 40 years old, and has a family of three children. Before coming to America a year ago he won several swimming contests.

POLICE WANT FERRON

He Is Charged With Having Caused the Death of Mrs. Rivers

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 30.—Injuries received in a brutal assault made with an axe at midnight Thursday resulted in the death Saturday night of Mrs. Flora Rivers, aged 35, and the state police are looking for Henry Ferron, with whom the woman is said to have been living for some time, and who, in a statement written just before her death, she charges with the crime.

Mrs. Rivers, who has been separated from her husband for some time, is believed to have come here from Fall River with Ferron, although little is known of the couple here. They were known as man and wife.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames. VIII—Calendar meets his daughter in the company of a man named Mulready, evidently his companion in some strange nefarious enterprise. Mulready, it seems, has tried to kidnap Dorothy in Kirkwood's cab. Calendar and Mulready quarrel, after which the girl and the two men row off to board a vessel referred to as the Alethea, leaving Kirkwood to find his way in a cab to St. Paneras station, where he is to take the midnight train for his steamer. He is now thoroughly in love with Dorothy. IY and X—Kirkwood just misses his train and finds himself almost penniless. After wandering about for two hours he is again in Frognall street. He enters the house to seek his missing purse and finds the young man whom he had knocked down still unconscious after six hours.

outside, that some one had followed you in here and that a bobby had told him to move on. I didn't know what"—

"What's o'clock now?" her son interrupted.

"It's about 3, I think. Have you hurt yourself, dear? Oh, why didn't you come home? You must have known I was dying of anxiety!"

"Oh, I say! Can't you see I'm hurt? Had a nasty fall and must 've been asleep ever since."

"My precious one! How"—

"Can't say, hardly. I say, don't paw a chap so, mamma. I brought Eccles along and told him to wait, because—well, because I didn't feel so much like shuttin' myself up in this beastly old tomb. So I left the door ajar and told him not to let anybody come in. Then I came upstairs. There must 've been somebody already in the house. I know I thought there was. It made me feel creepy rather. At any rate, I heard voices down below, and the door banged, and somebody began hammerin' like fun on the knocker."

"Have you hurt yourself, dear?"

The boy paused, rolling an embarrassed eye up at the stranger.

"Yes, yes, dear!" Mrs. Hallam urged him on.

"Why, I—I made up my mind to cut my stick—let whoever it was pass me on the stairs, you know. But he followed me and struck me, and then I jumped at him, and we both fell down the whole flight. And that's all. Besides, my head's achin' like everything."

"But this man"—

Mrs. Hallam looked up at Kirkwood, who bowed silently, struggling to hide both his amusement and perplexity.

"You, Mr. Kirkwood!"

Again he bowed, grinning awry.

She rose suddenly. "You will be good enough to explain your presence here," she informed him, with dangerous serenity.

"To be frank with you"—

"I advise that course, Mr. Kirkwood."

"Thanks, awf'ly. I came here half an hour ago looking for a lost purse, full—well, not quite full of sovereigns. It was my purse, by the way."

Suspicion glinted like foxfire in the cold green eyes beneath her puckered brows. "I do not understand," she said slowly and in level tones.

"I didn't expect you to," returned Kirkwood. "No more do I. But, anyway, it must be clear to you that I've done my best for this gentleman here." He paused, with an interrogative lift of his eyebrows.

"'This gentleman' is my son, Frederick Hallam. But you will explain"—

"Pardon me, Mrs. Hallam; I shall explain nothing at present. Permit me to point out that your position here—like mine—is, to say the least, anomalous." The random stroke told, as he could tell by the instant contraction of her eyes of a cat. "It would be best to defer explanations till a more convenient time, don't you think? Then, if you like, we can chant confidences in an antiphonal chorus. Just now your—er—son is not enjoying himself apparently, and the attention of the police had best not be called to this house too often in one night."

His levity seemed to displease and perturb the woman. She turned from him, with an impatient movement of her shoulders.

"Freddie, dear, do you feel able to walk?"

"Eh? Oh, I dare say—I don't know. Wonder would your friend—ah—Mr. Kirkwood, lend me an arm?"

"Charmed," Kirkwood declared suavely, "if you'll take the candle, Mrs. Hallam."

"One moment," she interposed in confusion. "I won't keep you waiting." And, passing, with an averted face, she ran quickly upstairs to the second floor, taking the light with her. Its glow faded from the walls above, and Kirkwood surmised that she had entered the front bedchamber. For some moments he could hear her moving about. Once something scraped and bumped on the floor, as if a heavy bit of furniture had been moved. Again there was a resounding thud that defied speculation, and this was presently followed by a dull clang of metal.

Eventually—it was not really long—there came the quick rush of Mrs. Hallam's feet along the upper hall, and the woman reappeared, one hand holding her skirts clear of her pretty feet as she descended in a rush that caused the candle's flame to flicker perilously.

Halfway down "Mr. Kirkwood!" she called tempestuously.

"Didn't you find it?" he countered blandly.

"What you sought, Mrs. Hallam."

Smiling, he bore unflinching the prolonged inspection of her eyes, at once somber with doubt of him and flashing with indignation because of his impudence.

"You knew I wouldn't find it, then, didn't you?"

"I may have suspected you wouldn't."

Now he was sure that she had been searching for the gladstone bag. That evidently was the bone of contention. Calendar had sent his daughter for it, Mrs. Hallam her son. Dorothy had been successful. But, on the other hand, Calendar and Mrs. Hallam were unquestionably allies. Why, then——

"Where is it, Mr. Kirkwood?"

"Madam, have you the right to know?"

Through another lengthening pause while they faced each other he marked again the curious contraction of her underlip.

"I have the right," she declared steadily. "Where is it?"

"How can I be sure?"

"Then you don't know!"

"Indeed," he interrupted, "I would be glad to feel that I ought to tell you what I know."

"What you know!"

The exclamation, low spoken, more an echo of her thoughts than intended for Kirkwood, was accompanied by a little shake of the woman's head, mute evidence to the fact that she was bewildered by his finesse. And this delighted the young man beyond measure, making him feel himself master of a difficult situation.

The woman would have led again, but young Hallam cut in none too courteously:

"I say, mamma, it's no good standin' here palaverin' like a lot of flats. Besides, I'm awf'ly knocked up. Let's get home and have it out there."

Instantly his mother softened. "My poor boy! Of course we'll go."

As they passed out Kirkwood shut the door, and at the same moment the little party was brought up standing by a gruff and authoritative summons: "Just a minute, please, you there!"

"Aha!" said Kirkwood to himself. "I thought so. And he halted in unfeigned respect for the burly and impressive figure, garbed in blue and brass, barring the way to the carriage.

Mrs. Hallam showed less deference for the obstructionist. The assumed hauteur and impatience of her pose were artfully reflected in her voice as she rounded upon the bobby with an indignant demand, "What is the meaning of this, officer?"

"Precisely what I wants to know, ma'am," returned the man, unyielding beneath his respectful attitude. "I'm obliged to ask you to tell me what you were doing in that 'ouse. And what's the matter with this 'ere gentleman?" he added, with a dubious stare at young Hallam's bandaged head and rumpled clothing.

"Perhaps you don't understand," admitted Mrs. Hallam sweetly. "Of course—I see—it's perfectly natural. The house has been shut up for some time and"—

"Thank you, ma'am, that's just it. There was something wrong going on early in the evening, and I was told to keep an eye on the premises. It's duty, ma'am. I've got my report to make."

"The house," said Mrs. Hallam, with the long suffering patience of one elucidating a perfectly plain proposition to a being of a lower order of intelligence, "is the property of my son, Arthur Frederick Burgoyne Hallam of Cornwall. This is"—

"Beg pardon, ma'am, but I was told Colonel George Burgoyne of Cornwall"—

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Batman have been entertaining the Misses Alice and Ida Pratt of Whitinville at their summer home on Hunt's Hill Wessagusett Beach.

In the electrical storm Sunday Dr. Ross' house in East Milton was struck by lightning and quite a little damage done. There was no one at home at the time.

Robert Sibley of Grand View avenue a popular employe of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co., is spending his vacation, cruising the Maine coast, accompanied by two friends.

Mrs. Bavin of 38 Elm place is a great lover of flowers. Beside many colors in stock, sweet peas, snap dragons, nasturtiums, and others too numerous to mention, she has a bunch of Easter lilies containing 18 buds.

A large party of the Eagles of Brockton and a party from Boston lodge Knights of Columbus held outings at Hanley's grove Sunday. Chief Burrell had officers at the grove and extra officers on duty in City Square but there was no trouble of any kind. Both the picnic parties were very orderly.

Unique decorations were the features of the first of a series of three summer hops held at the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday evening. On each side of the runway leading to the club were hung many Japanese lanterns combined with which were many stalks of tasseled corn. The reflection of these in the waters of the bay left an effect which was picturesque to say the least. In the hall of the club cornstalks were again the scheme of decoration this time combined with flowers, flags and other streamers. A large assemblage enjoyed dancing to a late hour to the music of a good orchestra.

BRIEFS

A moonlight sail and dance is to be held this evening at the Wollaston Yacht club.

The pop concert of the Squantum Yacht club scheduled for Tuesday evening, August 31, has been postponed until further notice.

The sudden and furious storm on Sunday caused many Sunday promenaders on the boulevard at Wollaston beach to beat a hasty retreat to shelter. A grand view of the play of lightning could be seen from the beach many of the bolts burying themselves in the sea. One yacht after beating back and forth once or twice had to be beached near he bluff by its owners.

GRAND ILLUMINATION.

Summer Residents of Post Island Hold Annual Event.

One of the events that marks the approach of the close of the summer season at the shore resorts is the annual illumination. Such an event was held Saturday evening by the cottages of Post Island and Adams shore and was under the auspices of the Post Island yacht club.

All the boats in the bay were illuminated with colored lights and along the water front was a row of colored lanterns. All the cottagers kept open house and many of them were illuminated.

ALL SORTS.

The Red Devil Democracy of Boston held an outing at Squantum Saturday. Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald and Congressman O'Connell were among the speakers.

Newport society women are now wearing jewelry during the day time. Up to the present time it was considered bad taste to be loaded down with gems in the day time.

The aeronaut at Paragon Park, who makes the parachute jump had a narrow escape Sunday. When up a short distance the balloon burst. The rProfessor did not dare to let the parachute go as he was too near the ground. He landed with the balloon near the Rockland house. He was taken up unconscious but soon revived.

President Taft has lost 35 pounds of his surplus flesh since he has been at Beverly. He is now taking the salt water treatment for reducing his weight.

There was the usual number of fatal automobile accidents Sunday. The great trouble seems to be that cars are run at a rapid speed by irresponsible persons.

The body of a farmer, which had been dead a month was found hanging to a tree in the woods at Waltham Sunday.

Miss Helen V. Newton who was married to James N. Jarvie at Montclair, N. J., last week was presented by her husband with a wedding gift of $1,000,000.

After many trials, that failed, one man has succeeded in swimming out as far as Boston light. He is Alois Anderle of New York who made the distance in five hours and forty minutes.

One man at Hanover Four corners has rendered a bill for $1,500 for the use of his field one night by the invading army in the recent sham battle.

Now it is an Argentine engineer who comes forward with a proposition to raise the Maine. His proposition is being considered.

EACH COUNTRY HAS WON CUP

Two Prizes Are Put Up For Sonder Races This Year

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 30.—The most important international contest this season in the yachting world begun today with the opening of the race of the third German-American racing series for the sonder type of boat, under the joint auspices of the Kaiserlich Yacht club of Kiel and Eastern Yacht club of Boston.

Each country has won a series, the Americans taking the first for the Roosevelt cup off Marblehead in 1906, while the next year the Teutonic yachtsmen retaliated by capturing the emperor's cup in the races off Kiel. The incentives for the races this year are the President Taft and Governor Draper cups.

As usual, each of the two countries is represented by a team of three yachts, the German trio being the Hevella, Margarethe and Seehund II, while the American boats are the Ellen, Joyette and Wolf. Under the conditions governing these contests, the boats of each nation are designed and built at home, and their construction also is entirely of home products. Carrying the idea still further, the yachts are sailed by Corinthian crews, no professionals being allowed on board.

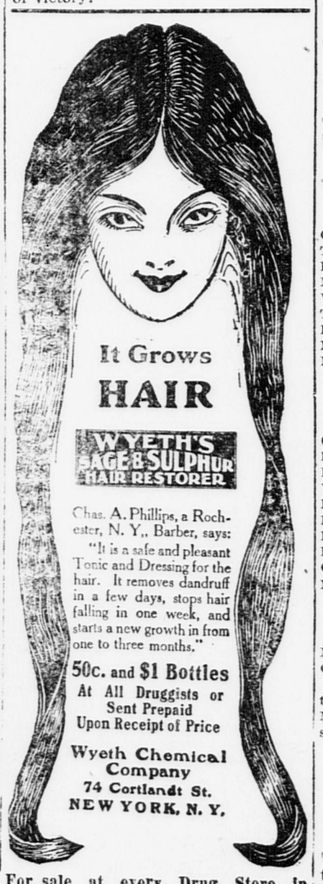

The sonder, or special type of boat, is a small yacht of about 35 feet overall, but which is restricted in its design and construction by the following conditions:

It must have a displacement of less than 4020 pounds, the total of its water line length, beam and draught must not exceed 32 feet; its sail area is limited to 550 square feet, and its total cost not to be over $2400.

Sonder yacht sailing is exciting sport, for the boats are very delicately balanced and work very quickly, both on and off the wind. The courses are either twelve and fifteen miles, the windward and leeward being twice to a mark three miles from the start and the other course twice around a triangle of two and a half miles to the side. These courses are sailed on alternate days.

As in the big cup races off Sandy Hook, the course will be kept clear by revenue cutter officers acting under the department of commerce and labor, as provided in the governmental regulations for aquatic contests.

From the construction of the six boats it is apparent that the races this year will be more closely contested than ever before, and that helmsmanship and clever work in sail handling will weigh considerably in the scale of victory.

Chas. A. Phillips, a Rochester, N. Y., Barber, says: "It is a safe and pleasant Tonic and Dressing for the hair. It removes dandruff in a few days, stops hair falling in one week, and starts a new growth in from one to three months."

THE LEAGUE STANDING.

All three leaders won their games Saturday in the Old Colony league series and the triple tie for leading honors remains unbroken. Rockland defeated Taunton 7 to 3, and Dewey took Randolph into camp 4 to 1. Quincy goes into fifth place by reason of its defeat by Stoughton, while Taunton though defeated, goes into fourth position. Randolph still remains at the foot of the ladder. The standing.

MAKARIA 8, CUNNINGHAM 5.

Makaria kept up their winning streak Saturday by defeating Cunningham Gym at East Milton in fast game, which had many fine features. The work of Hoxie at second was the best seen this season while Whitney behind the bat was there with the goods getting two hits. For Makaria Nicoll was the star. This is his first game for two months on account of his sprained ankle. Mattie got two hits out of four times up, driving in four runs and also making a great stop in the ninth.

Tupper was there with the stick, getting two hits and playing a fast game in the field while the stop of R. Ganzel at third in the first inning was splendid. Wes Ganzel at first got four grounders unassisted. Michael pitched a great game, and with Troupe catching Makaria certainly had a swell battery.

The work of the team as a whole was fast and they showed great force. Makaria plays the rubber game with Cunningham Gym in the morning Labor Day.

EXCELSUS 21; RED SOX 1.

In a one-sided game on Saturday afternoon the Excelsus Class of Wollaston easily defeated the Quincy Red Sox by a score of 21 to 1.

Pletch pitched good ball for the winners, allowing but three hits. A clean three-bagger to right field in the sixth followed by a single brought in the only run of the game for the Red Sox.

Excelsus lead from the start, finding Clarke the Red Sox pitcher early in the game. As he received but poor support the trips around the bags were many, Excelsus scoring seven runs in the eighth inning alone.

Manning, Pletch and M. Chapman played good ball for the winners. The batteries were: Pletch and H. Chapman for Excelsus and Clarke and Gisbon for the Red Sox.

The Excelsus class has had a fine slate this season winning 15 out of 19 games played. On next Saturday at Ward 2 an interesting and exciting game is promised when they clash with the Bigelows in the first of a series of three games for the eighteen-year-old championship of Quincy.

Excelsus has lost to the Longwood A. A., the Bigelow A. A. and the Pontiac A. C., this year one or two games being early in the season.

Among the teams defeated are: the Glover A. C., Orients of Somerville, St. Marks A. A., Commonwealth A. C. and Brookside A. C.

FORE RIVER 9; WHITE SOX 3.

One of the events at the annual field day of the veteran firemen of Braintree at Weymouth Saturday was the rubber game of ball between the Fore River Apprentice nine and the Whit Sox of Braintree for a massive silver cup.

The Fore River boys put up a great game and won the series and the cup by a score of 9 to 3. The Fore River boys are now after 17 year old championship. Up to the present time they have won 12 out of the 20 games played. The summary of Saturday's game.

MIDDLEBORO 11, QUINCY 0.

Quincy suffered defeat Saturday at the hands of the Middleboros to the tune of 11 to 0. Although poorly supported Quincy making 16 errors, Stan Bates who pitched for Quincy allowed only six hits, three of these being of the scratch order and no two hits in any innings.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Ray was fined $15 and George Baxter $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

QUINCY'S TAX RATE REDUCED 10 CENTS

Rate This Year is $20.40 Per $1,000. Increase of Over $1,000,000 in Valuation

In line with other cities of the Commonwealth, Quincy's tax rate has been reduced this year from what it was last year. While the reduction is but ten cents on the thousand it is very welcome to the tax payers.

The reduction in the rate was made possible by the increase in valuation as well as by the decrease in the state tax. The total valuation as announced by the assessors this morning is $29,944,965 as against $28,616,265 last year an increase of $1,328,700. The increase in real estate was $1,049,375 and in personal estate, including resident bank stock, $259,325.

That Quincy is growing rapidly is shown by the increase in valuation since she became a city in 1888. The total valuation of the city at that time was $9,757,960 the total increase in 21 years being $20,187,005.

While the state tax this year is $7,830 less than last year the county tax is $2,689.24 more making a total decrease in the total of the state and county tax of $5,140.76.

The increase in municipal expenses is $16,353.13 and the city debt from $105,670 in 1898 to $108,985 in 1909. The interest on the city, park, street improvement debts and temporary loan amounts to $42,480 as against $38,932 in 1908. The number of polls is 9,415 as against 9,518 last year. The Mayor however is congratulated on having been able to reduce the tax rate from $20.50 in 1908 to $20.40 for 1909.

ANOTHER YACHT STOLEN.

The "Shoofly" Owned by Ralph E. Winslow Stolen from her Moorings.

The yacht "Shoofly" owned by Ralph E. Winslow was stolen from her moorings off Houghs Neck Monday night. The "Shoofly" is a keel knockabout 24 feet overall, 16 feet waterline and 6 feet 6 inches beam. She is painted white on the outside with green bottom. She is one of the so-called one design Hull 15 footers. To steal a mans' boat is the meanest kind of robbery and if caught the offenders should be harshly dealt with. This is the second boat that has been stolen from off Houghs Neck within a few days.

This morning the yacht was found anchored in Nantasket roads off Peddocks island, and appearances would indicate that the parties who stole her had anchored her, for some reason.

CITY CAUCUSES.

Information for Voters of the Democratic Party for Coming Caucuses.

Nomination papers may be obtained of the secretary of the city committee on and after Sept. 1. and must be filed between Wednesday Sept. 8, and Thursday Sept. 9.

The number of delegates each ward is entitled to is as follows: Ward One 1, Ward Two, 1; Ward Three, 1; Ward Four, 2; Ward Five, 1; Ward Six, 1.

BARBOUR—DREW.

A very pretty wedding ceremony was observed at the Wollaston Baptist church on Monday afternoon when Miss Bessie May Drew of Wollaston became the bride of Rev. Harris Merrill Barbour of Arlington Heights.

The ceremony was performed by the father of the groom, Rev. Thomas S. Barbour D. D., foreign secretary of the American Baptist Missionary union, assisted by Rev. Joseph Walther of the Wollaston Baptist church. The bride was simply gowned in white batiste and carried a bouquet of pond lilies and ferns. She was given away by her father, George E. Drew of Wollaston.

Both young people are popular and well known in Wollaston, having lived there many years. The groom was graduated from the Newton Theological institute last June and immediately accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church at Arlington Heights. The bride is a graduate of Boston University.

The church was well filled, upwards of three hundred guests being present many prominent ministers of the Baptist denomination attending. The ushers were George K. Drew and Nathan C. Drew, brothers of the bride and Misses Florence and Gertrude Barbour, sisters of the groom.

A large number of young ladies were present from the Gamma Phi at Boston University, a Greek letter society of which the bride was a member.

The church was tastefully decorated with wild flowers consisting of bayberry, cat briar and golden rod. The altar before which the couple stood was also banked with wild flowers.

Among those attending were: Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Towne of Plaistow, N. H., Rev. L. L. Henson, D. D., of Providence, R. I., Rev. George T. Bullen D. D., of Boston; Rev. Robert Van Kirk of West Newton; Rev. Frederick T. Haggard, secretary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary society, Boston; Rev. C. H. Watson, D. D., formerly of Arlington; Rev. and Mrs. Preston Gurney of Wollaston; and Rev. George Huntington of Central Falls, R. I.

Following the wedding an informal reception was held at 38 South Central avenue, the residence of the bride's father.

The couple were the recipients of a multitude of beautiful and costly presents, one small room at the Drew residence being filled with nothing else.

Amid a shower of confetti and good wishes the pair left for a honeymoon at the Rangely lakes.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Barbour will be at home to their friends at 46 Westminister avenue, Arlington Heights.

CHALLENGE FROM MAKARIA

Willing to Meet Atlantics to Settle Championship

Makaria's so called dictating consisted in wanting clean base ball which the Royal Rooters at Atlantic will not allow on their home grounds when it happens to be against Atlantic. Personally Makaria knows that the Atlantic team is composed of as clean a bunch as you would want to play, but just the same in the recollection of the writer the Atlantic team has not lost a game on their dear Ward 6 grounds except to Makaria which shows that Makaria must have played some base ball and the Makaria team refuses to play in Atlantic on account of the crowd and also the poor field which is not full size on account of short rightfield and a very poor infield while Merrymount Park is the best field in the city.

In speaking of the Malden Athletics they had the lead on Atlantic until the 7th inning and the Malden Athletics had their first baseman pitching for them, not Morey who pitched against the Makaria team. Also, Morey beat Reading last Saturday in Reading 4 to 2 and Reading had Simpson pitching who had it on Atlantic when they played in Reading.

Makaria is willing to play the rubber game but will not play in Atlantic as it is impossible to get a square deal, and knows this not from hearsay but from experience. If Atlantic wants to play, a game might be arranged on neutral grounds.

ARRESTS MADE.

Men Alleged to have Assaulted Calixte Rogers Under Arrest.

Alexander J. McKee, Albert Vanner and Frederick Mellow were arrested by Inspector McKay Monday for assault on Calixte Rogers at his home 329 Water street early Sunday morning.

The three men are alleged to have called at Rogers door about 2 o'clock Sunday morning and after making some inquiries about a boarder made an assault.

Mr. Rogers was struck on the face with a stone, some empty beer bottles and by a man's fist.

He chased the men but they got away. He however recognized one of them and as a result McKee of 233 Water street was arrested. From information received from him the arrest of Vanner and Mellow who reside at 231 Water street followed.

It is claimed by the police that Mellow admitted hitting Rogers with his fist but denied using any stone or bottle. The stone and bottles that it is claimed were used in the assault were given the police by Mr. Rogers. The three men were arraigned in court this morning.

THE MORNING FIRE.

Blue Flame Oil Stove Starts Lively Fire in House of Henry P. Fitton.

There was a lively blaze this morning in what is known as the Haven house on Newport avenue owned and occupied by Henry P. Fitton. The fire started in the kitchen and was caused by a blue flame oil stove taking fire.

Mr. Fitton strove to extinguish the fire himself but finding that it was getting the best of him telephoned to the Wollaston fire station. The Wollaston apparatus was quickly on the scene. The firemen found that the fire had worked into the ceiling and behind the walls and fearing that they would be unable to handle it sent a boy to sound an alarm from Box 56. This box, which sounded at 6.59 brought Chief Williams and assistance from the central station.

By this time the house was filled with smoke and from the outside it looked like a serious fire.

Nothing but chemical streams were used in the extinguishing of the fire but it was necessary to chop away the walls somewhat to get at it. This caused the loss to be more than it otherwise would have been. Chief Williams estimates the loss on the building at $250 and on contents $200. The chief loss to the contents was caused by smoke which penetrated every part of the building.

CASCO BAY CRUISE.

Commodore Dawes and Party Have a Fine Trip on the "Thordis."

Commodore F. E. Dawes Ex-Commodore W. M. Chase and Albert E. Kingsbury of the Wollaston Yacht club who started on a week's cruise August 21 reached Wollaston Sunday night. Leaving the club house at midnight Saturday, they anchored off Marblehead early the next morning, made Annisquam Sunday noon dropping anchor off the yacht club. Passing the Isle of Shoals they made Wood Island harbor and anchored for the night. Tuesday they made Portland, touched at South Freeport and had dinner at Casco Castle and on Wednesday enjoyed the beautiful sail up through Middle bay and back, making Harpswell harbor in the afternoon and enjoyed the hospitality of Captain Wiley and his family of Highland avenue at their summer home. Leaving early the next morning in a light wind and dense fog they made Peaks Island. Leaving Portland at 7 A. M. Friday a stiff north west wind blowing they passed Bug Light at 11 P. M. On Saturday the "Thordis" entered the race of the Quincy Yacht club, after which a run down the South shore and back to the Wollaston club house brought a delightful cruise to an end.

HAVE MADE A GREAT RECORD

Fore River Apprentices Claim Amateur Championship

The Fore River apprentices are out after the sixteen to eighteen year old championship of Quincy and if they keep up the good record they have made thus far on the diamond the ribbon will go to them at the end of the season. Without question they have one of the strongest amateur teams in the city. During the present season they have met and conquered some of crack amateur teams and have a record of 12 wins out of the twenty games played.

Their first game of the season was with the Blacksmiths which they won by a score of 15 to 7. They then suffered three defeats losing one game to the Makaria by a score of 2 to 14 and two games to the Bigelows, the first by a score of 0 to 5 and the second by a score of 6 to 7.

By this time the boys had become seasoned and started in to win a few games. The next seven games found them victors. In this series they met such teams as the Russells of Malden, who had won every game played for the past two years, defeating them by a score of 12 to 10. Other teams defeated in this series were the White Sox of Braintree, the U. U. S. Salem, Foundry and Blacksmiths, Main office, Norfolk A. A. and Hemlocks.

By this time the boys were being looked upon as well nigh invincible. They however lost the next two games, the first to the General Electric Apprentices and the second to the Royal White Sox. The next two games they won one being from the Pipe Shop and the second from the Red Sox of Wollaston. They got up against the Adams A. A. on the Water street grounds and lost.

The following week they met the Wollaston Red Sox again and scored another victory winning by a score of 7 to 4. The next two games they lost one being to the Hemlocks and the other to the General Electric Apprentices. Last Saturday they met the Royal Red Sox of Weymouth and gave them a decisive defeat by a score of 9 to 3. This was the final game in a series for a handsome silver cup, which was handed over to the Apprentice boys at the close of the game.

They have three more scheduled games this season. Next Saturday they are to meet the Bryant A. C. and on Labor day they play two games, meeting the Clifton A. C. in the morning and the Dorchester Centers, at Dorchester in the afternoon.

In addition to making a good record on the base ball diamond the boys have secured a number of victories in field events during the season. They will enter Hackett, the fast runner, in the Marathon race under the auspices of the Brockton fair and on Labor day they have entered fourteen men in the field day events of the Lotus club of Boston.

ONE WEAK SPOT

Most Quincy People have a Weak Part And Too Often It's The Back.

Everyone has a weak spot.
Too often it's a bad back.
Twinges follow every sudden twist.
Dull aching keeps up, day and night
Tells you the kidneys need help—
For backache is really kidney-ache.
A kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,
Cure back ache and all urinary ills.
Quincy people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. F. Olsen, living at 197 Whitwell street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair no more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my loins. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store, began their use, and received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks' time my health was restored and I felt better generally. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

CENSUS SPECIAL AGENTS.

The formulation of the Census schedules, upon which the enumerators will enter the information they secure next April, is one of the most important subjects now before U. S. Census Director Durand and Assistant Director Willoughby.

The Census law authorizes the Director to determine the form and subdivision of the inquiries necessary to secure the information ordered by Congress.

To assist in this work Director Durand has secured the cooperation of a score or more of experts in statistics, economics, agriculture, manufactures, etc. They have been appointed expert special agents to serve for a short time while the work of formulating plans are underway and are now assembled in Washington. The agriculture, manufactures, and population schedules are the principal ones under current discussion.

In the formulation of the agricultural schedule four of these experts are acting as conferees, J. L. Coulter, H. C. Taylor, G. F. Warren, Jr., and Thos. M. Carver.

Mr. Coulter is instructor in agricultural economics in the University of Minnesota. He is also a special agent of the State Board of Health. He received the degree of A. B. from the University of North Dakota, 1904; and Ph. D., from the University of Wisconsin, 1908. He is an economist, statistician and lawyer. He resides in Minneapolis. Mr. Taylor is professor of agricultural economics in the university of Wisconsin. He has won the degree of M. S. (Agr.) from the Iowa Agricultural College; that of Ph. D., from the University of Wisconsin; and finished his academic career at the London School of Economics and the University of Berlin. He is a specialist in economic problems in agriculture. Mr. Warren is professor of farm management and farm crops in Cornell University. He is a B. Sc., of the University of Nebraska; a B. S. A., an M. S. A., and a Ph. D., of Cornell He lives at Ithaca, New York. Mr. Carver is a professor of economics in Harvard University, a Ph. D., of Cornell and was formerly assistant editor of the Economic Bulletin. He is a writer of economic subjects in various reviews.

Those at work on the manufactures schedule are Spurgeon Bell, Arthur J. Boynton, C. W. Doten, E. D. Howard, Emil P. Secker, W. M. Persons, Horace Secrist, A. H. Willett, and Alvin S. Johnson. Mr. Bell was formerly assistant editor of the "Economist." He is a B. S. of the University of Texas. He was also in graduate work in economics in the University of Chicago. His home is in Chicago. Mr. Boynton is assistant professor of economics in the University of Kansas. He is an Harvard A. B. and A. M., of Columbia. He resides at Lawrence, Kansas. Mr. Doten is assistant professor of economics in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He holds the degrees of A. M., and Ph. D., from the University of Vermont, and also A. M., from Harvard. Mr. Howard is assistant professor of economics in Northwestern University The degrees of Ph. B., Ph. M., and Ph. D., have been conferred upon him by the University of Chicago. He lives at Evanston, Illinois. Mr. Secker is an expert on manufacturing industries, and resides in St. Louis, Missouri. Mr. Persons is assistant professor of finance in Dartmouth College. He is a B. S., of the University of Wisconsin, and has performed expert statistical work for the Department of Commerce and Labor. Mr. Secrist is instructor of economics in the university of Wisconsin. For a time he was a special agent of the Bureau of Corporations, Department of Commerce and Labor. He lives at Madison, Wisconsin. Mr. Willett is professor of economics in the Carnegie Technical School. He holds the degree of A. B., from Brown University, and of Ph. D., from Columbia. He is an authority on political economy. His home is at Shales, Pa. Mr. Johnson is an A. M., and A. B., of the University of Nebraska and a Ph. D., of Columbia. He is a statistician of wide experience. He resides at Chicago.

On the schedule for population W. B. Bailey is advising. He is professor of political economy at Yale University. His alma mater, old Eli, has given him the degrees A. B., and Ph. D. His home is in Springfield, Massachusetts.

On the dependent classes subject B. Miller ,an expert in social statistics, is engaged. Other special agents appointed because of their fitness along the lines pursued by the Census Bureau have been added to the regular office by Director Durand. Alexander Bowie, ranch man, and cattle and sheep raiser, at Wheatland, Laramie County, Wyoming, has been placed in the division of agriculture under Chief Statistician, LeGrand Powers. The subject of animals on ranches has been assigned to Mr. Bowie. Willard E. Hotchkiss of Evanston, Cook County, Ill., by profession a teacher, and also a Ph. B., A. M. and Ph. D., of Cornell University, has been assigned to the population division, under Chief Statistician W. C. Hunt, and the question of methods of enumerating the population is being considered by him.

In the division of manufactures, under Chief Statistician Wm. M. Steuart, the Director has placed Otis B. Goodall, formerly private secretary to the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor, whose experience in the government service dates back to 1890, and who has been made a field special agent on the subject of cotton ginning. Isaac A. Hourwich, of New York City, an expert on municipal and governmental subjects, has been made a special agent and assigned to the subject of mines and mining. Max O. Lorenz has been appointed to a special agency on the subject of the furniture industry. Alfred H. Marsh has been made a special agent on the subject of naval stores. Daniel C. Roper is another special agent, assigned to the cotton ginning inquiry. Chas. E. Stangeland, a professor of political economy in the State College at Pullman, Wash., has been given a special agency and is looking into mines and mining. Chas. H. Stevenson, formerly of the Bureau of Fisheries, has been appointed a special agent and represents the Census Bureau in its joint work with the Bureau of Fisheries. George R. Wicker, formerly of the government service, has been made special agent to investigate electric railway reports.

Temporary appointments as special agents for taking the Census of Alaska comprise Wm. T. Lopp, Wm. A. McKensie, Jas. H. Romig, and Andrew H. Thompson.

HARR MAN ALL RIGHT

Financier Says That Is the Conclusion Reached by Specialists

Arden, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Edward H. Harriman, urged by weary representatives of the press who have camped about his mountain home since Wednesday last, came out in the open with a statement that he was all right.

Though brief, the statement is straightforward and explicit and concludes thus frankly:

"If there should be anything serious I will let the press know, and as I have never deceived them, I ask that the press now withdraw its representatives and rely on me."

In the statement Harriman admitted that there had been a consultation of specialists at his house, but that they had decided that there was nothing serious the matter with him. He did not mention the possibility of an operation.

The message was so characteristic of Harriman's affable attitude to newspaper representatives that most of the men who have been here during the scare over his illness returned to New York last night, relying on his word.

NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH

Earl Gray, Lost In Woods, Is Rescued by a Searching Party

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 31.—Earl Gray, governor general of Canada, who returned here from Dawson and Skagway by the government steamer Quadra, had a narrow escape from death when lost in the woods of Jervis Inlet for five and a half hours last Saturday when on a shooting expedition, without companion other than his dog. He nearly fell over a precipice in the darkness.

He was rescued by one of the many searching parties sent into the woods after fires had been built along the shore line to attract the lost man's attention. He was utterly exhausted when found and his clothing was badly torn.

A Melrose man has invented an air ship that will carry forty-five passengers, rapid fire guns and dynamite tubes. The ship looks fine on paper. If he can interest capitalists to advance the necessary "dough," he will build a model.

Jimmie Dolan of South Boston likes pie. At a pie eating match Jimmie with his hands tied behind his back got outside of four large blueberry pies in one minute and twelve seconds, and it was not much of a day for pie either.

Clerks and others in the employ of the City of Boston who make assignments of their wages are likely to be looking for new jobs. The Finance Commission has put its stamp of disapproval on the practice.

The first of this year's crop of cranberries will be shipped from Cape Cod this week. Most of the berries this year are well filled out and in good color. Those in the lower Cape district however are not quite as good.

It is said that the colored checks used by Chinese laundry men are really nothing more than names of Chinese sea gods with the date and number attached.

Some careless person in Boston mailed a hundred dollar bill in a letter to a New York party that can not be found. There was no writing of any kind in the letter, which is now at the dead letter office. It looks like a case of the fool and his money soon parted.

Fort Massachusetts chapter D. A. R., is to honor soldiers of 1776 in a boulder that is to be dedicated at North Adams Sept. 8.

Thomas Durnam of Cambridge while suffering from night mare hurled himself through a third story window and fell to the gound. It is somewhat remarkable that he escaped without any broken bones.

BRINGS IN $27,000

Sweep Wins Blue Ribbon Event of American Turf For Youngsters

New York, Aug. 31.—So hard held that his head lay almost in his rider's lap, and yet, withal, maintaining his graceful, fleet stride, James R. Keene's Sweep won the twenty-second futurity at Sheepshead Bay.

Five lengths back, ridden out with whip and heel to beat Sweep's stable mate, Grasmere, a short length for the place, staggered the tired Montpelier stable's candidate, Candleberry. Angerona was a fairly good fourth, but the other nine contesting 2-year-olds were beaten off and well strung out over a furlong.

The time for the six furlongs was 1:11 4-5. Sweep's share of the purse of $31,000 was $27,000.

OLD STEAMER DESTROYED

The Norwich, Built Seventy Years Ago, Becomes Prey of Flames

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 31.—The Norwich, said to have been the oldest steamboat in active use, was burned to the waterline at her dock here last night. The old side-wheeler had for many decades been used to break up the ice in the Hudson river every spring at the beginning of the towing season.

The Norwich, which was built seventy years ago, was to have taken a prominent part in the Hudson-Fulton celebration this fall. The loss to her owners is about $50,000.

UNHURT BY GREAT FALL

Man Awakened From Siesta Tumbles Five Stories to the Ground

Hastings, N. Y., Aug. 31.—After falling from the roof of a five-story building here, Henry Breslin, 25 years old, got up, shook himself, walked unhurt into the building and resumed his work there.

Breslin, who is a plasterer, had gone to the roof for a nap during his noon hour. He was suddenly awakened by the call of a fellow workman, and jumping up, lost his balance and fell.

BODY OF SUTTON TO BE DISINTERRED

Mother's Plans to Be Governed by Result of Autopsy

Washington, Aug. 31.—A permit was granted last night to Mrs. James N. Sutton to have the body of her son, Lieutenant James N. Sutton, which is buried in Arlington National cemetery, disinterred and an autopsy performed.

Mrs. Sutton says that her plans for the future will be governed by the conditions found to exist after the grave is opened and an examination is made. If it is shown that Sutton struggled with his combatants the case will be carried to the civil courts and in all probability a congressional investigation will be demanded.

AN ECLIPSE OF MARS

Will Occur Tomorrow Night and Be Visible to the Naked Eye

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 31.—An interesting eclipse of Mars by the moon, visible throughout the United States, will occur tomorrow evening, Sept. 1, according to a bulletin issued by Professor Brooks at Smith observatory.

The phenomenon will last about an hour, beginning, in the longitude of Washington, at 8:42 p. m., and ending at 9:39. At places west of Washington the occultation will occur earlier and at places east of Washington, later.

The eclipse will be visible to the naved eye, but the use of a small field glass, which will bring it clearly within observation, is advised by Brooks.

Double Murder and Suicide

Delhi, Minn., Aug. 31.—William Tibbetts, a wealthy farmer living near here, killed Cecil Norton, the 15-year-old daughter of his housekeeper, his daughter, Dorothy Tibbetts, 12 years old, set fire to his home and then hanged himself. Everything indicates an assault by Tibbetts on the Norton girl.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—In London Philip Kirkwood, a young American painter, learns that the San Francisco disaster has cost him his fortune and decides to return home to the stricken city. His elderly English friend, Brentwick, visits him, and he meets George B. Calendar, an American whom he believes to be an adventurer. II—Before leaving his hotel for the boat train Kirkwood dines at the hotel. In the dinning room he sees Calendar receives a note of warning from a fashionably dressed woman. He is then asked by the American, who admits without giving a reason that he fears arrest, to escort his young and beautiful daughter home. Kirkwood consents. III—Kirkwood takes Dorothy Calendar to a seemingly unoccupied house at No. 9 Frognall street, in a shabby-genteel quarter of London, where he leaves the girl at her request. IV—Drawn back to the house by curiosity, Kirkwood sees the door of the dark house ajar. He throws off a cockney who tries to detain him, enters the house and bolts the door. On the staircase he has a tussle with a slender man in evening dress. The latter is knocked unconscious by a fall downstairs. Kirkwood is then rejoined by Dorothy, who is glad to see him but does not explain the mystery of the gloomy house. Heavy raps at the front door startle the two. V—Dorothy and Kirkwood, the latter questioning himself whether or not he has fallen in love with the girl, flee from the mysterious house by the rear door. The girl takes with her a small black gladstone bag, which, she says, she is to take to her father. VI—In a cab Kirkwood escorts her to the house of a Mrs. Hallam in fashionable Craven street, where, she declares, her father is to meet her. Kirkwood leaves her in the cab and enters the house to learn whether Calendar is there. He meets Mrs. Hallam and recognizes her as the woman who warned Calendar in the hotel. As Kirkwood talks to her he hears a man leave the house. Together Mrs. Hallam and Kirkwood go to the door to call Dorothy in and find that the girl and the cab have vanished. VII—Calendar appears at the Hallam house in search of Dorothy. Kirkwood accompanies him at his request to an unsavory locality on the Thames. VIII—Calendar meets his daughter in the company of a man named Mulready, evidently his companion in some strange nefarious enterprise. Mulready, it seems, has tried to kidnap Dorothy in Kirkwood's cab. Calendar and Mulready quarrel, after which the girl and the two men row off to board a vessel referred to as the Alethea, leaving Kirkwood to find his way in a cab to St. Pancras station, where he is to take the midnight train for his steamer. He is now thoroughly in love with Dorothy. IX and X—Kirkwood just misses his train and finds himself almost penniless. After wandering about for two hours he is again in Frognall street. He enters the house to seek his missing purse and finds the young man whom he had knocked down still unconscious after six hours. Kirkwood's ministrations to him are interrupted by the entrance into the house of a woman in evening dress. XI and XII—The woman is Mrs. Hallam, and the injured young man is her son.

"Colonel Burgoyne died some time ago. My son is his heir. This is my son. He came to the house this evening to get some property he desired and, it seems, tripped on the stairs and fell unconscious. I became worried about him and drove over, accompanied by my friend Mr. Kirkwood."

The policeman looked his troubled state of mind and wagged a doubtful head over the case. There was his duty, and there was, opposed to it, the fact that all three were garbed in the livery of the well to do.

At length, turning to the driver, he demanded, received and noted in his memorandum book the ligense number of the equipage.

"It's a very unusual case, ma'am," he apologized. "I 'opes you won't 'old it against me. I'm only trying to do my duty"—

"And safeguard our property. You are perfectly justified, officer."

"Thank you, ma'am. And would you mind giving me your cards, please, all of you?"

"Certainly not." Without hesitation the woman took a little hand bag from the seat of the carriage and produced a card. Her son likewise found his case and handed the officer an oblong slip.

"I've no cards with me," the American told the policeman. "My name, however, is Philip Kirkwood, and I'm staying at the Piess."

"Very good, sir; thank you." The man pencilled the information in his little book. "Thank you, ma'am, and Mr. Hallam, sir. Sorry to have detained you. Good morning."

Kirkwood helped young Hallam into the carriage, gave Mrs. Hallam his hand and followed her. The man Eccles shut the door, mounting the box beside the driver. Immediately they were in motion.

CHAPTER XII.

THE American got a final glimpse of the bobby, standing in front of No. 9 Frognall street and watching them with an air of profound uncertainty. He had Kirkwood's sympathy therein, but he had little time to feel with him, for Mrs. Hallam turned upon him very suddenly.

"Mr. Kirkwood, will you be good enough to tell me who and what you are?"

The young man smiled his homely, candid smile. "I'll be only too glad, Mrs. Hallam, when I feel sure you'll do as much for yourself."

She gave him no answer. It was as if she were choosing words. Kirkwood braced himself to meet the storm, but none ensued. There was rather a lull, which strung itself out indefinitely to the monotonous music of hoofs and rubber tires.

The carriage stopped before a house with lighted windows. Eccles jumped down from the box and scurried to open the front door.

They were returned to Craven street! "One more lap round the track!" mused Kirkwood. "Wonder will the next take me back to Bermondsey Old Stairs."

At Mrs. Hallam's direction, Eccles ushered him into the smoking room, on the ground floor in the rear of the dwelling, there to wait while she helped her son upstairs and to bed. He sighed with pleasure at first glimpse of its luxurious but informal comforts and threw himself carelessly into a heavily padded lounging chair, dropping one knee over the other and lighting the last of his expensive cigars with a sensation of undiluted gratitude, as one coming to rest in the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. He was very sleepy.

Through the halls, on the stairs, there were hurryings and scurryings of feet and skirts, confused with murmuring voices. Presently, in an adjoining room, Philip Kirkwood heard a maidservant wrestling hopefully with that most exasperating of modern time saving devices, the telephone as countenanced by our English cousins. Her patience and determination won his approval, but availed nothing for her purpose. In the outcome the telephone triumphed, and the maid gave up the unequal contest.

Later a butler entered the room, a short and sturdy fellow, extremely ill at ease. Drawing a small taboret to the side of Kirkwood's chair, he placed thereon a tray, deferentially imparting the information that "Mrs. 'Allam 'as thought 'ow as Mr. Kirkwood might care for a bit of supper."

"Please thank Mrs. Hallam for me." Kirkwood's gratified eyes ranged the laden tray. There were sandwiches, biscuit, cheese and a pot of black coffee, with sugar and cream. "It was very kindly thought of," he added.

"Very good, sir; thank you, sir."

The man turned to go, shuffling soundlessly. Kirkwood was suddenly impressed with his evasiveness. Ever since he had entered the room his countenance had seemed turned from the guest.

"Eccles!" he called sharply at a venture.

The butler halted, thunderstruck. "Ye-es, s-sir!"

"Turn round, Eccles. I want a look at you."

Eccles faced him unwillingly with a stolid front, but shifty eyes. Kirkwood glanced him up and down, grinning.

"Mr. Kirkwood might care for a bit of supper."

"Thank you, Eccles. I'll remember you now. You'll remember me, too, won't you? You're a bad actor, aren't you, Eccles?"

"Yes, sir; thank you, sir," mumbled the man unhappily and took instant advantage of the implied permission to go.

Intensely diverted by the recollection of Eccles' abortive attempt to stop him at the door of No. 9 and wondering, now that he came to think of it, why precisely young Hallam had deemed it necessary to travel with a bodyguard and adopt such furtive methods to enter into as well as to obtain what was asserted to be his own property, Kirkwood turned active attention to the lunch.

Thoughtfully he poured himself a cup of coffee, swallowing it hot and black as it came from the silver pot, then munched the sandwiches.

It was kindly thought of, this early morning repast. Mrs. Hallam seemed more and more a remarkable woman with each phase of her character that she chose to disclose. At odds with him, she yet took time to think of his creature needs. Women, he propounded gravely, are queer. There's no telling anything about them.

One of the most unreadable specimens of the sex on which he pronounced this highly original dictum entered the room just then, and he found himself at once out of his chair and his dream, bowing.

"Mrs. Hallam."

The woman nodded and smiled graciously. "Eccles has attended to your needs, I hope? Please don't stop smoking." She sank into an armchair on the other side of the hearth and, probably by accident, out of the radius of illumination from the lamp, sitting sidewise, one knee above the other, her white arms immaculate against the somber background of crimson.

She was very handsome, indeed, just then, though a keener light might have proved less flattering.

"Now, Mr. Kirkwood?" she opened briskly, with a second intimate and friendly nod, and paused, her pose receptive.

Kirkwood sat down again, smiling good natured appreciation of her unprejudiced attitude.

"Your son, Mrs. Hallam"—

"Oh, Freddie's doing well enough Freddie," she explained, "has a delicate constitution and has seen little of the world. Such melodrama as tonight's is apt to shock him severely We must make allowances, Mr. Kirkwood. I think," she said deliberately, "that it is time we came to an understanding."

Kirkwood agreed—"Yes," affably.

"I purpose being perfectly straightforward. To begin with, I don't place you, Mr. Kirkwood. You are an unknown quantity, a new factor. Won't you please tell me what you are and—are you a friend of Mr. Calendar's?"

ABUSE OF A PRIVILEGE

People Who Lie About Dutiable Goods Must Pay the Penalty

New York, Aug. 31.—Collector of the Port Loeb has determined to teach a lot of people who tell petty lies to Uncle Sam that honesty is the best policy. The customs law allows a passenger to bring in dutiable goods to the value of $100 free, provided the articles are set forth in declarations, but many persons have been found guilty of failing to declare these little things.

Hitherto they have gone unpunished, but yesterday a score or more of passengers were taken to the custom house and made to pay duty on property which, if they had not attempted to conceal it, would have been admitted free.

QUAKES IN PANAMA

Goethals Reports That Canal Is Not Injured In Any Way

Panama, Aug. 31.—The Isthmus of Panama experienced an earth shock extending over a large extent of territory. No damage was done, however. Colonel Goethals gave out the following statement last evening:

"The siesmographs on the isthmus at 8 o'clock this morning recorded earth movements at various stations across the isthmus. However, they were not sufficiently severe to be generally felt nor to have any injurious effects on any of the canal work now in execution or in prospect."

WORTHLESS MINING STOCKS

Suspicion That They Are Being Dealt In by New York Curb Brokers

New York, Aug. 31.—Postoffice inspectors have begun an investigation of complaints against a number of firms doing a stock brokerage business on the curb on Broad street. Complaints have been received from nearly every state in the union, stating that circulars advertising worthless mining stocks were being sent through the mails with disastrous effects.

It is said that the complaint against the offending brokers will be fraudulent use of the mails. Fraud orders have been issued against several concerns, and the outflow of much of the mail has been checked.

Alleged Kidnappers Held

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Stella Barclay and J. N. Gentry, charged with kidnapping Marian Bleakley, the "incubator baby," were arraigned before Judge Simon and their preliminary hearing set for Sept. 8. Their bond was fixed at $6000 each.

Scientists Elect Bonney President

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 31.—Rev. Dr. T. G. Bonney of London was elected president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science for the year 1910-11. The next meeting will be held in Sheffield, Eng., from Aug. 31 to Sept. 7, 1910.

No Friction With Cuba

Washington, Aug. 31.—There does not exist the "slightest friction between this country and Cuba," is the substance of a statement from the American charge d'affaires at Havana.

RELIEF WORK IS ORGANIZED

Must Continue For Long Period In Flood-Stricken District

1400 DEAD IN MONTEREY

Victims In Villages Along the Santa Catarina River May Swell the Total to 2000—American Red Cross to Lend a Hand to Sufferers—Estimated Loss of $30,000,000 From Cyclone and Floods In Mexico

Mexico City, Aug. 31.—Order is gradually coming out of the chaotic conditions caused in Monterey by the overflow of the Santa Catarina river, entailing the loss of some 1400 lives and the ruining of more than $25,000,000 worth of property. But relief work, now well organized, will be necessary for a long time.

Various organized relief corps are busily engaged in assisting the thousands of homeless. Commissions are endeavoring to identify the dead bodies as they are brought in by searchers.

The authorities have taken steps to overcome the deplorable conditions that existed for fully two days after the crest of the flood passed.

Few, if any, have gone hungry. Soup kitchens have been established at four different places throughout the city, where soup, coffee and bread are doled out to the needy. Of the nearly 700 bodies thus far recovered about 200, having been identified, were buried Monday.

Owing to reports that several villages of from fifty to one hundred inhabitants, situated along the Santa Catarina river south of Monterey, were wiped out and their inhabitants drowned, it is believed that the total asserts his belief tonight that the dead will reach 2000.

President Diaz telegraphed $30,000 to Monterey. Vice President Corral has contributed $2000 and American Ambassador Thompson $1000 to the fund. Others are contributing liberally, a public subscription list having been opened in all parts of the republic.

The fact that the Red Cross of the United States is to aid the sufferers has been learned here with profound satisfaction. On behalf of the United States government the American ambassador has sent condolences to President Diaz.

Many of the smaller settlements in the state have been wholly destroyed or badly damaged, while the crops everywhere have been ruined. It is estimated that the total losses in the whole district affected by the cyclone and floods will approximate $30,000,000.

YANKEE BOATS LEAD THE WAY

Win First of Series of German-American Sonder Races

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 31.—America won a decisive victory over Germany in the first of the series of sonder boat races for the President Taft and Governor Draper cups. All three places at the top of the list were captured by the defenders of the trophies, while the three challenging boats brought up well to the rear.

The Joyette, owned by William H. Childs of Brooklyn, won first honors, with the Ellen, owned by Charles P. Curtis of Boston, second, and the Wolf, owned by Caleb Loring of Boston, third. Next came the Margarethe, one of the German challengers, and following her, more than six minutes astern, was the Hevella, while the Seehund II finished last.

The Joyette's total elapsed time was 2h., 36m., 36s. The Ellen was 1m., 32s. behind the Joyette. The Wolf finished 2m., 40s. behind the Ellen. The Margarethe was the first of the German boats to finish, 3m., 2s. behind the Wolf, and 7m., 14s. behind the victorious Joyette. The Hevella was 6m., 3s. behind the Margarethe and the Seehund II brought up the rear, 6m., 4s. behind the Hevella.

The Seehund II carried away her throat halyards within five minutes after crossing the starting line and was unable to resume racing for ten minutes, while the damage was being repaired.

Vice Admiral Barandon, when asked after the race what he thought of the results, said: "Oh, your boats are so much faster. It was a great surprise to me that our yachts did not do better, for this was real Kiel weather."

The admiral, who represents the Kaiserlicher Yacht club, felt very much annoyed because of the disabling of the Seehund II, and said that it should not have happened.

The day was about as delightful a one as yachtsmen or landlubber could wish for. The air was clear, the wind delightfully cool and of from twelve to fifteen miles strength, and the sea so smooth that it did no more than give the contesting yachts a slight jump. Hundreds of yachts of every description and size came out of Marblehead harbor laden with expectant throngs to see the sport. Four revenue cutters were on hand for the purpose of keeping the course clear.

The race was sailed over a triangular course, with the starting line established about five miles southeast of Marblehead Neck. The first leg of the course was a dead beat to windward of 2½ miles, almost directly into the mouth of the harbor, the second leg a broad reach to the eastward, 2½ miles, and the third leg another reach to the stakeboat. This gave the contesting yachts a total distance of fifteen miles to cover, as they were sent around the triangle twice.

SANDFORD'S PROPHECIES

Earthquakes Will Be Used to Bring Men to Their Senses

TIDAL WAVES ALONG COAST

Stars Will Fall From Heaven, and War, Pestilence and Famine Will Play an Important Part In Conquering Evils of the World—Safety Lies In Getting Into Fold of "Holy Ghost and Us"

Rockland, Me., Aug. 31.—Denying having made any prophecy about the world coming to an end and announcing his purpose to establish a chain of missions from Panama to the Arctic for the evangelization of the American continent, Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the sect known as the Holy Ghost and Us, granted his first extended interview since departing on his world cruise of 30,000 miles three years ago. He said in part:

"I have already knowledge that three more ships will be added to our fleet (which now consists of the yacht Coronet, the barkentine Kingdom and two small craft, the Ripple and Overcomer). Nine long years we have worked and waited, and the achievement of our aims is in sight. The tide has already turned in our favor, and when more disciples begin to seek our religion it will be not by the hundred but by the thousands. I shall yet be a popular man in this state."

After reviewing a history of his experience in Maine he continued: "The voyage of the Coronet around the globe has meant the preparing of the way for a mighty outpouring, the stupendous manifestation of divine love to every creature in accordance with the directions given by Christ that first night in Jerusalem.

"Earthquakes will be used to bring men to their senses; tidal waves with fearful violence will sweep along the coasts of the earth till men in their fright will die of heart failure; stars will fall from heaven like falling figs in a tempest; war and pestilence and famine, and many other similar agencies will be brought by the Commander-in-Chief of heaven and earth to conquer this globe, to conquer hearts, to bring the lofty looks of man down and to make emphatic the fact that Christ is Lord indeed.

"In His love, God proposes to warn humanity before these events take place. Tongues of fire upon the heralds, upon those who pray as well as those who preach, upon every member of the church of God and each person throughout His kingdom is absolutely essential to awaken humanity to what is upon us. Professor Totten declared before he died that the seventh vial of God's wrath, which finally bows humanity before God, was to begin pouring out this very year—the year the Coronet finished its great cruise around the globe."

Speaking of his return two weeks ago from the world tour, he said:

"We were fairly besieged to go to our center (Shiloh) and there feed the people, but God had said: 'Go around.' We knew that did not mean the hilltop, (Shiloh) but the coast. Much as we desired to see our loved ones, we must continue our career of conquest along the coast of our native state until such time as God Himself permits us to go up."

He stated that since his return "we have asked God for $25,000 to fit out the fleet properly for evangelistic campaigns to the ends of the earth. The first island visited in answer to prayer yielded us one-tenth of that amount."

Telling of the growth of Shiloh, he said: "And still today we have property interests on the hilltop valued in worldly figures at fully $250,000. These things came about through long and earnest prayer. Shiloh has withstood the storm of criticism for many years, yet through it all, and through the hard times our members have increased from 300 to more than double that number.

"With me God is a real person. I talk with Him and He answers. Not in words, as we understand them, but plain to me here,"—and the speaker struck his breast.

Rebels Pay Dearly For Ambush

Batavia, Java, Aug. 31.—Sharp punishment has been inflicted upon the rebels of the Island of Flores by a Dutch detachment, fifteen members of which were killed in an ambush set by the natives. Dutch reinforcements attacked the rebels fiercely and the natives had 117 men killed.

Woman and Stepson Drowned

Marlboro, Vt., Aug. 31.—Bravely rushing into a pond to save the life of her stepson, who had tumbled from a raft after posing for his picture, Mrs. Elsie Taylor, aged 25, lost her life and her stepson, Francis, aged 11, was also drowned.

AN IMPORTANT POSITION

President Appoints Hoyt as Counsellor of the State Department

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 31.—President Taft disposed of important state department matters Monday with Secretary Knox and closed an exceptionally busy afternoon with the announcement that he has decided to make Beverly the summer capital again next year.

HENRY M. HOYT.

Among the announcements made was the selection of Henry Hoyt, former solicitor general, as counsellor of the state department. This is a newly created office. The counsellor of the department will deal with all the large legal questions which may arise, and will have especial supervision over the negotiation of treaties.

PARADISE IS DUE FIVE YEARS HENCE

Belief of Sect Whose Specialty Is Scripture Prophecies

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Believers in the early dawn of the millenium gathered here from several states for their annual conference, which begun this morning. For four days services will be held in Convention hall.

The followers of the sect believe that in 1914, "after times of great trouble," the world is to be transferred into a paradise. They profess to find their foundation for this belief in the study of Scripture prophecies, which form the principal theme of study at the meetings here.

The conference is under the auspices of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract society.

TESTING WATER SUPPLIES

Unaccountable Spread of Cholera In Many European Cities

The Hague, Aug. 31.—Several cases of suspected cholera have occurred at Amsterdam, and the recurrence of cases at different points, without apparent connection, causes anxiety.

Ninety persons are now under observation and the health boards here and at other cities are taking the strictest precautions. Tests are being made of the rivers and other water supplies.

Double Suicide Suspected

New York, Aug. 31.—With the finding of the body of Charles Schock in a park reservoir here, the authorities are dragging the reservoir in the hope of finding also the body of Dora Hookey, aged 19, with whom Schock is said to have disappeared. The girl's mother believes that there was a suicide agreement.
